Did you see the basket ball game Monday afternoon? Well you should. It was one of the best if not the best exhibitions of basket ball played on the local floor. The Agricultural School team came here with the idea that the Commercial Normal boys had not learned anything since the two teams met early in the fall.

According to their notion the afternoon game was to be a sort of "warming up" for the evening struggle. The Commercial boys started the thing off with a rush and the Aggies had to play their utmost in order to hold their own. There is no doubt that had the referee allowed the same style of play in the afternoon as he did in the evening, the score would have been different. By calling of fouls he managed to retard the speed of the local boys, who felt themselves uncertain about the proper distance they must be from their opponents.

Those who witnessed the game got their money's worth, and went away satisfied that the Commercial Normal boys can put up a stiff fight against the best teams in this part of the state.

HOME GIRLS GIVE BALL

Most Splendid Leap Year Ball ever given by Local Damsels.

The home girls gave the most enjoyable Leap Year Ball ever staged by Thief River's fair damsels, at the Odd Fellows Hall Monday evening. Twenty-five couples were present to enjoy the well-planned program. The young men were more than enthusiastic about the good time they had, and passed around genuinely heart-felt compliments—the kind that make one really feel good.

The hall was tastefully displayed with Japnese lanterns. However, the main decorative features, the ones that made the most pleasurable bit of the evening, were the cozy corners. Especially attractive was the corner over which hung a large moon. This moon was made to furnish the exact shade of light needed for the midnight waltz.

Plenty of good music and a dainty lunch helped to keep everyone in a joyful mood. The charming and efficient manner, in which the eligible ladies of this city carried out their Leap Year Ball, has been marked down in the book of "good things" kept by the eligible young men who were fortunate enough to be present on that memorable occassion.

CAN GET WATER 'TILL RIVER IS DRY.

The Water Department is now working to secure water at the pumping station until the river is completely dry. They have dug and bricked up a 17-ft. well on the bank of the river and are running a 112-ft. corrugated-steel pipe out into the river. Heretofore the pump was connected direct to a pipe, running into the river. In a low stage of water they could not secure clean water, and often no water at all. The present system solves the problem as long as there is any water to be had.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

The Third of a Series of Articles Boosting The Retailer and Jobber.

In the previous articles it has been shown that the retailer and jobber are essential factors in the field of distribution. This old and recognized method of distribution through the retailer and jobber is serving well the people of the United States and is supplying their wants on a very close and fair basis of profit. The present method of distribution is in no wise a factor in the high cost of living. The increased cost of living has been brought about largely by the increased cost of production on farm, and in factory, by a higher standard of living, and more than all the other forces combined by the INCREASED PRODUCTION OF GOLD.

During the last twenty years the supply of gold has been increasing very rapidly. The increase has been much greater than the increase of the volume of commodities which are bought and sold in the markets. This means that gold in its relation to the things we buy has become more plentiful, that an ounce of gold will not exchange for so much as formerly It means that we cannot buy as much with an ounce of gold ($20.67) as formerly. The annual output of the earth's gold mines is now more than one-half billion dollars, which is more than four times what it was a few years ago.

The general level of prices is about 60 per cent. higher than it was in 1896. It has risen in Europe and the United States in about the same ratoi. As compared with 1896, we are now using a sixty-two and one-half (.62½) cent dollar.

The general condemnation of the wholesaler and the retailer as being the cause of the high cost of living is irrational and baseless. They were in business twenty-five years ago just as vigorously as now and prices steadily fell for years. The retailer and wholesaler are selling goods today closer than they were ten years ago—there is absolutely no evidence that their present profit is now larger than it was in 1896. On the contrary many retailers are in

TIMELY QUESTIONS FOR FARMERS

Agricultural Dept. of High School will Test Grain for Farmers.

1. When shall I begin to work on this year's crop production?

4. Have I that many bushels? will have less to do next spring and summer?

3. How many bushels of grain am I going to sow?

4. Have I that many busels?

5. Will my seed grow?

6. Will a small seed produce as good a plant as a large one?

7. Do I have enough weeds on my farm without planting any more when I sow my small grain?

8. Is my machinery ready for spring work?

9. Wouldn't it be a good idea to plant a little more corn this year?

10. When am I going to clean and grade my small grain seed?

11. When statistics prove that cleaned and graded grain, planting only the large seeds, produces about four bushels more per acre than ordinary seed, can I afford to clean and grade my seed grain?

Grain Will be Tested.

The agricultural department of the high school wishes to announce that they will be glad to test any samples of small grain or seed that will be given them.

Small grain is usually planted without being tested at all, diregarding the fact that its germinating ability is often very poor. A farmer may plant three bushels of oats per acre year after year, thinking that he is always seeding at the same rate per acre. The rate of planting may vary from one and a half bushels to three bushels per acre.

The department will also be glad to test milk or cream samples for anyone bringing them in.

FROM THE NATION'S CAPITOL

Presidential Politics; Government owned Railway; New Homestead Law.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 16.—The contest for the Republican presidential nomination has narrowed down to a fierce struggle between the followers of Taft and Roosevelt. The Roosevelt boom continues to grow. While the Roosevelt movement does not have a national organization back of it, yet it has the benefit of various state and local organizations, some of them having recently come into existance for the avowed purpose of advancing the Colonel's candidacy. The taft candidacy has the advantage of having the support of federal patronage. The organization is on its side.

The withdrawal of LaFollette from active participation in the presidential campaign, the result of his recent physicial collapse, furnished Washington politicians with food for gossip and speculation. The stand-patters construed it to mean the breaking up of the progressive forces. With LaFollette eliminated, they said, the cause has been dealt a death blow. The progressives assertthat the movement was not dependent on LaFollette or any one else identified with it. While they give LaFollette the credit for taking a load in the fight against Taft and getting the opposition under way yet they do not admit that the chances of nominating a progressive candidate for President have been lessened by reason of recent develop ments. This much is sure: The LaFollette strength will be for Roosevelt. It is conceded even by LaFollette's staunchest friends that he has been eliminated as a Presidential possibility. Reports received here strongly indicate that Roosevelt is gaining

HOW THEY USED TO DO

Telling How The "Old-Timers" Got Their Start and What They Have Now.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Feb. 14, 1912.

Editor of the Press:

Say, do you know I believe the cold weather is over for this winter. We have had it pretty cold alright, but have you suffered anything? Have you shivered all over from the cold and have your teeth chattered very much? Not mine! I have felt fine. Not even a cold or sore throat. You bet this climate is alright.

I was telling you last time that we started in kind of easy in the olden time. Most of us bought a yoke of oxen and probably a wagon the first year. Some got a breaking plow, in place of the wagon, and we borrowed that from one to the other. In that way we helped out and kept down the expenses. It was some years before any one had a binder, and then he did theentting for the whole community. After a while two or three got together and bought a binder, for you must understand that the price $250 was big money to us in those days.

Talk about hard times now. Some of you should have been here then. Wages was $1.50 a day, and you could hardly get a job, even if you were willing to work your head off. If you had something to sell, no one would buy it. Eggs was worth 6c a dozen, if you could beg the store keeper to take them, and the butter was not wanted at all. That is what I call tough times.

And still most of us "old timers" stood the racket just the same. See the pretty farm buildings and large fields that some of those fellows have now. Most of them got one quarter section from the government as a homestead, but now they have 480 and 640 acres. Land when they came here was worth, nothing I guess, otherwise the government would not given it away to the railroads, and now it sells for $35 to $60. Well what is the use of kicking on the country when you can raise a family, get hold of 640 acres of land worth about $40 an acre, all in about 20 years. Is not that good enough?

Tell me where you can go and do better, and I will tell you more of this country next time.

Yours truly,
JOHN JOHNSON.

THE GENERAL PROPERTY TAX

In This Article a Statement of Taxes Raised In 1909 And What Used For.

The main reliance of the minor divisions of the state, and, to a less extent, of the state itself, is upon what is termed the "general property tax" levied directly upon the real and personal property in the state. The theory of this tax is that every person should bear his just share of the public expenses, and that his ability to bear it is proportioned to the value of his real and personal property. This has been the theory upon which this kind of taxation has been based since the state was organized.

In the table given in the report of the tax commission for 1910 is the following statement of the taxes raised in 1909 and the uses to which they were applied:

State taxes: For revenue and other purposes there was levied $1,742,743.19; schools and university, $1,364,256.34; interest and principal on state loans, $539,658.71; making a total of $3,646,658.24. County taxes for revenue, $3,451,660.26; roads and brid-

GARY SEES SIGNS OF REVOLUTION

Chairman of Steel Trust Board Makes Appeal For Improved Conditions.

New York, Feb. 12.—"Unless capitalists, corporation, rich men, powerful men themselves, take a leading part in trying to improve the conditions of humanity, great changes will come, and they will come mighty quickly and the mob will bring them"

Not since Andrew Carnegie astaund ed his former business associates by calmly announcing that the tariff should be removed from steel, have financial circles in New York been so aroused as by this statement, made by one of its leaders, E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of the steel trust

The Gary statement was part of a speech he delivered early Sunday morning to the New York Lehigh club Gary made it very plain that the people generally are "evincing a readiness to take things into their own hands." He also stated that the "spirit of unrest" was not confined to the United States, but was worldwide.

Perfection of means of communication and "appeals to the prejudice of what it has seen fit to consider the masses," were the reasons assigned by the steel magnate for this condition.

"Things are being said," he declared, "very similar to things said just before the French revolution. I

THE FACTORY PROPOSITION

Flax Fiber Factory would Utilize Straw That Is Now Being Burned.

For some time there has been in our city a Mr. Bierd, representing the North American Flax Fiber Co. With certain inducements these people offer to put in here a Flax Fiber Factory that will utilize all the flax straw that is now being burned and otherwise destroyed.

One thing is certain, that a factory of that nature would be worth more to this city than any man now realizes. It would wed a large farming territory to the city that, under any other conditions, will be very likely to go to some other town in the near future.

Your Attention Rev. F. T. Gates

A Clergyman thanks you for Pamphet defending Saint John D.

An open letter to Rev. Frederick T. Gates from a clergyman who was honored by a complimentary copy of his pamphlet defending John D. Rockerfeller.

Rev. Frederick T. Gates,
Dear Sir:

Your pamphlet to ha[illegible] and from it I gather that John D. in all his transactions with his fellow men, including the organisation of the Standard Oil Co., has been actuated by motives of the purest and noblest—not to say disinterested—philanthropy; and that the acquisition by him of a few hundred millions worth of stok in steel, oil, railroad, and other stock and the crushing of a multitude of competitors, was an incident, which even his large heart and noble purpose could not possibly avoid. I further infer, that you, the Rev. Frederick T. Gates as the agent of the aforesaid John D., are in perfect harmony with the spirit of your ch[illegible] that both of you are entitled to a halo, if not a crown. Permit me to remark that it is a fortunate th[illegible] that Saint John, the oily, has lived

LAFOLLETTE STILL IN THE FIELD

Reports That He Has Withdrawn are False, Says W. L. Houser, Chairman.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[illegible] er in the history of American p[illegible] tics has a candidate been so m[illegible] presented, not only as to his prin[illegible] ples, but as to his actual stat[illegible] as Senator LaFollette.

Senator LaFollette has been working unceasingly for years and be tired. He is not permanetly dis[illegible] although newspaper reports [illegible] the last week have conveyed the [illegible] that he is in a condition of collapse. Mr LaFollette has been compelled to take a few week's rest, and Walter L. Houser, chairman of the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee, issued a statement setting forth that fact. This statement was construed by a large portion of the press, to be a withdrawal of Mr. LaFollette from the contest. Such construction could only be placed upon it by the desire of those whose interests would be served bythe retirement of Mr. LaFollette from the contest. The statement is as follows:

"Senator LaFollette finds it necessary to take a few week's rest. This may prevent his making speeches in the states which are to hold early primaries, and his friends in those states will make such campaign for him as in their judgment will best serve the progressive principles which his candidacy represents.

WISTE WOULD RENT AUDITORIUM

Will Pay City 150 dollars a month when they are not using Bldg.

Chris Wiste, at a special meeting of the council held Wednesday evening, presented the proposition to the city of renting the Auditorium at $150 a month. By giving four days notice the city could have the use of the house at any time, they deducting the proper pro rata amount from rental for each time used. Wiste agrees to put up whatever bond is necessary to insure careful usage of the building. He wants to have things going by March 1st.

Wiste will put in a moving picture machine, and will have high-class vaudeville at least one a week, getting on the Orpheum circuit if possible. He intends to have as popular an entertainment as can be found any where, and at prices within the reach of everyone. His success will depend upon a large patronage. He wants the building inspected every week, and guarantees there will be no spitting on the floor. Careful supervision and a state law will aid in preventing discolorations of the floor. However, the best aid should be found in the fact that most men are gentlemen at heart.

Bjorkman was strongly in favor of accepting Wiste's proposition Wednesday night. It looked to him as tho the city had everything to gain and nothing to lose. The other men favored it, too, but wanted a day or two to think it over; so the meeting was adjourned until Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at which time definite action will be taken.

To People of Marshall County

If is is more convenient for you to pay your PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX when in Thief River Falls, you may do so at the Peoples State Bank on third Street.

The Personal Property Tax must be paid before March 1st to avoid the penalty of 10 per cent. If this tax is not paid by April 1st, it will be necessary for the Sheriff to collect.

You will find the Peoples Bank courteous and accommodating—A nice place to transact business.

HILL ENLIVENS STEEL HEARING

Large Audience Gathers to Hear Empire Builder.

TELLS PHILANTHROPIC STORY

Paid a Trifle Over Four Million Dollars for Ore Lands He Now Values at Five Hundred Millions.

Washington, Feb. 13.—James J. Hill entertained the Stanley steel committee and an audience composed of three or four hundred persons with a story of philanthropy that caused every one present to sit up in open eyed wonderment. In a matter of fact tone, as if he were discussing the weather or the signs of the times, the Northwest railroad builder told the story of how he acquired ore lands in the Mesabi region that he now values at $500,000,000 for a mere bagatelle of $4,050,000.

These ore lands, Mr. Hill testified under oath, covering an area of 39,000 acres, were formerly the property of Wright & Davis, a firm which operated a railroad and owned other property in the Mesabi region. Mr. Hill found out that this firm wanted to sell and just as a deal was about to be made with it by the Consolidated company, a Rockefeller consern, the head of the Great Northern stepped in and closed the bargain at $4,050,000.

Mr. Hill turned over his interest in the newly acquired property to the Lake Superior Consolidated company, a corporation in which he, his three sons, L. W., J. W. J. and J. N. Hill, and E. T. Nicholls were the controlling spirits. Mr. Hill testified that he bought these ore lands for the benefit of the shareholders of the Great Northern. Asked if the Great Northern had not supplied the funds that enabled him to make the purchase Mr. Hill replied emphatically in the negative.

"I have been working for my shareholders for thirty-three years," said Mr. Hill. "Whenever I have seen an opportunity to make money for myself it was an opportunity that I turned to the advantage of my shareholders."

Mr. Hill was summoned by the committee to tell about the relations between the Hill and the steel corporation roads in the Mesabi country and also to narrate the circumstances under which the United States Steel corporation, represented by J. P. Morgan, acquired the Hill ore properties under lease.

Mr. Hill had barely commenced to tell his story of his operations in the Lake Superior region when an adjournment was taken.

LORIMER HEARINGS CLOSE

Inquiry One of the Most Exhaustive Ever Made.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Public hearings in the second senatorial investigation into the election of Senator Lorimer were declared closed by Chairman Dillingham of the senate Lorimer committee. Attorney Hanecy, representing Senator Lorimer, was given permission to file a brief that the senator's election had been adjudicated before the present investigation began and therefore it could not be the subject of a second investigation.

The inquiry has proved to be one of the most exhaustive ever made by a congressional committee. In the eight months' hearing about 10,000 pages of printed testimony were taken, constituting about 5,000,000 words. It is estimated that the stenographers' fees alone reached $15,000.

High Bridge.

High bridge, in New York, was completed in 1842 and at that time was considered one of the world's marvels of bridge building. It may be added that it still is looked upon by bridge builders as a model of its kind. This great stone bridge was built to bring water into the city from the Croton river valley after the great dam was thrown across it forty miles above Manhattan. The aqueduct, cut part way through solid rock and part way continued by tunnel, had to be brought across the Harlem, and the solution of this engineering problem was in High bridge.

His Rule In Danger.

The tough looking citizen who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment at hard labor for beating up his wife appealed to the court with tears in his voice.

"Have a little pity, judge," he whimpered. "I speak to you as man to man. If you send me up for a thing like that I'll never be able to maintain discipline in my family again."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CLARK TO PUSH LAND INQUIRY

Tells How Submerged Lands of Florida Are Sold.

CITY PEOPLE THE VICTIMS

Congressman Asserts Department of Agriculture Materially Assisted in Mulcting Innocent Purchasers Out of Several Millions of Dollars.

Washington, Feb. 13.—"Gold bricks have gone out of fashion," says Representative Frank Clark of Florida, who dragged the ugly Everglade scandal into the light of day, "but liquid land still finds a ready sale. Nowadays, however, it is not the farmer who is gullible, but the city dweller who considers himself hardened against deceit and proof against fraud."

And Mr. Clark adds that the submerged lands, of the exploitation of which, according to the charges he has laid before congress, was materially assisted by the department of agriculture, are owned largely by people in the big cities of the country.

"What farmer," he says, "would buy a farm that had to be plowed with a suction dredge, harrowed with a seine and harvested with a steamboat? Those lands in Florida that the agricultural department has helped to sell should be sold by the quart instead of by the acre."

State Gets 50 Cents an Acre.

"I don't want to see the state of Florida grow prosperous through the practice of highway robbery," says Mr. Clark. He doesn't mean by this that the state of Florida has been selling directly to credulous investors lands that government drainage reports show are now under from two to ten feet of water and the value of which when drained—if drainage can actually be accomplished—is entirely a matter of speculation. The state, in point of fact, has sold immense tracts of these submerged lands to real estate companies at $2 an acre, promising, moreover, to spend $1.50 an acre in draining the lands. Thus the actual price per acre received by the state for the lands has in all cases been just 50 cents.

"Yet," says Mr. Clark, "these companies have turned around and offered these lands to the public at prices ranging from $40 to $100 an acre." He adds that the best information he can obtain is that approximately 100,000 persons all over the United States have paid out between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 to the real estate concerns exploiting the Everglades."

The Seychelles Islands.

The Seychelles islands form an archipelago of 114 islands and are situated about 1,400 miles east of Aden and 1,000 miles from Zanzibar. They rise steeply out of the sea, culminating in the isle of Mahe, which is about 3,000 feet above the level of the ocean and is nearly the center of the group. All the islands are of coral growth. The houses are built of a species of massive coral hewn into square blocks which glisten like white marble.

That the rise in prices can not be due to the retailers and wholesalers—to the present method of distribution, must be evident to any man when he considers that THE RISE IN PRICES IS A WORLD-WIDE PHENOMENNON.

The people of Canada, of England and of all other countries where gold is used as money, are suffering as we do in the United States from the increase in cost of living, and the great majority of people in those countries like the majority of the American people, are blaming the local tradesmen and local conditions rather than the real cause—THE UNPRECEDENTED INCREASE IN THE SUPPLY OF GOLD.

Get on the right side of the fence and boost for local industry.

LEE FOR GOVERNOR

8. It has given away a large part of our waterpowers, and has blocked legislation looking toward the conservation of the remaining sources of power supply.

It has denied to the voters of the state a just and fair reapportionment thereby seeking to maintain its control of party politics.

We believe the republican party in this state cannot permanently endure under boss control and special interest domination, and that the time has come when we must elect to the high office of governor a man of tried ability and unquestioned integrity, consistent in his progressiveness, and above all independent of the influences which dictate the policy of the present administration. Of the three candidates now in the field for the office of governor, we declare our earnest conviction that William E. Lee is the only one worthy of progressive support—the only one truly and at heart opposed to the influences which have controlled the present administration.

We commend the candidacy of William E. Lee to the friends of good government throughout the state, and earnestly solicit their co-operation and support in securing his nomination and election.

HILL ENLIVENS STEEL HEARING

Large Audience Gathers to Hear Empire Builder.

TELLS PHILANTHROPIC STORY

Paid a Trifle Over Four Million Dollars for Ore Lands He Now Values at Five Hundred Millions.

Washington, Feb. 18.—James J. Hill entertained the Stanley steel committee and an audience composed of three or four hundred persons with a story of philanthropy that caused every one present to sit up in open eyed wonderment. In a matter of fact tone, as if he were discussing the weather or the signs of the times, the Northwest railroad builder told the story of how he acquired ore lands in the Mesabi region that he now values at $500,000,000 for a mere bagatelle of $4,050,000.

These ore lands, Mr. Hill testified under oath, covering an area of 39,000 acres, were formerly the property of Wright & Davis, a firm which operated a railroad and owned other property in the Mesabi region. Mr. Hill found out that this firm wanted to sell and just as a deal was about to be made with it by the Consolidated company, a Rockefeller consern, the head of the Great Northern stepped in and closed the bargain at $4,050,000.

Mr. Hill turned over his interest in the newly acquired property to the Lake Superior Consolidated company, a corporation in which he, his three sons, L. W., J. W. J. and J. N. Hill, and E. T. Nicholls were the controlling spirits. Mr. Hill testified that he bought these ore lands for the benefit of the shareholders of the Great Northern. Asked if the Great Northern had not supplied the funds that enabled him to make the purchase Mr. Hill replied emphatically in the negative.

"I have been working for my shareholders for thirty-three years," said Mr. Hill. "Whenever I have seen an opportunity to make money for myself it was an opportunity that I turned to the advantage of my shareholders."

Mr. Hill was summoned by the committee to tell about the relations between the Hill and the steel corporation roads in the Mesabi country and also to narrate the circumstances under which the United States Steel corporation, represented by J. P. Morgan, acquired the Hill ore properties under lease.

Mr. Hill had barely commenced to tell his story of his operations in the Lake Superior region when an adjournment was taken.

LORIMER HEARINGS CLOSE

Inquiry One of the Most Exhaustive Ever Made.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Public hearings in the second senatorial investigation into the election of Senator Lorimer were declared closed by Chairman Dillingham of the senate Lorimer committee. Attorney Hanecy, representing Senator Lorimer, was given permission to file a brief that the senator's election had been adjudicated before the present investigation began, and therefore it could not be the subject of a second investigation.

The inquiry has proved to be one of the most exhaustive ever made by a congressional committee. In the eight months hearing about 10,000 pages of printed testimony were taken, constituting about 5,000,000 words. It is estimated that the stenographers' fees alone reached $15,000.

High Bridge.

High bridge in New York was completed in 1842, and at that time was considered one of the world's major bridge building [illegible] and it still is looked upon by bridge builders as a model of its kind. This great stone bridge was built to bring water into the city from the Croton river valley after the great dam was thrown across it forty miles above Manhattan. The aqueduct, cut part way through solid rock and part way continued by tunnel, had to be brought across the Harlem, and the solution of this engineering problem was in High bridge.

His Rule In Danger.

The tough looking citizen who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment at hard labor for beating up his wife appealed to the court with tears in his voice.

"Have a little pity, judge," he whimpered. "I speak to you as man to man. If you send me up for a thing like that I'll never be able to maintain discipline in my family again."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CLARK TO PUSH LAND INQUIRY

Tells How Submerged Lands of Florida Are Sold.

CITY PEOPLE THE VICTIMS

Congressman Asserts Department of Agriculture Materially Assisted in Mulcting Innocent Purchasers Out of Several Millions of Dollars.

Washington, Feb. 13.—"Gold bricks have gone out of fashion," says Representative Frank Clark of Florida, who dragged the ugly Everglade scandal into the light of day, "but liquid land still finds a ready sale. Nowadays, however, it is not the farmer who is gullible, but the city dweller who considers himself hardened against deceit and proof against fraud."

And Mr. Clark adds that the submerged lands, of the exploitation of which, according to the charges he has laid before congress, was materially assisted by the department of agriculture, are owned largely by people in the big cities of the country.

"What farmer," he says, "would buy a farm that had to be plowed with a suction dredge, harrowed with a seine and harvested with a steamboat? Those lands in Florida that the agricultural department has helped to sell should be sold by the quart instead of by the acre."

State Gets 50 Cents an Acre.

"I don't want to see the state of Florida grow prosperous through the practice of highway robbery," says Mr. Clark. He doesn't mean by this that the state of Florida has been selling directly to credulous investors lands that government drainage reports show are now under from two to ten feet of water and the value of which when drained—if drainage can actually be accomplished—is entirely a matter of speculation. The state, in point of fact, has sold immense tracts of these submerged lands to real estate companies at $2 an acre, promising, moreover, to spend $1.50 an acre in draining the lands. Thus the actual price per acre received by the state for the lands has in all cases been just 50 cents.

"Yet," says Mr. Clark, "these companies have turned around and offered these lands to the public at prices ranging from $40 to $100 an acre." He adds that the best information he can obtain is that approximately 100,000 persons all over the United States have paid out between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 to the real estate concerns exploiting the Everglades."

The Seychelles Islands.

The Seychelles islands form an archipelago of 114 islands and are situated about 1,400 miles east of Aden and 1,000 miles from Zanzibar. They rise steeply out of the sea, culminating in the isle of Mahe, which is about 3,000 feet above the level of the ocean and is nearly the center of the group. All the islands are of coral growth. The houses are built of a species of massive coral hewn into square blocks which glisten like white marble.

Tells How Submerged Lands of Florida Are Sold.

CITY PEOPLE THE VICTIMS

Congressman Asserts Department of Agriculture Materially Assisted in [illegible] was dragged [illegible] into the light of day, but liquid land still finds a ready sale. Nowadays, however, it is not the farmer who is gullible but the city dweller who considers himself hardened against deceit and proof against fraud.

And Mr. Clark adds that the submerged lands, of the exploitation of which, according to the charges he has laid before congress, was materially assisted by the department of agriculture, are owned largely by people in the big cities of the country.

"What farmer," he says, "would buy a farm that had to be plowed with a suction dredge, harrowed with a seine and harvested with a steamboat? Those lands in Florida that the agricultural department has helped to sell should be sold by the quart instead of by the acre."

State Gets 50 Cents an Acre.

"I don't want to see the state of Florida grow prosperous through the practice of highway robbery," says Mr. Clark. He doesn't mean by this that the state of Florida has been selling directly to credulous investors lands that government drainage reports show are now under from two to ten feet of water and the value of which when drained—if drainage can actually be accomplished—is entirely a matter of speculation. The state, in point of fact, has sold immense tracts of these submerged lands to real estate companies at $2 an acre, promising, moreover, to spend $1.50 an acre in draining the lands. Thus the actual price per acre received by the state for the lands has in all cases been just 50 cents.

"Yet," says Mr. Clark, "these companies have turned around and offered these lands to the public at prices ranging from $40 to $100 an acre." He adds that the best information he can obtain is that approximately 100,000 persons all over the United States have paid out between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 to the real estate concerns exploiting the Everglades."

The Seychelles Islands.

The Seychelles islands form an archipelago of 114 islands and are situated about 1,400 miles east of Aden and 1,000 miles from Zanzibar. They rise steeply out of the sea, culminating in the isle of Mahe, which is about 3,000 feet above the level of the ocean and is nearly the center of the group. All the islands are of coral growth. The houses are built of a species of massive coral hewn into square blocks which glisten like white marble.

serious distress because their trade in many articles is declining and customers are criticising their high prices.

That the rise in prices can not be due to the retailers and wholesalers—to the present method of distribution, must be evident to any man when he considers that THE RISE IN PRICES IS A WORLD-WIDE PHENOMENNON.

The people of Canada, of England and of all other countries where gold is used as money, are suffering as we do in the United States from the increase in cost of living, and the great majority of people in those countries like the majority of the American people, are blaming the local tradesmen and local conditions rather than the real cause—THE UNPRECEDENTED INCREASE IN THE SUPPLY OF GOLD.

Get on the right side of the fence and boost for local industry.

8. It has given away a large part of our waterpowers, and has blocked legislation looking toward the conservation of the remaining sources of power supply.

It has denied to the voters of the state a just and fair reapportionment thereby seeking to maintain its control of party politics.

We believe the republican party in this state cannot permanently endure under boss control and special interest domination, and that the time has come when we must elect to the high office of governor a man of tried ability and unquestioned integrity, consistent in his progressiveness, and above all independent of the influences which dictate the policy of the present administration. Of the three candidates now in the field for the office of governor, we declare our earnest conviction that William E. Lee is the only one worthy of progressive support—the only one truly and at heart opposed to the influences which have controlled the present administration.

We commend the candidacy of William E. Lee to the friends of good government throughout the state, and earnestly solicit their co-operation and support in securing his nomination and election.

How to cure a cold is a question in which many are interested just now. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won its great reputation and immense sale by its remarkable cure of colds. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all Druggists.

Less Work on the Farm

Labor-saving machines are what every farmer wants. Hired help is scarce, and there are so many odd jobs about the farm that are a drudgery, that every farmer wants to secure the machine that will lessen that drudgery. Standing in the front rank of practical labor-saving machines is the Keystone. Any of the machines in the Keystone line are thoroughly efficient and will answer the requirements of every farm. The Keystone line of machines stand for excellence. Call and inspect them.

Strength of the Condor.

The enormous strength of the condor is equaled by his voracity and boldness. This immense bird often pounces upon small animals, but from the shape and bluntness of his claws he is unable to carry anything very heavy, so he contents himself with fixing it against the ground with one of his claws, while with the other and his powerful beak he rends it to pieces. Gorged with food, the bird then becomes incapable of flight and may be approached, but any attempt at capture is furiously resisted. An American traveler in the Andes encountered a large condor just after it had finished a hearty banquet on a young sheep and foolishly attempted to seize the bird, with the result that he received a gash from its claw. Then he called up his two guides, and the three men maneuvered to take the bird alive. But every attempt was frustrated, and in the end one of the men killed it by a blow with a hatchet.

DYNAMITE KILLS THIRTEEN MEN

Premature Explosion Occurs Near Fort Francis, Ont.

SOME MISSING AND INJURED

Accident Happens on an Island in Rainy Lake Where Big Bridge Is Under Construction.

Fort Francis, Ont., Feb. 10.—Thirteen men are dead and five seriously injured as the result of a premature explosion of a charge of dynamite at the construction works of the Johnson-Cary camps on an island on Rainy lake, eight miles east of here, where the St. Paul firm of contractors is constructing a three-mile bridge across the north arm of Rainy lake, making heavy rock fills on the islands between the bridge spans.

Twelve men were killed outright and six seriously injured. One of the injured has since died. There are still some of the men unaccounted for, so that the death list may be still further augmented before the search now being prosecuted is finished.

The cause of the explosion was the premature discharge of one of the holes charged with dynamite. The gang of men, under Foreman Thomas Casey of Lebanon, Pa., had sunk sixty-four holes, at a uniform depth of fifty-two feet and one of the charges in the holes, it is said, was not properly placed and it was while this charge was being taken out that it was set off, the concussion immediately causing the other sixty-three charges to explode. The men were hurled into the air along with tons of flying rock and debris.

So great was the explosion that large pieces of rock, the size of a small house, were upheaved, while the foreman, who had been standing over one of the holes, was blown into the air 150 feet, the body landing over near the Canadian Northern main line, with both legs blown off and the body frightfully disfigured.

HOLDS UP RATE INCREASE

Commerce Commission Suspends New Western Classification.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The new Western classification of freight on which the Western transportation lines worked for many months and which recently was filed with the interstate commerce commission was ordered by the commission to be suspended from Feb. 15 to June 25.

The proposed classification contains hundreds of changes, resulting in many advances and some decreases in present rates. Rates would be affected by the new classification not only in Western territory but throughout the country on all freight originating in, or destined to, points in that territory.

Democrats Decide on Agricultural Department Inquiry.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Thorough investigation of the charges that government reports on Florida Everglades lands were suppressed by officials of the department of agriculture at the instance of land speculators, and that department engineers were dismissed because of controversies in this connection, was determined upon by the Democratic members of the house committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture.

ITS SURRENDER UNCONDITIONAL

Chinese Throne Issues Edict of Abdication.

Peking, Feb. 12.—After three centuries of absolute rule the Manchu dynasty has yielded up its power and abdicated the throne of China in favor of a representative form of government. This was proclaimed in three simultaneous edicts, the first announcing abdication; the second declaring that the throne accepted the republic while the third approved all the conditions agreed upon by Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the republicans. This edict, approving of all the conditions agreed upon between Yuan Shi Kai and the republican representatives, created even much astonishment. It has been expected that the Manchus would demand conditions which would safeguard many of the privileges, but according to the proclamation the surrender is unconditional. The third edict informed the viceroys and provincial governors of the retirement of the throne from political power and instructed them to continue doing their duty and to preserve order throughout the land.

Governor Wilson Makes Address at Chicago.

DECLARES FOR REFORMS

Favors Initiative and Referendum, but Opposes Recall of Judges—Declares the People Are Dissatisfied With Republican Management of the Nation's Affairs.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Governor Woodrow Wilson "fired the opening gun" in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination in the Central states in an address before the Iroquois club by reiterating his belief in the initiative and referendum and predicting Democratic victory at the polls in November.

He arrived in Chicago from Kentucky early in the day and during the morning met hundreds of Chicago business men and Democratic leaders from different parts of Illinois.

Six hundred representative citizens attended the Lincoln birthday luncheon, at which Governor Wilson was the guest of honor.

"I believe in the initiative and referendum because they will give the people real representative government," said Governor Wilson. "They are state and local questions and are designed to give the people the power in localities where special interests have obtained control of public affairs.

"I have never heard them suggested as a substitute for representative government. In fact, they will safeguard the people in preserving representative government wherever and whenever it is necessary.

Against Recall of Judges.

"I never have favored the recall of judges because they are not administrative officers of the government. They simply interpret and enforce the law. To urge the recall of judges is to treat a symptom rather than the disease.

"My idea is to abolish the laws which makes it possible for special interests to control the judiciary.

"Sound business needs have no fear of progressive government. It is only the business that thrives on special privilege that is in danger.

"I have visited a number of states and I think the Democratic party's prospects for success are excellent, no matter who is nominated by the Republicans.

"The country I believe is dissatisfied with Republican management of the nation's affairs. The people desire a change. The Republicans have failed to rectify the essential wrongs.

"I think the people are more interested in principles than in persons in this year's presidential campaign."

HALDANE RETURNS HOME

British War Minister Pleased With Visit to Germany.

London, Feb. 13.—Viscount Haldane, minister of war, returned from Germany enthusiastic over the reception that he had been given by the kaiser and other German officials.

VISCOUNT HALDANE.

He declared that the friendliness manifested toward him eclipsed all expectations.

Although he did not issue any official statement on his arrival he indicated that his trip would pave the way to a lessening of the tension between the two countries.

GERMAN FLEET TO VISIT US

Kaiser's Third Son to Accompany Warships to United States.

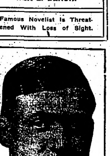
Berlin, Feb. 13.—The month of June has been selected for the visit of the German squadron to the United States to return the visit to Kiel of the Second division of the United States North Atlantic squadron under the command of Rear Admiral Badger in June last year.

No definite plans have yet been drawn regarding the vessels, which are to proceed to American waters.

It is now certain that Prince Adalbert, the emperor's third son, will accompany the squadron.

REX E. BEACH.

Famous Novelist Is Threatened With Loss of Sight.



HAS OPTICAL RHEUMATISM

Rex Beach May Lose Sight of at Least One Eye.

New York, Feb. 11.—Rex Beach, the novelist, is threatened with the loss of sight in at least one eye, according to an announcement by his physician. He is confined to a dark room in his home.

This is the second time Beach has suffered from what physicians call optical rheumatism, the result of exposure in Alaska and elsewhere.

GIVES HIS OPINION OF PROGRESSIVES

President Declares They Are "Political Emotionalists."

New York, Feb. 13.—President Taft brought his celebration of Lincoln's birthday to a close here with a political speech to the Republican club, in which he declared that it was his belief that Republicans would triumph next November and defined his opinion of those of his own political faith who call themselves progressives but who, according to the president, "are political emotionalists or neurotics."

For nine reasons, the president said, the Republican party could be regarded as the party of progress. That party, he said, had provided for the "close regulation of corporations given privileges by the state;" had passed and amended the interstate commerce act, the employers' liability law and a law for a mining bureau; had provided for workmen's compensation and mediation between railroads and their employes. It was willing, he added, to perfect the judicial procedure of the federal courts, would revise the tariff in accordance with sound principles of economics, had advanced a policy of conservation and stood for world peace.

INSIST THAT ROOSEVELT RUN

Progressives Hold Important Conference at Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Theodore Roosevelt's nomination for president by the Chicago convention next June was demanded on behalf of the public sentiment of the nation. The demand came as an ultimatum from a conference held at the Congress hotel in which twenty-four states were represented by seventy-three men. In the conference were eight governors of states and two former governors.

SEVEN OF THE CREW DROWNED

Steamer Sunk In Collision Off the English Coast.

Hull, Eng., Feb. 13.—The steamships Wychwood and Torbay were in collision off the entrance to Hull harbor during a fog.

The latter was rammed amidships and almost cut in two, sinking within a few minutes.

Seven members of the Torbay crew were drowned and the remainder landed here by the Wychwood.

BRYAN GIVES HIS OPINION

Says It Would Be Suicidal to Nominate Harmon.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 11.—"I think it would be suicidal to nominate Harmon or any one else favored by Wall street."

This message, bearing the name of W. J. Bryan, was received by United States Senator Gore from Sinton, Tex., by telegraph and is being widely circulated over Oklahoma.

HOUSE CUTS CAVALRY FORCE

Reduces Number of Regiments From Fifteen to Ten.

Washington, Feb. 10.—A reduction of the cavalry force of the United States army from fifteen to ten regiments, with a consequent reduction of the enlisted force of the army by 3,980 men, was voted into the army appropriation bill in the house after a bitter fight.

NAGEL FOR SUPREME BENCH

Secretary of Commerce and Labor to Succeed Harlan.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The existing vacancy on the supremt court bench, the fifth that has occurred in the present administration, probably will be filled by the appointment of Secretary of Commerce and Labor Charles Nagel of St. Louis. President Taft is expected to send the nomination of Mr. Nagel to the senate within a few days.

United States Judge William C. Hook of Kansas, who was most prominently mentioned for the vacancy, is said to have been eliminated from further consideration at an hour's session of the cabinet. All of the lawyers in the cabinet, except Mr. Nagel, were present and afterward it was learned that the president had made clear his intention of appointing his secretary of commerce and labor.

THREATS DO NOT MATERIALIZE

Churchill's Visit to Belfast Causes No Serious Disorder.

Belfast, Feb. 9.—The essential features of the Liberal government's home rule bill to be introduced into the British parliament were set forth for the first time in the course of the speech of Winston Spencer Churchill, the first lord of the admiralty.

The predicted hostile demonstration against Mr. Churchill did not materialize and though there were shouts and jeers as the secretary and Mr. Redmond drove through the streets no violence was attempted.

Cromwell's Spurs.

It is generally acknowledged that the most brilliant light cavalry officer Great Britain has ever produced was Oliver Cromwell. It is therefore peculiarly unfortunate, but it is nevertheless a fact, that on the statue of the Protector which stands outside Westminster hall the spurs are represented as attached to the boots upside down. Further, the left spur is on the right foot, and the right is on the left, while it is insisted by the best experts that the spurs are not of the period.—"The Bargain Book."

We wonder if Dr. Dumas will consent to be mayor of Cass Lake, president of the Cass County Development Association and prominent and respected citizen of Cass Lake after he takes up his residence with Warden Wolfer at Still water.—Itasca Co. Independent.

Seems Steenerson got in on the ground floor for 166.70 acres of good land on the White Earth Indian reservation and was consequently adopted into the tribe nuder the name of "Otay-Ya-We-Gah-Bo." Steenerson looks like a bad Indian. What are the ninth district voters going to do about it?—Sauck Center Herald.

LAUDS BRYAN

Thief River Falls, Minn.: "William J. Bryan I believe is more sincerely concerned for the welfare of the average citizen than any other candidate. He is simply incorruptible, has no entangling alliances with the money power, and is the ablest statesman of the present day. P. S.—I don't believe there is a town in Pennington county where Taft could be elected to the position of poundmaster."—Mpls. Journal. This would seem as tho Bryan still had his followers in our midst. We believe the Journal Correspondent is correct on his appreciation of Taft's strength.

At the present time it would seem that Mr. William E. Lee of Long Prairie was the most formidable candidate for governor. Mr. Lee has been an active business man all his life. He has been a member of the legislature, speaker of the house, member of the state normal board, superintendent of the state reformatory, one of the managers of the state fair and a member of the first state board of control which organized and put into operation the system under which the state institutions are now managed. Mr. Lee has a splendid record both as a public officer and as a private business man and would come to the governor's chair with a pretty fair knowledge of how the interior workings of state should be. Mr. Lee would make a good governor.—Marshall Co. Banner. Yes and with the endorsement of the Progressive League of Hennepin County Mr. Lee is far the strongest candidate in the field and only the practice of "sharp politics" can defeat the will of the people and by so doing defeat Mr. Lee.

SCHOOL NOTES

* * * * * * * * * * *

Extension meetings are being held this week by the department of agriculture of the local school in the school houses adjacent to the city. These gatherings are well attended and are a part of the work of the Putnam schools. They will be repeated every two weeks until the last week of March, when a three days' farmers' institute will take place in the city.

All the high school teachers except two attended the meeting of the North Central Teachers' Association at Bemidji last Friday. Miss Dewey and Miss Herrick visited the Warren schools on that day. Some of those attending the association took an active part on the programs and all report an excellent time. Bemidji will reciprocate when the Northwestern Minnesota Teachers' Association convenes in Thief River Falls next October.

A large number of candidates wrote at the teachers' examination in the Lincoln building last Friday and Saturday. These tests were conducted by County Superintendent Mostue.

Next Friday evening, the Englestad school, one of the rural schools associated with the city high school under the Putnam act for agricultural purposes, will act as host to two adjoining schools and all will enjoy a social evening at Valhall. Dr. Gambell will deliver his lecture on Alaska and others will also take part in the entertainment. The high school band of fourteen pieces will be present and supply the necessary music. This event is one of the features of the work possible of accomplishment under association with the city school and can be duplicated in any school district.

Hon. D. P. O'Neill became a pedagogue temporarily last Friday and accompanied the school people to the meeting at Bemidji.

The musical program presented at the Lincoln assembly room last Wednesday evening by the famous Kipp family was one of the choicest ever listened to by local music lovers. This talented family of Minnesota people plays for schools only and it is unfortunate that so short a time was allowed for advertising the event.

More than one inquiry was made of SCHOOL NOTES a week ago, just what the reason was that the wide awake local papers are devoting many coulmns of valuable space to detailed accounts of the wrestling contests, while they entirely ignored the announcement that the largest convention gathering which ever assembles in northwestern Minnesota will honor this city next October with its presence. The Northwestern Minnesota Teachers' Association has decided to convene in Thief River Falls next October for a series of three days and as never less than 800 people have been present at all the annual meetings, the importance of this event deserves more than absolute silence on the part of all good boosters.

The high school basketball team succeeded last Monday evening in administering a defeat to their opponents from the agricultural school at Crookston. This team is considered to be one of the strongest in the Valley, but the superior team work of the local boys proved too much for the "Aggies."

Just what value attaches to giving school children holidays on Lincoln and Washington days cannot well be made out. It would be much better in practice were school to be held those days and appropriate exercises dealing with the lives and work of these great men presented by the students. As matters stand now, a break in the weekly work occurs and the day and its import are forgotten in the thought of escape from the grind of the school room.

The school friends of Carl Nelson are sorry to learn of his long continued illness from appendicitis and of his removal to the Warren hospital for treatment. It is hoped he will soon recover from this dread disease and enjoy his former good health.

The teachers and school officers of Marshall county hold their annual joint meeting at Warren on Washington's birthday.

One of the agricultural recitation rooms in the Lincoln resembles a machine shop. Several pieces of machinery, including some gasoline engines, are used there by the classes in agriculture and by the short course students for practice work.

FIRST JUDICIAL DITCH PETITION IS FILED

The first Judicial Ditch petition for Pennington county was filed with Clerk of Court, Ives. The petition was gotten up by prominent farmers of the southern part of the county. The ditch is to begin in section 33, township of Sanders, and to run southwest and then straight south into Red Lake county. There will be two branches, making all told about ten miles of ditch. Bonds to the amount of $1500 have been put up for building the ditch. A ditch hearing will be ordered, and if the ditch is approved, engineers and viewers will be appointed. After the viewers have finished their work, there will be a second hearing for the purpose of adjusting any differences that may have arisen in regard to the course of the ditch and the amount each individual benefitted has to pay.

Mrs. Fred Holzknecht was given a most enjoyable surprise party by a large number of her friends last Sunday evening, the surprise being given in rememberance of Mrs. Holzknecht's birthday. Everyone reports having a jolly good time.

At The Lyceum

The Boston-Von Company, presenting their laughable farce the "Professor's Reception", appear at the Lyceum theater this week Thursday Friday and Saturday. The "Professor's Reception" is a comedy farce out of the ordinary. Clean, wholesome and refined. A scream from start to finish. Properly dressed and presented in the real spirit of vandeville. Boston and Von carry a complete set of furniture and all properties used in the act.

Farmers must expect a good crop this year, a number of new fanning mills have been bought in this neighborhood. We think this is a good start.

Last week Mrs. Thos. Clausen passed her 39th and John Ristau his 43rd birthday, and as usual a number of neighbors gathered and spent an enjoyable evening.

Geneva Payne made an over-Sunday visit with the old folks, returning to Thief River Monday.

Irving Quist came up lest week, putting in a telephone and a switchboard at Charles Cook's place, so we are able to make a night call if necessary. And it was used almost the first night by a party from Esplee, who had to call for a doctor.

Monday J. Brown of Warren came thru here enroute to Grygla. We are informed that Mr. Brown will soon move to Thief River Falls.

A representative of the Berger Mfg. Co. was up last week to establish an agency for the firm, which probably will be taken by the Co-operative Store, if satisfactory arrangements can be made.

Don't forget to attend the annual meeting of the store Feb. 28.

Mrs. Mike Johnson is seriously ill.

John Skomedal is busy hauling lumber from Thief River Falls now days.

Erind Ose had a runaway last week but nobody was hurt.

Andrew Juppru's infant baby has been on the sick list, but is improving.

Torben Skomedal and Miss Sollom the school teacher made a trip to T. R. Falls Friday both for business and pleasure.

Knut T. Ose, and G. Skomedal were callers at Nels Sordal's Sunday.

John Espeli and family visited at Ole Johnson's Sunday.

Joseph Russel made a trip to Mud Lake Monday for a load of wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Christoferson, from Thief River Falls visited at G. J. Skomedal's Sunday.

Henry Oen from Thief River Falls was out this way trying to hunt rabbits but changed his mind and went sleigh riding with the Russel and Skomedal children.

Silas Torgerson and Nels Gunderson were callers at John Skomedal's Sunday.

Gina Aus spent Sunday afternoon with Jennie Samuelson.

Louise Netteland visited at Ordal's over Sunday.

A crowd of young folks from here went sleighriding out to Andrew Anderson's place at Rocksbury last Saturday evening, returning home Sunday with the wee hours of morning. In spite of the snowflakes which seemed to be playing the same old game, a "morning glory" opened its eyes to the rising sun, but was not as bright as those of the sweet month of June.

Mr. N. K. A. Teddy called at Rhodegaard's Saturday evening, but did not find the girls at home, so he had to postpone it till Sunday evening.

Mr. L. Savik is spending this week in the country, being busy cutting wood. He was instantly called from his work Tuesday afternoon by the heart rendering sobs of "gutten som gret for gryta som reiste."

We are sorry to learn that Rev. Nordhus and family have moved away from our neighborhood. They will reside in Thief River Falls, and it is hoped, however, that he will still make us a visit once in a while. His many friends here wish him a good luck and good fortune in his new field of work. Tho' for the short time he stayed here, he will long be rembered among us.

Jennie Samuelson spent Sunday evening at Rhodegaard's, returning home Monday.

Minnie Myrom and Will Sande were evening callers at Rhodegaard's Sunday.

No wonder its so dark and dreary these days. "Ljuse staken" has been moved away as predicted. That's just what we thot—we couldn't expect it better.

"In any state where his friends find it impossible because of his present inability to fill speaking engagements, to secure the election of delegates for him, they will best serve the progressive cause by instructing delegates, where they find it possible to do so, for the thoroughgoing and definite principles which he has advocated and aided in embodying in progressive statutes, proposed in constructive measures which he has introduced in the United States Senate, and in the addresses which he has already made in this campaign.

"Senator LaFollette was urged to become a candidate by the most active Progressive Republicans of the country because they believed that he, better than any other man, by the whole course of his political career, represented those principles. He would never have consented to stand as a candidate, except in good faith. Though he finds his plans interfered with by his temporary indisposition, in fulfillment of the implied pledge which his candidacy made to those who always believed in the sincerity and constancy of his purposes, his name will be presented to the National Republican Convention and delegates will make an aggressive contest for his nomination and for a strong progressive platform.

"To this end, the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee will devote its best efforts.

"Whatever time Senator LaFollette can devote to the campaign after taking a needed rest for a few weeks, will be given subject to such demands as his official duties make upon him.

W. L. Houser.

It is the intention of the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee to prosecute the campaign for Mr. LaFollette with all the vigor of which it is capable. The construction which was placed upon the above statement by the interests' press caused a panicky feeling in the ranks of the Progressives in some of the states. It was not until they received the full statement and knew exactly the situation, that it was realized that LaFollette had been misrepresented and that advantage was taken of a temporary withdrawal of his activities from the campaign to make the claim that he had permanently retired from the contest. Progressives everywhere resented this action and the campaign headquarters in this city have been flooded with assurances of renewal of support and of a tightening of the lines everywhere.

The following from the South Dakota organization is a sample of what the Progressives are doing throughout the West and northwest.

"Pierre, S. D., Feb. 8, 1912.
"Hon. W. L. Houser,
"C-O Evans Bldg.,
"Washington, D. C.

"Dear Sir: South Dakota Progressive Republicans request that Senator LaFollette be asked not to campaign. We believe that he would give the last drop of his blood for our country. Let us not sacrifice such a valuable man for such modern man killing speech making. We withdraw our request that he speak in South Dakota, and through you assure him that we will send to the national convention a delegation for Bob LaFollette and all that he is working for nationally.

Yours very truly,
"John Sutherland, Manager.

PEOPLE OF SMALL MEANS

Are Prey of Confidence Men, Says Dr. Jordan, Supt. of Minneapolis Schools.

A fertile field for the get-rich-quick swindler is furnished by the Minneapolis public schools, according to Supt. of Schools C. M. Jordan, who said recently that teachers, as well as widows and clergymen, should be protected from crooks operating fraudulent investment enterprises, and suggested the establishment of a bureau to give such protection by the Civic and Commerce association.

However, teachers are no more helpless in the problem of investment than the majority of people of small means—and often people of large means. Here are a few of the ways the innocent lose their money:

Purchasing suburban real estate of other cities.

Buying property they have never seen because "distance lends enchantment."

Investing without investigating.

Now when you have a little money to invest—hard earned money that you don't care to take any chances with, yet want reasonable returns—the wisest thing to do is to take that money to a place of known safety—a place that has an enviable reputation for honesty and good sound business advice like the

There will be a show for three nights in the Auditorium March 7, 8 and 9. Watch for later announcements.

All the corners in the Auditorium off which plaster had been, or was liable to be, knocked have been covered with neat mouldings. A stitch in time saves nine.

Never again will you buy good merchandise for so little money. Saturday is your last chance for Bargains See ad of the Co-operative Store Co. on page 8.

The special meetings at the Presbyterian church, which closed last Sunday night were fairly well attended. Those who did not attend were the losers, as the Rev. Robert S. Sidebotham is an able speaker and gave some very good sermons.

Never again will you buy good merchandise for so little money. Saturday is your last chance for Bargains See ad of the Co-operative Store Co. on page 8.

Oliver Severs returned from Climax last Wednesday, after spending a week with relatives and looking after farm interests. Oliver says he will go back to the farm again in the spring.

O. Jacobson, manager of the Auditorium, said at the council meeting Wednesday night that he did not think there would be any friction between himself and Mr. Wiste, as he knew Wiste to be a fair and honest man.

WIFE GOT TIP TOP ADVICE

"My wife wanted me to take our boy to the doctor to cure an ugly boil writes D. Frankel, of Stroud, Okla. "I said 'put Bucklen's Arnica Salve on it.' She did so, and it cured the boil in a short time." Quickest healer of Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Corns, Bruises, Sprains Swellings. Best Pile cure on earth. Try it. Only 25c at all Druggists.

Flax straw is the most worthless item that a farmer has in his possession at the end of his season's work, except horse-flesh that it will cost him considerable money and time to carry thru the winter, and if he would be given half a chance to let the horses earn their winter feed by hauling the valueless straw to some market, nine men out of every ten would surely take the chance. Mr. Bierd left on Wednesday morning for Winnipeg to consult with Mr. McAdam, who is on his return from a trip to Calgary and other points in Western Canada.

The Press is sorry to note the indifference with which this proposition has met at the hands of our business men. It really seems that some of them do not yet realize that any project that would be a benefit to the country would be a still greater benefit to the city in its midst. It is certainly to be hoped that something will be done to encourage this important move. If the city took ahold of this matter in a proper spirit the farming community would soon follow suit and there would be no hardship imposed upon anyone.

Let everyone take a hold of this matter and encourage the move by word and deed, and the result will be a fine Flax Fiber Factory for Thief River Falls within the next year.

Best Game of Season

The Aggies used eight men while the Commercials played the same five throughout the game. At the end of the first half the score was14to 13 in favor of the visitors. The game ended with the score 34 to 29 in Crookston's favor. Jacobson at forward played a fast game and scored the greatest number of points. Carlson at center outplayed his tall opponent, but had to work too much on the defensive. Saterstrom, star man of the visitors, did not play as fast as usual

The game was clean and entirely free from rough play. It was just the kind that entertains the crowd and at the same time suits the players.

H. S. VS. C. A. C.

The local High School basket ball team defeated the Crookston Agricultural team 38 to 25 in the High School gymnasium here Monday evening. Before the first half was over the home boys were playing the visitors off their feet, and by the end of the first half had 20 points against 10 points. Crookston took quite a brace in the second half, but were unable to overtake the local boys, who, too, got faster as the game progressed. Saterstrom, the big center upon whom the Aggies based their hopes for many points, wasn't feeling well and in addition to that received in the fore part of the game from one of his own men a severe jolt between the eyes, which put him out of commission so that he did not play the second half. In this game the local boys clearly demonstrated that they can hold their own with any of the High School or amateur teams in the state. They have made wonderful progress in team work and basket shooting, under the supervision of coach Richardson. Every man held his opponent to a stand-still, and it can not justly be said that one man played a better game than the other. Carter did fine basket throwing, securing 12 field goals and 4 foul goals. The play formations were such that the ball was fed to him continually. The deportment of the players on both teams was the best of any game yet, and the young men deserve much praise for their gentlemanly conduct on and off the floor.

so long to benevolently assimilate so much of the Earth's crust, as to become a martyr to his benevolent purpose and stomahc trouble; and thereby to relieve the common man, of that intolerable burden which his rightful share of the products of labor must necessarily have imposed upon him; and which the Great Creator, in his ignorance of the weakness of human nature seems to have intended he should possess. Permit me further to remark that you appear to think that the ungrateful objects of all this beneficence, the public, will misjudge you, and therefore you wish to enlist the brethern of the cloth which you so richly adorn, in the glorious work of applying the white wash brush to the soiled portions of your garments of white. A confession will probably not be out of place at this juncture. Up to the reception of your pamphlet, I had entertained the idea that John D., was a boa—constrictor whose coils were tightening round the natural resources of our country, and that he had employed the Rev. Frederick T. Gates to spread saliva over the tempting parcel before it was devoured; I now perceive how sadly I was mistaken. It is now perfectly clear that Saint John D., Saint Pierpont, Saint Andrew, and others of their cherubic character, are merely the champion assimilators of a nations resources and the assumer of burdens, that, but for them, would today be weighing heavily upon the common man that he would actually groan under the burden which he, himself, had created.

Thanking you for the enlightened state of mind that I enjoy in regard to the aristocracy of assimilation and beneficence, I am

Yours sincerely,
Jno. B. Smith.

tell you the spark may yet make a flame and that soon. I have an especial reason for saying this, a reason that affects you and me. Men of great power and influence in the affairs of the country have not all of us done the fair thing. It is imperative that something be done to improve the condition of mankind. Cannot we oruselves do something to improve that condition?

strength in all sections. The polls taken in Minnesota and other states are considered as furnishing strong proof that Roosevelt has lost none of his former popularity.

The House Democrats almost fell into a trap the other day. If they had adopted the Slayden resolution, which opposed any departure from the precedent of two terms in the White House, it would have been a frank admission that they were afraid of Roosevelt as a Presidential candidate. The passage of the resolution would have demonstrated, so it was asserted that the House Democrats believed that if the Colonel received the nomination he would be elected. The Democratic leaders smelled a rat and steered clear of the resolution, but not until they came perilously near getting caught.

Of course, it is admitted that the Democrats offered the resolution for political purposes. It was to be a thirteen inch gun directed against the Roosevelt boomers, and after it was fired the shot was to silence for all time talk of the Colonel's candidacy. But by a strange turn of fortune, or misfortune, the gun was trained on the Democrats. As to the merits of the resolution there is considerable controversy. It is pointed out that the House in 1875, adopted the so-called Springer resolution. This was passed when Grant was concluding his second term, and when there was much support for the plan of giving him a third term. But it is declared that conditions now are far from parallel. Colonel Roosevelt has not been elected to the Presidency twice. Again it was proposed to keep Grant in office continuously for twelve years. Roosevelt has been out of office since March 4, 1909, and, if re-elected will have been out for four years.

Congressman C. R. Davis, of Minnesota, who came out in an interview several months ago favorable to Roosevelt, believes more than ever that the Contributing Editor of the Outlook will be the next President. Said Mr. Davis: "There is a great deal of twaddle from people who are opposed to the third term for Roosevelt. It comes costly from politicians who do not like Roosevelt's way of doing things. It is ridiculous to think that the election of Mr. Roosevelt to serve another four years in the White House, after he has been out four years, would in any way be a menace to our country's institutions. Rather will it demonstrate that the will of the people is superior to machine politics."

Congressman Anderson of Minnesota has introduced in the House of Representatives a bill, which will arouse considerable comment and discussion. It is a bill providing for the construction of a national railroad in the Territory of Alaska. The measure is considered one of national importance and has the approval of the administration. Should it become a law Alaska would have a government-owned railroad, the first of its kind in the UnitedStates. While the administration is not in favor of government ownership where the same efficiency can be had by private enterprise, yet the conditions in Alaska are of such a character as to warrant the government, in the opinion of the President, to build and own a trunk lne ralroad.

Senator Gronna of North Dakota has been endeavorng for several years to secure some modificaton of the homestead laws, which would remove some of the restrictions now surrounding them, and not impose too rigid conditions on settlers. His plan is embodied in the Jones-Borah bill, which has recently passed the Senate and is now before the House committee on Public Lands. Under the terms of the bill three years residence is required to secure patent to the land and six months leave of absence is allowed each year, thereby cutting down the actual price of residence to 18 months. Senator Gronna declares in support of the measure, that Canada's more liberal homestead laws yearly attract thousands of settlers from this side of the line, whereas if our homestead laws were less exacting these same settlers would remain in the United States and take up land here. The bill has been referred to a sub-committee of the Public Lands committee of the House, of which Mr. Haylor of Colorado is the chairman. Hearings on the bill will be had, and the Secretary of the Interior, who, it is said, is opposed to the bill, will make a statement.

The grand total of taxes on land and personal property was $30,813,670.15. In addition, the municipalities derived revenue from indirect sources, such as liquor licenses, not included in the above. It may be worth nothing that approximately 10 per cent of this total was used to pay interest and principal.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR LIQUOR LICENSE

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, City of Thief River Falls, ss.

Notice is hereby given, that application has been made in writing to the City Council of said City of Thief River Falls and filed in my office, praying for License to Sell Intoxicating Liquors for the term commencing on the 1st day of March, 1912, and terminating on the 28th, day of February 1913, by the following person, and at the following place, as stated in said application, respectively, to-wit:

On the ground floor of that certain frame building located on Lot four (4) in Block fifty-seven (57) of the Original Townsite of Thief River Falls, Minn. Application filed on Feb. 5th, 1912, by H. A. Brumund of this city.

Hearing on this petition will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 27th, at [illegible] at the Council Chambers before the City Council, and anyone having any objections to make to this issuance of a license to this applicant, is hereby notified to appear at that time and place and make such objection, and said application will be acted upon at that time.

W. H. Quist,
City Clerk.
f 9-16.

Explained.

"Heigho!" sighed Mrs. Stoutly. "You used to sit once upon a time with your arm around my waist, John, but you never do it any more."

"I'm sorry, dear," replied Stoutly, "but there are some things that are beyond my reach."—Harper's.

Restful.

Laura—Alice Flitter is such a restful friend. Charles—Restful? She talks all the time. Laura—That's it. I never have to think about what to say when I'm with her.

Happiness.

Happiness rarely is absent. It is that we know not of its presence. The greatest felicity avails us nothing if we know not that we are happy.

Be brief, for it is with words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed the deeper they burn.—Southey.

To Annoy Napoleon.

A curious anecdote is illustrative of the disposition of Talleyrand. It was resolved that each of the allied powers should designate a commissioner charged with the surveillance of Napoleon at St. Helena. Talleyrand proposed to the king for this office M. de Montchenu, described as "an insupportable babbler, a complete nonentity." On being asked why he had selected this man Talleyrand replied: "It is the only revenge which I wish to take for his treatment of me. However, it is terrible. What a punishment for a man of Bonaparte's stamp to be obliged to live with an ignorant and pedantic chatterer! I know him. He will not be able to support this annoyance. It will make him ill, and he will die of it by slow degrees."

People Who Do Not Whistle.

Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made a burden to them by the whistler. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be purified for forty days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in north Germany villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.

Feminine Financier.

Mrs. Kidder—Charles, can't you give me another check? I see you have a whole book full. Mr. Kidder—That doesn't signify, dear. I have used up my balance at the bank. Mrs. Kidder—Then why didn't you give up your check book? Now, it's no use for you to tell stories, Joseph Kidder. If you mean to say I shan't have any money, why don't you say so right out, like a man?—Boston Transcript.

Inconsistent.

"Oh, George!" exclaimed the young wife. "It was nearly midnight before you got home last night!"

"Well, well!" exclaimed the husband. "You women are so inconsistent. Before we were married you didn't care how late I got home."

More Than a Match For Him.

Tom—Somebody ought to warn Mrs. Prettiface that that fellow Smirks, who's paying attention to her, is a miserable flirt. Jim—Hem! Better warn Smirks. Mrs. Prettiface is a widow.

Luxury and Labor.

Alexander the Great, reflecting on his friends degenerating into sloth and luxury, told them that it was a most slavish thing to luxuriate and a most royal thing to labor.—Barrow.

Not Their Fault.

An American woman who resided for some years in Mexico had an odd experience with an earthquake. She was the mother of two lively small sons. One day they had been especially obstreperous and did not grow quieter as the time for her siesta and theirs approached. After rousing her from her nap two or three times by their antics she gave them fair warning that if there was any further commotion severe punishment would result. [illegible] her [illegible] in her [illegible] If [illegible] furniture [illegible] scared and good looking, were in the doorway. She seized [illegible] had hid [illegible] the eldest [illegible] ed to her [illegible] bowls. Then [illegible] she was [illegible] him [illegible] an earthquake.—New York Herald.

Work For the Editor.

Most any one can be an editor. All an editor has to do is to sit at his desk six days in the week, four weeks of the month and twelve months in the year and "edit" such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Jones of Lost Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Matherton threw a stone and struck a companion in the alley last Tuesday."

"John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Viola Wise home from a church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square."

"Isaiah Trimmer was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda."

"Mr. White while harnessing a broncho last Saturday was kicked just south of the corncrib."—Boston Globe.

Too Familiar With Quotations.

The principal of a Boston school who requests that his name be withheld in order that he may maintain discipline in his classrooms tells this:

"When I was teaching in a school in the western part of the state some years ago I had some trouble in maintaining order among the girls of my classes. They were continually playing tricks on me and each other in the classrooms and I decided to stop it. The next day, following a breach of discipline, I ordered two of the girls to remain after school and gave them two long problems that kept them for a long time. At the opening of school the following morning I opened the day as usual by asking each member of the class for a quotation. One of the girls rose and quoted, 'With all thy faults I love thee still,' and the other, 'The hours I spend with thee, dear heart, are as a string of pearls to me.'"—Boston Herald.

Different Points of View.

"Good morning, Jones."

"Good morning, Brown. Any news today?"

"Well, yes. You know my brother who works at the bank? Well, he went to business the other day and found £1,000 on the counter. And what do you think he did? Stole the money and tripped off to Canada. And when the news reached my father, it broke the old man's heart!"

"That's funny. You know, my brother works at a bank, too, and when he went to business the other day he found £1,000. "And what do you think he did?"

"What? Stole it?"

"No; took it straight to the manager's office. And when the news reached my father, do you know it broke the old man's heart!"—[illegible]

Gilbert of Colchester.

Gilbert of Colchester, who flourished three centuries ago, has been called the founder of the science of electricity. Gilbert discovered the augmentation of the power of a loadstone by arming or capping it with soft iron cheeks, the screening effect of a sheet of iron, the method of magnetizing iron by hammering it while it lies north and south, the destruction of magnetism by heat and the existence around the [illegible] of a magnetic field. Generalizing from small to large, he advanced the [illegible] novel idea that the globe of the earth is itself a magnet.

Words Lamb Didn't Like.

Who would have thought that these respectable words were banned by Charles Lamb as detestable novelties: "Physical," he says, "vile word. Apathetic, vile word. Reaction, vile slang. [illegible] laugh!" Now physical [illegible] Shakespeare, not in the sense to which we are now used, but meaning [illegible] Coriolanus makes light of [illegible] of his wound and says [illegible] to him.—London Standard.

Explained.

"Heigho," sighed Mrs. Stoutly. "You used to sit once upon a time with your arm around my waist, John, but you never do it any more."

"I'm sorry, dear," replied Stoutly, "but there are some things that are beyond my reach."—Harper's.

Restful.

Laura—Alice Flitter is such a restful friend. Charles—Restful? She talks all the time. Laura—That's it. I never have to think about what to say when I'm with her.

Happiness.

Happiness [illegible] that we know [illegible] of its presence [illegible] [illegible] nothing [illegible] know [illegible]

Be brief, for it is with words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed the deeper they burn.—[illegible]

To Annoy Napoleon.

A curious anecdote is illustrative of the disposition of Talleyrand. [illegible]

[illegible] charged with the surveillance of Napoleon at St. Helena. Talleyrand proposed to the king for this office M. de Montchenu, described as "an insupportable babbler, a complete nonentity." On being asked why he had selected this man Talleyrand replied: "It is the only revenge which I wish to take for his treatment of me. However, it is terrible. What a punishment for a man of Bonaparte's stamp to be obliged to live with an ignorant and pedantic chatterer! I know him. He will not be able to support this annoyance. It will make him ill, and he will die of it by slow degrees."

People Who Do Not Whistle.

Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made a burden to them by the whistler. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be purified for forty days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga Islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in north Germany villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.

Feminine Financier.

Mrs. Kidder—Charles, can't you give me another check? I see you have a whole book full. Mr. Kidder—That doesn't signify, dear. I have used up my balance at the bank. Mrs. Kidder—Then why didn't you give up your check book? Now, it's no use for you to tell stories, Joseph Kidder. If you mean to say I shan't have any money, why don't you say so right out, like a man?—Boston Transcript.

Inconsistent.

"Oh, George," exclaimed the young wife. "It was nearly midnight before you got home last night."

"Well, well!" exclaimed the husband. "You women are so inconsistent. Before we were married you didn't care how late I got home."

More Than a Match For Him.

Tom—Somebody ought to warn Mrs. Prettiface that that fellow Smirks who's paying attention to her is a miserable flirt. Jim—Hem! Better warn Smirks. Mrs. Prettiface is a widow.

Luxury and Labor.

Alexander the Great, reflecting on his friends' degenerating into sloth and luxury, told them that it was a most slavish thing to luxuriate and a most royal thing to labor.—Barrow.

Againshe [illegible] deniy she found herself [illegible] her feet with sounds of [illegible] in her ears and the room quivering as if from the fall of [illegible] furniture. The boys, scared and guilty looking, were in the doorway. She seized the nearer, reversed him and had him half spanked before the excited protests of his brother penetrated to her brain through his anguished howls. Then she became aware that she was spanking him for an earthquake.—New York Herald.

Work For the Editor.

Most any one can be an editor. All an editor has to do is to sit at his desk six days in the week, four weeks of the month and twelve months in the year and "edit" such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Jones of Lost Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Matherton threw a stone and struck a companion in the alley last Tuesday."

"John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise home from a church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square."

"Isaiah Trimmer was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda."

"Mr. White while harnessing a broncho last Saturday was kicked just south of the corncrib."—Boston Globe.

Too Familiar With Quotations.

The principal of a Boston school who requests that his name be withheld in order that he may maintain discipline in his classrooms tells this:

"When I was teaching in a school in the western part of the state some years ago I had some trouble in maintaining order among the girls of my classes. They were continually playing tricks on me and each other in the classrooms, and I decided to stop it. The next day, following a breach of discipline, I ordered two of the girls to remain after school and gave them two long problems that kept them for a long time. At the opening of school the following morning I opened the day, as usual, by asking each member of the class for a quotation. One of the girls rose and quoted, 'With all thy faults I love thee still,' and the other, 'The hours I've spent with thee, dear heart, are as a string of pearls to me.'—Boston Herald.

"What—stole it?"

"No; took it straight to the manager's office. And when the news reached my father, do you know it broke the old man's heart!"—London Tit-Bits.

Danger Ahead!

A battleship was cautiously feeling her way through a fog. Suddenly the navigator on the bridge heard church bells startlingly near. As he believed the land to be some miles away he turned to the engine telegraph and ordered, the [illegible] to sound. The sounding showed plenty of water. Again the church bells pealed clear and near. The [illegible] a [illegible] tle, and his [illegible] of danger he [illegible] his [illegible] His glance met the face of the [illegible] man.

"What the dickens are you grinning at?" the navigator demanded sharply.

Choking back his emotion, the man explained that one of his mates had got a new record of a peal of church bells and he was trying it on his gramophone.—London Answers.

Gilbert of Colchester.

Gilbert of Colchester, who flourished three centuries ago, has been called the founder of the science of electricity. Gilbert discovered the augmentation of the power of a loadstone by arming or capping it with soft iron cheeks, the screening effect of a sheet of iron, the method of magnetizing iron by hammering it while it lies north and south, the destruction of magnetism by heat and the existence around the magnet of a magnetic field. Generalizing from small to large, he advanced the entirely novel idea that the globe of the earth is itself a magnet.

Words Lamb Didn't Like.

Who would have thought that these respectable words were banned by Charles Lamb as detestable novelties? "Physical," he says; "vile word. Apathetic, vile word. Reaction, vile slang. Mechanically—faugh!" Now physical is in Shakespeare, not in the sense to which we are now used, but meaning medicinal. Coriolanus makes light of the blood letting of his wound and says it is physical to him.—London Standard.

His Comeback.

"But," the father objected, "you have never shown that you are capable of supporting a wife."

"Oh," the young man replied, "if you want her to marry a widower I'll have to confess that I can't qualify."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Spiteful.

Miss Oldgirl—I don't like the color of my hair. Miss Youngthing—Don't let that bother you, my dear. It can't be long now before it turns gray.

His Hope.

Barber—Will you have anything on your face when I have finished, sir? Victim—I don't know, but I hope you'll leave my nose at least.

LAMBERT GETS ROYAL RECEPTION

Modern Charivari Given Popular Young Bridegroom.

Friends, and that means practically the entire population of the city, of Roy Lambert gave him a right royal reception in the form of a modern charivari Wednesday evening when he arrived with his bride of a few days, formerly Miss Gladys Marie Bush, Detroit's most popular belle.

The newlyweds came on the 7:30 train from Bemidji, and, unexpectedly getting off on the east side, had just time enough to get to their new home in the Dobner block before the merry crowd got hold of the happy bridegroom. He was carried to the corner of LaBree Ave., and 2d-st, where the city of Thief River Falls was waiting to see him ride Zeh's agreeable and well-bred donkey—the one that never says a word and behaves so nicely when out in company.

Amid fireworks and a din of noise that could be heard for several miles, and was produced by everything from a brass band to laughing babies, the procession moved north one block and back to Curtis' drug store, into which place the pale but smiling Lambert gracefully(?) rode the accomodating donkey. After two minutes intermission the donkey was unhitched and taken outside. Then he and his joyrider proceeded to the flats and Mr. Lambert was given over to the anxious sweetheart and wife. The boys finished the evening by presenting Mr. and Mrs. Lambert with a very beautiful rocker.

It would mean a string of names a mile long to enumerate all who took part in this prize-winning charivari. Sufficient is it to say that Jordan, Flynn and Lonson were among the ringleaders. There is nobody in town today who will admit that he did not take part in it, or at least witness it. The makers of Y-B's, LaLunda's and other popular cigars will have to work overtime for a few days.

COMMERCIAL CLUB ANNUAL MEETING

W. B. Fuller, President; N. J. Anderson, Secretary; Secretary's Report Read,

At the Annual meeting of the Commercial Club, held in the Auditorium club rooms Friday night, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

W. B. Fuller, President

E. M. Stanton, First Vice President

T. L. Melgaard, Second Vice President

C. L. Hausen, Treasurer

N. J. Anderson, Secretary.

The election of president, vice president and treasurer was quick and satisfactory, the election of all being unanimously carried. Shaw, Anderson and Roberg were the nominees for secretary, with Anderson and Roberg favorities. On the third ballot Anderson received the majority of votes east, 11 to 10. On account of heavy work in his own business Mr. Almen asked that he be omitted from the nominations. Almen proved to be a very efficient and well-liked secretary. His successor, Mr. Anderson, is well-known as past City Clerk, and is a good live man.

Secretary's Report.

Mr. Almen, retiring secretary read the report of his receipts and expenditures as follows:

Receipts—

For First Quarter	$219.50
For Second Quarter	196.50
For Third Quarter	175.50

BETCHER WINS FAST MATCH

Throws Geo. Buckner Twice In Six Minutes at Aud. Friday Night.

Albert Betcher of McIntosh threw George Buckner of Donaldson twice in six minutes at the Auditorium Friday night. In fact Betcher did it so quickly that most of the audience didn't realize how it was done until several hours afterward. The first fall was secured in four and one-half minutes, according to the Press time-keeper, on a re-lock scissors hold. It was such a mixed up afair that the spectators did not know who had won until Referee Smith announced the winner. The men sparred one minute and then went to the matt with Buckner on top. Buckner's work was fast and furious and Betcher nicely returned the compliment. Both men tried rapidly for holds for the next three minutes, with first one and then the other in an apparently dangerous position. Then Buckner slid over onto Betcher from the rear and took a scissors hold, turning over on his "stern sheet" with his legs sticking out over Betcher's legs. It was while they were in this position that Betcher took the re-lock scissors on Buckner's ankle, which means that Betcher used one of his own legs as a fulcrum and the other as a lever and could have broken Buckner's ankle if he hadn't said "enough." From the surprised look on Buckner's face, it was evident that he did not realize what a bad hole he was working himself into. The second round was over "just as quick as that." The men worked even faster than the first round, with Buckner the agressor. They were on the matt in "no time" and Buckner rapidly secured an arm and half Nelson, but Betcher easily rolled out of it, landing on top of his wiry opponent with an arm and back hold and pinning the little man's shoulders to the matt, the total time of the round being one minute and a half. The crowd was a little disappointed that the second round lasted so quickly. However, they went away thoroughly satisfied because the men did more wrestling in a minute than has been done in previous matches in thirty minutes.

Referee Smith announced the main bout at 11:25 p. m. He gave Buckner's weight at 135 lbs. and Betcher's at 155, said the match would be catch-as-catch-can with the strangle and full Nelson barred. Each man received vigorous applause from the large audience, who, thruout the match, maintained a very impartial and gentlemanly attitude towards both wrestlers. There was no rough talk either by the wrestlers or the fans. The reason Buckner was thrown was because he was up against a man as clever as himself and twenty pounds heavier. It was simply a question of a bigger good man winning over a smaller good man. Referee Smith's decisions were eminently fair and that some of the crowd put up a murmur of protest when he called the last fall was due to the fact that they wanted to see more wrestling.

Peterson-Hagen

Last Friday afternoon, Feb. 16th occured the marriage of Miss Dora Peterson and Mr. Christ Hagen, Judge Tarrant performing the ceremony.

The event was a very quiet one, as neither their relatives nor friends had the slightest idea of their intentions.

Miss Peterson is a popular young lady of this city and is well known having lived here for a number of years, while Mr. Hagen is a progressive farmer near Strathcona.

The next day after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Hagen departed for the groom's home where they will spend the future in married bliss. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy wedded life.

THANK YOU Mr. JOHNSON

If You Are A "Kicker", Read This Article and Stop Kicking.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Beb. 21, 1912.

Editor of the Press:

Well this is great weather. Remember that? Now if we should get three or four days of cold weather, don't say that it is always cold here. I presume some of you are kicking because the sleighing is spoiled. Now how would you like to have it slushy all the time, like they have four and five hundred miles farther south? Give me the cold clear air of this country, it suits me just fine. No soar throat, no stopped up nose, no teeth chattering, no wet feet, feeling fine all the time, that is our climate.

By the way, I had a letter from my brother Swan up in Canada, the other day. Say, that is a dickens of a country. He tells me that he expects to get threshed pretty soon. Wrote and told me sometime in the fall that he had harvested a pretty fair crop, and now he says that he expects to get threshed soon. Thanks, no Canada for me. I like to get my grain in the granary before the snow flies. Don't you? He asked me to send him some money to pay a few bills until he could sell some of his wheat. I am going to write and tell him to come back here and buy a piece of land where he can depend upon getting something out of his crop before it spoils.

Brother farmers, have you ever stopped to figure out what a good country this is after all? Have you ever counted up how many crop failures you have had, how many times the hail has taken your crop, how many times your buildings have been blown down by cyclones, how many times your wheat has been spoiled by frost, how many times you could not get the grain threshed before the following summer, how many times your hogs have died from the cholera, how many times your family has been scared by tramps, etc., etc? that may happen to people in other parts of this big world. I bet you can't find very many. Is not that something to be thankful for? I have lived here a long time and I can not remember anything like that to happen to me yet.

Of course we can not get a bumper crop every year. That would be too good. You see the small crop is sometimes the best one. It brings more money, for the prices are better. And then it learns the farmers that they will have to run things so that both ends meet. To be a good farmer, you farmer, you should regulate your expenses with expectation of a small crop, then if you get a big one, as we do here most of the time, you will have a little left over for that rainy day they talk about. That is the way I have tried to farm, and I find it has helped me to buy more land and build better houses.

Now I was not going to give you any institute talk, I will let the other fellow do that. If you want any more advice you will have to write me and I will try to give it, when my time permits. I still believe this is a great country, and it is getting better all the time. More some other time.

Yours truly,
JOHN JOHNSON.

C. G. Stenmon and son, Gilmon, of Grygla transacted business in the city the first of the week. The latter contemplated buying a team of horses before returning.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church will be entertained by Mrs. Rice and Mrs. J. B. Smith at the home of the latter next Wednesday at 3 p. m., Feb 28. Lunch will be served and everybody is invited.

LaFollette Will Enter Struggle With Renewed Vigor. Encouragement from Wis.

Wahsington, D. C., Feb. 23.—There has been in existance a general conspiracy all over the east seeking to make the people of the country believe that Senator LaFollette is out of the race for the nomination for President. This conspiracy was entered into very enthusiastically by the system daily newspapers and press bureaus, with the result that for a few days there was evidence that the people were being thoroughly fooled. But the truth of the matter has come out, and in the States where Progressives have active organizations, meetings have been held and renewed assurances have been sent to the National Progressive headquarters of active support for LaFollette and the principles he represents.

Hundreds of telegrams have come asking as to the campaign and as to the physical conditions of the Senator. The inquiry has been so general that it was being answered by the publication of the telegrams sent by LaFollette to Geo. S. Loftus of Minneapolis and to the Courier-News at Fargo, North Dakota. These telegrams carried the assurance of the Senator that his illness had been grossly misrepresented, that he was simply overworked, and that after a short rest he would return with renewed vigor to the struggle. He declared that he had refused all offers of combinations or compromises, and that he had asekd only for delegates who stood steadfast to principle.

These messages of the Senator, when published, brought much disappointment to the camp of the conspirators, who had so carefully arranged to eliminate him from the contest. They set up an outcry at the evidences of activity at the LaFollette Headquarters, as if they were injured by some breach of good faith!

In the meantime, the LaFollette Progressive headquarters work is going right on, and the real Progressives in all the states are busy organizing to fight to the end. Those who are earnest in the movement realize that it is a battle for the idea of self-government, rather than a contest for office spoils, and that it must finally be fought to the finish before real representative government can be assured. Men who be-

IMPORTANCE OF THE ASSESSOR

He is Foundation of Entire Taxing System. You Should Know His Duties.

What the keel of a ship is to the superstructure, the assessor is to the entire system of taxing real and personal property. The humblest official in the system, he is the most powerful in producing its results. A detailed statement of what the law requires this official to do is essential to an understanding of the system.

Assessors in towns and villages, except where charters provide otherwise, are elected in the add numbered years for two years, and are entitled to $2 a day for each day of actual service, though at any town meeting and before officers are elected, the pay may be increased one-half. Before entering upon their duties the assessors are required to file with the county auditor an oath of office and a bond in the sum of $500 conditioned upon "the diligent, faithful and impartial" performance of their duties.

On the last Thursday in April the assessors in each county meet with their county-auditor to receive the assessment books and listing blanks, and "confer with the auditor relative to the performance of their duties." On May 1 they begin their work which must be completed by the fourth Monday of June. This gives them this year 44 days, Sundays and holidays excepted, in which to make the assessment.

Real estate is assessed every even numbered year, and personal property every year, both being assessed and valued as of May 1. In assessing land the law requires the assessor when practicable, to actually view each tract and lot, and to value the land and structures separately.

Preparatory to assessing personal property the assessors make a list of the names of all persons in their districts liable to assessment. The assessor is required to call upon each of them at his residence or office, present him with a blank for listing his property and require him to enter upon it the quantity of property owned by him in any of the 30 classes. The assessor, not the owner, is required to "determine and fix the true value of all items of property in such classes." Even if the owner should enter the value and verify the list the assessor is not required to accept it but must put his own estimate of value on the property. If the owner refuse to list, the assessor shall list the property according to his best information. If he suspect that the owner is not disclosing all his property he may put him on oath and examine him relative to it. If the person refuse to be sworn the assessor enters that fact on his book. The law authorizes the assessor to enter any dwelling, building or structure when necessary to the proper perforamnce of his duties and view the same and the property therein.

Under the "money and credits" act of 1911 the assessor shall require the person making the list to verify it with his oath. He shall receive the list, except as to valuation, as true unless when requested the person listing shall refuse to answer on oath all reasonable questions as to the nature and amount of his money and credits. The assessor is forbidden to disclose, under a penalty of a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500, the contents of any list of money and credits. If any person fail to make and give him the required list the assessor may estimate the amount and value and add 50 per cent as a penalty. He is to enter the money and credits items either in a separate book or in a supplement to the assessment book.

Ten days before the fourth Monday in June the assessor shall post notices of the meeting of the board of review. By the first Monday in July he must total the columns of

GYMNASIUM NOW OPEN

Apparatus Has Been Installed and Keys May be Obtained at Curtis'.

The first consignment of apparatus for the new gymnasium arrived Saturday and was immediately set up and put in place ready for use. The room will be open at all hours to members of the association. The keys for the hall have arrived and may be had at J. P. Curtis' Drug Store.

In order to assure the club against any loss resulting from careless handling of the keys by members, a deposit of 25 cents will be required in order to get a key. If a member should at some time sever his connection with the club his deposit will be returned to him upon the surrender of the key.

It is hoped that those who hold tickets will take advantage of the opportunity and make good use of the gymnasium. The apparatus is there, set up and ready for the athletes. For those who desire less strenuous exercise there are chest weights, punching bags, Indian clubs and dumb-bells. The shower baths are in working order, so those exercising can jump under a good invigorating shower. A novel feature for those wishing to reduce weight is the cabinet vapor bath. After a good work out take a few minutes in the vapor cabinet and it is guaranteed that you'll boil out in good style.

A first class program of stunts will soon be staged by the club so the embroyo athletes may give an exhibition of their skill. An announcement of this event will follow in a later issue of this paper.

Owing to the late arrival of the apparatus the committee decided to let up on the sale of tickets. Now, however, that the goods have arrived another campaign for membership will be made. The price of a ticket good for one year's membership will be $1.00 until March 1st. After that date the fee will be raised to three dollars. Don't wait! Join now, so you can get in at the reduced rate.

Antlers' Club Gets Busy

Famous Hallowell Concert Company here March 3rd. at Auditorium.

On Sunday March 3rd. the music lovers of this city are to be given a rare treat when the Hallowell Concert Company comes to the Auditorium under the apspices of the Antler's Club. The Hallowell company according to critics is one of the very best musical organizations ever sent out from Chicago, the home of good music. For nine years the members of Mr. Hallowell's company have played together and as a result their work is perfection itself.

Each individual member of the organization is a schooled musician. Many of them have graduated from the best music schools of the East and abroad, and since have played in some of the finest bands and orchestras of the United States, which places them in a position to render the best of music.

The program of the concert March 3rd. will consist of Standard Overtures, Characteristic and descriptive music, popular and standard selections. Beautiful solos will be played by renowned artists.

The concert will be given under the auspicies of the Antler's Club, which will use the proceeds to buy additional furnishings for the club rooms. Since the disastrous fire of a year ago in the Masonic hall, the club rooms have been shamefully neglected. It is hoped that a hearty response will be met by the ticket sellers.

The club members feel that it is quite a feather in their caps that they have been so fortunate to get such an excellent attraction to this city. It was possible only after giving M Hallowell an iron clad contract cal ing for a substantial guarantee. Ho ever, in order that there might ari no serious rumor that the concert would not be successful, Mr. Hallo-

Wm. E. LEE FOR GOVERNO

Biography of Man Who Would Give Minn. a Good Business Administration.

Wm. E. Lee was born in the city of Alton, Illinois, January 8, 1852; he came to Minnesota with his parents in the spring of 1857 and settled at Little Falls. He lived on a farm near that place, and as he grew to young manhood worked in the lumber woods winters and on t river driving logs in the spring. father was a millwright and Willi worked with him at that trade. first settled at Long Prairie in 186 but returned to Little Falls in the spring of 1862 because of the Indian outbreak of that year. His father, Samuel Lee, then enlisted in the army from that place and served to the end of the Civil War.

Wm. E. Lee returned to Long Prairie to make it his permanent home in 1874, and has resided there most of the time since. He was married in 1876 to Eva A. Gibson and has three sons, Rudolph, Editor The Long Prairie Leader, Harry, Cashier of The First National Bank of Browerville, and Raymond A., Vice President of the Bank of Long Prairie.

In 1878, Mr. Lee was elected Register of Deeds of Todd County, which office he held for four years. He was a member of the Legislature in 1885-1887, and 1893, and was Speaker of the House in the last named session. He was appointed a member of the Normal School Board by Governor Merriam and served six years in that position. In 1894 the Board of Managers of the State Reformatory appointed him Superintendent of that Institution and he served in that position two years. He was a Presidential Elector in 1900 and was selected to carry Minnesota's vote for McKinley and Roosevelt to Washington. He was afterwards appointed by Governor Van Sant a member of the first State Board of Control, which organized the present system of managing all the state institutions from one Central Board. After the system was fully organized and working to the satisfaction of the Governor, Mr. Lee resigned and went abroad for quite an extensive visit in Europe and the Orient. While absent on this trip he was appointed a member of the State Fair Board and served in that position seven years.

Every public position Mr. Lee has held he has filled with credit and the public service has been improved because of the hard work and business ability he has given it. He has not only rendered the state valuable service as an official but has always taken an advanced stand upon all questions in the legislature and has been on the the side of the people in every effort made to protect their rights or give them relief. He has been an active business man all his life, having been successfully engaged in merchandising, manufacturing and banking. In 1882, he established the first bank in Todd county and is still connected with it. He was elected President of the Minnesota Bankers Association and has held other important positions of a business character. He is a well-equipped and thoroughly experienced man of affairs and will render the State of Minnesota valuable service as its Chief Executive.

Our Wedding Tour

By JAMES B. OTIS

My wife, whom I married abroad and who was a great traveler, said that she had visited every country except Russia, and she insisted on our taking our wedding trip there. I shuddered, because, knowing her record, I felt sure she would not only wish to visit the large cities, but to penetrate the country, possibly Siberia.

I armed myself with a 42 caliber revolver and slung a knife with a blade twelve inches long down my back, mutely vowing that I would protect my life to the last moment from all kinds of Russian dangers.

By the time we reached the Siberian border I had been married long enough to rebel against being carried across it.

My wife pouted, but I stood firm. We had gone so far that we were obliged to return to the railroad in a tarantas that we hired for the occasion. It was October, and there had been a heavy fall of snow to the north of us. I dreaded being caught in another storm and set out on our journey to the railroad, wishing it were over. My bride did not attempt to conceal her contempt for what she was pleased to call my timidity.

The distance we must traverse to reach the railroad station was ten versts, or about two hours' drive. We had accomplished a little more than half of it when we heard a bark coming from a wood on our right. I saw the driver start, but my wife said serenely:

"Hear that dog. We must be near a house."

I said nothing, but the start given by the driver put an idea into my head. Possibly that dog might be a wolf. In a few minutes the bark was repeated and echoed by others. The driver laid on the whip. Then my bride looked at me curiously.

"Crouch down under the seat," I said, "and I'll cover you with the robes. I have a fight on my hands and I must be free. All depends on the surety of my aim."

"What is it?" she gasped.

"Wolves!"

She knew enough about the ferocity of those animals to understand what was at hand and got down as far as she could, while I pulled the robes up over her head. I did not dare let her see a pack of wolves fighting for us for food lest she get hysterical and interfere with my defense. I didn't know a word of Russian nor the driver a word of English, so I could give him no instructions. I didn't see how he could desert us to save himself, but I feared he might.

I am a very good shot with any kind of a gun, having been a rancher in the American west, and I relied solely on my revolver. There were six shots in it, and I had no more. My only hope was to keep off the wolves till we reached the station. How far it was I did not know. I asked the driver in English and by pantomime finally made him understand. He held up four fingers, by which I inferred that the distance was four versts. My heart sank at learning that it was so great.

In a few minutes after this the wolves—there were some twenty of them—were upon us. Since we were going pretty fast, they must follow in our wake. I cocked my revolver, aimed for one of the foremost brutes and shot him between the eyes. The pack stopped to devour him, and we gained perhaps twenty minutes' respite, when they were after us again. When they came up I aimed for another wolf. I missed him, but broke the leg of one behind him, who fell, and his comrades finished him.

We thus gained another interval, at the end of which I fired again and, missing my mark, lost a shot. Expending my fourth shot, I brought down a wolf, and when it came time for the fifth shot I failed. The sixth produced an effect, and we had gone over about three versts since the attack began.

But what were we going to do when the pack came on us again? I whipped out my knife, but the driver, who was turning now and again to see the fight, when he saw me waiting to receive a whole pack with steel shook his head. Then he did what appalled me. Reaching for my knife, he took it out of my hand and, to my horror, cut the traces with it. The horse, leaving the tarantas, went galloping on. We rolled on for some distance, then brought up against a tree beside the road.

I gave it up. I had not the slightest doubt that we would in a few minutes be devoured. I was thinking of plunging the knife into the driver before I died when the wolves' yelping reached us and, instead of stopping ran on after the horse. It was evident that the Russian knew more about the propensities of the brutes than I. They chased the horse a mile before they caught him, but we could hear his cry when they overpowered him. At the same moment we heard bells jingling behind us and saw a vehicle coming with several men in it.

That ended our danger, and my wife, who had after the wolves went on raised her head to take in the situation, seeing we were safe, fainted in my arms. We reached the railroad station and did not stop traveling until we got beyond the confines of Russia. My bride changed her opinion both as to my discretion and my timidity. She had enough of the czar's domain.

WHY DID RAILROADS SELECT MINNESOTA AS BEST STATE IN WHICH TO TEST THE RATE LAWS?

Discrimination reminder No. 32—

Why is it that the rates on every passenger train entering Minnesota are boosted as soon as the train strikes Minnesota soil?

Is it harder to operate a train in Minnesota than in Iowa, North Dakota, Wisconsin or the eastern states?

Why is it that the railroads in our state, carry one man between two stations for $1 and his neighbor who rides in the same car, in the same seat and between the same two stations is charged only 66 cents?

Why the discrimination?

Why should one man pay thirty-three per cent more for the identical service than another man?

Why is it?

The Leader has been asking this question for eight months now and no one seems to be able to advance any reason for the discrimination.

Why was it that when the railroads wanted to test the two cent passenger rate law and the commodity freight rate law, they picked out Minnesota in which to test these laws?

Did you ever think about that?

These same laws in substance have been in operation in neighboring states for years and years. A few months after our state put the laws into effect, the railroads promptly proceeded to have them set aside.

Why did they select Minnesota instead of Wisconsin, for instance, as the best state in which to test the laws?

Did they think the chance of success was for any reason better in Minnesota than in other states? Did they think that the state with the easy going administration offered a field for their effort more to their liking than did the vigorous and business like administrations of our neighboring states?—Long Prairie Leader.

How to cure a cold is a question in which many are interested just now. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won its great reputation and immense sale by its remarkable cure of colds. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all Druggists.

Your Money Back if You Are Not Satisfied With the Medicine We Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxative or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. THE NEW PUBLIC HEALTH

Bulk of Infections Diseases Derived Directly From Infected Persons.

There is now a movement on foot by the Minnesota State Medical Association for the abolishment of contagious diseases. Doctor H. W. Hill, Director, Division of Epidemiology, Minn. State Board of Health, is writing a series of enlightening papers on this subject. The first paper indictated that belief in "general environment" as a serious factor in the spread of most infectious diseases has been abandoned. A part of the second paper follows:

It would appear that environments affecting bodily functions have little to do directly with the incidence of most of the specific infections, notwithstanding that nutrition, temperature, fatigue, and alcoholism are generally credited with some effect, especially in pneumonia and tuberculosis.

Damp, cold and fatigue perhaps precipitate the pneumonias, provided one of the infective agents be present. The environments that precipitate tuberculosis constitute a problem as yet unsolved. Very much is widely believed, and often contradictory. "Poor ventilation," dust, dampness, etc., have all ben accused, but very little has been proved concerning the real factors actually at work or their mode of operation. In the other infections diseases the effects even of extremes of the above factors are but rarely definitely recognizable. One thing, and one thing only, is absolutely established, namely, that tuberculosis, pneumonia, and the other infections diseases will develop under almost any circumstances if the dose of infection be large enough, virulent enough, or sufficiently repeated. Tuberculosis, pneumonia, and the other infections diseases will not develop under any circumstances without such infection.

Hence it must be evident that the sine qua non of all infectius diseases are their respective agents, and that, since the chief sources (infective persons) of these are known, the most logical efforts are those which concentrate on the prevention of the dissemination of these agents from these sources.

This is correct, not only in theory, but in practice, and presents an infinitely simpler administrative problem than that presented by the older hypotheses,—not only in the minor infectious diseases, where these principles have been practically accepted by all, but even in tuberculosis itself.

Thus, if "General environment" be the great factor in tuberculosis, the two million people of Minnesota must have each his or her own individual environment brought up to and kept at some standard-level designed to maintain each individual in his or her own alleged "highest state of health."

If, however, the infectiveness of the disease be the great factor, only three thousand people (the actively infective cases) need this supervision, in Minnesota, and they need it, not for the improvement of their "general environment," but merely to prevent them from infecting others. This problem, even numerically, is but one seven-hundredth the magnitude of the other. Consider the utterly impracticable expense and difficulty of the State attempting to insure only the four quoted factors—good food, proper temepratures, temperance, and repose,—to two million people (to say nothing of the other "factors of safety" called for by those who lay chief emphasis on control of environment, i. e., abolition of foul air, smoke, dust, damp cellars, bad smells, dirty back yards, etc.), and contrast with this the expense of State supervision of three thousand people merely to the extent of confining their infective discharges to themselves.

Further consider that the same official merchanism which could control the three thousand tuberculosis could also handle with but slight expansion the infectious persons needing supervision for the prevention of all the other infections diseases, except the veneral, as well as the infective tuberculosis. Remember also that improvement of the "general environment," allowing that its effective achievement were conceivable, could not be expected to have any noteworthy effect on most of these other infectious diseases, even though it had some on tuberculosis.

Need any more be said to indicate the superiority of the new principles as practical business propositions, over the old? The latter would require the realization of the millenium and an expenditure of untold millions; the former could be put into operation in three months, with an expenditure of twenty-five cents per head of the population.

All of Dr. Hill's articles will appear in the Journal Lancet, The Journal of the State Medical Association, Minneapolis.

THE TIME TEST.

Thief River Falls People Demand Stronger Proof of Merit.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public is quick to discover what will stand the test of time. Long ago, Thief River Falls citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would these statements be confirmed by Thief River Falls residents if Doan's Kidney Pills did not posses lasting merit? The following testimony should convince the msot skeptical reader:

Mrs. James Rogers, 522 Main St. Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "The cure effected by Doan's Kidney Pills in my case in 1907 has been permanent. It is a pleasure for me to again recommend this remedy. I suffered intensely from backache and there was pain and soreness through my loins. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I felt languid and devoid of strength. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Curtis' Drug Store, proved their merit by disposing of these troubles in a short time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Roster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Reviced Opinion.

A well known after dinner speaker of New York was going home from a banquet on a surface car At his corner he signaled the conductor to stop; but, as he swung off the platform, the car started up again, and he plowed the asphalt for ten feet with his face and figure. He struggled to his feet to see the car fading away and a large, tired looking policeman contemplating him from the sidewalk

"Did you see that?" demanded the victim as he limped toward the pavement

"I did," said the policeman, "an' it was your own fault."

"I didn't ask you whose fault it was!" snapped back the after dinner speaker "I asked you—Did you see it?"

"I did not!" said the policeman.—Saturday Evening Post

WHY HESITATE?

An Offer That Involves No Money Risk if You Accept It.

We are so positive our remedy will completely relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

Constipation is commonly caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are eaten like candy, and are particularly good for children. They seem to act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on the other organs. They do not purge or cause other inconvenience. We will refund your money if they do not overcome chronic or habitual constipation and thus aid to relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. How meaningless our observations if we haven't the right thread to string them on.

An Indiana woman wears diamond studdied heels in her slippers. If [illegible] isn't a crime we can't name it.

Governor Eberhart has publicly [illegible] for Taft and still some people would like to make people believe that he is a Progressive.

Mathew Harbeson son of a millionaire is arrested for stealing bread from a grocery store. We presume the only difference between him and his father was that the father stole the bread from helpless women and children and hence was not arrested.

As the Governor refuses to publish a platform we might suggest the ground work of one for him as embodying the accomplishments of his administration. Something like this:

1. Revised railway passenger fares from two to three cents a mile.
2. Revised railway freight rates of 20 to 35 per cent up.
3. Undisputed champion of miles traveled per year.
4. Acted as advertising agent—Montana and Idaho lands—G. N., and N. P. Raliways.
5. Inaugurated "Seed Corn Day."
6. Consolidated rural schools.
7. Acted as innocent bystander in poker game on Pennsylvania railway train. Usual result.
8. Made farm life pleasant to the boy.
9. Secured just and equitable legislative re-apportionment.
10. Abolished state oil inspection department. (My first issue.)
11. Reorganized all state departments.—Chaska Herald. We might add a couple.
12. Attended ladies functions
13. Endorsed Taft Standpatism.

IT STILL STICKS

How many years ago did the first operation for appendicitis occur? You know how frequent and how successful it is today. The science of surgery has been revolutiodnized in a gen eration.

But a few years ago yellow fever yearly haunted the Southland, either with its ravages or the fear thereof. Today it is recognized as one of the certainly preventable diseases.

Has the science of government kept pace? Everybody will say no.

But how can it, with a federal constitution so rigid and inflexible that it took a civil war to amend it? How is natural growth and development possible? Maybe you don't know that in more than 100 years it has not been altered or any additions made to it (except as courts have done so by construction), save in the single instance of the Civil war amendments.—St. Paul Daily News.

CONVENTION OR PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY

In North Dakota J. W. Scott, of Gilby recently wrote an article favoring the calling of a convention to discuss presidential possibilities and discover where the people of that state actually stood. Since that time many have enodrsed the convention plan. In some states a presidential primary will be held, many urging that one be held in Minnesota.

WHEN A MAN MARRIES

Various clubs thruout the United States are taking up the question "What young men ought to know about engagements and matrimony. One of the things they are going to find out is what his income should be. The Question will soon be taken up by a local society.

Our advice to young men is to start a BANK ACCOUNT, because there is nothing helps a young wife more to get the household on a business basis than a checking account. We give special attention to the accounts of engaged men and newlyweds.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK

"A Stitch In Time Saves Nine"

Under either plan the rank and file of the people must be aroused to discharge one of the prime duties of citizenship or neither primary nor convention would reflect the real sentiment of the people. It would otherwise be a case of victory for the man or coterie of men who would spend the most money to get the people out.

This is the only discouraging feature of working hard to give the people an opportunity to express preferences. At an ordinary election, for instance, even with well defined issues, it requires indefatigable work on the part of a capable committee, and a large expenditure of money to get the people to show sufficient interest to go to the polls and vote.

The very people who will howl and rage about the "big interests" and their undue interest in politics, oftentimes have to be urged to go and vote. They want reforms but they have to be persuaded to go to the polls and do their plain duty.

No real reform will ever come till the masses take enough interest in politics to discharge their duty at the polls. It would be an easy matter to get rid of all the grafters in office, if the petty grafters out of office would spend half as much time in the discharge of their real duties as citizens as they do in fussing and fuming about things that are not right. Let them use their influence individually to make conditions better and the result would clarify the political atmosphere wonderfully.—Crookston Times What has caused the Crookston Times to turn Reformer or is this merely some sham so as to be the better able to fool the people again the next time.

* * * * * * * * * * *

The high school band accompanied Dr. Gambell, D. P. O'Neill and J. H. Hay to Valhall last Friday evening, where the pupils and parents of three neighboring school districts had congregated for a social evening. Otto Olson, teacher in the Engelstad district was master of ceremonies. The three visiting gentlemen delivered addresses, that of Dr. Gambell on Alaska being the main feature of the program. The band boys received an enthusiastic reception from the young people present and they desired a repetition of the event. This meeting is a feature of the work possible un- [illegible]

The freezing of a water service pipe on Monday at the Central building closed the school for the forenoon. Supt. Peterson and his men opened the frozen pipe with an electric current.

Plumber Olson was compelled to tear up the cement floor in the basement of the Washington this week to locate an obstruction in the sewer.

A public meeting was held by the Eastsiders at the Knox school Monday evening. The school buildings, which represent so much money and are centrally located and well equipped for public service, ought to be utilized more than they are for neighborhood meetings, social gatherings and for any work of an entertaining or educational character. This could be accomplished successfully by clothing such action with proper restrictions.

The total enrollment in the schools for this year to Feb. 1st. was 1233. This is a decided increase over that of the same date one year ago.

As the basketball season is about over, the Lincoln building will not be opened evenings after this week. A visit to this building or to any of the grade schools after four would discover to the visitor the fact that many of the teachers are busily engaged with backward and delinquent pupils until five and even until six o'clock every day. No teacher's work ceases at four.

It is stated that the authorities purpose taking steps to teach a few offenders that during school hours their places of business cannot safely be made loitering places for children of school age. The most serious drawback to the progress of many of the boys in school is their inclination to "skip" and the opportunities afforded them to carry out this purpose by interested persons down town. When a boy forms the habit of thus playing truant he usually becomes a failure in school, and amounts to little later in life.

The agriculture department of the high school, under the direction of Mr. Haskin, held meetings last week at the Copp and Christianson schools northwest of the city, at the Berg school on the telephone road, at the Sathre school southwest of town and at the Wright school twelve miles east. Messrs. McMillan and Hay assisted at some of these meetings.

Manager Jacobson of the Auditorium has received sufficient pledges to enable him to secure the famous state university band of eighty pieces for an entertainment in this city next month. This will be pleasing news to all music lovers and particularly to the friends and schoolmates of James Curran, Morlan Bihsop and George Hicks, all of whom are in the cornet section of the band.

The North Central Teachers' Association of Minnesota, which held its annual meeting recently at Bemidji, again chose that city for the convention of 1913, believing that there was no other town in that section large enough to care for such a large gathering. Just what will happen to Thief River Falls when the Northwestern Minnesota Educational Association convenes here next fall may be imagined when it is stated that the membership of the local organization is three times that of the eastern association. Thief River will be compelled to entertain at least 750 strangers for three days.

All the schoolrooms observed the anniversary of the birth of Washington on Wednesday, either by program or exercises appropriate to the occasion.

Next week the high school girls taking cooking will be classified in groups of two each, and given permission to prepare as complete a meal as possible for ten persons; the cost not to exceed one dollar. The two girls will sell ten tickets to ten of their friends and with the proceeds purchase the necessary supplies, prepare same for the table, set and arrange the table and wait on their guests. Detailed records will be preserved of the whole operation in note books. This is only one of the many practical and useful features of present day school work.

The old fahsioned studies, so called, are not neglected in the high school courses. All students are compelled to take spelling reguarly, and penmanship is also taught in high school as well as in the grades.

Will soon be on his Feet.

Message Of Wisconsin Progressives To LaFollette.

The following telegram from Madison, Wis., is a sample of cheering messages that have been received by Senator LaFollette in the last few days:

"Senator Robert M. LaFollette,
"Wahsington, D. C.

"A conference of the Progresisve Republicans of Wisconsin. including their twenty-six (26) candidates for delegates to the National Convention, send you this greeting!

"'The Republicans of Wisconsin see straight to the end of the path. With vision unobscured, we see beyond the confusion of the present to the assurance of certain victory in the end. Knowing you, they know that you have never faltered or halted in pressing forward in the great fight to do for the nation what you have done for this state, to bring back to all the people the common rights of all. They ask for no assurance, require no bolstering of hopes, need no confirmation in faith. With ranks unbroken, steadfastly as you have made the fight for them, they stand in the fight for you and for the principles you represent.'

"Erich Stern, Secretary."

Routine Work.

The club passed a resolution favoring the adoption of the Brown bill, which empowers the secretary of Commerce and Labor to furnish aliens information about the United States, with the purpose of directing them to suitable farming sections.

The chairman appointed a committee to attend the State Federation of Commercial Clubs to be held at Hotel Radison, Feb. 20, 21 and 22. The first evening the Minneapolis club will give a dinner for the vistors and afterwards take them to the Auto show and theater.

A Minneapolis inventor of a small gasoline engine, suitable for a small farmer and at a reasonable price, wants most of the capital needed for establishing a plant in Thief River Falls. He has been advised to furnish further particulars

The secretary was instructed to confer with Supt. Hay in regard to securing lecture room accomodations and advertising for Horticulturist, Wood, of Warren, who would lecture here free of charge sometime in March.

Congressman Helgeson of N. Dak., has a bill before congress asking for a survey of Red Lake River, for the purpose of determining whether or not it would be advisable to put dams and locks in the river. Such work would make the river both navigable and a reliable source of water power. Mayor Backe and delegates from the club will attend a meeting of Mayors to be held in Grand Forks at an early date for the purpose of securing action thru congressmen from their respective states.

Geo. Elder again presented his park proposition, with a good sketch of what the completed park might look like. He offers over three acres of land for $5,000 on easy payments. It is supposed the expense would be divided between the city and the Soo railway. The club decided that the city needed such a park. It would be located practically in the heart of the city and would convert an unsightly waste into a beauty spot. A committee was appointed to wait on the city council and advise them to acquire the property.

There was more enthusiasm and good spirit shown at the meeting Friday night than any held so far, and it is certain that from now on that the Thief River Falls Commercial Club will be heard from in a way that means business.

NEW SOLUM NEWS

* * * * * * * * * * *

No news has been seen from this niche of the woods for quite a while, so we will try to scratch in some to show that we are still alive.

The Olby & Sagmoen Milling Co., of Strip is now sawing lumber as fast as the farmers can bring the logs.

Theodore Tomson is working for Richard Erickson now days cutting cord wood,

John Sjolsvold and Alex Larson took in the wrestling match in Thief River Falls last Friday night.

Henry Hanson of Warren was seen in New Solum last Saturday and Sunday.

A meeting was held at Strip last Monday by the New Solum Telephone Co. to discuss the extension of the Anita line to Strip. This company has been growing by leaps and bounds 'til in the near future they will have covered the whole territory from New Folden to Strip, and from Viking to Holt.

Misses Lottie Greenly, who is teaching in Viking and Manda Halvorson came over for a visit with the formers parents last Sunday.

Ole Sewalson spent Sunday with John Remmem.

The basket social in the Patterson school house last Saturday was well attended and a good time enjoyed by all present.

The Olson & Erickson Wood Sawing Co. is busy sawing wood for the farmers now days.

Carl Krogstad was seen going towards Viking Sunday evening and to Strip again Monday, evidently he has got so used to walking back and forth to Thief River this winter that he has got to take a walk once in a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Halvorson visited with John Halvorson last Sunday.

Did you think of it boys that a mule can kick and still be a mule, and a man can both hit and kick and still be a fool, unless he hits or kicks to a purpose.

JAILED YEAR AND A HALF FOR CRIME HE DID NOT COMMIT

(Published by Request)

Washington, Jan. 19.—A miscarriage of justice caused President Taft today to grant a full and unconditional pardon to Oscar Krueger of New York, who has served nearly one year of an eighteen months sentence at the Atlanta penitentiary for a crime he did not commit. Expert handwriting testimony, it was said, was responsible for his conviction on a charge of mailing an obscene letter.

GERMANTOWN

* * * * * * * * * * *

Well, Ed. is back again and as it looks single handed, so there is hope yet, girls.

The Young Peoples Society will have another debate next Sunday evening at the school house, dist. No. 70, the subject being, "The world owes more to navigation than to railroads."

The first political rally in the coming campaign came off Sunday evening at Germantown. Mr. Nomeland agitating socialism.

Wm. Gernlard returned form Germany with a wife and will start farming on his farm in Esplee. That is the way to do boys.

Mr. Lehrer from Thief River was up investigating some land, and will probably settle here if he can get hold of a piece.

The Misses Krause and Copp of the town of Landen were here visiting friends and relatives. They were well pleased with the country.

Mathias Lekogstad is moving back on to his farm again.

The linemen for the Tri-State Co. were up last week to locate the trouble which has been bothering the line for some time. The cause of it was in the line at Duchamp's place.

The different connections made with the rural lines by Irving Quist worked fine, and don't give any troble at all.

James Horysh left last week for the southern states.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. meets next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. W. H. Quist 402 Porters addition.

Mr. Lincoln and Adams

An interesting story is told in connection with Lincoln's nomination for President of the United States.

It is said that after the committee had notified him of the honor, Mr. Lincoln remarked that as a flitting close to such an important event perhaps he ought to treat the gentlemen to something to drink. Opening the door, he called, "Mary, Mary!" and when the maid appeared he gave an order in a low tone. When Mary came back she bore a tray upon which were several glass tumblers and a large pitcher of water, and placed it on the center table. Mr. Lincoln arose and gravely addressing the company, said, "Gentlemen, we must pledge our mutual health in the best beverage God has given to man; it is the only beverage I have ever used or allowed to be used in my family and I can not conscientiously depart from it on the present occasion."

SOO ITEMS

* * * * * * * * * * *

The Soo this week is moving 400 carloads of export flour from Kenora, Canada.

The evening of March 1st. the Soo will carry thru here 40 special Case flat cars loaded with 110-H. P. J. I. Case Engines.

The Soo officials and the Commercial club are going to take up the proposition of a new depot for this city.

A credit to the Manual training department of the High School and a great pleasure to the boys at the Soo office is the beautiful and substantial train dispatcher's table made recently by the High School boys under the expert supervision of director Schmidt of the Manual training department of the High School. It is a piece of work that any skilled cabinet maker could well be proud of. Mr. Schmidt deserves something more than perishable flowrs for the high class of work being done regularly in his department. The cost of the raw material in the table was $23.00.

The Soo has issued a new and handsome little book of "rules of the operating department" to become effective May 1st. It may be safely said that when the employes get these rules down pat, the Soo will be operated on the most modern system possible today. Written examinations to ascertain the familiarity of employes with these rules will begin March 20th, and all employes whose duties are governed or affected thereby will be required to pass an examination betweb that date and May 1st.

Amusements

Dean and Stevens, Black-and-Tan Comedians, will appear at the Lyceum Thurs, Friday and Saturday of this week in one of the most entertaining comedy skits ever presented in city. "The Frozen Flagman"

It was in the western ranges
  At the close of a winter's day,
The sun had already settled
  In shadows long, and gray;
Nature ruled this land,
  All but two threads of steel
That clung to the Mountain side
  And held the speeding wheel.

There between the hills,
  Beside a canyon deep,
Lay a flagman, huddled in death's
    last long sleep,
  His hand was still holding
A lantern dim and red
  It was slowly fading,
And would soon, like him, be dead.

There out from across the canyon
  Came an on rushing train,
The smoke from the engine stack,
  Gave the black sky a blacker stain
The sound of the wheels was like the roar
  of a storm,
And the light of the engine shown on the huddled form.

The engineer suddenly started,
  As he looked into the night,
What was that he saw, ahead,
  The glimmer of a small red light;
He threw over the reverse lever.
  And set tight the air,
The brake screamed in anger.
  As tho' the wheels to tear.

When the engine had stopped
  Close to the huddled heap,
The engineer came from his cab.
  In a single leap;
He picked him up, so cold and damp,
  His hands still clutched the battered lamp.
They carried him back to the baggage car,
  And then pulled ahead, but, not for far;
In just a mile
  They found a broken rail;
It was why he came back
To flag the fast mail.

But the mail was, far, far away
  And there he was found, at the close of the day;
His own train was gone,
  For the mail he must wait;
No one knew it was so terribly late.

His mother had been waiting
  All the day,
His sweetheart was wondering
  At all the delay,
"A flagman frozen" 'twas all that was said;
  Doesn't seem to matter,
When a railroad man is dead.

But many a tear is shed
  Just the same,
He is missed by loved ones
  Who cherish his name,
And the great train master, at the divide,
  Will give him a clearance, to the other side.

There he'll see no snow or rain,
  There he'll feel no cold or pain,
No more will he hear the engines hiss,
  All will be happiness, joy, and bliss.

An English Ghost Story.

The ghost of Lord Tyrone, it is said appeared to Lady Beresford, the wife of Sir Tristram Beresford, who died in 1678, and announced that Lord Tyrone, of whose death she had not heard, had died a few days before. The ghost went on to say that Lady Beresford would be blessed with a long desired heir; that she would marry again and would die at the age of forty-seven. The first three things came to pass, and Lady Beresford was congratulating herself on approaching her forty-eighth birthday when the clergyman who had christened her told her that she was really a year younger than she thought.

"You have signed my death warrant," she said "I have not much longer to live."

That afternoon she told the story to her son and daughter and died, and on her wrist was the withering mark where the ghost had touched her.

Storms That Beat About the Horn.

The waters of Cape Horn have never been unvisited by storms for more than a week or two at a stretch within the memory of man. Standing on the outpost of the world, Cape Horn is the meeting place of ocean currents of very different temperatures, from the icy cold waters of the antarctic drift to the warmth of the Brazilian and Peruvian return currents. The prevailing winds are from the northwest and west, and these, coming from the warm regions of the Pacific, condense into fogs which the sailors call "Cape Horn blankets" and which are the sure forerunners of storms. The extremely low levels to which the glaciers of Tierra del Fuego descend, the perpetual congelation of the subsoil, the meeting of conflicting winds of very different temperatures, are all direct or indirect causes combining to make this the most constantly stormy region in the world.

Confidences.

Gwennie—Why did you refuse him if he is such a prudent man? Gertie—He said he thought if he got married he could save more money.—London Opinion.

FALLS VICTIM TO THIEVES

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for twelve years. They were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivaled for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia. 25c at all Druggists.

RALPH PARLETTE MUCH ENJOYED

Ralph Parlette, appearing as a [illegible] number on the local Lyceum Lecture Course, scored a triumphant success at the Auditorium Friday night. The local Lyceum board is to be congratulated on securing such a good number and presenting it at the popular price of fifty cents a seat.

Parlette is a humorist and philosopher of unusual ability. He has a very happy faculty of mixing humor and wisdom, and kept the audience in alternate states of pleasant relaxation and rapt attention. His figurative illustrations of life thru nature's phenomena left an impression not soon to be forgotten. Coming, as he did, directly from the train, with an empty stomach, and scoring a success before a small audience, shows him also to be somewhat of a philanthropist.

LIFE SAVED AT DEATH'S DOOR

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Tex., as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, its the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

Salt Means Much to Health.

"If the human race should be deprived of salt, even for a period of a few months," said a physician, "we would not only lose a natural healthful incentive for our food, but disease, with all its attendant miseries, would spread with such relentless speed as to defy the efforts of the most skillful doctors of the land. Ailing persons frequently refuse sugar, but they seldom turn up their noses at common salt. That is because there is in the body a deficiency of chloride of sodium, and nature intuitively excites the desire for it. Salt is essential to health and life and is as much a food as bread or flesh. If there is no wish for salt in a person, doctors uniformly conclude that disease in some form is lurking unsuspected in the system. It is an imperative duty of those who have at heart [illegible] well being of their fellow creatures to impress upon them that if they wish their blood to be in a healthy condition they must make salt a frequent article of diet."—Chicago News.

French Burial Customs.

The ancient custom of depositing valuables in tombs still prevails in France. But it is not only jewels and the like that are buried with the dead. A few years ago it was the custom in La Vendee to put a polished stone within reach of the corpse. This was supposed to guide the dead on his new journey. In the district of Dinan a piece of bread was used for the same purpose. The people of the Bordeaux district place in the coffin a sprig of myrtle blessed at Easter. This is considered to insure entry into paradise. On the borders of Brittany and Poitou a little pebble is placed on the tongue of the deceased. Without this it is thought he might plead his cause before the great tribunal with such volubility as would insure his condemnation without appeal.—Journal des Debats.

A Scene Not on the Bill.

An amusing incident in the Royal Opera House at Warsaw, Russian Poland, is described by the Paris Temps. By permission of the commanding officer a number of Russian soldiers were engaged as "supers" to take the part of Spanish soldiers. No sooner had they come on the stage than they saw a general sitting in the stalls. The corporal with them immediately shouted, "Attention!" The soldiers stood at attention. The general, realizing that the men were not likely to move until he gave them the order, cried from the stalls, "All right, my children, all right!" The corporal advanced to the center of the stage and, gravely saluting, said, "We thank you, excellency, for permission to continue."

Insects In Flight.

Motion pictures of insects in flight prove that the movement of the wings of all insects presents the same general character. When flight is begun the amplitude of the first wing beats is much smaller than of the subsequent ones, but the period remains almost unchanged. The insect regulates the velocity of its flight, not by the rapidity of the motion of its wings, but by changing their inclination. Although in normal conditions the period of the wing beat remains constant, it may be increased or diminished by various influences, such as fatigue and cold.

PEDDLERS ARE FINED

Last week two peddlers by the names of H. M. Mogel and S. Rubenstein hired a rig from Newbery and Son, and upon returning same it was discovered the cutter had been smashed. They refused to pay the damages and left Saturday afternoon for Crookston. Immediately on learning this, C. H. Newbery got out a warrant and when the hasty men got off the train at Crookston they were arrested and held for a conference with the County Attorney. They were discharged after paying the damages and all costs.

U. S. IMPORTS POTATOES

Six Large Consignments of Potatoes From Abroad Are Awaited In New York.

New York, Feb. 15.—Six large consignments of potatoes are expected to arrive in New York from abroad during the next two days, bringing the total receipts for the season up to a million sacks. The duty on the entire quantity will foot up to nearly $700,000.

Imports will decrease from now on, as Germany and France are both buying heavily in Ireland and England. This is the first year that America has gone abroad for potatoes since 1908.

In the United States growers raise about seventy-five bushels of potatoes to the acre, while in England and Ireland the crops run from 200 to 235 bushels to the acre.

CHARGES OF DITCH "GRAFT."

The Argyle Banner of two weeks ago gave publication to a letter from some Marshall county citizen signing himself "Taxpayer," that was sensational in the extreme.

The writer charges that there was robbery of the rankest kind in the letting of the contract of big Judicial Ditch No. 11, saying that but one banafide bid was submitted and three or four other bidders who were present and did not bid were handed rakeoffs by the successful single bidder, one fellow getting $3,500, another $500 and another getting a sub-contract at a good price, and so on, and that "The bunch that allowed the deal to be pulled off got $6,000 in cash to divide between them." He draws a comparison between the price to be paid for the excavation of this ditch with that of most of the state ditches and gives figures to show that while the ditch under the contract will cost nearly a million dollars it could have been constructed on the basis of state ditches for $579,050. He says further that "immediately after the letting the bunch got busy and bought up a lot of land in favorable locations along the ditch, a little later on the bunch and engineers in their employ were the possessors of new high priced automobiles; land companies were organized; junkets were pulled off. The chief engineer constituted himself a land agent and was busy picking up all snaps for himself and friends. At the same time he was drawing a big per diem and expenses from the county."

The above quotation in itself constitutes no charge against any one, and will carry no weight among thinking men in creating adverse sentiment against the men it is directed at. The fact that men are in position to buy automobiles is no evidence that they are crooked. Neither is there any reason to infer that Mr. Hoag's buying some land here was a result of or because of his making a big rakeoff out of the ditch.

The writer concludes his article in the following words:

This is a fair statement of fact on No. 11 and it is no worse than some other ditches in Marshall county, only on a larger scale. You can call this graft or any ugly word you like and have no fear of calling it by a wrong name. I can go into court and prove the foregoing statement. I will send you some more facts a little later on, at the present time I cannot go farther for fear of flushing the game.

While the PIONEER does not vouch for the accuracy of the statements of the Banner's correspondent, it believes that there will be and should be more to come from these charges. This is too serious a matter to be allowed to drop at this stage of the game. If the writer can as he says in his concluding paragraph, prove these charges he owes it to the county and to fair dealing that he come out in the open and make good. On the other hand, if the county board and the auditor and county attorney and others are innocent of any graft and wrong doing they should insist on the searchlight being turned on to clear themselves of suspision for it must be conceded the enormous big county warrants that have been issued to some parties in connection with this ditch have led many taxpayers of eastern Marshall county to believe that the ditch is costing too much money and created an apprehension among them that there has been graft of some sort in the ditch deal. Turn on the searchight!—Middle River Pioneer.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents)$340.93) which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Lewis B. Geerlings and Nancy Geerlings his wife, mortgagors, to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota; mortgagees, bearing date the 11th day of June 1910, with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota on the 13th day of June, 1910, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of mortgages on Page 178 and subsequently upon the division of Red Lake County and the creation of Pennington County, whereto the records of the herein described mortgage have been transcribed, and now appear in book 22 of mortgages at page 343 in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by the said First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota by written assignment, dated the 15th day of February, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington, County, Minnesota on the 16th day of February 1912 at 1:00 o'clock p. m., in book 8 of mortgages, on page 78.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date of this notice on said indebtedness the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) principal and interest, and whereas the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue by power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described, in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots numbered six (6) and seven (7) in Block eleven (11) of Porters Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota (formerly in Red Lake County,) according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds, within and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said County and State on Saturday the 6th day of April, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay the said debt of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) and interest and taxes if any on said premises and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 20, 1912.

CURTIS IS ONE OF THE BEST

His Defeat of Betcher Proves him to be of Championship Caliber.

L. C. Curtis of Halstad, weighing 153 pounds secured two out of three falls over Albert Betcher of McIntosh, weighing 155½ pounds, in the wrestling bout pulled off at the Lyceum theater here Tuesday evening. Cutris got the first fall in 16½ minutes on a scissors and bar-arm hold. Betcher got the second fall in 18 minutes and 10 seconds on a hammar lock and head hold. Curtis got the third fall with a leg hold around the shoulders and the free use of his hands to force Betcher down and help hold him.

The men climbed into the ring together at 11:20 amid generous applause from the packed house, and were introduced to the enthusiastic crowd by referee, John Rogers. The only hold barred was the strangle. Both men looked in the pink of condition and able to go the limit. They sparred for four minutes and then went to the matt with Curtis on top. Curtis was the aggressor all thru the round and was working on Betcher nearly all the time. Betcher put up as fine an exhibition of defensive work as one would ask to witness, but was finally worked into a hold he could not break. In the second round Betcher rallied wonderfully and did considerable offensive work and managed to get Curtis into such a bad hole that he slid down before his shoulders touched the matt. The third round started with great applause and intense interest on the part of the fans. The fact that this round went 40 minutes was due to marvelous defensive work and ability to break hold on the part of Betcher. Curtis clearly demonstrated himself to be of championship caliber by taking holds almost at will on the mighty Betcher and keeping him all the time in most dangerous positions. Curtis used his legs for holding Betcher and was able to take the scissors any old time he wanted to. He worked hard to throw Betcher in short order, but could not, which proves more than anything else that Betcher is himself an exceptonally good man.

Curtis was the stronger man, especially from the waist up. He said after the match that Betcher was the best man he had ever wrestled for his weight. Curtis' work here proved him to be in class with Miller all right.

CONCERT COMPANY HERE SUNDAY

Hallowell Concert Company will prove rare treat for Music Lovers.

Tickets for the concert to be given Sunday March 3rd by the Hallowell Concert Company under the auspicies of the Antler's club have been selling at a rapid rate. The advance sale to date has far exceeded the expectations of the most optimistic club members. Reservations are daily being made at J. P. Curtis' Drug store. There are still a goodly number of choice seats left so it is advisable for those who care, to get your reserved seats early before the best ones are gone. Mr. Curtis is showing no favortism in exchanging the tickets but is following the old adage: "first come first served."

The Hallowell Company has been meeting with great success on its western trip and the musical patrons here hope the concert in the local Auditorium will be the most triumphant of the entire tour.

The Company which plays here will be identically the same in every respect as the one which has been admired by the thousands of people who have heard its entertainments in other cities.

J. Lester Haterkorn, the silvery throated baritone, who accompanies the concert company, is repated the world over for his lovely voice.

It is regretted that the Hallowell musicians will be able to play but the one concert here. Coming as it does, however, on Sunday afternoon it gives everyone a splendid opportunity to hear one of the finest musical entertainments ever offered to the pubilc.

BIG MASS MEETING TONIGHT

Boost the Athletic Club and yourself; Get started right Tonight.

It does one's heart good to enter the city gymnasium and see the members taking the good healthy exercise that the place affords. After a long delay in the arrival of the equipment and a somewhat shorter wait in installing the apparatus the gym. is now in working order.

The officers spent a great deal of time early this week in getting things in readiness for the opening and it is now possible to take any old kind of a work out from a whirl on the flying rings to a few stunts on the parallel bars. A new wrestling mat 18 feet square is in procees of construction and will be put in at an early date.

The keys are being distributed at J. P. Curtis Drug store.

No one will be permitted on the floor with high heeled shoes so each member must provide himself with suitable footwear. Those wishing to join the club may procure tickets at Curtis; Effinger's pool room and from the Officers.

To-night at 7:00 p. m., a meeting of all members will be held in the gymnasium for the purpose of adopting rules and for a discussion of the general conduct of the club. It is necessary that each member be there so he may have a voice in the meeting. Some mighty important questions will be brought up. Come for a while at least, be on time, and the meeting will be closed as early as possible.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Minnesota Representatives Do not think farmer gets too high prices for products.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 29.—The proposed international commission on the cost of living, suggested by President Taft in a recent message, is a nonpartizan affair, and the plan has been approved by a number of prominent politicians in both parties. Prof Irving Fisher of Yale University seems to be the prime mover in the effort to secure the appointment of such a commission, although Senator Crawford of South Dakota, introduced a bill of similar import some time ago. President Taft has already gone on record in favor of the proposed commission. Governor Wodrow Wilson, prominent Democratic candidate for President, has stated that he is thoroughly in favor of the establishment of the International Commission. Several of the House leaders are carefuly looking into the matter. And while there is some fear from different quarters that efforts will be made to make political capital out of the proposition, yet those in charge of legislation are taking the broader ground that the greatest good may be accomplished by lifting the subject out of the field of partizan polities

DISTRICT COURT WORKS RAPIDLY

Met Monday and Jury was discharged Wed.; Low expense for County.

The District Court reconvened Monday morning at eleven o'clock, with Hon. Judge Andrew Grindeland presiding. All of the cases were disposed of by Wednesday and the jury was discharged. The work of the court was efficient and rapid, making the expense to the county very low. The attractive and comfortable court room was filled with visitors thruout the session. Outside attorneys present were: Mr. Boughton and Mr. Farley; Mr. Grady, Crookston, and Mr. Van Valkenberg, Minneapolis.

The cases were disposed of as follows:

Evan H. Oftlie Vs. Ever Sjulstad, was continued to next term of court.

Nels Berg Vs. Mrs. Gilbert Olson, a judgment was rendered for the amount claimed.

W. J. LaBree Vs. Virginia Galboury, a change of vendue to Morrison county was ordered.

Mpls. Steel and Machinery Co. Vs. City of Thief River Falls, was settled outside of court.

Peter Newman and Carrie Newman divorce case, was tried and submitted.

Frank Hathaway and Maude Hathaway divorce case, was tried and submitted.

Sever O. Finhart and Tillie Finhart divorce case was tried and submitted.

Knute Bolstad Vs. Peter Lindblom, was dismissed.

Sandy Miller Vs. Soo railway, was settled out of court.

Red Lake County Vs. City of Thief River Falls, court case was submitted.

State of Minn. Vs. G. G. Williams et. al., issue of law is pending.

State of Minn. Vs. Knute Flackne, dismissed on motion of county attorney.

State of Minn. Vs. William R. Crowe, was continued on motion of County Attorney, Stanton, on account of the main witness, Father Adolph, having left town. Attorney Boughton for the defendant moved and pleaded for immediate trial, and that the Catholic Priest be subpoenaed, but on refusal of Judge Grindeland to entertain the plea the case went over until the June term of court.

FINANCING OF LA-FOLLETTE CAMPAIGN

Record Kept of Every Contribution Received and every expenditure Made.

Walter L. Houser, manager of the campaign to secure the nomination of Senator LaFollettee, is in North Dakota where he probably has no opportunity to read the statement in regard to the finances of the LaFollette campaign, printed in the New York World and other papers of this date.

When Mr. Houser returns, in his own way, he will take care of the libelous statements which involve his good name. I know that the statements of the World article are untrue in every particular. Every disbursement has been made in the form of a check signed by me. The representation that there were several thousand dollars due for rent and other expenses, is absolutely false. Every obligation of this committee has been met promptly and all bills settled weekly. By Mr. LaFollettee's direction, record has been kept of every contribution received and every expenditure made, so that, at the proper time, it might be made public.

Aside from a few small contributions the money to conduct the campaign has been furnished by Charles R. Crane, William Kent, Alfred S. Baker, Amos Pinchot, Gifford Pinchot, and William Flinn. Medill McCormick did not contrnbute to the campaign fund. Senator Bourne did not contribute except in the way of furnishing copies of his senate speeches for distribution. He has not changed his allegiance.

In the tour of Illinois the cars which were used over the traction lines were contracted and paid for at the regular rate charged for such service, through Walter S. Rogers in charge of the Chicago Progressive Headquarters, and no gratuitous service was rendered.

The LaFollette Headquarters will be maintained to the end of the campaign and every dollar of the expense will be borne by contributions made by real progressives.

This campaign has no alliance, agreement, understanding, or working arrangement with the campaign of Mr. Taft, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Cummins, or any other candidate, and will have none. It will go straight on to the finish, as it has from the beginning, without any deals or combinations with any other candidacy or campaign.

Swanson---Thompson

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Swanson was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday afternoon when their daughter, Anna Sophie was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Tom G. Thompson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Roseland of the United Church in the presence of a number of friends and relatives.

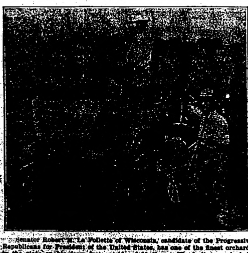
The bride was becomingly gowned in cream color messeline silk, and was attended by her sister, Miss Marie. The groom wore the conventional black and was attended by F. M. Nash. After the service the guests partook of a sumptuous wedding dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for a visit to the Twin Cities where two of the groom's sisters reside. From there they will go to Dawson, Minn., for a visit with his parents, and friends. They will leave for Hope, N. Dak., the middle of March, where the pretty little romance which ended so auspiciously was first begun.

The bride is well and favorably known in this community, having grown up to womanhood here. During her short stay in Hope she made the acquaintance of many friends who will all be glad to see her back.

The groom is a well to do farmer of Hope, N. Dak., and liked by all who have had the pleasure of making his acquaintance.

Both the young people have hosts of friends who will all join in wishing them a long and happy journey thru life.



Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, candidate of the Progressive Republicans for President of the United States, has one of the finest orchards in the state on his farm just outside of Madison. His fruit trees include apple, cherry, peach, pear and plum. In all the management of his farm, Senator La Follette uses up-to-date methods. In the accompanying picture two of his hands are seen preparing to spray the trees.

THE BOARD OF REVIEW

An Article in Which Is Described Manner Of Equalizing Taxes.

Very evidently the legislative mind did not trust solely to the performance by the local assessor of his duties in a "diligent, faithful and impartial" manner. It doubtless had in mind the frailties of human nature that militate against such performance of duties, as well as the possible inaccuracy of judgment in valuing real and personal property.

So it set over the assessor a board of review composed of the town board of each town, the assessor, clerk and president of each village, and the assessor, clerk and mayor of each city, except as to those cities whose charters provide otherwise. In fourth class cities, except those whose charters provide a equalization, the board consists of the mayor, clerk and board of aldermen. The function of these several boards is to equalize assessment as between individual property owners of their respective districts, to raise or lower assessments and to add to the lists property that the assessor may have overlooked and fix its value. If an assessment is raised the owner is entitled to notice and a hearing, or if any owner feels aggrieved he may be heard and such correction made as the board may deem just.

These several boards meet at the office of the clerk of the town or district on the fourth Monday in June. They may sit until the first Monday in July, giving six working days with pay at $3 a day though in fourth class cities the pay of the board is limited to three days in each year. By the latter date the assessors must return their books and listing sheets to the county auidtor.

Valuable Fruit Trees

From the

Minnesota State Horticultural Society

An Experiment in Top-Grafting

Limited to 200!

SIX VALUABLE APPLE TREES

Three Hibernal or Virginia, 2 years old; one Delicious, one King David, one Lowland Raspberry, all 1 year old.

This lot of trees will be given to any member of the society or any one securing a new member.

The Hibernal and Virginia are both hardy varities and produce valuable fruit, but are being sent out in this connection to give opportunity to our members for a demonstraton in top-grafting. The hardiness of at least two of the three other varities offered has not been fully tested and is still in question, but if top-grafted on the Hibernal or Virginia the probablities of success are greatly increased, as there is no question that top-grafting any variety on a hardy variety makes it hardier. Even the Wealthy, hardy as it is, will do much better top-grafted on either the Hibernal or Virginia.

The nursery men do not offer top-grafted trees, and the only way to secure them is for the planter to have the top-grafting done himself. Every planter in this state should have at least a few top-grafted apple trees, which will be found to survive severe winters when apple trees grown in the ordinary two-year old Hibernal or Virginia trees sent out should be trimmed to a straight whip with no branches and cut off at a point 2 ft. above the ground when they are planted. Plant six inches deeper than the tree stood in the nursery, and leave a little hollow, two or three inches deep around them. When these trees commence to grow all but three or four of the strongest branches, located as near the top as possible, should be rubbed off, and then the whole strength of the tree will go into these three or four branches, which should be large enough to graft onto the next spring.

Full directions for doing this grafting (and we are prepared to furnish a first-class grafting knife also if disired at 25¢ postpaid) will be furnished to any member of the society upon application to the secretary. Don't fail to take part in this most interesting and valuable experiment.

As these trees must go by express, remit thirty-five cents express charges with the annual membership fee of $1.00—or such charges can be paid when the bundle of trees is received if preferred.

If you are not fully posted as to what constitutes membership in the society and its large advantages, full information can be had of the secretary.

Address, A. W. Latham, Sec'y.
Minn, State Hort. Society.
207 Kasota Block, Minneapolis. Minn

Note:—The Horticultural Society is not a commercial organization. It is supported by the State and no one gets anything out of it. All the member and officers, with the exception of the secretary, do gratuitous service and even pay membership fees and their own expenses. The work is done altogether for the advancement of the fruit growing interests of the state.

Farmers Line Pay

Directors of Red Lake Eastern Marshall Farmers' Telephone Company held their regular meeting last Monady.

Among other business a dividend was declared of 10 per cent per annuum from date of stock issue to Jan. 1st, 1912.

There will still remain in the treasury a surplus of over $150 besides allowing 7 per cent for deterioration of the company's property since the line wds built.

Who said the Farmers can't operate their own telephone system?

The board also passed a resolution which if accepted by the connecting lines will make a uniform toll rate of 20 cents between all local companies. The toll would be divided so that 5 cents would go to the local company onw hose line the message originates and 5 cents to the one on which it terminates. The remaining 10 cents to the Main Toll line.

GERMANTOWN CO-OPERATIVE SUCCESS

The Germantown Co-operative store Co., held their annual meeting last Wednesday.

The board of directors for the ensuing year are: Jay Payne, Nick Bundhund, O. A. Rambec, Geo. Wold and Fred Solly.

The gross sales during the past year were more than $20,000 and the net per cent of profit less than 5 per cent.

Beside the regular 8 per cent dividend on stock a dividend on purchases by stockholders of 6 per cent and on purchases non-stockholders of 3 per cent was allowed.

PEOPLE ARE WAKING UP

More Interest being taken In City Affairs. Many Improvements contemplated.

The council held a short meeting Tuesday evening and the council room was comfortably filled with interested citizens. The people generally are taking more interest in city affairs, and it will not be long at this rate before they will be well enough acquainted with city government to demand the people's kind—the Commission Form.

The meeting was called to order by A. Tamen, president, and business done as follows:

A liquor license was granted to H. A. Brumund, all members voting yes, except Bjorkman.

The disposal of 60 militia lockers was referred to the building committee. It was proposed that the city take what they needed and that the remainder be turned over to the Athletic association.

A northeast room in the Auditorium was rented to civil engineer, Walker. It was coneded that the city has much need of such a man.

Bjorkman moved that a room in the Auditorium be reserved for the use of farmers' wives. The motion met with approval and was referred to a committee.

Tanem spoke of the need of a market place. He said that we had no market place now, but the city owned six lots near Jensen's barn that would be suitable for a market place. He advised putting up sheds, a well, city scales and other conveniences. The matter was referred to a committee.

Mr. O'Neill presented a petition asking for the establishment of a sewer system for the Washington school. The petition met with evident approval by all present. The system will be installed just as soon as the city can go thru the necessary legal procedure, and raise the funds. There could be no argument against such a petition, so the question resolved itself immediately into how to do it. More information on the sewerage question will follow later.

WM. E. LEE MAKES STATEMENT

Would Appraise and sell State Lands; People or Special Interests the Question.

Wm. E. Lee of Long Prairie, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor arrived in our city on Saturday evening and remained here until on Monday when he left for his home via Bemidji.

Mr. Lee said that he had expected to have made a longer stay but was called home by his business interests and he will therefore plan to make another visit to these parts in the near future.

The Press reporter asked Mr. Lee what he thought should be the State's policy toward the State Lands.

"I firmly believe," said Mr. Lee, "that all State lands should be appraised, and a thorough report as to the general condition and character of each patricular tract of land should be filed with the county auditor in the respective counties where such land is located, for the information of prospective purchasers. And further that the Auditor be authorized to sell at private sale all such lands at appraised value at any time without notice."

When asked what will be the paramount issues in the opening campaign, Mr. Lee said: "There will be only one paramount issue in this campaign. It is not a question of Gordon, or Eberhart, or Lee or any-

High School Notes of Much Interest

Annie Haugen, one of the normal training department students, was operated on last week for appendicitis at the Warren hospital. She is recovering satisfactorily, as is Carl Nelson who underwent a similar experience at the same institution a week ago.

The manual training students are turning out much useful material this winter from their department. As in history, science and other studies, a foundation must be laid and first principles learned in this work before satisfactory progress can be accomplished later. This has been done in manual training and now nearly all the boys are constructing various articles for use at home of which they need not be ashamed.

Next week, Mr. Chapman, the poultry expert from the agriculture college at St. Anthony Park(will assist Mr. Haskin with the extension work among the rural schools. On some evening of the week a meeting, which will be announced with particulars later, will be held in the high school assembly hall for residents of the city. Mr. Chapman is the gentleman who has organized so many egg associations throughout the state and 's considered the highest authority in the Northwest on matters pertaining to poultry.

The local high school basket ball team visited Argyle on Washington's birthday and defeated the high school team of that place by a score of 24 to 21. The game was fast and was not marked by any untoward incident.

The wideawake first graders at the Knox discovered some budding willows and brought them to their teacher last Friday. These pussy willows are a little early for this latitude, but show the near approach of spring.

The train to Warren last Thursday was crowded with Marshall county school teachers and officers, en route to the neighboring town to attend their annual convention. Some of the local teachers attended and appeared on the program.

The state high school board last week adopted a resolution whereby no teachers holding first grade state certificates can be employed in high and graded schools after 1914. Recently the state normal board announced that elementary diplomas received from state normals would be valid but two years following their issue and could not be renewed. These two actions will seriously curtail the number of available teachers without providing any means for renewing the suply. No doubt they find their origin among the authorities of the powerful normal schools who are continually securing to themselves the certification of teachers in Minnesota. The mature successful first grade teachers, such are found in some of the school rooms in this city, have fought their way to the front by hard and earnest effort and are considered by all practical educators the equal to, if not the superior, of inexperienced normal graduates. This new ruling will lose to the state the services of a large part of these valuable instructors. The facts are that the five state normals are simply unable to turn out half the professionally trained teachers called for. Two of them last year notified the public that they were overcrowded and could not enroll more students and generally speaking their enrollment was purely local, as a glance at their bulletins would prove. In the fight of three years ago for a sixth state normal for northern minnesota, these schools stood aloof and showed no disposition to assist a worthy cause, but worked hard for large appropriations for the extension of their own plants. Neither can the normal training departments in the high schools supply the demand, as the state high school board again placed a rule in operation last fall which prohibits more than twenty students enrolling in one of these departments in any high school. In September last over forty eligible students requested to be enrolled in the Thief River Falls training school and, of course, under the ruling of the board not over twenty could be permitted to enter the normal department. Three years ago the startling discovery was made that only four per cent of the teachers in northwestern Minnesota had any normal preparation, and this included the town teachers. Today the condition is not much better. In the face of all these limitations and realizing that 3000 of the 15,000 teachers in Minnesota leave the profession yearly, nothing less than two state normals for northern Minnesota will satisfy the immediate needs of the schools, to say nothing of the near future, when some of the latest rulings of the state board become effective. Three years ago this upper part of the state would have been satisfied with one state normal, but under present conditions at least two will be required to remedy the situation.

Next Friday evening, beginning at eight o'clock sharp, a free literary and musical program will be presented at the Lincoln assembly. Dr. Gambell will deliver a travelogue on Alaska and Siberia and will exhibit his collection of northern curios. The school band and other musicians will furnish music and the public will find this entertainment most interesting as well as instructive. Folowing the program the gym. will be opened and a game of basket ball between the locals and the Argyle team will take place. Refreshments will also be served at a nominal price by the domestic science girls. Everybody is invited to spend the evening at the Lincoln.

In addition to the extension work being accomplished by the department of agriculture of the high school, a two or three days farmers' institute will take place in this city the last week in March. A strong list of prominent men will be present and it is hoped that Professor Bolley of Fargo the well known flax expert, can be secured. Dr. Vincent and State Superintendent Schulz are also expected to be present.

How to cure a cold is a question in which many are interested just now. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won its great reputation and immense sale by its remarkable cure of colds. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all Druggists.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATORS

The World's Standard

Used Exclusively by 98% of World's Creameries

Ten years ago there were a dozen different makes of creamery or factory separators in use. To-day over 98 per cent of the world's creameries use De Laval separators exclusively.

When it comes to buying a separator why not profit by the experience of the creameryman, which qualifies him to advise you correctly.

He knows which separator will give you the best service and be the most economical for you to buy. That's why 98 per cent of the world's creameries use the De Laval exclusively.

There can be no better recommendation for the De Laval than the fact that the men who make the separation of milk a business use the De Laval to the practical exclusion of all other makes. They know from experience.

FRIDAY, MAR. 1, 1912

It is rumored that Dr. Cyrus Northrup is to head the list of presidential electors for Taft. Can it be possible that our worthy old university president is willing to barter his great popularity for the sake of a little political advantage for one of his former school boys?

Roosevelt's entering the presidential race gives a large number of the Standpatters who have wanted to cater somewhat to the Progressives an excuse for going to the Colonel and thereby claiming to be Progressive while as a matter of fact they are as much Standpatters as ever and we sometimes think more so.

The First of March is here! Spring has opened up for business! Thief River Falls and surrounding territory is facing the busiest season that it has ever experienced. Then let us seize our opportunities and make the most of them and not be afraid that some neighbor of ours might perchance be benefited thereby. Blot out that wicked jealous thought. It is a parasite. Live and let live. But remember always that any good legitimate deal that is a benefit to any of your neighbors is also a benefit to you.

A Northwestern Farmer asks where Theodore Roosevelt stood on the Reciprocity Treaty. With Taft of course. He was for the Treaty all the time and so stated. What are you going to do about it? Turn around and support him in preference to your friend LaFollette who stood by you thru thick and thin on this proposition. I trust that the farmers of the Northwest will show the world that they have better judgment than that, for unless they make up soon and vote for the men who have stood with them the politicians will continue their hoodwinking game indefinitely.—A Farmer.

Theodore Roosevelt, twice president of the United States is again a candidate. He has fallen from the pedestal of honor upon which he reverently had been placed by the American People. Like W. S. Grant the hero of the Civil War and twice president of the United States he may find that his great popularity will vanish when he comes asking for a Third Term. Colonel Roosevelt's head is so badly swelled now that we cannot refrain from saying that we sincerely hope that he will be defeated for should he be re-elected there will not be a factory-room large enough in the United States in which to manufacture a hat large enough for his use.

POLITICS IN MINNESOTA

The announcement by former President Roosevelt that he would accept the nomination for the presidency if it was preferred him by the republican national convention has created considerable commotion in Minnesota political circles, as it has throughout the nation. Strange as it may seem a number of prominent republicans seem to have been taken completely by surprise by the announcement and apparently are at a loss to know what stand to take. Several of them are in consequence doing acrobatic stunts in the way of fence walking such as would delight the heart of a circus manager.

Prominent among these fence walkers are Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, and E. R. Canfield of Luverne, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor. Mr. Schmahl in a cryptical satement says:

"This certainly mixes the situation. If Roosevelt is nominated I think that he will surely be elected."

Asked as to Roosevelt's chances of obtaining the nomination Mr. Schmahl said:

"As near as I can answer that is to ask, 'will the South and East carry the convention?'"

Mr. Canfield declined to express his personal preference and contents himself with saying that in his community most of the business men and the party organizations would be for Taft, but he believed the majority of the people would be for Roosevelt. Commissioner of Insurance Preus is hardly more definite. He says he believes Taft will be nominated by delegates from the East and South, but adds that the support heretofore given Taft in Minnesota has been on the assumption that Roosevelt would not be a candidate. Governor Eberhart simply refers to his former statement, saying, "I think I have made myself sufficiently clear."

The quandry in which many of the leading politiceans find themselves seems to be due to the fact that they are watching to ese which way the cat is going to jump, the cat in this case being public opinion. While there is no doubt that the party organization in Minnesota, composed of the office holders and their friends, is for Taft, straw votes have made it very evident that there is an overwhelming popular sentiment for Roosevelt, with LaFollette as second choice in most sections and first in some, and Taft a poor third everywhere outside the large cities. It is this condition of affairs which makes the careful politician hesitate.

As a rule the old organization men stand for Taft and some of the more outspoken of them are bitter in their expressions of antagonism to Roosevelt. This is particularly true of James A. Tawney, who has personal reasons for being strongly opposed to the Strenuous One. State Senator George H. Sullivan of Stillwater, R. C. Dunn of Princeton, and L. A. Lydiard of Minneapolis. These men practically accuse Roosevelt of playing false with Taft and also bring up the third term idea against the Colonel. On the other hand Roosevelt's candidacy receives strong commendation from such men as David F. Simpson, a former judge of the Minnesota supreme court, Judge Milton, S. Purdy, and L. A. Caswell, clerk of the supreme court.

The LaFollette supporters meanwhile are getting a good deal of enjoyment out of the situation. While at first many of them feared, as most people believed, that Roosevelt's entry in the presidential race would demoralize the LaFollette movement they are now convinced that the Colonel will draw far more from Taft then from the Wisconsin senator. As between Taft and Roosevelt, they refuse to take sides. They are standing by LaFollette. The executive committee of the Minnesota Progressive Republican League has issued a statement to the effect that, while they have no quarrel with Roosevelt's Minnesota backers they propose to go ahead with organizing work in behalf of LaFollette, will make no alliance and expect to carry Minnesota for LaFollettee.

A meeting of the Henepin County Progressive Republican League held at the Hotel in Minneapolis Saturday evening assumed the proportions of an informal state conference, owing to the presence of representatives from different parts of the state. Among whom were C. A. Thoreen of Granite Falls and Prof. T. C. McQuire head of the agricultural experiment station at Grand Rapids. Reports from the northwestern part of the state were to the effiect that LaFollette there is strong, and it was confidently predicted that he would carry a number of counties.

F. W. Cathro of Bottineau, N. D., who was present, said that while Roosevelt had many admirers in N. Dakota the leadership of the Colonel's caues in that state was not in good hands and he had little doubt LaFollette would carry it at the presidential primaries in March. Mr. Cathro has been nominated for presidential elector by the LaFollettee forces.

A shrewed move on the part of Taft supporters in Minneapolis is attracting considerable attention. Some of the prominent business men of the city who are also alumni of the university, have organized for the purpose of boosting the candidacy of Cyrus Northrop, president emeritus of the university, for delegate-at-large to the republican national convention. They propose to interest university men all over the state in the movement by appealing to their loyalty to the institution and to its former president. They say that no matter what presidential candidate the majority of the delegation favors Dr. Northrop would be a strong man to head it and it would be honoring him to place him in that position. At the same time it is known that Dr. Northrop is an ardent Taft man and if he goes to the convention it will be chiefly for the purpose of voting for the renomination of the president.

Behind the movement is seen the fine Italian hand of E. E. Simth, chairman of the repub. state central committee, while the fertile brain of James A. Tawney is also in part responsible for it. As far as can be learned the plan to run Dr. Northrop for delegate-at-large was definitely decided upon at a conference held a short time ago at the West hotel in Minneapolis, the participants in the conference being Messrs. Smith and Tawney. Governor Eberhart, Insurance Commissioner Preus and Dr. Northrop himself. It followed an attempt made about two months ago to launch a boom for Dr. Northrop for congressman-at-large. This was opposed with those of their former chief and who did not wish to see him enter a hot political contest and descend from the pedestal which he now occupies in the hearts of all loyal alumni. Dr. Northrop was made to see the point and announced that he would not be a candidate.

Those familiar with the situation are wondering whether he will take the same action in this case, or whether his great loyalty to President Taft, who was a student under him at Yale, will induce him to lend a favorable ear to the proposal of Messrs. Smith Eberhart & Co., despite the objections of many university alumni who are anti-Taft men. With a view to counterbalance the effect of the organization which is supporting the Northrop delegate-at-large idea some of the alumni of progressive tendencies who do not favor the renomination of President Taft are circulating a petition requesting him to keep out of the fight. The petition seeks to impress upon Dr. Northrop that there are many anti-Taft men among the alumni, who could not vote for him for delegate-at-large and at the same time would dislike to oppose him on account of the feeling of love and veneration in which they hold him.

Reports reaching the Twin Cities from the northwestern part of the state indicate that G. H. Mattson, editor of the Roseau Region and a member of the last legislature, who has been credited with an ambition to succeed Julius Schmahl as secretary of state, has changed his mind and is now looking for a berth on the board of control. Coincident with this comes another report to the effect that J. T. Johnson of Fergus Falls, also a member of the last legislature, is now making eyes at Julius Schmahl's office.

and making it strictly a non-partizan affair.

Senator Gronna of North Dakota, who represents a constituency of producers, does not think that the farmer receives too high a price for his commodities. On the other hand, he states that taking everything into consideration he is paid less for his labor than any class engaged in any other industry.

"It is true that a great number of farmers own comfortable homes, but they have not been acquired under a system of large profits, but under a system of rigid economy and hard labor," said Senator Gronna. "A farm is different from a factory in that it is a home and the farmer cannot and does not cease operating when he sustains a loss, but nature has imbued him with the strong hope of making his losses good next year. The farmer has never received more than a fair price for his products, and very often has had to be satisfied with less than the cost of production."

Representative Steenerson, Minn. "The farmer ordinarily does not get an excessive price for his products, but on the conthrary the middleman often gets an unreasonable proportion of the price the consumer pays. The increase of the consumers' price over the farmers' price in the case of a staple like beef was 38 per cent in 1910, and the dairymen received but 50 per cent of the consumers' price paid for milk. The notable exception in the case of butter, where the producer on the average received over 88 per cent of the consumers' price must be attributed to the better system of production and distribution. Co-operation should offer a remedy for the present high prices so far as the consumer is concerned, and to cheapen distribution."

Representative Davis, Minn. "No, the farmer does not get too high a price for his commodities. Considering the investment, cost of labor, and heavy expenses incident to conducting a farm he does not get as good a return as the average man in business, or the manufacturer. It has only been within recent years that the farmer has been receiving fairly good prices for his products. I believe we need more producers, especially in a day when the cities are over-crowded with a rapidly increasing non-productive class. It is a hopeful sign of the times that so many city people are turning to the farm, and I believe as farm life becomes more attractive and remunative the back to the farm movement will become even more popular. This will help solve the present cost of living problem."

Representative Lindbergh, Minn: "Those who seek to attribute the cost of living to the farmer know nothing about the economic adjustment. High prices are principally due to the centralizing of populatoin in the great cities; the centralization of wealth in the central of the few; the expenditure of present energy in the production of property, fixtures and betterment for the use of future generations and the enormous interest charge. How can high prices benefit the farmer, especially when every thing he buys is correspondingly increased in cost?"

Representative Anderson, Minn: "I suppose the farmer gets too high price only when his profit is excessive in comparison with those of the middlemen and distributor. In my experience, if the farmer were to charge as against the product of the farm, interest upon his investment, a reasonable salary for himself, depreciation, and so forth, as the modren business man does, his business as a whole would not show a profit of 5 per cent."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

W. C. T. U. Women in Washington Plead For Interstate Commerce Law.

Never since the National W. C. T. U. Convention was held in Washington in 1900 has the city been so stirred by efforts of W. C. T. U. women.

Pursuant to a notice issued by our national president that there would be a National W. C. T. U. day in Washington during the last week in January, at which time as many national officers, State Presidents, National Supt. and organizers, as could be mustered would be present. On Saturday Jan. 27, Mrs. Stevens and Miss Gordon arrived in the nation's capital. They were followed by several state officers, representing twenty-four states. The press of the city had very fully advertised the coming of our leaders and the proposed series of meetings.

Capable committees, with Mrs. Eama S. Shelton, president of the District W. C. T. U., at the head, had mapped out a most comprehensive program which was carried out to a letter.

A hearng on interstate liquor bills before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary was called for half past ten, Tuesday morning Jan. 30 at which time the committee room was filled to over-flowing with interested visitors. Georgia was represented by some twenty lawyers, clergymen and prominent business men headed by Mrs. Mary Harris Armor. All wore a white ribbon badge inscribed Georgia Kenyon Sheppard. Mrs. Stevens of Maine was the first to be heard. She said in part: "The provisions of the bill now under consideration would bring relief to Maine and to all other prohibitory territory, and we earnestly plead for favorable action by your committee upon this bill.

Many white ribboners pleaded for this same bill, among them Mrs. Mary Harris Armor who, in her inimitable way informed the Senators we were there begging no favors, but simply asking our rights in being allowed to enforce the law to protect the homes in our own state."

In the evening a great meeting was held in the First Congregational church which seats 1,200 and was crowded to its doors. Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Armor were the speakers of the evening. Upon request Mrs. Stevens spoke briefly of the recent campaign in Maine and stirred all hearts by her graphic portrayal of the struggle. Mrs. Armor was at her best. Her brother, Rev. Robert E. Lee Harris of Georgia ast with her upon the platform, while the Georgia delegation occupied front seats, and as they marched up the aisle in a body, created something of a sensation.

Be Public Spirited and BOOST for Home Industry

"Boost for home industry—Spend your money where you make your money," should be the motto of every loyal citizen of Thief River Falls. Especially is this true when that Home Industry is itself greatly boosting the city by delivering a quality of goods much above the average standard and manufacturing goods under conditions most approved by workingmen.

Sweethearts, wives and men, the Cigar Makers' Union invites your most careful inspection and interest into the conditions under which the popular local cigars are manufactured. We want to explain to all of you why the men should smoke Union Made Cigars.

Because the Union guarantees that cigars in Union Factories are made in healthy and sanitary conditions and do not carry contagious germs. It is different in factories where they employ cheap labor, mostly girls, who can not earn enough money to pay their living expenses; so they must earn it some other way. It's the smoker that makes those conditions. If the men would always call for Union Made Cigars, these unhealthy conditions would not exist.

HAIR HEALTH.

If You Have Scalp or Hair Trouble. Accept This Offer.

When we promise your money back for the mere asking if Rexall "93" Hair Tonic does not do as we claim it will, you certainly have no reason for even hesitating to try it. We do not ask you to obligate yourself in any way.

We could not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if it did not do all we claim. Should our enthusiasm carry us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prestige would suffer.

Therefore, when we assure you that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will promptly eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness, you may rest assured we know what we are talking about.

We honestly believe that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do more than any other human agency toward restoring hair growth and hair health. It is not greasy and will not gum the scalp or hair or cause permanent stain. It is as pleasant to use as pure cold water. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store—The Rexall Store.

Address: John A. Smith, Dept. 51, Smith Bld., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

You are probably aware that pneumonia always results from a cold, but you never heard of a cold resulting in pneumonia when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used. Why take the risk when this remedy may be had for a trifle? For sale by all Druggists.

"Cutting of the Khalig."

One of the most interesting of Egyptian customs is that known as the "cutting of the Khalig," which is celebrated on the occasion of the opening of the dams of the Khalig canal, thereby causing the flooding of the land for cultivation purposes. The ceremony takes place in August, when the Nile reaches its highest level, and is really a thanksgiving service. According to tradition, the old time Egyptians had a custom of casting a young virgin gayly dressed into the river as a sacrifice to the gods, but at the present time the offering takes the more humane form of a dummy. A procession of decorated boats and barges passes along the river, one special craft being used for the ceremony. This boat, rigged to represent an old time warship, is towed by a decorated tug and is well provided with musicians, who play Arab tunes, while minute guns are fired at intervals in honor of the occasion.—Wide World Magazine.

The Golf Ball's Story.

Evolution has played a great part in the history of the golf ball. The first balls mentioned in the chronicles of the game were made from leather and feathers. A double handful of feathers was steamed and packed into a small case of leather. The case was then sewed up and painted white, and the feathers in drying expanded and gave the ball resiliency. The next ball was composed of solid gutta percha, but it was heavy, unreliable and was for a time abandoned. One day, however, a player noticed a caddie putting up a creditable game with one of these balls and on closer inspection found that it was very much cut about. Realizing that these cuts and gashes probably accounted for the fine flight of the ball, he commenced hammering gutta percha, and this was the origin of the hand hammered ball. After a time molds were constructed, and balls were produced with the square marking. Then came the ball with the rubber core, which gives elasticity, and this type still remains.—Pearson's.

Stickney Gasoline Engines ARE THE BEST

Buy an Engine for 1921

The Stickney Engine is guaranteed for the first five years—will give you as good service for the second five years—and your sons will use it for the next ten years—because the crankshaft is 50 per cent heavier, the bearings 50 per cent larger, the piston 50 per cent longer, the exhaust valve stem 300 per cent longer, the water jacket space 250 per cent thicker and the engine runs with 100 per cent less vibration than any other. Come and I will prove to you that these are facts.

THE TIME TEST.

Thief River Falls People Demand Stronger Proof of Merit.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public is quick to discover what will stand the test of time. Long ago, Thief River Falls citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would these statements be confirmed by Thief River Falls residents if Doan's Kidney Pills did not posses lasting merit? The following testimony should convince the msot skeptical reader:

Mrs. James Rogers, 522 Main St. Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "The cure effected by Doan's Kidney Pills in my case in 1907 has been permanent. It is a pleasure for me to again recommend this remedy. I suffered intensely from backache and there was pain and soreness through my loins. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I felt languid and devoid of strength. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Curtis' Drug Store, proved their merit by disposing of these troubles in a short time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If This Medicine Does Not Satisfactorily Benefit You.

Practising physicians making a specialty of stomach troubles are really responsible for the formula from which Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are made. We have simply profited by the experience of experts.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be an excellent remedy for the relief of acute indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is almost immediate. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time helps to bring about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets aid to insure healthy appetite, aid digestion, and promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store

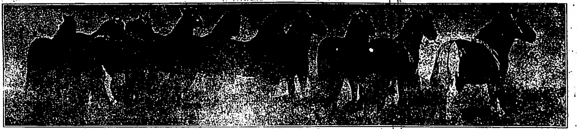
Ten Ponies Free!



Ten Ponies

"General" "Rastus" "Buster"
"Hero" "Peanuts" "Happy" "Polly"
"Pepper" "Fuzzy" "Empress"

The ponies are just the nicest you ever saw. They are all between three and six years old and you will be the happiest child anywhere with whichever one you may win. Hitched up to his nobby pony wagon one of these ten ponies will haul you and all your boy and girl friends that can pile in, just about as fast as you want to go. Didn't you ever notice what good times children have who own ponies and how pretty these cute little fellows look trotting up the road? Can you think of anything you would like to own better than one of these ten ponies?

TEN OUTFITS Each outfit consists of one Shetland Pony, One Buggy, One Nickel-Plated Harness, One Imported Riding Bridle and One Saddle. All of the ten outfits are exactly alike just the same as shown with the pony in the picture. We have given away so many outfits that we know exactly what kind most boys and girls like. No child no matter how rich his parents may be owns a nobbier or more [illegible] pony and outfit than one of these ten which we shall send free and all freight and express charges paid. This is surely the best chance you ever had to get a Shetland Pony, so if you haven't any and think you would like to have us give you one of these ten, send your name and address to us right now so it will be sure to get to us quickly.

More Than $3,000.00 Worth

of Ponies and Outfits Free

The Farmer of St. Paul, the largest weekly farm paper in the Northwest, is going to give away ten Shetland Ponies and ten complete outfits to boys and girls for advertising THE FARMER in farm communities. We have never before offered but one Pony and outfit at a time to boys and girls for advertising THE FARMER among their friends and neighbors, but this time we want to make ten times as many boys and girls happy as ever before, and make it ten times easier for you to get one of these ten ponies and outfits. This is the best offer any publisher ever made to boys and girls. Only one Pony and Outfit will be given to the same family and none of these ponies and outfits will be sent to children in families where we have ever given a pony before. Each complete outfit will be sent direct to your home or who ever wins them and we pay all freight and express charges.

WHY WE GIVE AWAY PONIES FREE

The Webb Publishing Company of St. Paul are the largest agricultural publishers west of New York. We publish the Farmer, The Farmer's Wife and Poultry Herald besides thirty or more agricultural books. We are going to give away these ten Shetland Ponies and ten complete pony outfits to boys and girls who live in Minnesota and close by states who will advertise our weekly farm paper, The Farmer, among their friends and neighbors. The other forty-one ponies we have given away went to boys and girls all over the United States, but these ten ponies will be given only to children who live in Minnesota and nearby states. This makes it easy for you to get one of these ten ponies and outfits.

THE FARMER
A Journal of Agriculture
St. Paul, Minn.

The Farmer has the greatest number of subscribers of any Minnesota farm paper. It is owned, edited and printed right here in Minnesota, and its corps of editors, most of whom own and operate farms, write of farm problems just as they have found them on their own farms. They are real farmers, not "book farmers." The publishers own and conduct a 400-acre farm here in Minnesota so THE FARMER contains practical information. This is the reason more farmers read THE FARMER than any other weekly farm paper published.

Every Contestant A Prize Winner

All contestants will surely get a prize of their own choosing from a list which we will send them. Besides the Pony Outfit we shall offer Gold Watches, Base Ball Outfits, Gold Bracelets, Fountain Pens, Hand Bags, Flash Lights, Rifles, Shot Guns and dozens of other desirable prizes. If you become an enrolled contestant in this Pony Contest you can't loose. But don't let anyone persuade you that you can't win one of these ten ponies because you have the same chance as any other child.

Don't Delay! Send Your Name and Address Today

Our ponies are given away so quickly that you will stand a better chance to get one of these if you sit right down and write us a letter or postal card or send the coupon opposite filled out with your name and address (either way will be all right). The work we require you to do to become a contestant for one of these ten ponies is something that any boy or girl who could drive a pony can do, and any child who becomes a contestant will win a fine prize, even if he fails to win one of these ten ponies which are the best prizes of all.

Send Us Your Name Today

If You Want One Of These Ten Ponies

As soon as we hear from you we will tell you how to become a contestant for one of these ten ponies. Don't let anybody persuade you that you cannot win one of them, because our plan of conducting pony contests is different from others. The fact that we have given ponies to forty-one boys and girls already is proof that we give them away. We publish The Farmer, The Farmer's Wife and Poultry Herald. The banker or postmaster in your town knows that we are one of the largest publishing houses in the United States, so we can well afford to give ponies to boys and girls to advertise our papers. Our contests are short and you or some other child will get one of these ponies and have them to drive to school and everywhere when the roads get settled this spring. You must send us your name and address right away.

40. "Jerry", Cleta Johnson, Lawrence, Kansas
41. "Patsy", Rena Smith, R. 1, Richville, N. Y.

Notice we print names and addresses of those we have given ponies to, which we wouldn't dare do if we didn't give away real live Shetland Ponies. No matter in what part of the Northwest you live we would just as soon send one of these ten ponies to you as to any other boy or girl. If you write any of these children (be sure to send them a two-cent stamp for reply), they will tell you how fine their Shetland Ponies are, and the first thing they did was to send us their names and addresses which you must do if you want us to send you one of these ten ponies and outfits.

RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

Allow me to call the attention of the teachers to the fact that March 1st is designated by the Department of Public Instruction as "Minnesota Day." A neat little pamphlet has been issued for this occasion. It comes to hand rather late and it has been distributed to the schools as far as the supply lasted. I hope that the teachers will get it so as to get some help for the day designated.

Simultaneous with the celebration of a "Minnesota Day" let us call to mind the coming of Arbor Day. The Supt. of Public Instruction desires to aid the rural districts in beautifying the school grounds and making the schools homelike. Let our school officers take up this matter and plant trees, and otherwise do all needful improvements at and around the schools. It will be repaid sevenfold in the stimulation of interest in our school work.

The attention of the school boards of State aid schools is again called to the instructions of the Dept. of Public Instruction as to the furnishings and equipment necessary in order to obtain said state aid. All schools must have these things in their schools at the time application for state aid is made. If it appears that all requirements are there, state aid will be granted; if application does no show this, it will be refused.

Your Supt has in every instance, where a deficiency in requirements exsists so advised the Clerk, and steps should immediately be taken by such school boards to furnish things wanted before the expiration of the school term, as the teacher must certify to application for aid for the school. Please consider this matter at once.

I am pleased to announce at this time that a Teachers' Training school is assured for this city next summer. The school will begin on June 24th and continue for five weeks. Our own Supt. Prof. Hay will be the conductor, and a strong faculty is secured. It will mean much for our school and we expect a large enrollment and a successful school is assured.

The spring is upon us. New life and renewed energy is manifested on all sides. Thus we are reminded of duties of the land man in sowing and reaping.

As an educational factor, the instruction in agriculture in our schools is of the greatest value. This instruction is of as great educational value as any one study in our common school branches. This fact we wish to emphasize, as it meets directly the wants of our rural communities. Betterment of our schools along the introduction of industrial subjects and home economics must come as one of the first reforms in the near future.

For this reason the Extensinon Division of the State University is lending its aid in Co-operation with the efforts of the High school Course in Agriculture and that of the Co. Supt. in distributing knowledge and creating interest in agriculture on the part of children in our schools.

Renewed efforts will be made this year to have an Industrial Contest next fall. This contest will embrace raising samples of corn, potatoes, and small grains, samples of grain vegetables, including a grand prize for best collection of garden truck; also work in sewing and cooking. The boys will have a chance to compete for prizes in the making of such common things as a milk-stool, bird house model gate, pig-trough and mail box.

Only a general statement of the scope of the contest can be made at this time. The Contest will be carried out along the lines and rules laid down by Bulletin No. 3 (revised) of the Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul. Any boy or girl not having one of these bulletins should write for one to the above address.

If our boys and girls are interested, we shall do all in our power to aid them. Just now they have to think over the matter of seed collection and testing of the same, the garden plot and then the mode of cultivation. We want every farmer and every home to consider that here we can have agriculture learned in its very beginning and here can the future farmer begin to learn and to be interested in the work of the farm. Shall be glad to hear from the boys and girls that wish to enter Contest.

More specific statements will be made later.

Respectfully submitted,
E. A. Mostue.

FARMERS' MEETING

The program of the Farmers' Meeting to be held at various school houses during the week of March eleventh to seventeenth follows:

Poultry on the Farm—Prof. Chapman of the State Agr. College.

An Acre of Corn—W. A. Haskin of the Thief River Falls H. S.

Profits in Poultry—Prof. Chapman.

Prof. Chapman is considered the Highest authority in Minnesota on poultry. He has succeeded i norganizing poultry associations in various parts of the state and has been instrumental in securing to poultry raisers greater returns from their hens. He is employed during the summer months by the State Dairy and Food Commission and thus exerts a great influence in the marketing of poultry products. All farmers, and particularly farmers' wives con not afford to miss hearing this well-konwn expert.

The Purpose of the Putnam schools, according to the bill passed by the legislature, is two-fold: first, to establish an agricultural center at the various High Schools; and, second, to carry the work of the College of Agriculture at St. Anthony Park out into the country, making it co-operative among the farmers and the High School Agricultural Department. The object of this meeting, then, is to introduce and exchange ideas and suggestions that may be of help during the coming season.

ARE YOU FOR OR AGAINST-

A Fiber Factory located here would pay out from $60,000 to $100,000 annually.

So much for a heretofore entierly waste product.

In no other way is that amount of "velvet" offered. A large portion would be paid direct to townspeople for labor and operating expenses. Balance to surrounding farmers. All to be spent invested and distributed locally or deposited in your banks.

Capitalize such a producing asset Mr. Banker and Business Man. What is it worth to our city?

And you, Mr. Farmer. How much per acre does it add to the value of your 160 when you can get $100 to $300 per acre extra for what you now burn. $100 is 6¼ per cent on $10 per acre added value is it not?

SUGARS

"We have preferred to base our calculations, in forming our opinion as to the future of prices, on the action of the market two years ago. We started this crop year, October 1st, 1911, with about 100,000 tons less visible supply than October 1st, 1909, and based on the estimates for available supplies this crop year (1911-12), as compared with two years ago (1909-10), we figure 475,000 tons less sugar available for the United States and the Convention countries of Europe this crop year than two years ago, with consumption increasing; therefore, we have looked for a higher range of prices throughout this crop year; how much higher, will depend upon the outcome of the Cuba corp, and to some extent, upon the course of the European markets, whose short crop is in the hands of speculators. The United States crop is practically marketed and much earlier than usual. The stocks and afloats for this country are light and largely already sold against in Refined sugars. The markets here and in Cuba are likely to keep strong until Refiners obtain reserve stocks. We look for rather higher prices in March, and would not be surprised if the spring advance culminated in March; however, we do not anticipate prices in our market to fall back much, from those now ruling, at any time during the coming months. In 1910, 96 deg. test Centrifugals sold at $4.39, the high price of the first six months of the year, but they did not sell below 4.17c, and then only temporarily in June, advancing to 4.45 in August, then selling down to 3.80c in November.

The fact that large crops are expected next year, as is evident by next October-December best raws selling at equal to 4.49, and that Russia will probably ship more of her excessive stock Eastward, and give us more Java sugars in the late summer and Fall, should tend to check any excessive prices this year. The total stock here in the United States and Cuba together with afloats, is 344,000 tons, against 448,000 tons two years ago. The total stock and afloats for Euorpe and America show a visiable supply of 2,947,503 tons, against 3,643,522 tons last year and 3,235,952 tons in 1905. Of course the possibilities this year are greater than two years ago."

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Wm. E. Lee For Governor

Platform of man Who Would Give Minnesota a Good Business Administration.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Lee through the columns of his home paper, The Long Prairie Leader, made the following statement to the people of Minnesota of his position on matters of state importance—

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for governor subject to the action of the republican state convention. I deem it proper to say at this time that if elected to the office I shall enter upon its duties with some experience in both the executive and legislative departments of our state government and shall devote whatever experience, ability and energy I possess to giving the state a good business administration in the interest of all the people. I shall expect to familiarize myself with the administration of each of our state institutions and be in close touch with the several boards having them in charge. My undivided time will be given to the state's business, and the laws, whether good or bad, will be rigidly enforced. Appointments will not be made to gratify anyone's ambition, to satisfy any particular locality or to build up a political machine but men will be selected for administrative offices because of their ability and their capacity to help me carry on the business of the state in a business-like manner.

I shall call the attention of the legislature to the fact that a condition necessary to good government is the elimination of the brewery and saloon from politics and that laws should be passed which will secure that much needed reform. With the large breweries owning and controlling more than one-half the saloons in the state and continuing their policy of planting new ones wherever there is promise of a profit above the cost of a bartender, clean politics and efficient, wholesome government is impossible. While the people permit the liquor traffic to control elections they are in a measure stopped from complaining if large buisness interests combine with the breweries to control legislation.

It has been demonstrated that questions in which the people are keenly interested, such as the extension and perfection of the primary election law, reapportionment, state development, the securing of emigration, equal distribution of the burden of taxation, the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution and railway discrimination, cannot be rightly determined in a legislative body in which the brewery interests is paramount and made the determining factor in every issue and I would

SIXTH ARTICLE ON TAXATION

Duties and Restrictions of the County Board of Equalization Explained.

The preceding article explained the methods of equalizing assessment between individual taxpayers by local boards of review. The next step in the reviewing process contemplates, chiefly, the equalization of assessments between taxing districts in the same county, and this duty is committed to the county board of equalization. This board is not, however, limited to action on the district assessments but may change individual assessments where necessary.

The county board of equalization is composed of the county commis-

Big Wrestling Match Tuesday

The highest class wrestlers ever booked for this city will appear here Tuesday evening March 12 at the Lyceum theater, when L. C. Curtis, champion of Minnesota, and Al Powers, champion of N. Dak., will battle for the championship of their respective states. Curtis, weighing 153 pounds, has had 13 matches this winter and lost one, that to Powers. Powers, weighing 158 pounds, won the championship of N. Dak., from Geo. Heart of Minot 12 years ago and has successfully defended the title ever since. Powers declares Curtis the best middle weight wrestler in the country, and would not think of meeting him without being in the pink of condition. Curtis verified this statement in his match here with Betcher. Every wrestling fan in this section of the state will witness the match Tuesday night.

Engebritson-Evenson

On Thursday, the 29th day of February, at the Methodist Episcopal church at Duluth, Minn., occurred the marriage of Miss Agnes Engebritson to James Evenson of Hazel, Minn., Rev. C. W. Ramsken officiating.

The bride with her folks formerly resided at Red Lake Falls until about a year ago, when they moved to Proctor, Minn. For several years the bride has held a position as teacher in the public schools at Red Lake Falls and surrounding territory and is held in high esteem by all who know her.

The groom has made Hazel his permanent home for the past twenty-six years and is recognized by everyone is an honorable and up-to-date farmer in every respect.

They returned from their honeymoon trip last Wednesday evening on the 7:15 train from Duluth after liaving stopped off at Bemidji and various other points on the iron ranges and will go to housekeeping immedeately on the groom's farm four miles east of Hazel. They entertained a large number of friends the same evening after arriving by giving them a reception and dance. The Press together with their many friends extends congratulations to the happy couple.

Heard at The Council Meeting

Giving a Partial Review of Things That Came up Tuesday Evening.

This article gives a review of some of the matters that came up at the regular council meeting Tuesday evening. All the members were present and also a goodly number of citizens It wont be long before the council chamber will be filled at every meeting, this because the people are taking more interest in their own business than formerly.

The report of O. Jacobson to the effect that the Auditorium roof was leaking was referred to the building committee. The roof is supposed to be guaranteed for 10 years.

The committee appointed to investigate the Elder park proposition was not ready to report. The price of $5000 for less than three acres may be considered prohibitive at this time.

According to Tanem's report, Carlson figures that a market place would cost between $450 and $500. This means for the construction of 34 stalls 3-ft. wide, a roof 12-ft. long and one wall 8-ft. high. The matter was laid on the table until a later day.

The best fire department wagon, one equiped with a chemical in front, plenty of small and large hose, ladders, harness and hangers, would cost $1250. The committee on water and light will confer with the firemen in regard to the kind of wagon to get, at their next regular meeting the last Wednesday of the month.

Attorney Stanton called the attention of the council to the fact that the assessed valuation of the city is only one sixth to one half of what it should be. He says that the remedy suggested to him by the State Tax Commission is that the council appoint three citizens to act with the assessor. The correct valuation of property would greatly increase the city's credit.

It appears to city attorney, Richardson, that neither of the telephone companies now here have a franchise, and that the city should either take moves towards granting one or operate a system themselves.

Apropos the reading of a letter from a band director, someone said that judging from the success the leader of the High School band was having it might be cheaper to raise a director than to buy one.

The fire department suggests that Chris Paulson is the man to drive and take care of the fire team. Since the team has not yet been bought, the suggestion was laid on the table.

The hearing on the granting of a liquor license to Julien Provencher was continued.

ENGINE EXPERTS ARE HERE

International Harvester Co., and M. Rumley Co., are Instructing men, and young men.

FROM THE RUMLEY.

Mr. Frank H. Johnson and J. H. McNely, of LaPorte, Ind., representing the M. Rumley Co., are here as the guests of Gustafson & Son, local managers, and are conducting a school for the purpose of giving practical instruction in the principles and fundamentals of internal combustion engines, such as use kerosene and gasoline.

The school is called the Rumley School of Oil Engineering, and students are registered the same as in any School, about 150 having enrolled todate. Upon the completition of the 10 days course, the deserving students will be granted certificates of efficiency showing that they have done satisfactory work. If possessed with fair judgment, these graduated students will be able to take complete charge of an engine and handle it properly. Several automobilists are attending the school and are very enthusiastic about the course of instruction given by Mr. Johnson, who is being ably assisted by Mr. McNely as demonstrator.

Mr. Johnson is a most interesting lecturer. As one of his students said, "you just feel as tho you couldn't get away from soaking in every word Mr. Johnson says." The talks are practical and to the point—the kind that can be given only by a man who knows oil engines from A toZ.

FROM THE INTERNATIONAL.

Mr. E. J. Sougstad, of Milwaukee, Wis., representing the International Harvester Co., assisted by Mr. John Bunde, local block manager for the same company, is here for 10 days with Olson & Prichard for the purpose of giving instruction in the use and construction of kerosene and gasoline tractors. The lectures by Mr. Sougstad and the demonstrations by Mr. Bunde are free to everyone, tho no students are registered or certificates issued. One lecture is given in the office at 9:15 a. m., and another at 3 p. m. Mr. Sougstad is a master of the details of construction of any engine and cheerfully and correctly answers all questions. He is thoroughly in sympathy with the idea that the people generally should have a better knowledge of engines to make them a more decided success in the field.

Mr. Sougstad is chock full of good information and a very pleasant man to meet. He says the school idea is carried out more particularly at the factory, where a complete course and the best of treatment is offered anyone who cares to come. This school is conducted the year round and takes up gas, gasoline and kerosene engines, making it possible for a student to fully master all the manufacturing processes of the engines most suited to modern times.

MORGAN TALKS BUSINESS

Believes the City could make Auditorium better paying Proposition.

Mr. Roy L. Morgan, owner and manager, of the Lyceum theater, has a proposition designed to make the Auditorium a constant source of legitimate revenue to the city. He, together with many other citizens, believes it unwise to let the playhouse part of the building stand idle most of the time, when it could all the time be a pleasant recreation place for the city's people.

Mr. Morgan would take the playhouse part of the building on a percentage basis, he to have 75 per cent. of the gross receipts and the city 25 per cent. Figuring the receipts on the conservative basis of $420 a week, the city would be making $105 a week or $5,460 a year. He now has ready a $1000 cash bond, in the form of a certificate of deposit, with the First National Bank of this city.

The following is suggestive of further agreements and privileges, and could be modified as a more thoro inspection dictated:

The City.

The city to check receipts and get pay every night; to use building for dances, conventions, lectures, political meetings, mass meetings, "home" entertainments, etc.; to book one high-class show a month; to furnish janitor, heat, ventilation, etc.; to keep out other conflicting shows, except such as carnivals and fair attractions; to furnish light and illuminate outside of building in satisfactory manner; and, to adjust the percentage rate, should it be too high or too low.

Real Estate Book Ready

Tells Unvarnished Facts about The Great Thief River Country.

The real estate booklet advertising the great Thief River country is now being distributed. The book was written, designed and printed in this city, and is certainly a credit both in artistic make-up and in the wealth of unvarnished truths it contains. Naplin, Lasseson and Sharp are to be compimented on the efficient manner in which they handled the job. The book is replete with interesting scenes of farm and city. It will be received with much interst by those farther south, who are looking for good business openings and farms of wonderful fertility.

The booklet furnishes information about the climate as follows:

"Many people have the mistaken notion that the climate in Northern Minnesota is too severe for comfort. Hundreds of these will turn around and advocate the advantage of Northwestern Canada for farming on account of the better climatic conditions. As a matter of fact the climate in this section is very even, and many farmers who have moved here from the states to the south are loud in their praise of its advantages. Although the winters are often cold, the air is dry and the cold has not the penetrating effect that it has where the air is laden with moisture.

"Damage to the crops from early frost is very rare. Frosted wheat is a thing unheard of in this country, while in the Canadian Northwest more or less is found every year. The summer days are long and sufficiently warm to mature late crops.

"Our climate can be said to be ideal from a physician's standpoint, and many homeseekers come here in quest of health. Climatic diseases are unknown and the refreshing breezes of summer fill the body with health and vigor."

FOUND GUILTY OF BATTERY

W. J. McGinnity fined $10 and Costs for Breaking City Ordinance.

Special Judge Naplin, in Municipal court Monday, found W. J. McGinnty guilty of battery and fined him $10, and costs. However, the case was appealed and will come up again in the June term of the district court.

On complaint entered by W. R. Crowe, McGinnity was arrested and brought before the Municipal court on a charge of voilating the city ordinance relative to assault and battery.

Attorney Halvorson, for the defendant, entered a plea that the case be dismissed because the city did not fully set forth the title of the ordinance voilated, but judge Naplin overruled, and the case went on. The witnesses were Andy Ekbaum, Charley Peterson, H. A. Brumund, Geo. Newbury, Joseph Duchamp and William R. Crowe.

The evidence brought out that on last Friday afternoon W. J. McGinnity went to the Ogahmah Hotel, looking for a cattle buyer, and while there came into conversation with William R. Crowe, who is a guest at the Ogahmah. From a cordial greeting on the part of Crowe, the conversation turned along lines so distasteful to McGinnity that he got up and

Whereas many public men take their physical exercise at one or more of the recognized athletic pastimes, Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive Republican candidate for president, when relaxed from his mental labor, dons an old pair of Mexican trousers and a big straw hat and plunges into farm work at his home near Madison, Wis.

One of his favorite diversions is actual tilling of soil. The accompanying picture was a snapshot of the senator while driving a disc harrow. It was taken by Alfred T. Rogers, La Follette's law partner. The senator had thrown his suspenders back and Mrs. La Follette was removing them so that Mr. Rogers could snapshot the senator. The latter's partner did not wait, however, and caught the picture before it was ready.

Pennington Co a Good Place

Mr. Johnson Further Expresses His Views, and Tells of an Interested Missourian.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
March 4, 1912.

Editor of the Press:

Thank you for printing my letters in your paper. It seems a little funny to see something one has written in print. Of course after you have fixed it up, it reads much better. But then I know that you do not expect a farmer to write such fine English anyway.

Last week we were so busy getting the coming summer's wood cut that I did not have any spare time to write you. Some farmers get a man with a gasoline saw-rig to come and cut their wood, but I thought we might as well save that, so I turned the boys loose and on the wood pile and we cut enough in a week to keep all the stoves going until the fall work is finished. In the winter is the proper time for the farmer to get all the wood he needs for the coming summer, don't you think so? Say, I hate to see the women of the house run around the yard and pick up little pieces of wood when the neighbor women has come for a visit and the housewife wants to cook a cup of coffee. Have you seen that, brother farmer? I have. Now fix it so that your wife does not need to do that the coming summer, or at any time for that matter.

I believe you must have some subscribers way down in Missouri for the other day I got a letter from a man down that way asking me to give him some information about the land and country up here. He said: "I have seen your letters in the Thief

FARMERS FACE PROBABLE LOSS

Seed Corn of Minnesota Tests Very Low. Means Short Crop.

Farmers in all parts of the state are reporting that the results from their tests of seed corn are very discouraging, if not alarming. In other years the reports concerning poor seed corn have gone forth, but experts say that the condition this year is the worst it has been for over thirty years. At the state Agricultural farm out of over 400 samples of corn the average was about 50 percent of good corn.

This means that half of the corn planted will not come up. Every farmer knows what it means to have two stalks of corn in a hill where he expected three or more, or to have none come up in the hill.

Representatives of seed houses of St. Paul out of 78 samples of corn found only 10 percent was fit to plant. This means that every farmer must test his seed corn. Whether he has ever done it before or not, he must do it this year if he hopes to get a good stand of corn.

Corn can be tested very easily. Putting a few kernals from each ear on a moist cloth, cover with another cloth and put between two plates will answer as a tester. In three days or so in a warm place the corn ought to sprout. A box three inches deep nearly filled with saw dust, wet with cloth on top and kept in a warm place is usually used. The Agricultural department of the local high school will test corn for farmers. The State Agricultural school will test

* * * * * * * * * *

The Short Course boys are taking advantage of the training offered down town for ten days by the tractor companies, wherein they give free instruction to any person desiring to learn how to run one of the big gasoline or kerosene tractor engines. Ten of these machines have been sold in this teirritory within the last six months and the boys will be in demand as drivers if they possess the necessary skill.

On Monday morning new students appeared in school from the following places: Portland, Oregon; Ashland, Wis.; Kenmare, N. Dak.; and Crookston, Minn. This is a fair sample of what occurs every Monday morning.

Last Friday evening was delightfully spent at the Lincoln by several hundred school children and many of their parents and friends. A musical and literary program was substituted for the advertised lecture by Dr. Gambell, as the lecturer was called out east on professional business and could not be present. The Argyle team of high school basketball players were defeated by the locals by a score of 35 to 20. A fish pond, a fortune teller, a booth of home made candy and some light refreshments all aided in rounding out an evening full of entertainment for all those present.

To stimulate effort towards better reading and spelling, a series of weekly contests will take place at the Lincoln assembly. Next Friday evening the fifth grades from the three ward buildings will have a time contest in spelling and also an old fashioned spell down. Parents are particularly requested to attend. No admission is charged and the spelling will begin at 8 and close at 9:15' so the children may get home at a reasonable time.

The Lincoln building has not been used evenings by the school children for two weeks, except for the Friday evening entertainment.

The fire drills in winter do not force the children out of doors, but they stop at the entrances, which are opened by reliable boys at every drill. When the weather moderates they will pass outside.

The family of over 1200 Thief River Falls pupils ought to have 300 times the troubles which a family of four persons at home sometimes face, but they do not. This is avoided by the wise parent co-operating with the teacher or superintendent and adjusting the difficulty, always keeping the child's welfare in sight. The school welcomes the parent who seeks to learn the truth of every trouble which arises in school, and these little annoyances must appear there, just as they always do even in the best regulated homes.

A brief notice in last week's School Notes as to the pressing need of two state normals in northern Minnesota has brought out a number of favorable comments. One of the proposed normals ought to be located, of course, at Thief River Falls and the other where it will best satisfy the demands of the public not now served by a state normal. This city is destined to be the educational center of the territory north of Crookston. If Warren can support the North Star college, it is evident that Thief River Falls can maintain two or three denominational schools or colleges. The city is now grown too large not to be the site of some of the schools indicated and they will surely come. A state normal, two or more denominational institutions in addition to the business college and the public school system now in operation, will make this town the mecca of retiring farmers and others seeking a home in a town well known for its educational advantages.

The enrollment in the various rooms of public schools of the city for the present year to March 1st is as follows: High School, 245; Miss Venoss, 49; Miss Lambert, 45; Miss McGinn, 46; Miss Melbye, 42; Miss Wellman, 46; Miss Larson, 49; Miss Erickson, 48; Miss McConnell, 62; (on half day sessions); Miss Kohler, 45; Miss Chapman, 39; Miss Peterson, 40; Miss Connelly, 47; Miss Smetana, 44; Miss Eide, 42; Miss Snyder, 37; Miss Backe, 45; Miss Brekke, 49; Miss Patterson, 44; Miss Skoog, 50; Miss Anderson, 43; Miss Campbell, 35; Miss Sommers, 57; Total, 1249.

The enrollment by schools is as follows: Lincoln High School, 245; Washington, 339; Central, 387; Knox 278; Total 1249. The Knox 7th and 8th grade pupils attend the Washington, as do the 8ths from the Central. It ought to be stated that the enrollment in some of the rooms is not as large as given above, as a few children have left town.

The high school enorllment of 245 is divided among the various classes as follows: Seniors, 29; Juniors, 39; Sophomores, 48; Freshmen, 90; Short Course, 39; Total, 245.

Miss Ward and her domestic science proteges are certainly worthy of the thanks of the high school students. They have the serving of lunches reduced to a science and without hurry or flurry can care for several hundred eager eaters in the shortest time possible. The material served was paid for out of the proceeds of the entertainment and was not an expense to the school.

The department of agriculture of the high school will have Prof. Chapman, the poultry expert from the college of agriculture at St. Anthony Park with them all of next week. He and Mr. Haskin and some others will hold afternoon and evenig meetings in the rural schools about the city. On Thursday they will hold a poultry meeting in the Lincoln for the townspeople. Mr. Chapman is the most interesting lecturer sent out by the college of agriculture and has created an interest in poultry wherever he has appeared. No one interested in hens ought to miss the opportunity of hearing him.

The basketball team boys are winning games now to balance those they lost early in the season. They have two more to play before completing their schedule.

We noticed in the last issue of the "Press" a compliment to our store and we surely can be proud of it. We should not forget to congratulate manager Johnson, who so successfully runs the affairs of the company. Very few outsiders really know what it means to keep up a business like that. The books are all the time kept so that you can find out the standing of the company. The old board was reelected with the exception of John Phillips, who declared that lack of time compelled him to refuse. Treel Lolly from Esplee went in to complete the board.

The debate of the Young Peoples Society was won by Salve Tharaldson and Oscar Hovelus, who talked in favor of navigation. The railroad side was taken by H. O. Bevre and Edna Johnson. The next debate will be on Grain Raising Vs. Dairy, and will take place March 17th in school house No. 120. Three experienced farmers have been secured for each side and you may look for a hard fight; but don't be scared, no other weapons than the mouth-piece will be allowed.

A good-roads convention was held last week at Grygla, an association formed and two delegates appointed for each township. Their first work will be to get one good road thru to Thief River Falls, so one could haul any time of year. We hope they will meet with success.

A number of swampsettlers are holding down their claims now, so when spring comes they can leave them for some time without losing their rights.

Irving Quist came up last week, taking in the annual store meeting and attending to telephone matters.

Children are much more likely to contract the contagious diseases when they have colds. Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. Your Money Back If You Are Not Satisfied With the Medicine We Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxative or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store J. P. Curtis, 202 LaBree Ave. N.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents)$340.93) which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Lewis B. Geerlings and Nancy Geerlings his wife, mortgagors, to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, mortgagees, bearing date the 11th day of June 1910, with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota on the 13th day of June, 1910, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of mortgages on Page 178 and subsequently upon the division of Red Lake County and the creation of Pennington County, whereto the records of the herein described mortgage have been transcribed, and now appear in book 22 of mortgages at page 343 in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by the said First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota by written assignment, dated the 15th day of February, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington, County, Minnesota on the 16th day of February 1912 at 1:00 o'clock p. m., in book 8 of mortgages, on page 78.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date of this notice on said indebtedness the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) principal and interest, and whereas the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue by power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described, in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots numbered six (6) and seven (7) in Block eleven (11) of Porters Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota (formerly in Red Lake County,) according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds, within and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said County and State on Saturday the 6th day of April, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay the said debt of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) and interest and taxes if any on said premises and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 20, 1912.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR

A Money Maker and Saver

Soon Pays for Itself

Occasionally the intending buyer of a cream separator who has but a small amount of ready cash to invest is tempted to put his money into one of the so-called "cheap" machines.

Why pay your hard-earned money for a "cheap," trashy machine, which is always most expensive in the end, when you can buy a reliable De Laval upon such liberal terms that it will more than earn its cost while you are paying for it.

When you buy a De Laval you have positive assurance that your machine will be good for at least twenty years of service, during which time it will save every possible dollar for you, and earn its original cost over and over again.

If it is not convenient for you to make full payment at time of purchase, we can arrange for you to make a partial payment, and pay the balance on such liberal terms that your machine will more than save its cost while you are paying for it.

Easiest to turn, easiest to wash, skims the cleanest lasts the longest.

SOONER OR LATER YOU WILL BUY A DE LAVAL

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

FRIDAY, MAR. 8, 1912

Efforts are being made by music lovers of the city to secure the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra for some date in the near future. We hope they will be successful, for it would be a credit to the city and a rare opportunity for local people and citizens of the surrounding country and towns to hear one of the best orchestras playing today. Everyone should give his heartiest aid towards securing such an exceptional musical treat.

TO GAIN RESPECT FOR THE LAW.

The strikers at Lawrence, Mass., engaged in a death-struggle for their rights against terrible odds, wanted to send their children away from the terror-stricken city that they might receive proper care and a chance to live.

What prevented this peaceful exodus of helpless babes?

No unorganized mob, no frenzied agitators, no wildeyed anarchists.

It was the law that turned those children back to the homes of squalor and disease.

It was the law that struck the last bitter blow at the hopes of the desperate men who have asked nothing but the right to live.

And the law did it at the dictates of bloated bondholders.

And still we wonder that socialism and anarchy exist in America.

When will at occur to men that the one way to breed respect for law is to make law respectable?—St. Paul Daily News.

DEFENDING THE COURTS

It is announced that Pres. Taft intends to defend the courts and their decisions.

Will he defend the kind of justice we see every day demonstrated—the justice that puts in jail the guiltless Ettor, because he happens to be leading a strike against the beneficiaries of the wool schedule and sets free Banker Morse?

Will he defend the kind of justice that makes New York's penitentiary a bastile in which to immure a rich man's valet upon a false charge?

Will he defend the justice which in the same day and the same court gives the millionarie smuggler a nominal fine and sends to jail a poor peasant who did not pay duty on his harp?

Will he defend the judge who authorizes the arrest and mauling of men and women for sending their starving children to charitable people who will feed them?

Will he defend the judge who robs a poor man of his right at common law for compensation at the hands of a negligent employer?

Will he defend the Pacific slope judge whose opinions are written for him by the counsel for a railroad?

Will he defend the court which opens the jail doors to a Ruef, and makes impossible the punishment of a monumental grafting Boss Cox?

Will he defend the system which sees 10 years of continuous prosecution of a beef trust with no consequences to the trust?

Will he defend the final verdict as enforced against the tobacco trust, a verdict whose only consequence is an increaesd value to the corporation's stocks?

Will he contend that there is nothing in the charge of the law's delay?

Will he assure the country that there is equal justice for the rich and poor?—St. Paul Daily News.

THE TAMING OF A LION

How tame an editor gets when he begins to run for an office?

There's Alvah Eastman of the St. Cloud Journal-Press for example. He was wont to come right out in his paper and say just what he meant. But now he is a candidate for congressman at large.

When he saw this paragraph in the Northfield News he realized it was so good he clipped it:

"Someone ought to place a dictagraph in Ed Smith's office and find out what his business is anyway."

But when it appeared in the Journal-Press it was changed to read thus:

"The Northfield News thinks that a dictagraph might be used in some Minnesota offices to find out the business of the officials."

Alvah evidently thinks Ed Smith is worth considering in the promotion of a candidacy for congressman at large.—St. Paul Daily News.

PARTY LINES GONE

If anything were needed to demonstrate the extent to which the line of demarkation between the two great national parties has been effaced it is furnished in suggestion that the date of the Democratic convention should be postponed a few weeks or a month. Senator Bacon and National Committeeman Taggart call attention to the fact that the entrance of Colonel Roosevelt has complicated the situation. Senator Bacon points out that it is possible that the nomination may not be effected until a day or two before the meeting of the Democrats. "In that event the Democrats would be in no position to give proper consideration of the situation and I think the meeting of our convention should be deferred two or three weeks beyond the date now fixed, to insure such opportunity in case it is presented."

In other words neither party stands for any great principle, as opposed to the other. If they were lined up on two sides of any important issue or issues what difference would it make to one what the other did in its convention? As a matter of fact the old lines have been wiped out to such an extent that both are sparring for some new position of advantage. If as in former times, the people were lined up back of Democracy on the tariff for revenue issue, and behind the Republicans the tariff for protection, it would not make any particular difference if the conventions were held simultaneously. But with practically all the country clamoring for a reduction in the traiff and a very powerful element in the Democratic party insisting on protection for some industries the tariff no longer serves as formerly as a party measure.

Senator Bacon's position is illuminating. It is an admission that the leaders understood that it is a question of picking candidates and adapting platforms believed to be best suited to the temper of the people. It is a question of how radical or conservative the majority seems likely to be. If the Republicans name Colonel Roosevelt the Democratic managers would like a few weeks to take stock of the situation in order to guess how conservative their man should be. All of which suggests that there might be more sense than nonsense in Senator Bailey's joke made last night at the University club in New York, about President Taft as a Democratic nominee, in case he proves too conservative for the Republican nominating convention.—St. Paul Dispatch sioners and the county auditor. It meets annually on the third Monday in July at the auditor's office. Having taken an oath to "fairly and impartially" perform their duties the board proceeds to "examine and compare the returns of the assessment of property of the several towns or districts and equalize the same, so that each tract or lot of real property, and each article or class of personal property, shall be entered on the assessment list at its true and full value."

The board may raise the valuation of tracts of real property if deemed too low, or reduce them if considered too high. It may also raise the aggreate valuation of the real property of the entire county or any district of the county by percentage increases, but cannot reduce the aggregate below the aggregate values returned by the assessor.

The board may raise the valuation of each class of personal property if deemed too low, and also the aggregate value of personal property of individuals or corporations if assessed at less than its true value. It may also reduce the assessed value of each class of personal property when in its judgment it is assessed too high, but it cannot reduce the personal property assessment of individuals except in the case of nonresidents of the districts in which the property is assessed, nor can it reduce the aggregate value of personal property below the amount returned by the assessors. Before increasing the assessed value of tracts of real property or individual assessments of personal property notice must be given to the interested parties if residents of the county.

The board may continue in session four weeks. The members are paid $3.00 per day and 10 cents a mile travel pay, except that they shall not be paid for more than 10 days' service or mileage for more than one session. Boards in counties of more than 150,000 population are excepted from this limitation.

The auditor is required to keep a record of the proceedings of the board and to publish the same. After the adjournment of the board he is required to calculate the changes ordered by the board and to make corrections accordingly and to transmit an abtsract of the assessment to the Minnesota Tax Commission on or before the fourth Monday in August.

favor such laws as may be necessary to drive this interest out of every department of our state government.

We all declare with pride that in this country the "government deriyes it's powers from the consent of the governed." To me, this means that the will of the people ought to be supreme and that their mature judgment reached in an orderly manner through regularly appointed methods must determine all policies and settle all questions in which the people have a common interest. In this great country representative government is necessary, but with proper organization and a well thought out system, the initiative and referendum can be exercised by the people on important questions with beneficial results; and to me it is a monstrous doctrine that would deny to the people the right to recall in a deliberate and orderly way the power delegated to a public servant. For a man to wish to hold an office after the people have deliberately decided they no longer have confidence in him would be itself sufficient reason for his recall. To say this would be "mob rule" is to question the capacity of the people for self government.

The unrest of the times is but an expression of dissatisfaction and distrust in the management of public affairs and the remedy lies in placing the responsibility of reform upon the people. It is their government and they must undertake the task and assume the responsibility of making it what it ought to be. I would consider it a great privilege to be permitted to help them.

I shall discuss these and perhaps other issues, more at length during the campaign.

Farmers Face Probable Loss

all sent to them. No matter how it is done the seed must be tested.

Good Seed Possible.

The question of where good seed corn is coming from this year is puzzling a number of farmers who find that the corn they gathered last fall for seed, will not come up if planted. It has been found however, that some of the corn gathered two years ago will germinate and this is being tested by a number of farmers.

One farmer in the southern part of the state found a shock of corn in a hay stack from which he got several bushels of corn which tested well..

The best corn will germinate if kept for many years, and all corn, no matter what the age should be tested.

This paper is giving considerable space to the subject of seed corn because we realize it is of vital moment to all farmers of the state. Minnesota is coming more and more to be a corn growing state, and the seed must be right before there can be a crop. The St. Paul Association of Commerce is co-operating with the editors of the state in this move to get all the corn tested.

The boys High School basket ball team defeated the Argyle High School team 35 to 20 in the roughest, tho best, game of the season. Fossum and Adolphs were the star basket throwers for the locals, they being strong enough to shake off their opponents for a chance to shoot. However, the best of feeling prevailed at all times, as the boys on both teams had asked that they be allowed to go to it as hard as they could. River Press and thought that you probably would be a good man to write to." I believe he was a man who wanted to come here and make a home for himself, and I sat right down and wrote him to come up here at once and he would never be sorry for it. I told him that up here almost any man who is willing to work can make a good living and save enough for a rainy day. That is what I have done, I said, and I think any one else can do the same. I described our land as good for almost any kind of grain, and that we could raise fine clover and timothy. Told him that the crop last year was a big one as it generally is and that the farmers up here are all well fixed. I wrote that one of my neighbors bot some land last year and paid for it with the flax crop he got on the land. Corn grows here and that we raise about ten tons of stalks on one acre, which with plenty of hay makes feed for the cows. Some people are afraid of our cold winters, I said, but you should try before you are scared away. We never suffer from the cold and those who freeze to death are fellows that try to sleep in snow drifts when their breath is to heavy to carry. Come pretty soon I wrote for the farmers are waking up and prices of land is jumping up. It will not be long before the men here will ask twice as much for their farms.

Well, this is all I can find time to write. If the snow stays on a little longer, I might write you another letter.

Yours truly,
John Johnson.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. meets next Tuesday afternoon with Miss Carrie Urness second door north of the creamery. [illegible] Minnesota white ribboners were never more alive than they are today all along the line they are working hard for the overthrow of the liquor curse. The temperance people succeeded in keeping the saloons out of Redwood Falls at the last election.

Which of your boys do you intend shall stand in the footprints of ruined men?

If you uphold the saloons. I surely fear you will have to support them, so now look here, which of your boys are you going to give to ruin and death, that saloons may live.

EXTENSION MEETINGS IN THE RURAL SCHOOLS FOR THE WEEK OF MARCH 11TH TO 16TH.

The department of agriculture of the Thief River Falls High School has arranged a series of meetings for next week in the neighboring rural schools. W. A. Haskin of the local school will have charge of the work and will be assisted by Prof. Chapman of the college of agriculture at St. Anthony Park. Announcements have been sent the several teachers in the schools and these will be placed in the hands of the farmers. Mr. Haskin will discuss pure seed and corn and Mr. Chapman will devote all his time for the week to poultry. The latter gentleman is acknowledged the greatest expert on poultry matters in the Northwest and no one can afford to miss hearing him. Mr. Haskin is a specialist on corn and is succeeding in creating a decided interest in this subject which is of such importance to this section of the state.

The schedule of meetings is as follows: Monday afternoon at the Berg school east of town. Tuesday afternoon at the Aubol school on the St. Hilaire road. Tuesday evening the County Line school and the school directly west of town will combine with the Christianson school on the ridge for a joint meeting. The high school band will accompany the speakers to this gathering. On Wednesday afternoon the citizens of Thief River Falls will have an opportunity of hearing the workers at the Lincoln assembly at 2:30. Wednesday at the Sathre school southwest of town. Thursday evening at the Strip school. Friday evening three districts will meet at Valhall, and Saturday afternoon the last meeting will take place out east at the Wright school.

The farmers are urged to give their wives a chance to hear the greatest poultry expert in the state and no one ought to miss this opportunity of attending a valuable series of free lectures.

A preface to set you right as to style for spring

Clothes to be right this spring must be snug in the shoulders and waist. By "snug" we do not mean uncomfortable, but only more narrow tread than heretofore. This is due to the English influence on the style.

Stein-Bloch made our suits and overcoats and they know style. Our Stein Bloch values this spring are beyond other seasons, we think. Try on a suit to-day. Ask for the Stein-Bloch Standard.

That thereafter, and on the 13th day of November A. D. 1911 the said pieces or parcels of land, not then having been redeemed from said sale, and having then become the absolute property of the State of Minnesota, was sold and conveyed at public sale by the County Auditor of said County pursuant to the order and direction of the State Auditor of the State of Minnesota, and in accordance with the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, for the sum of Six Dollars and Sixty cents duly paid to the County Treasurer of said County.

That the certificate of sale for said pieces or parcels of land executed and delivered by said County Auditor upon said sale last above mentioned has been presented to me at my office by the holder thereof for the purpose of having notice of expiration of time for redemption from said tax sale of said property given and served: and that the amount required to redeem said pieces or parcels of land from said tax sale, at the date of this notice exclusive of the costs to accrue upon said notice, is the sum of Twenty-eight Dollars and Fifty-seven cents, and interest as provided by law to the day said redemption is made.

That the time for the redemption of said piece or parcel of land from said tax sale will expire sixty (60) days after the service of this notice and the filing of proof of such service in my office.

WITNESS my hand and seal of office this 6th. day of February A. D. 1912.

A. A. LATENDRESSE,
Auditor, Red Lake County, Minnesota.

MISS MAVERICK

By ALAN R. TEWKESBURY

When gold was discovered in the 12?horn region I went to Spotswood which was situated in the center of the mines, and opened a bank. The country round about was pretty lawless, but Spotswood was, for a mining town, a very respectable place. There was a church, a real court of law, and but few citizens went armed. I found it difficult to get clerks, for the young men who came there from civilized localities preferred to engage in mining to working on a salary.

One day a comely young woman about twenty-seven years old came into the bank and asked for a position. She said that she had graduated at a business college in the east, where she had got a few ideas about the banking business. I engaged her at once and was glad to get her. She took right hold and seemed to learn the methods by intuition. Very soon she was valuable on the books and as a paying or receiving teller, though it was difficult to get her to occupy the windows. Why I never could tell.

My wife used to come into the bank occasionally, and the first time she saw Miss Maverick, my woman of all work, she took a great dislike to her. Women are apt to be jealous of any other women, especially if good looking, that their husbands are thrown into close relations with. Therefore I paid no attention to my wife's dislike. I have made it a rule of my business life to keep personal control of the funds committed to my care. There was no necessity for making any new ones pertaining to my clerk, for my system did not admit of her ever getting away with a cent. From the moment the vaults were opened and the cash brought out till it was locked up again I was in the bank and where I could oversee every part of it.

I asked my wife why she distrusted Miss Maverick, and she said that every time the two came near each other my wife felt a repulsion that was almost painful. Without a better reason than this I refused to harbor any suspicion against my clerk.

"Send her away," said my wife.

"Are you jealous of her? If you are you must subdue your jealousy, for Miss Maverick of all my employees is the most valuable."

"Very well; you'll see."

"See what?"

"That I'm right."

Nothing more was said about the matter, and I bore myself so discreetly that I believed my wife had concluded after all there was no danger of my running away with her rival. Business was increasing all the while, for the mines were taking out a great deal of gold, and I was engaged all day and often at night.

One day at noon, when all the clerks except myself and Miss Maverick had gone to dinner, I was sitting on my perch in the bank, resting and scanning a newspaper. Miss Maverick was at her desk working. Suddenly the stillness was broken by a click. To persons living on the frontier a click means a great deal. It certainly did to me, sitting as I was in a bank with no protection except a woman. With a start I looked up, and through the receiving teller's window I saw a man covering me with a revolver.

"Just sit quietly where you are and you won't get hurt," he said. "Nan, proceed."

The last two words were spoken to Miss Maverick, who arose from her seat and, taking a satchel from the drawer of her desk, went into the paying teller's cage and scraped the funds there into the bag; then, going to the receiver's cage, she did the same thing.

I wondered why I was not ordered to put up my hands, but it was plain that Miss Maverick had taken care of any weapons I had been used to keeping handy. Indeed, from the first it was plain to me that she had applied for work in order to advise a pal as to the easiest way to rob the bank. When she had filled her satchel, turning to me, she said: "The next time a woman tells you anything she is sure of without a reason believe her. If she gives a reason you may know that she is wrong. Good morning!"

She walked out of the inclosure and disappeared. The man said to me: "Stay where you are for ten minutes. A confederate of mine has a bead on you and will kill you if you move or give an alarm." Then he turned and went out.

I didn't believe the story about the confederate watching me, so the moment he was out of sight I sprang from my seat. At the moment I heard a shot outside. Running out, there was the man who had robbed me lying on the sidewalk with a bullet in him. Miss Maverick was bending over him, weeping. A posse came from different points, where they had been watching, and gathered about the robber.

It turned out that my wife, since she could not influence me, had given the sheriff her suspicions of my clerk. The latter had been shadowed, and it was learned that she was the wife of the most notorious desperado in that region. A note arranging the details of the robbery had been opened and passed on without the parties knowing their secret was out.

"What made you suspect the woman?" I asked my wife.

"Her nose is crooked."

This is the only reason I got, and she seemed to consider it quite sufficient.

The Universal L. and A. I. Co.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

It was an eventful day when a smiling and well dressed stranger left the cars at the town of Stratford and walked up to the best of the two inns and announced himself as the state agent of the Universal Life and Accident Insurance company. He tried to buy out the inn, but as the landlord and owner did not wish to sell J. Parsons Watson, as the stranger was named, engaged the ladies' parlor, the ballroom and ten of the best located bedrooms. Then he bought the privilege of hanging out signs, and after a couple of days the inn was covered with them. They were gayly painted signs, reading, "The Universal Life and Accident Insurance Company."

Stratford was surprised, then startled. Then it began to inquire what it was all about. J. Parsons Watson was right there on the veranda to greet and tell them.

Stratford read the signs, heard what the agent had to say and then declared the thing a fake. J. Parsons Watson smiled and insured the landlord against accident, pushed him off the veranda and paid him $50 cash. The landlord said he wasn't even scratched, but the agent knew better.

A man named Robinson was dying of consumption. The doctors said he couldn't live a week longer. J. Parsons Watson gave him a life insurance policy, and when death came handed over the money.

A Mrs. Graham, a washerwoman, was given an accident policy. She fell down and skinned her knee and drew $25 for it. Mr. Storrs, carpenter, had insured against accident for the trifling sum of 10 cents a week. On the third day after the policy was taken out he hit his thumb with a hammer and received $15 for doing it.

These things were advertised and talked about, and there was a change in public opinion. Then there was a rush for insurance. J. Parsons Watson and three clerks were kept busy most of the time. They wrote 1,000 policies before there was any let up.

Then came something to renew the rush. J. Parsons Watson announced that any person that so elected could take out a policy, accident or life, on another and reap the benefits. Yes, ten, twenty, fifty, could take out policies on one and the same person. There was Graham, the well digger. He was liable to death any day, and fifty different persons could get $1,000 insurance in case the grim monster came. You could take out a policy on the life of the minister, the blacksmith, the carpenter, the merchant, even on your neighbor's child. In all such cases the agent would promise not to give you away. Death came and you put in your claim and got your money and no one was the wiser.

J. Parsons Watson had struck the keynote. Those who had insured themselves now wanted to insure some one else. Those who had no insurance didn't propose to benefit others by getting hurt or dying. The rush kept the insurance force working day and night. It did more than that. It stirred up the town until gossip, scandal and rows were the order of the day. The fact that Smith had taken out insurance on Brown leaked out or was strongly suspected, and when they met there were hard words.

"So you expect me to die, eh?" demanded Brown in menacing tones.

"Why, no, neighbor."

"Then why did you get a policy on me?"

"Why, you see, you may possibly die, though I hope not, and I might as well make a thousand dollars out of it."

"You are a blamed hyena, sir!"

"Don't get excited. It's business."

"Oh, it is! Then you listen to me. I'll get insurance on you and on every member of your family clear down to the baby. Yes, sir, I'll get the policies on your uncle and aunts and nieces and nephews."

Stratford had been a peaceful town. It had boasted of its law and order. It had advertised that its residents had a neighborly feeling toward each other in the matter of lending tea and flatirons. All this had been changed. They wanted each other to get hurt, to get off the face of the earth, to be no more. There was hardly a husband in the place that didn't glare at his wife across the table and feel that she was keeping him out of a small fortune by living on. He encouraged his children to climb trees, buy gunpowder and play around the mill pond, and when they came safely through it all he realized that he had been defrauded of his rights.

This state of affairs could not go on forever. J. Parsons Watson didn't intend that it should. He thought six weeks would turn the trick, but it took ten. During this time he paid out several hundred dollars, and how many thousands he took in was only to be guessed at. The rush rushed itself out, and people began inquiring about the Universal in a way that seemed to express a doubt, and one night the man picked up his grip and vanished in the darkness. Only the next day three of his insured died of old age, and seven others were badly hurt at the same time by the fall of a scaffold. He had sloped in time.

And there was no Universal Insurance company. J. Parsons Watson was it. He had simply got the blanks printed and done business on his cheek. Stratford wanted something for nothing and got it.

A Father's Last Question.

A New York business man suddenly said to his daughter, "Helen, have I been a good father to you?" "Certainly you have. Why do you ask such a question?" she answered. There was no reply, and the girl, turning, saw that her father's head had fallen forward on his breast. She went to him and found that he was dead. It was only a case of heart failure, with nothing supernatural about it. Yet sometimes it seems as if Death sent a secret messenger ahead to warn the spirit of his coming, and the soul thus warned rises and awaits the Presence standing. No one could ask to die with a kindlier thought in mind than that which this man had, nor can every daughter cherish so sweet a memory.—Youth's Companion.

Megaphones In Oil.

Robert Henri, the well known painter, was discussing in New York a very mediocre "old master" for which a Chicago promoter had paid an exorbitant sum.

"The man is content with his bargain," said Mr. Henri. "I'm sure of that. To a millionaire of that type, you know, an 'old master' is merely a megaphone for his money to talk through."—Exchange.

The Playford Patented Cement Stave Silo

"KING AMONG SILOS"

Manufactured and Sold by

Minnesota Cement Construction Co., Long Prairie, Minn.

We claim that the Playford Cement Stave Silo is the Best because it is indestructible. Will last forever. It is Fire Proof, Windstorm Proof, Rat Proof, Rot Proof and Absolutely Acid Proof. It is Sanitary—the ensilage is kept sweet and palatable, preserving the highest per cent of nutrition. It is not affected by dry or wet weather. No Shrinkage, repairs, painting or expense for insurance. Has greater strength than other silos.

We positively guarantee our silo to freeze no more (if as much) than any other silo now on the market. The acid in the ensilage will not affect our silo wall, nor will they absorb any moisture and thus spoil a lot of silage all around the silo. There is no air space on our silo to fill with the juices from the ensilage and thus cause a stink.

When you have one of our silos erected you don't have to keep a crew of men from two weeks to a month on your farm. Three men from two to four days do the work. We furnish three men that erect the silo, and are responsible for good work. We furnish the scaffolding necessary to erect it; also deduct the freight charges at the time of settlement. When you get our prices its for the silo set up on your farm. All you have to do is to haul out the material from the station, dig the pit if one is needed, lay the foundation and board and house our men, we do the rest. Our new booklet is now out of press. It contains a lot of information you should know before buying a silo. Sent prepaid on request.

What actual owners think of the Playford Cement Stave Silo—

Gentlemen—In reply to yours of the 5th, isst., will say that I am well pleased with the Playford Cement Silo erected on my farm by you last year. The silage has kept in perfect condition and I consider it one of the best feeds one can have on the farm. As to freezing, although we have had very cold weather it has not frozen any more than I expected it would—I do not think any more than any other silo would. The ensilage has kept perfect near the wall. If I were to erect another silo it would be a Playford Cement Stave Silo.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) Chas. Godding.

Gentlemen—The Playford Cement Stave Silo which you erected on my farm last year has given good satisfaction so far and am well pleased with same. It keeps the ensilage in perfect condition and so far as I can find it freezes no more than other kinds of silos. I most heartily recommend feeding of silage to stock and especially milch cows; I consider it the most economic feed that can be produced on the farm.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) Peter J. Pontius.

Clarissa, Minn., Jan. 18, 1912.

Gentlemen—Having had a Playford Silo erected on my farm last June, will say I am well satisfied with it and the company. Started to feed silage the eighth day of November and have fed 16 head of stock and 7 hogs. They like it and do well on it as I have not fed either grain or hay. So far as I know this is the only type of a silo that does not absorb the juice of the silage around the wall. As far as the freezing goes, it don't freeze much, from 6 to 8 inches, that is when kept down around the wall. I think it is the best investment a farmer can make, as it is the cheapest way a man can store the cheapest and best feed he can raise. My silo is 12x27½ and holds about 75 tons. The silage in my silo, cost me on a rough estimate about $1.50 a ton. I know that this is the cheapest and the best silo in the long run and will recommend it to my neighbors, in fact to anybody that has use for a silo. The only thing I am sorry for is that I didn't put up a larger silo, when I was about it. I would sooner be without a hay barn now than a silo.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) Knut Hong.

Dear Sirs—I will today make out a testimonial as to merits of my silo that you erected for me last fall. From fall to the first part of January, it did not freeze any to speak of just a light frost around the wall, but you know during the cold snap we have had, froze the ensilage about a foot around the wall, and it sticks to the wall, but with a little work it can be chopped out and thawed out in the middle of the silo, and it is just as good feed as the rest of it and I think it is a good feed, the stock kept good and are doing fine. I am well pleased with the ensilage.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) Arnt Moe.

Dear Sirs—In regard to the Playford Silo will say that I am well pleased with my silo. As to freezing, it was so late when I got my roof on that I did not get chinked up between the rafters and the chute was not made as tight as it should be so my silage is frozen more than it would have been under favorable conditions. My silage is keeping fine including that next to the wall. The frosted ensilage is inclined to stick to the wall some. I have not observed any other silos to see how they compare with mine. For various reasons I think your silo cheaper than any wood silo even if the first cost should come a little higher.

Respectfully yours,

Gentlemen—I bought one of your Playford Silos last year. I got it put up in fine shape; it's absolutely air tight and the ensilage is just as moist near the wall as in the center. I have fed silage over two months now and the cows are giving more milk than before. I did not realize the great value of a silo to a man with a lot of live stock on his farm; silage is especially good for cows and therefore the silo is a good investment. Might mention that the ensilage sticks to the wall some these cold days. (from 30 to 40 below zero for a stretch of two weeks.) Comparing the price, I think that the Playford Cement Stave Silo is the cheapest of them all. Am perfectly satisfied with my silo and would recommend it as the cheapest and the best because it's permanent and it keeps ensilage in perfect condition.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Ole Berg.

Gentlemen—In the fall of 1911 I had a Playford Cement Stave Silo put up on my farm. I want to say that I am well pleased with my silo. These days—1st part of January—are very cold and the silage around the edges will freeze from 6 to 12 inches but if the edges are kept lower than the center that will help some. In common weather it will not freeze much. I filled my silo the last part of August. There is plenty of moisture all around the wall as well as in the center. I feel that I can recommend the Playford Cement Stave Silo to any of the farmers.

The cows and calves eat the silage good but will eat very little hay and don't drink much water. They keep in good condition.

Yours truly,
Otto Anderson.

Gentlemen—This is my first year feeding silage but will say that I am more than pleased with the Playford Silo erected by you on my farm last year. The ensilage keeps as perfectly around the outside as in the center. I like my silo so well that I wish that I had put up one many years ago.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Frank Olson.

Gentlemen—I will let you know how I like my silo that you put up on my farm last summer. I like it O. K. I cannot see how I could be without it. The cold weather that we have been having frosted the ensilage from 6 to 12 inches from the wall, the ensilage near the wall is as good as it is in the center and it is all in good condition.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Ivar Hanson.

Perham, Minn., Jan. 26, 1912.
Minnesota Cement Construction Co.
Long Prairie, Minn.

Gentlemen—In regard to the Playford Patented Cement Stave Silo we put up last year, we can truly say that it is the best investment we ever made. Ensilage makes the best and cheapest feed obtainable. It is preferable to the best pasture. I do not think that it freezes more than in any other silo. The best of it is, that it keeps the ensilage fresh to the outside, where in the wooden silo it has a tendency to dry out. I think that the Cement Stave Silos are the cheapest in the long run. When they are put up they are done, you do not have to paint them every few years, no wind will blow them down, and they do not dry out so you have to tighten the hoops any. I remain,

Yours truly,
(Signed) Henry Schroeder.

Wadena, Minn., Jan. 9, 1912.
Minnesota Cement Construction Co.
Long Prairie, Minn.

Gentlemen—Our silo is entirely satisfactory. None of the ensilage is spoiled. Of course when the weather is about 30 below, the ensilage freezes quite a bit but we have no trouble whatever with any of it drying out. We are satisfied that we have made a good investment in buying your make of silo as we have a good permanent structure for practically the same price as a wood silo.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Daniel Anderson.

Clarissa, Minn., Jan. 10, 1912.
Minnesota Cement Construction Co.

Gentlemen-Replying to yours of the 1-5-12, will say that the silo that you erected for me last year is satisfactory to me in every respect. In regard to freezing: I don't think it will freeze any more than any other single wall silo—maybe not as much, and the frosted comes off the wall easily. I think that if I had a canvas cover to spread over it it would not freeze any to speak of. And for keeping the ensilage it could not be any better; it is just as green near the wall as in the center—not a blade spoiled.

Yours truly,
(Signed) L. A. Dahlman.

Gentlemen— In compliance with your request, I am sending you herewith the desired testimonial.

To whom it may concern—In the summer of 1911 I had a Playford Cement Silo erected on my farm. I wish to state that it has given entire satisfaction. The silage has kept good and the frost does not effect it as much as in a wooden silo which I visited last winter. I am now positive that I made no mistake in purchasing a Playford Cement Stave Silo and therefore I have no hesitancy in recommending it to my fellow farmers who are contemplating on buying a silo, knowing that I am calling their attention to a very practical farm utility.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Nick Gans.

Staples, Minn., R. 2, Jan. 11, 1912.

Minnesota Cement Construction Co.
Long Prairie, Minn.

Gentlemen—In reply to yours of the 5th inst., I don't know as I can give you a very satisfactory answer, as I have been confined to the house for the past five weeks.

As near as I can find out from the boys, the ensilage is all right. It froze in about three inches around the sides, previous to January 1st, and 10 or 12 inches since the 30 to 40 below zero weather set in, which you know has continued now for eleven days. I have no opportunity to compare it with other silos, but have heard they are not doing any better than mine. As to price, mine is cheaper than the first grade Stave, wood, or panel, or solid wall (cement) silos, per ton capacity.

Yours truly,
(Signed) Mathew Williams.

Too Much.

In persuasive tones the good looking woman who had secured an interview with the taxicab manager tried to convince him that the company owed her $2.02.

"Something broke," she said, "and I was held up for forty-five minutes while the driver tinkered with the machine."

Her manner was so impressive that the manager was on the point of writing out a check for the money demanded, but before doing so he remarked:

"It certainly was a case of overcharging. It wasn't your fault the cab broke down, and he should not have charged you for the time it took to make repairs."

"Oh," said she, "he didn't. It isn't overcharging I am complaining about. He made me late for a bargain sale that closed at 11 o'clock, and when I finally got there I had to pay $4 for a blouse that had sold up to 11 o'clock for $1.98. It is the difference I am fighting for."

Then the manager closed his check book.—New York Times.

KAISER TOO BUSY

Al Kaiser, the hustling banker from Bagley, spent Monday night in the city. Altho called here on business, Mr. Kaiser managed to spend a few minutes with old friends. When asked if he would accept the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, he replied that he was too busy selling good Minnesota land just now.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. That is the only true test. Chamberalin's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by all Dealers.

Many sufferers from rheumatism have been surprised and delighted with the prompt relief afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. This liniment is for sale by all Dealers.

AGE NO BAR

Everybody in Thief River Falls is Eligible.

Old people stopped with suffering,
Middle age, courageously fighting,
Youth protesting impatiently;
Children, unable to explain;
All in misery from their kidneys.
Only a little backache first.
Comes when you catch a cold
Or when you strain the back.
Many complications follow.
Urinary disorders, Bright's disease.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for sick Kidneys.
Are endorsed by thousands.

Mrs. Edward Hance, 513 St. Paul Ave., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy for kidney trouble in children's cases. Our little girl was delicate and her back ached a great deal. The kidney secretions were unnatuarl and proved that a kidney medicine was needed. Nothing brought relief until Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained at Curtis' Drug Store. This remedy toned up the child's system, effecting a complete cure."

WHEN MOTHERS ARE CLUBBED

The country stood aghast when the McNamaras confessed using dynamite. Local, state and federal authorities have exerted every effort to run the dynamite plot down.

In Lawrence the mothers of babies are clubbed in the public streets, and children are hauled to jail because an effort was made to get the little ones out of the zone of suffering and death

If the government shall fail to act as promptly, as efficiently, as thoroughly in the Lawrence case as it has in the Los Angeles case, then who can blame the man who, declaring anew that the law is for the rich, shall defy the law and throw a bomb.

The case of Lawrence may be of infinite good to the cause of law, order, decency and humanity, or it may be equally potent in the spread of hate, anarchy and violence.

It is up to the state and federal authorities, by their promptness and efficiency in action—or their cowardly or shiftless impotence—to say which the result shall be.

For America will not sit quiet when mothers are clubbed.—St. Paul Daily News.

PLAN SERIES OF PRODUCTS SHOWS.

Advertised with advance notices like a circus, playing five day stands in the largest auditoriums that can be leased in cities of from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants throughout the east and middle west, the Northwest Development League is planning to send out next fall a special train filled with exhibits showing the resources of the American Northwest.

This is probably the greatest advertising scheme ever promoted and it is said by men who have spent practically millions in development work, to be capable of securing better results than any campaign ever planned to aid the settlement and development of any section.

The shows will be known as "See America First" Expositions and will aim not only to attract tourists and induce them to travel through the seven northwest states, but by displays of products the expositions will also claim the attention of the homeseekers and show them the opportunities and inducements offered on western lands.

The trip will last four months and start from Minneapolis in early December, following the Northwestern Products Exposition to be held in that city November 12 to 23.

The states which will participate in these expositions will be the same as those represented in the exposition in Minneapolis, which are Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

AUTO OWNERS HELD MEETING

The auto owners of the city held a meeting Wednesday evening and appointed a committee of five to get ready a good program for the near future. The main object of the auto owner association is to promote good roads. For the next meeting the committee expetcs to secure several authorative speakers on the good-roads question. The meeting will be held in the evening and an enjoyable feature of the evening will be a lunch and cigars. The auto owners started their good-roads movement last year, and showed that they meant business by spending $800 for road improvement. This year they hope to be organized better and to accomplish still more. They deserve lots of aid and encouragement in this public spirited movement.

THIEF RIVER PRESS

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE PURPOSE OF ALL IS THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY

VOL. XXV THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, MARCH 15, 1912. NO. 28

An Ultra Modern City

Thief River's Electric Light and Power Facilities Best In The Northwest.

Thief River Falls now has the distinction of having the most reliable and most economical electric light and power facilities of any city of 5000 in Minnesota. Redwood Falls and Granite Falls, in the southern part of the state, are the only other cities that have oil engine plants. During the past week the Diesel Oil Engines and Sprague generators have more than made good on all the tests claimed for them by the Northwestern Electric Equipment Company, thru J. W. Whalen their successful bidder for installing the plant complete, and by the Busch-Sulzer ~~Bros. Diesel~~ Engine Company, thru their expert engineering representative, O. A. Schilling. The big oil engines started without hitch or criticism, carrying the full capacity of the plant and have ran perfectly ever since.

The equipment consists of two 225-h. p. Diesel Crude Oil Engines direct connected to two 150 Kilowatt Sprague Generators. The system is arranged so that one engine and one generator will run as an independent unit, or both engines and both generators will run as one unit. Either one or both units will run in conjunction with the water power as a single unit. This arrangement makes it almost impossible for the city to be inconvenienced for want of light and power. During the greater part daylight one unit carries the load, this with Hanson and Barzen Milling Co's. motor attached from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m.

It is estimated that when the city is using water power only, the cost is $6 a day, when using the saw-mill steam engine is $100 and when using the oil engines is $24, the latter being based on temporary figures. The Diesel oil engines will use a crude oil of 19 degree to 40 dgree gravity. During the cold weather 39 degree oil is being used at a cost of 6 and one-half cents a gallon laid down here. The next order will be for a lower gravity oil and the price will be correspondingly less. The engines are guaranteed to develop 1 h. p. for 1/8 gallon oil per hour or 100 h. p. for 8 gallon oil per hour. If there is plenty of water this spring, the auxiliary plant can lie idle with no expense to the city, as the engines require no attention when not working and can be started on a moments notice. Supt. of the electric light and water department, Mr. Peterson, says that he is now convinced that the Diesel Oil Engine is the most economical and reliable of all internal combustion engines, meaning oil, gas, gasoline and producer gas engines.

A. M. Lockwood, constructing engineer for the Northwestern Electric Equipment Co., fulfilled the contract in a creditable and highly satisfactory manner. The work of J. Fininger, erecting engineer for the Diesel people is above reproach. Supt. Peterson had general supervision of all the work and deserves many compliments from the city for the efficient and painstaking manner in which he worked for the best interests of the city. Some more good work of Mr. Peterson's was the planning and installation of the new water main across the river and the new intake well and piping for the fire pump.

That the neighboring towns are going to watch with much interest the new plant installed here is shown by the fact that the Warren City Council came over almost before the engines started to inspect the plant. Warren has found its present plant insufficient and will soon have to install another unit.

POWERS WINS FAST MATCH

Champion of N. D. Secures Second and Third falls and Curtis First Fall.

Al Powers, champion middle weight of N. Dak., defeated L. C. Curtis, champion middle weight of Minnesota, here at the Lyceum Tuesday night, securing the second fall in forty minutes with a double bar and head lock and the third fall in two minutes with an arm and Nelson hold. Curtis won the first fall with a hammer lock and bar hold.

With the orchestra playing Curtis' Rag and the jammed house applauding vigourously, Curtis climbed into the ring at 11:13. Four minutes later the 52-year-old Powers appeared, followed by referee John Rodgers. Rodgers announced Powers' weight as 160 pounds, Curtis' as 153 pounds and that all holds were allowed but the strangle.

The first round was very fast and all for Curtis, he immediately throwing Powers to the mat with a clever leg trip and starting to work over him rapidly. Powers put up a wonderful exhibition of defensive work and defied Curtis' dangerous leg and arm holds. Powers tried occasionally for a toe hold but Curtis would have none of it. In this round Powers did very little offensive work, while Curtis was very eager and to save time often picked Powers up and tossed him back on the mat. When the fall came, Curtis had an unbreakable hold on the grayhaired veteran and he had to come.

In the second round Powers started some offensive [illegible] and then the [illegible] Subsequent [illegible] work of both [illegible] mat with Curtis [illegible] on made twelve exchanges of advantageous position. Curtis with a croth and arm hold frequently stood Powers on his head, but was unable to quite get his shoulders to the mat. After thirty-eight minutes of wrestling in which Curtis seemed to have the best of it, the men broke holds and came up standing. They sparred

ARE DOING BIG BUSINESS

Thief River Falls Manufacturing Co. Now Employ Twenty-five Men.

The Thief River Falls Manufacturing Co., is making great strides in the amount and variety of work turned out. Last fall when the Press reporter called they were employing fourteen men. Now they have twenty-five men hustling from morn till night to keep filled the rapidly increasing number of orders.

The Company is making improvements and adding new machinery all the time. Just the other day they finished the work on adding 1200 feet of floor space to accommodate new machinery and stock. [illegible]

[illegible] teen feet high, all oak and of excellent finish, made by this company. Pews for the Bethlehem church eight miles east of here are now being manufactured. An order for twenty-five oak pews for the Trinity church at McIntosh is about to be filled. Any style, pattern or finish of show case is manufactured. A trip thru the factory would reveal as good and as attractive sample show case as the heart could desire. A good example of the kind of work being done along this line can soon be seen in the McGinn Hardware Co's. store.

Besides the regular sash and door work the company makes desks, tool chests, dray tops and all kinds of office and store fixtures. A large and well equipped paint department makes it possible to finish all work complete within the factory.

At the last annual meeting for election of officers all of the old board were re-elected and the number increased from five to seven, the new members being Nels Berg and C. A. Anderson. Mr. Berg acts as a director only and Mr. Anderson is treasurer.

HUNTING FOR BASEBALL BUGS

Digging up and Thawing out That Much Cussed and Discussed Insect.

What are we going to do about a baseball team this year? Is being asked by fans and players who begin to feel the tingle of spring in their veins. Will it be a home team entirely, a home team with a hired battery, or will there be any team at all are problems that must be solved before we can give any serious attention to the presidential primary. The best way to get the thing started is to do considerable lobbying and then call a meeting, inviting every man, woman and child to attend.

There seems to be plenty of home material for a very fast team, outside of a battery. Last year players who are still in Thief River Falls and likely prospects for the team are Lambert, Christy, Aasland, Doland, Johnstone, Jaranson, Erickson, Muzzy and Schuster. For business reasons Flynn and Hess will be unable to play this season. Reports are out that there is some very good new material here. "Bob" Jordan of the Firts State Bank is a veteran infield man, Herrick and Cole are railroad men of whom we hear excellent reports, Roseland, instructor in the High School is an excellent outfilder, Barney Schmidt of the Soo Cafe has played on the infield with the Grand Forks Picketts and Bradshaw of the Furran and Benson barber shop shakes hands with the best colored pitchers.

If it is decided that we are to have a team, a playing field will have to be arranged for. It is generally conceded that the Fair grounds are too far away and some have suggested that the grounds back of the Auditorium be fixed up. Think this over, it will be brought up at the meeting.

With all due respect for past managers, one of the great stumbling blocks in having a home team is that the players have not entered the game with the proper spirit and the public has not been kept informed of the financial condition of the team. Altho on a home team the players may [illegible]

WOULD CO-OPERATE WITH CITY

Farmers' Telephone Lines and City's Should Join Hands Now.

Germantown, Minn.,
March 9, 1912

Editor, Thief River Press,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:—I noticed in the last issue of the Press that the telephone companies operating in the city have no franchises. This would be a good time for the city to combine with the farmers and install a system including all the farmers' lines north, east and west of Thief River Falls. If the city is not able to put in its own line, there is no doubt but by co-operating with all the farmers lines and letting the farmers be a part of the city system and the city a part of the farmers' systems that it could be financed easily. This would mean better service in both the city and country, though we all know the service in the country is as a rule better than what they claim it is in the city.

If the city does not want to do this or if it can't, then the next important move is the consolidation of all the farm lines. All the rural companies favor it, as it will give better and cheaper service. If this takes place and the city takes no steps to secure some connection with the city system, it is hard to tell what action may be taken.

In union is strength applies to the farmers' telephones or anything else, and in co-operation with the city owned system there would be greater strength and, I believe, a far better service for all concerned.

Yours very truly,
Frank Rice.

WILL PLAY IN THIEF RIVER

St. Paul Symphony here March 29; Members From 18 Civilized Countries.

The St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, which will make a spring trip into Canada and then to the Pacific coast along the line of the Great Northern Railway, stopping at Thief River Falls for two performances on Mar. 29, has members from eighteen civilized countries. This is believed to be a record among all large musical organizations.

Among the sixty-five members of the orchestra are representatives from Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Norway, Sweden, Ireland, England, Roumania, Bohemia, Italy, Portugal, Hungary, Denmark, France, Russia, Canada and the United States.

Scanning the personnel of the orchestra one finds names typical of almost every country. Witness for instance, Baum, Peterson, Rooney, Fanth, Pepinsky, Chabr, Hraba, and Wagner.

NATIONAL RAILWAY FOR ALASKA

menting on this measure, which is attracting wide attention, Mr. Anderson said: "The committee, in my opinion, is pretty well agreed as to the propriety of this proposed legislation. The only question remaining relates to the selection of the best route for the proposed road. I believe the committee realizes that the proper way to handle the coal situation in Alaska and prevent monopoly in this great natural commodity is for the government to construct and own a national highway. As is well known, private ownership of railroads in the States has fostered monopoly in the coal business."

The route which Congressman Anderson's bill provides for is in Southwest Alaska, where he points out there is a vast empire, rich in agriculture and mineral wealth. It is declared that the climate of this portion of Alaska is somewhat similar to that of Norway and parts of Sweden. The construction of the proposed road would, in his opinion, stimulate the development of the country through which it would run, and

FIRST PRIMARY MARCH 19TH

North Dakota First To Vote Upon Nomination of Republican Candidate.

Washington, D. C., March 14.—The eyes of the nation are upon North Dakota. That state will be the first of the presidential preference primary group to vote directly upon the nomination of a Republican candidate for President. This election will be held March 19th, only four days away.

Three candidates will figure in this important battle of balots, President Taft, Colonel Roosevelt and Senator LaFollette. Everything indicates that LaFollette will win.

Senator A. J. Gronna, now in his own state heading the score of speakers who are advocating the nomination of LaFollette, as he was leaving Washington to stump North Dakota, said:

"North Dakota for a long time has been in favor of the nomination and election of LaFollette. All reports from the state, and I have been in touch with every section, indicate that Senator LaFollette is not only holding his own, but every day is gaining ground.

"No one needs to go to my state to tell the people how to vote. They have determined on many occasions that they are perfectly able to settle such questions for themselves. They know LaFollette and believe in him and the policies which he has advocated for a quarter of a century.

"The opposition to Senator LaFollette comes from those corporations which profit at the expense of the people. It is perfectly natural that the special interests should oppose LaFollette and equally natural that the people should be for him. The people of North Dakota have a thorough understanding of the campaign which is on in that state against him. The effort now on to obscure the issue will not avail. The men who are making the fight against LaFollette in the state are those who have always been aligned with standpatism. The real Progressives of North Dakota are back [illegible]

Hotel Work Soon Starts

Material For Provencher Now En Route. A Further Description of The Hotel.

The actual work on the new hotel to be erected by Mr. Provencher on the corner of Horace Ave. and 3rd-st. will soon be commenced by the General Engineering Co. of Fargo, part of the material now being en-route.

After threshing over the plans for several months regarding conveniences and sanitary conditions, Mr. Provencher with the aid of several plumbing experts thinks he has the best that can be had.

The basement will be like daylight at all times. The main feature will be its fine sample rooms for commercial men, the rooms occupying over 1400 sq. ft. of floor space. A barber shop, a trunk storage room, a modern laundry, a well which will supply drinking water for the entire building, a large coal bin holding two carloads of coal and a strictly fireproof boiler room take up the rest of the basement.

The first or main floor will have a lobby 30x42 ft. with mosaic tiled floor, and a main entrance and ladies entrance. The public toilet room will also have mosaic tiled floor and will be modern in every detail. The barroom will be finished in Flemish oak. The dining room will have a seating capacity of seventy people. A small dining room off the main dining room will be at the service of the public at all times, night or day. Further conveniences are a large up-to-date kitchen, store room and refrigerator and four servants' rooms with hot and cold water, toilet and bath.

The ladies parlor will be on the second floor at the head of the stairway. Every room will have hot and cold running water and eight rooms will have bath. SEVENTH ARTICLE ON TAXATION

Powers of Minnesota Tax Commission as Board of Equalization.

All of the powers formerly vested in the state board of equalization are now exercised by the Minnesota Tax Commission. Broadly stated the principal duty of the commission so far as equalization is concerned is to equalize the assessed valuation of and personal property as between the counties of the state.

The commission sitting as a board of equalization meets annually on the second Tuesday of September and must complete its work before the first Monday of January following.

The law gives to the commission powers as a board of equalization, viz:

1st. To raise or lower, as to them may seem just, the aggregate valuation of real estate in any town, village, city or county by adding to or deducting therefrom such per cent as will in their judgment put the same upon an equality with like property in the other counties of the state.

2d. To raise or lower the assessed valuation of any tract or lot of real property in any town, village or city to an equality with like property. In case of a raise, however, notice of their intention and of a time and place of hearing must first be given by mail.

3d. To raise or lower the aggregate valuation of any class of personal property in any county, town, village or city by adding to or deducting from the same such per cent as will in their judgment put the same upon an equality with like property in the state.

4th. To raise or lower the [illegible]

FOSSTON AND THIEF RIVER PLAY TONIGHT.

The Fosston and Thief River High School basket ball teams will play in the local High School gymnasium tonight. Fosston claims the championship for this division of the state, having defeated Thief River, McIntosh and Bemidji. The local team was not nearly so good when it played Fosston sometime ago as it is now. Anyone who saw the recent games they played Argyle and the Crookston A. C., knows that the High School team is now one of the best in the state, and all of the basketball fans have the idea that the home boys will win, regardless of the extensive claims of the Fosston team. The live ones will be in the Lincoln gymnasium tonight to root for the home team.

MISSIONARY OF THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION IS HERE.

Mr. T. M. Herber, a missionary of the American Sunday School Union has recently arrived in town and expects to make his home here while working in the rural communities of four or five counties in northwestern Minnesota. His work in the main will be organizing and fostering Sunday-Schools in the neglected county districts, establishing Sunday school libraries and distributing religious perodicals and literature of religious kinds published by the American Sunday School Union.

Mr. Herber welcomes any information or inquiries that may come to him. He should be addressed at 618 Knight Av., No. Thief River Falls, Minn.

METHODIST CHURCH ANNUAL SALE AND SUPPER NETTED $104.50.

The ladies of the Methodist church held their annual sale Wednesday afternoon, and in the evening gave a supper, the total proceeds above expenses amounting to $104.50. The sale excited considerable favorable comment, and was enthusiastically patronized by the ladies. However the place where everybody had a good time, everybody had an excellent meal [illegible]

School Notes

The agriculture department of the high school is conducting a series of meetings this week in the neighboring rural school. Mr. Chapman, the poultry expert, is seriously ill and Mr. Bibsbee was substituted for him on Monday. The latter gentleman is one of the regular institute workers and will not fail to satisfy his audiences. Mr. Haskin of the local school is devoting his attention at these meetings to corn and is organizing small corn clubs. Mr. Chapman will appear later in the term.

The enrollment in the city schools to March 1st consisted of 578 boys and 671 girls, which was divided among the several schools as follows: Lincoln High School—90 boys, 155 girls; Washington—156 boys, 183 girls; Knox—134 boys, 144 girls; Central—198 boys, 189 girls; total, 1249. It will be noticed that the Central is the only school in which the number of boys exceeds that of girls.

The spelling match between the 5th grade pupils from the three grade buildings last Friday evening was a decided success and furnished much entertainment for the 500 children and grownups who attended. The first part of the contest was a written test of 50 words; the second a test by teams of the best ten spellers from each building, each team spelling for eight minutes; the third was a "spell down." The 5th grade from the Central won all three contests, but by a very narrow margin in each case. The Washington school being second, and the Knox third, Mallie Hermanson and Shefferd Johnson for the Centrals were the winners for their side. Ruth Ringham stood longest for the Knox and Andrew Kisch for the Washington.

The board of education met in regular monthly sesison Wednesday evening.

School closes on March 29th for the customary one week of Easter holidays.

A novel exercise in domestic science was inauguarted in the high school last Friday and it will be repeated every week until the close of school. Miss Ward, the instructor, gave one dollar to Irene Higgins, Ethel Hibbets, Alma Olson and Esther Kelberg, with instructions to make their own purchases, prepare the best meal they could with the proceeds of the dollar purchase and invite ten visitors and serve them with their cookery. It cost the ten so favored ten cents each to partake of the product of the kitchen and they all acknowledged that they had received more than their money's worth. The meal, its service and the attention of the waiters were proof that some useful information of various kinds is being dispensed in the domestic science department.

The normal training department visited the Sathre and Ness schools southwest of town last week. The students are studying rural schools at first hand. They found Mr. Jacobson in the Sathre school and Edna Evenson, a 1911 graduate of the normal department, in the Ness school.

Messrs. Haskin, Bisbee, and Hay, accompanied by the high school band attended a meeting at the Christianson school on the Ridge on Tuesday evening. Three districts joined forces for this event and fairly bulged the walls of the buliding in their endeavor to find room. These rural meetings are a part of the Putnam school work and they are proving most enjoyable to all concerned and are certainly profitable to school students.

GOOD OIL WELL INVESTMENTS

You Get a Warranty Deed to Land in Oil Well District.

If you never risk anything you will never accomplish anything. Every business man in your town takes a big chance every day, but he has to do that in order to make money. Then too, unless he has a pretty good fortune to start with, it requires many years of hard abor and close attention to business if he accomplishes very much and accumulates very much money. You all know that the only way you ever make money is to speculate. There is no field of speculation so profitable as oil and gas and particulraly so when you invest in a field so well proven as the Oklahoma Oil & Gas field. There is only one chance in a thousand to loose out. Many men in Oklahoma who were poor men five years ago are millionaries today—two notable instances are Charles F Calcord of Oklahoma City and Robert Galbreath of Tulsa.

Mr. Calcord last year built a 14 story building in Oklahoma City at a cost of $800,000 besides being interested in numerous other industries for the upbuilding of the city.

Mr. Galbreath is heavily interested in Tulsa and is one of its wealthiest men. Recently their National Democratic Committee-man.

There are many others that are similar. Don't hesitate or wait! Take advantage of this opportunity. $100 invested now may make you rich.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Impelled by the highest patrotism the Women's Christian Temperance Union works to the end that total abstinence shall become the habit of the people and prohibition the law of the state. We rejoice with every community that frees itself from the liquor traffic just as we rejoice with every home that establishes total abstinence as its standard. The larger the unit, the better. But one good is set towards constitutional prihibition for state and nation. Anything else is short of our purpose. The protest against the liquor habit is not the babbling of a lot of old women, but the voice of the greatest scientists the world has ever known, declaring alcohol as disastrous to the human body and mind as is cocaine and the state might just as well license the sale one as the other.

As one looks into the faces of the many little ones and realizes how eager the liquor interests are to catch them and destroy body, mind and spirit for the monty thus secured, it gives one an intensity of desire to arouse fond mothers and fathers to the dangers ahead unless they do their full duty in working against the liquor traffic.

Railway Wages and Railway Earnings.

There were substantial increases in the wages of railway employees during the fiscal year 1911. Reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission show that the total compensation to the employees of railways over 500 miles long was $1,005,277,249. The total wage cost to the railways for the year was greater by $41,868,822 than it would have been at the rates of pay in effect during 1916, and greater by $69,297,678 than it would have been at the rates of pay in effect during 1909.

Notwithstanding an increase of 2,108 in the miles of railway operated, there were fewer employees on the payrolls June 30, 1911, than on June 30, 1910, by 31,037, yet the total compensation paid to employees during 1911 was greater than that paid during 1910 by $49,976,216. This is greater than the increase in the gross earnings of the railways by $22,595,121. The net revenues of the railways, which are what is left after paying operating expenses, fell off by $40,988,539 during this same period in which compensation increased nearly fifty million dollars.

These figures are summarized from Bulletin No. 28 of the Bureau of Railway Economics, which is based on official reports made by the railways to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and which exhibits in detail a comparison of the aggregate compensation to different classes of employees, the number of employees of different classes, and the relation to railway traffic for the fiscal years 1909, 1910 and 1911.

The summary of revenues and expenses of the steam railways over fifty miles in length for the month of December, just issued by this Bureau, shows that for the calendar year 1911 the total operating revenues were less than for the calendar year 1910 by $27,698,780, and the net revenues less by $22,286,784.

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN.

Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty, Loses in Love and Marriage.

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness, and success. Yet there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons over-heated, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break, and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost any woman may rid herself of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either relieve dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the follicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thorough, hard, impartial, and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to our store. [illegible] [illegible] in this community [illegible]

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents)$340.93) which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Lewis B. Geerlings and Nancy Geerlings his wife, mortgagors, to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, mortgagees, bearing date the 11th day of June 1910, with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota on the 13th day of June, 1910, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of mortgages on Page 178 and subsequently upon the division of Red Lake County and the creation of Pennington County, whereto the records of the herein described mortgage have been transcribed, and now appear in book 22 of mortgages at page 343 in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by the said First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota by written assignment, dated the 15th day of February, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington, County, Minnesota on the 16th day of February 1912 at 1:00 o'clock p. m., in book 8 of mortgages, on page 78.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date of this notice on said indebtedness the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) principal and interest, and whereas the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue by power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described, in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots numbered six (6) and seven (7) in Block eleven (11) of Porters Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota (formerly in Red Lake County,) according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds, within and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said County and State on Saturday the 6th day of April, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay the said debt of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) and interest and taxes if any on said premises and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 20, 1912.

CROSSING GUARD NEEDED

A crossing guard and gate is very much needed at the juncture of Third Street with the Soo Line Railway tracks. At this point there has already been several minor accidents and dozens of hairbreadth escapes. Before someone is killed at this crossing there ought to be a guard and a gate placed there for the protection of the unwary traveler.

A meeting was held a week ago Sunday at Howard Lake to consider the matter of a Union church for that village, and a committee of five was appointed to confer with like committees appointed by each of the three churches looking to that end. The tendency in all church work seems to be toward union, and if all minor differences can be laid aside and the necessary sacrifices made that end can be brought about. Crookston is a larger place where an effort is being made to get the fifteen or more Protestant churches to get together. Co-operation should be taught by the churches.—Crookston Times.

THIEF RIVER FALLS OR CONSTANTINOPLE

Do we live in the Constantinople of the Western Hemisphere? Well if a man from the Oriental City had come to ours any night during the last eight months we do not believe that he would have felt very lonesome. Our streets have been as dark as some councealed corner in Hades and we have had hundreds of hounds, dogs and curs, baying, barking and whelping thru our streets, and seemingly from every house, barn or kennel have come the wailing of some canine voice. We have wisely taken steps, at an expenditure of approximatly $45,000.00, to provide ourselves with proper and sufficient light but even tho the state laws provide for a dogkiller there has been no such official appointed nor has anything else been done to keep the growth of the decendents of Cerebus from overrunning our city. Not more than a week ago a pack of sixteen of the canine family came rushing down LaBree Ave. together and in their mad and careless race they pushed a little girl over and three or four of the beasts ran rght over her. We tried our best to discover if all these miserable curs had owners and were truly licensed to live but out of sixteen we could only see three that wore license collars. Now we do not love nor hate dogs particularly. If they are in their place they are good and willing servants of man. We do, however, hate to see street demonstrations by a pack of curs or to be awakened at night by the miserable whelping of some homeless, worthless cur howling about the street corners. We wish to remark in passing that there is a vast difference in the baying of a well trained hound or the whelping of a worthless cur and it is the latter that we believe ought to be entirely eliminated.

PLEASE RETURN THOSE OAK PLANKS.

A few days ago Peder Olson and Fred Lindquist hauled to this city two big loads of oak planks to sell. They could not find a buyer on that day, so left the planks in C. Gustafson's yard. One load of planks was taken away that night and the owners wish that those planks be returned at the very earliest convenience of the prestidigitator who took them. They also wish that the policemen here would keep their eyes open for and offer their protection to whoever it was that ate the oak.

One Reason
For The High Cost of Living

'Husbands are not as helpful in home management as they should be' says Mrs. J. W. Ellms, president of the Cincinnati Housewives' Co-operative League, in a report explaining the High Cost of Living pursuant to a request from the state of Ohio.

Mrs. Ellms further said: 'Half of the husbands don't know the price of sugar nor how long an incandescent light will last, and, all unknowingly, they greatly add to the already increased cost of living. Husbands should keep household accounts as well as wives, and at the end of the month both should balance up and see if they agree.'

The solution in a nutshell is, Get Your Household Affairs On A Business Basis. The best way to do this is to have a checking account with a good reliable courteous bank—a bank like the which pays special attention to household accounts.

HAVE A FINE NEW DELIVERY WAGON

Zeh and Curran purchased this week, thru Olson and Prichard, a fine new delivery wagon. It is convenient in size, neat and handy—a real credit to the good judgment and progressiveness of the owners. The body is deep purple and the wheels and running gear are an attractive shade of yellow with purple whipcord trimmings. In conspicuous places on the wagon in neat letters appears Grocers, Zeh & Curran. Phone 115.

Where Does Minnesota Stand?

Governor Woodrow Wilson has urged the New Jersey legislatrue to reverse its former action and ratify the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution.

"It would be a conspicuous service to the country," he told the legislature, "if New Jersey might add her vote to the number of states which are willing thus generously and in an ungrudging public spirit to complete the necessary powers of the general government in the field of taxation."

Which reminds us that the ratification of the income tax amendment probably is not far away.

Now that Arizona and New Mexico are states, the number required to adopt the amendment is raised from thirty-five to thirty-six.

Thirty-one states have already taken favorable action. Five more are needed to make the income tax a part of the Federal Constitution.

The states from which the additional affirmative votes must come are Delaware, Florida, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Utah, Rhode Island, Virginia, Vermont, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Once again Minnesota finds herself lagging behind the forward states. Every commonwealth around her has ratified the income tax. Last winter a resolution ratifying it passed the house without a dissenting vote. It died in a senate committee. There was not enough progressive spirit in the senate to muster the two-thirds vote needed to pull it out of its tomb in a committee pigeonhole.

So on the initiative and referendum, the recall, the statewide primary, the presidential primary, woman suffrage, workingmen's compensation and employers' liability Minnesota still ranks with the Tory states on the income tax amendment.

[illegible] that the kind of state Minnesota wishes to be [illegible]

Is Minnesota to be ranked as the Utah and the Rhode Island of the Middle West?

Or are the state administration and the state legislature unrepresentative of public sentiment in Minnesota?

Minnesota is a standpat state, a reactionary state, a Tory state.

Are the people of Minnesota a standpat people, a reactionary people, a Tory people?

Most decidedly they are not.

Then why does Minnesota not take its due place in the vanguard of political and economic progress?

Here is a question which every thinking citizen should take home to himself and ponder deeply.

Perhaps he will be able to find some relationship between this backward political condition and the fact that Minnesota is the only state in its neighborhood whose people have to pay three cents a mile to travel on railroads, while railroad property is grossly undertaxed.—Duluth Herald.

Manager E. A. Stein who arranged a dinner for the orchestra in St. Paul recently tried to get dishes typical of every country. After ordering spaghetti, wienerwurst, Swiss cheese, vodka, cavair, lutefisk and Holland gin, he gave it up as a bad job and made his charges eat a good old American meal.

The Spring trip of the orchestra which was booked by Miss Gertrude O'Hanlon will require six weeks time. Fifty-three cities will be visited and about sixty-five concerts given.

at the same time would divert to this region much of the population from the Pacific coast now going into British Columbia. The proposed route is 500 miles in length and extends from Resurrection Bay to Tanana River, through the heart of the Susitan valley, fertile in soil conditions, and tapping the coal regions.

There is evidently a move on foot among the Democrats to steal from Congressman Anderson the credit for this legislation. Mr. Anderson introduced his bill last December, after devoting several months of study to the subject. Shortly after his bill was introduced Mr. Sulzer of New York, a Democrat, introduced a measure almost identical in text, and this bill is now before the committee on Territories. Congressman Flood of Virginia, chairman of the committee, has offered a measure whose object [illegible] the important thing [illegible] Mr. Anderson, is the attitude of the committee and their evident agreement as to the propriety of the government entering upon this enterprise.

Congress was afforded the opportunity of witnessng a unique spectacle juts the other day, when a party of children from the Lawrence, Massachusetts, woolen mills appeared before the committee on rules and told their story of conditions in the New England factory city. While there was a difference of opinion as to the merits of the strike, one could not help but feel resentment at a system which makes it possible, or necessary to employ women and children in crowded factories, at wages barely sufficient to feed and clothe the body of these industrial workers. Whether a Congressional investigation is ordered or not, the moral effect of the recent hearings will be good, it is declared.

"RUSSELL IN COMING NATION"

Take No Chances On That.

They train with imitiation guns, they wear a military uniform, they are taught military maneuvers and discipline, they are constantly inspired with examples of military achievement, they are fed on stories of military daring, they are regarded by every government as a promising school for recruits and future soldiers, but according to the smug General Baden Powell, the purpose of the Boy Scouts movement is "not military."

What is it then? Our smug visitor does not explain, and neither does anybody else. If you wish you can imagine that all these youths are being instructed in the use of the rifle and the best ways of killing one another for the sake of universal peace, but if you can be bunked as easily as that you should make it a rule to walk always on the inside of the sidewalk. If you walk on the outside the horses, seeing an object so green, would be certain to bite you.

Good Service

From the "Press" Job Department

Good service is composed of two elements—excellence of the work and promptness in the execution. Poor work executed promptly is not good service—good work delivered behind time is not good service. We combine the two and thereby meet all the requirements of the twentieth century business man. Our customers testify that "We Deliver The Goods"

Heredity.

"Father!"

"Well, son, what is it now?"

"I want to ask you an important question."

"Fire ahead, boy; I shan't be offended at what you ask."

"Thank you. I want to ask why you are so old fashioned in your ideas?"

"I suppose it's heredity. I remember asking my own father that very same question."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A FAIR OFFER.

Your Money Back If You're Not Satisfied.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, yet gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. They do not cause diarrhea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents; 80 tablets 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Emotions and Exclamations.

Why do we say "ah" in pleasure, "oh" in surprise and "oo" in displeasure or pain? These sounds are the vocal representations of emotions. Every emotion has certain bodily expressions, some of which are exhibited in movements of the muscles of the face giving the facial expressions, as of fear, anger, pleasure, pity, etc., and some of the facial expressions are associated with other instinctive acts, as movement of the eyes, emission of sounds, raising the arms, clapping the hands, etc. In the emission of sounds simplest vocalization, the "ah" sound, is produced and modified by the action of the muscles of the lips, their action depending upon the facial expression of the emotion. Expectancy allows reason to act, and we withhold such sounds if we expect the cause of the emotion. The scream of pain is instinctive and in the nature of a means of defense. It has a paralyzing effect on the enemy and, in fact, on every one else. Nobody who has been startled by a woman's scream will forget the momentary paralyzation of muscles and mind which it caused.—New York American.

THE BOY AND THE CHURCH

The Men and Religion Forward Movement in Duluth, as elsewhere, is reaching out for the boys of the community.

In no direction can its energies be exerted to a super purpose or more certain results.

It is unfortunate that the men have in such large numbers evaded the influence of the church. A man who deliberately puts himself beyond the broadening and uplifting influence of worship makes himself less a man than he should be.

But experience shows that most men escape from the church influence pretty early. Perhaps because they have been trained to look upon it as a stern duty which they will most certainly escape from at the earlist opportunity, they go to church only so long as their relations with their parents are such as to make church attendance compulsory.

There is something wrong, somewhere, in a religious training which has only that result. Church-going may be a duty, but its highest and noblest benefits are lost if it is regarded solely as a duty. Certainly a boy who has come to believe that that is all it is, is going to evade it, in most cases, as soon as he can.

Nor does the trouble end there; for a boy who has escaped from this "duty," when he grows up and becomes a father himself, is less likely to see to it that his sons are churchgoers than the man who is faithful in his church attendance all his life. The man who has ceased attending church because it was to him only a duty ought, however, to be able to induce HIS boys to keep in touch with religion on a higher and truer basis; for he must realize what a mistake it was to teach him that worship was a duty and nothing else.

In reaching out for the boys, therefore, the Men and Religion Forward Movement is adopting wise tactics that will do vast good. Catch the boy just as he is "escaping" from his "duty" of church attendance, teach him that there is tremendously more than that in it, and you will make a Men and Religion Forward Movement unnecessary in the coming generation.—Duluth Herald.

AMERICA IS WATCHING NORTH DAKOTA.

Why are the eyes of the country on North Dakota just now?

What is it that North Dakota will do, on March 19, that is so exciting the country?

The people of North Dakota have discovered that they own, like they own their own hats, plows or homes, votes in both the Republican and the Democratic national conventions.

Although the state has owned these votes for a long time, yet no one has ever before made any particular fuss over them and never before have the agents of presidential candidates tramped up and down the state pleading with the people.

Why do they come now, pleading?

Because the voters of North Dakota have discovered that these votes belong to them.

Voters in most of the other states still think the national delegations of their states belong to someone else—and they do. They belong to bosses and trusts and railroads.

When North Dakota, a quarter of a century ago, established a state government, the people of North Dakota thought it was to be a government by the people, but the smart lawyers for the railroads and the smart politicians who lived in North Dakota some of whom had held federal jobs in the old territory of Dakota, had more time to study that system of government than the settler who was turning those unbroken prairies into rich farming country.

These lawyers and politicians found that the North Dakota constitution made the state theirs, and not the people's, and it was not until the settlers got their land broken and some wheat in the granary that they did not have to market the day it was threshed, that they began to look around them and discovered what had happened to them politically.

To avert impending evils they adopted a primary election law and they found it helped. But they decided that it did not go far enough and so they brought out a stronger primary law, one which provided that the people should have a direct primary to elect delegates to the national nominating conventions of the political parties doing business in North Dakota.

Now other states adjoining North Dakota are looking over the fence with envious eyes, for while in Minnesota and Montana and South Dakota, the lobbyists for railrods and other big interests have thus far beaten the direct primary on state officers, the people of North Dakota are actually going to have a chance to declare for their choice for the presidential nominations of the party to which they belong.

That is why the representatives of Wilson and LaFollette, Harmon and Taft, Roosevelt and Clark, and all the rest, are scurrying about and pleading with the people of North Dakota and not paying much attention to the politicians.

March 19 North Dakota, first of all the states, will have the presidential primary. It will be an object lesson to 47 other states.—St. Paul Daily News.

MEDALS AND MEN.

When a workingman in private emplay has served long and faithfully, the government of Saxony confers on him a silver medal in recognition of the years and toil he has contributed to the country's progress. Fine idea for the United States, someone says. Let's see.

John Petroski, American born, takes his place as a coal miner at the age of 16. When John is 21, still straight and strong, he marries pretty Maria. Twenty years pass, and John has done a quarter of century's work, toiling from daybreak for 10, 12 and even 14 hours a day in the depths of a mine, emerging each night with begrimed body, deadened mind and unconscious that he has ever had a soul.

In a house of two rooms exists John Petroski, 41; his wife, Maria, and seven children. Forty-one years of age, the beginning of manhood's prime, but John is stoop-shouldered, thin, staring blankly at the world without love, without hope, without life enough even to complain.

One night six miners bring home what is left of John on an improvised stretcher. Oh, just a slight accident, the superintendent tells the reporters. The mechanical and human machinery of the great mine wasn't stopped in its work for more than 10 minutes. John's leg has to be cut off, so he's fired. The mine can't be expected to hire cripples.

John begins to murmur a little over the bitter poverty that faces him. This must be stopped at once. Brillient idea! Get a government medal for him. He has served 25 years. That will prevent him from complaining of hunger and cold, and the uninspected mahcinery, which made the accident possible, will again escape at tention. Fine idea!

Wouldn't a service-pension be more of a recognition than a medal?

Wouldn't federal investigation and real federal enforcement of safe working conditions and adequate wages be even better than a pension? You answer that.—St. Paul Daily News.

FAIR SOLOIST REMARKABLE WOMAN.

Madame Elizabeth Rothwell-Wolff, principal soloist with the St. Paul Sympohny Orchestra which will tour eighty cities of the Northwest, traveling on a special Great Northern train, is the principal assistant of her husband, Walter Henry Rothwell, conductor of the orchestra. The tour will start March 24th. Madame Rothwell-Wolff is a competent orchestra director, and often during rehearsals, takes the baton and leads the orchestra through the most difficult compositions.

It is Madame Rothwell-Wolff who arranges the programs for the orchestra, writes program notes, and helps her husband both by word and deed.

Madame Rothwell-Wolff stands high among the concert singers both in America and in Europe. She has received flattering offers to appear with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York and with the Royal Opera of St. Petersburg and the Imperial Opera of Vienna. She has refused all offers because Mr. Rothwell is devoted to his work with the St. Paul orchestra and she refuses to sing unless he is with her.

Mr. Rothwell never lifts a baton unless his wife is in the building. During the St. Paul season, she always occupies a box from which he can get her smiles of approval. Often she stands in the wings, and the audience seeing him look to the side and smile, smiles in sympathy and makes remarks about "the devoted Rothwells."

Madame Elizabeth Rothwell-Wolff is one of the principal soloists with the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, and the beautiful young wife of the director is one of the few really great singers who is of the home-loving disposition.

Offered a flattering salary by Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company to become a member of that organization, she refused, choosing to live with her husband in their cozy St. Paul home during the St. Paul season and to go on the road with him during the tour.

On the last Spring tour, Eastern critics spoke of her as "The Star of the West" and predicted a career for her that would end at the top of the ladder.

EXPRESSES HIS OPINION IN REGARD TO LOG JAM DECISION

The Lumber Co's. defeated the farmers living along the Red Lake River in their fight about the log jam at the outlet of Red Lake. This decision is what the farmers up here expected from the start of this fight between the farmers on one side, and the big lumber concern and their lackeys, so called, government officers on the other side.

Now this outcome shows us farmers once more that there is no show to get justice and a square deal for people belonging to the producing class—money reigns as King in this country.

We will not imagine any longer that we are ruled by a government by the people for the people, on the other hand we have a government by the corporations for the corporation.

The chances we have to brace up against such unspeakable injustices done to us farmers in this log jam case, we will take advantage of to the utmost of our ability.

One thing which the most of us farmers already know is to do away with a government with which we are blessed at the present, the sooner the better.

We must stop voting for the old gang which we used to put in public offices so as to always get the worst out of this misrepresentation which we received.

If the farmer wants help, he will have to help himself. If we expect a fair and square deal, there is only one solution left, and that is a government under Socialism.

Our present system is not up to date, try a new one, vote a straight Socialist ticket whenever the chance is offered to you, and watch the Results.

Geo. Leimers,

From town of Deer Park, delegate for the River Hearing at Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

ROCKSBURY

* * * * * * * * * *

Messrs. Ole and Tom Lien sawed wood for Engelstad, Haroldson, Borgen and Ugaard last week. The men sawed quite a lot of poles this winter but they are now about finishing up for this winter.

Mrs. A. J. Aaland attended the meeting of the Daughters of Norway at Thief River Falls Wednesday last week.

Mrs. S. O. Lee was visiting at the Roning and Engelstad homes last Wednesday

Axel and Annie Engelstad attended the wedding of Mr. James Evenson and Miss Agnes Engebraitson at Hazel and a splendid time was enjoyed by all present. Much joy and happiness is wished the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Falk, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Haroldson and all the young folks from Halvorson's and Langseth's visited at S. O. Lee's last Sunday and a good time was had. The evening was spent in games, cards and coffee.

Quite a bunch from Rocksbury went to Hazel last Saturday evening to attend the basket social. Reports are that all present had a good time

Mr. Ole Borgen made a short call at Engelstad's all day Sunday.

Mrs. Seeland visited at Mr. A. O. Borgen's last Sunday

Miss Ida and Gunhild Seeland took in the closing program at Churchville school last Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Bekken and Mr and Mrs. P. Engelstad visited at Roning's Saturday.

Mr. Otto Olson, the Rose Hill school teacher had a Saturday and Sunday visit with his friends Aubel's besides taking part in the Hazel basket social.

Well the cold weather here in the Northwest is good to us in more than one way. We can sleep until nine o'clock without being bothered by flys and now hurrah for Mr. Johnson and his dandy articles in the Press.

There is music on the line,
After nine;
You are doing very fine,

A PLEASANT SURPRISE FOR THE FLO FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Flo, at their home four and one-half miles west of Germantown, were given a surprise party by seventy of their friends last Saturday evening. The surprise was given as a farewell rememberance to the Flo family, who will leave the last of the month to make their future home in Montana. Mrs. Flo was presented with a rocking chair and a handsome big rug. The ladies prepared a lunch at 11 o'clock and the girls did the serving, giving the best of attention to the bashful boys. After wishing Mr. Flo and his family much happiness and success in their western home, the jolly crowd departed for their respective homes at one o'clock.

WOULD ADVERTISE COUNTRY

Louis Betz, President of the Commercial Club of St. Paul, in speaking before the state convention of Minnesota Commercial Clubs expressed the sentiment of the business men of St. Paul regarding advertising of city and country.

Mr. Betz said in part: "I also wish to call your attention to the policies recently adopted by the commercial organizations of the Twin City regarding publicity and advertising for a greater population. The policy is to encourage people to move to the country rather than to the large cities, We are just beginning to realize that a great change has taken place in the last fifty years in the character of the population of the United States. At the time of the Civil War only a small percentage of the entire population lived in cities of over 8000. We were a rural population then, now nearly 50 per cent of the people live in cities of over 5000 popualtion, in as much as the great wealth of the U. S, lies in the agricultural possibilities, this condition is not a good one.

"Our very large cities are really a curse to our nation, the very poor living along side the very rich breeds discontent and incites to the mob, and I think we are all agreed that people in the country are better off physically, morally and finansially, and the hope of making the nation a prosperous and peaceful one lies in our ability to create a movement that will bring the people back to the soil.

"The commercial organizations of the Twin City have therefore given its aid to the N. W. Development League, which has helped to bring about the great 'Governors Special' which toured the East, and the great land show which was held in St. Paul last December, and hope that all Commercial clubs of the state of Minnesota will co-operate in this movement of encoruaging people to move to the land. If the country grows, the city will grow without advertising and such growth will be a healthy one.

"The Commercial Clubs of the state should cultivate the friendship of the surrounding farmers. Have two or three receptions a year to which the farmers are invited, a musical program and a light lunch would be sufficient. Through such gatherings you would cement the friendship of the farmers and the local business men thereby increasing the trade of your community."

THE PURPOSE OF ALL IS THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY

VOL. XXV THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1912. NO. 29

This [redacted] Like Progress

Forty-six Carloads Of Machinery. 32 Carloads of Horses to Increase Yield.

While some of our neighbor editors are writing up the large shipments of farm machinery in carload lots into their cities the Press will give just a few facts as to what is being done in this line in our city.

Twenty-five carloads of farm machinery have already been unloaded this year and the local dealers anticipate at least five carloads more not to mention the vast amounts that have been and will be shipped in here on rush orders by local freight. And this does not in any way include the been deilvered at this point or are Sixteen Gasoline Tractors that have been delivered at . this point or are ordered for deilvery at this point, together with the breaking and plowing outfits that accompany them. This makes another sixteen carloads.

In addition to this there is another item worthy of mention. The total amount of horses that have been unloaded here since the close of work last fall has been Thirty-two carloads of horses. These horses are not the little wild runt broncho that we used to get. but good tame and reliable work horses.

The power proposition has also been vastly augmented by the unloading in the local yards of twelve carloads of immigrants all of these bringing with them several horses. In fact one of these immigrants brought ten head of horses and mules all in good shape and ready for springs work.

Just think of it sixteen tractors, 32 carloads of horses, and over thirty carloads of new machinery in addition to the power that was here last year and that produced and marketed for the season of 1911 over 600,000 bushels of grain in this country not to speak of the vast amount of grain that was fed to the horses and cattle and thus was never put on the market. Think it over and you will realize that we are in the busiest city in Minnesota.

THE FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET

Automobile Club Has Excellent Program. Will Perfect Organization and lay Plans.

The first annual banquet of the Automobile Club of Thief River Falls will be held at the Evelyn Hotel on Wednesday, March 27th, at 8:00 o'clock p. m.

The formal organization of this association is worthy of more than passing notice.

The purpose of the organization as set forth in the constitution is the "Mutual improvement in the art of automobilism, the improvement of the roads of this locality alone justipurposes among its members." The clause concerning the improvement of the roads of this lovality alone justifies the organization. The improvement of the roads for the benefit of the automobilist improves roads otherwise for the use of every farmer or other person using the highway.

The time has passed when the auto is alone a vechicle of pleasure. It is today a business necessity and the time is rapidly approaching when every farmer will have his automobile for farming use and for driving purposes in place of a team of horses kept for that purpose. This condition of affairs are in a large emasure solving the great problem of "Keeping the boys on the Farm." And will materially aid in the "Back to the Land" movement.

It is not the hard work of the farm but the lack of the ordinary social pleasures of life which drives the young men and women of today from the farm into the turmoil of city life. In the older settled parts of the state today a great many farmers are the owners of automobiles and their testimony is to the effect that their use on the farm is a matter of economy and not of extravagance.

The forming of the local Automobile Club starts a movement which is going to result in a great deal of benefit to this locality and the organization should receive the support of all who are interested in the welfare of the community and in its up-build. The coming meeting is for the members of the club alone for the purpose of perfecting the organization and laying out the plans for the coming season.

A program of interest to the club members and containing numbers which are of great interest to all citizens has been prepared and the occasion will be a notable one. An additional Vaudeville Bill has been prepared for the evening.

The members of the Auto Clubs of Crookston, Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire, Warren, Middle River and Roseau have been invited to attend and a large delegation of visitors is promised.

The program of addresses for the evening is as follows:

TOSTMASTER—C. L. DOBNER

LAFOLLETTE THE PEOPLES CHOICE

In His Speeches Gifford Pinchot Should Not Mention LaFollette, -It's Embarrassing.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—Gifford Pinchot, who in speeches for LaFollette early in the winter asserted that he was in a position to know Mr. Roosevelt "meant what he said" when intimating that he would not be a candidate for President, is having a hard time to deliver the Progressive movement in many parts of the country to the Roosevelt campaign. He is meeting with considerable embarrassment in his Roosevelt speeches, being interrupted by LaFollette demonstrations, according to reports from various cities.

One of the occasions on which he was most chagrined took place at Chicago when he spoke recently at a luncheon of the local Progressive Republican group there, making it the occasion for a Roosevelt address. In the course of his remarks he sought to brush LaFollette aside by saying:

"Several months ago I kas for LaFollette. * * * * * * *"

He was interrupted at this point by a demonstration for LaFollette that showed him plainly that the Progressives of Illinois are still loyal to their national leader. The hand clapping, cheering and waving of napkins and handkerchiefs continued for several minutes. It died down and the speaker opened his mouth to resume his address, when it started up again before he could utter a word. His embarrassment was plainly apparent. When at last he was permitted to speak by the LaFollette shouters, he lamely endeavored to extricate himself from his position by saying:

"I would have joined that demonstration if it would not have been applauding my own speech."

Mr. Pinchot seemed to have forgotten the remainder of his remarks. He uttered a few rambling setences and brought his speech to a rapid conclusion. Notwithstanding that this was the most striking and dramatic incident of that Chicago luncheon address, the columns of the newspapers of that city will be searched in vain for any reference to it.

The press reports described the same kind of reception in various cities in North Dakota, especially at Jamestown and Valley City. In each of these places where Pinchot spoke, the platform was packed with reactionary leaders and the applause for the former forester's utterance concerning the Ex-president came principally from them, but in each place when he stopped to make the same reference to LaFollette that he made in Chicago, the deafening demonstration on the part of the audience took place, indicating plainly to Mr. Pinchot that in those localities at least he was not on the popular side.

WILL STUDY DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Married Women Organize Class With Mrs. W. A. Haskin as Instructor.

About twenty-five married women of the city met at the home of Mrs. Melgaard Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a domestic science class. It had been planned to have a class of twenty, but there were so many applications that the number was increased to thirty. Equipment and accomodations will not allow a larger class, tho several more ladies have expressed desire to join. Meetings will be held every Saturday, in the home economics rooms of the High School, if they can be obtained.

Mrs. W. A. Haskin, who is an experienced domestic science and arts teacher, will have charge of the class. At each meeting a lecture on the theory of cooking will be given and following this the women will be given a chance to try a hand at the actual preparation of foods. Mrs. Haskin has prepared an outline that will prove very beneficial to women who daily have to keep in excellent condition the gastronomic organs of one or more men. This movement by the women is a step in the right direction and will meet the hearty support of every man who desires three square meals a day served in the best possible manner and at a price he can afford to pay. Whether or not the ladies will take up directly the problem of the high cost of living has not been decided.

Professor Salmon of Vassar College in her outline on household management says: The duties of the housekeeper are multifarious. The ideal housekeeper must have a knowledge of culinary affairs. She must know how to make food palatable, and must understand its nutritive and economic value. She must be able to superintend the cutting and making of ordinary garments, have oversight of employees, must understand details of marketing, principles of laundry work, keeping of household accounts, care of the sick. She must care for the house and all its functions from cellar to attic. She must be not only housekeeper but homemaker, furnish with taste and economy, understand ethics and psychology as applied to the training of children.

Theodore Rustad of Erie spent a couple days here on business [illegible]

Good Roads Are Coming

Grygla Good Roads Association. Has Plans For 60 Miles This Summer.

The Grygla Good Roads Association with W. R. Hoag, engineer of ditch No. 11, as general supervisor, expect to see completed this summer about 60 miles of excellent highways in the Grygla country and leading to Thief River Falls. To do this work $250.00 state funds have been given and an equal amount is furnished by the Townships.

The lines of roads now planned by the Association run as follows:

Starting at Thief River Falls one road follows the grade of ditch No. 20 for 24 miles straight east to a point south of Grygla and then runs 6 miles north to Grygla. From there it follows the main line of ditch No. 11 and extends 20 miles east. Another road starting at Middle River follows the east branch of ditch No. 3, then branch 6 of ditch No. 11, going past Gatzke and to the end of branch 16 of ditch No. 11.

Considerable log-drag work will have to be done, and this has been arranged for by the various Towns, engineer Hoag having general supervision of this work. At recent town meetings practically all towns in the Association voted a cash tax for roads. This money will be used in conjunction with the state funds and to care for extra work.

The road from Middle River to Gatzke is a link in the loop of state highways that the state is now working on. Thief River Falls people should take up the proposition of connecting with the Grygla country by opening up a road to the point where the new road system meets the Thief River.

EIGHTH ARTICLE ON TAXATION

Important Power Vested In Tax Commission Is Equalization by Special Assessments.

In the preceding article the authority vested in the tax commission, sitting as a state board of equalization, to raise or lower the assessed value of real and personal property was fully explained. In addition to these powers, the commission may alos equalize assessments by causing a reassessment to be made of real and personal property, or any class of personal propery in any taxing district of tsate. Such reassessments may be ordered on verified complaint or by the commission on its own motion, and may include all or any of the real or personal property in any district.

When a reassessment of a district is decided upon the tax commission appoints a special assessor and such deputies as may be necessary to take such reassessment. The special assessor and deputies need not be residents of the district or county wherein the reassessment is to be made, but must be citizens of the state.

The special assessor proceeds to make a new assessment of the property ordered reassessed, and when completed, makes certified returns of the same to the tax commission. The reassessment so returned is equalised by the tax commission in order to make it substantially conform with like property in the same county, or throughout the state. A verified copy of the reassessment is then transmitted to the county auditor for the county wherein special reassessment was made and becomes the official [illegible]

Any person feeling himself aggrieved by an assessment so made against him or any property owned by him may appeal to the district court of the county in which such assessment was made. The procedure in an appeal is very simple. The aggrieved party files a notice of such appeal with the county auditor within 30 days after the making of such assessment, specifying the grounds upon which the appeal is made, and it at once becomes effective. The appeal is heard and determined by the district court in the same manner as other tax matters are tried and determined.

The compensation paid special assessors and deputies is fixed by the tax commission. The expense of making a reassessment is certified to the state auditor and is paid out of the state treasury in the first instance, but in the end the district reassessed pays the expense. The state auditor notifies the county auditor of the amount of such expense and the latter levies a tax on all of the taxable property of the district wherein such reassessment was made, and when collected, it is paid ino the state treasury.

The authority to cause reassessments to be made is one of the most important powers vested in the tax commission. It permits the commission, when any considerable amount of property has been omitted from the tax rolls in any district. or if assessed, it has been under-valued or overvalued, to correct the injustice by ordering a reassessment of such district. While undervaluation can or overvaluation may be corrected by equalization, omitted property can only be effectively reached by reassessment.

CHAMPIONS OF THE NORTHWEST

Local High School Has Claim To Title After Overwhelming Defeat of Fosston.

Before the largest and most enthusiastic crowd that ever witnessed a basket ball game in this city the Thief River Falls High School basket ball team defeated the champion Fosston High School team by the overwhelming score of 48 to 10 in the game played in the Lincoln High School gymnasium here last Friday evening. Up to the time of this game Fosston claimed the championship of the Northwest, they not having been defeated before. The only team now in this section that has not been defeated is Ada, and to decide the championship definitely it will be necessary for Thief River Falls and Ada to play. The local High School team of today can not be compared in playing ability with the team that was defeated by Ada earlier in the season. Under the excellent coaching of Wayne Richardson the local boys have developed into what is unquestionably one of the best and fastest teams in the state.

First Half.

The game started with Richardson as referee and Naplin as umpire. Right from the start the ball went into Thief River's territory and staid there most of the time. The local boys played exceedingly fast and rushed Fosston of their feet, getting their "goat" early in the game. However, the Fosston boys covered their men in a creditable manner and points came scatteringly. Both teams showed much scientific training, but it was with difficulty that a man got an open throw for the basket, owing to the close guarding. With the ball being fed to Brudie, Carter, Fossum and Adolphs, Thief River had many more opportunities for baskets than Fosston, but none of them starred especially. The home boys were apparently trying to discover which one was the best basket shooter for that evening. The half ended 12 to [illegible] rooters, led by Raymond Pope, did the best rooting that ever cheered a home team on to victory. The most staid spectator caught the fever and applauded vigorously.

Second Half.

The second half started with Naplin as refree and Richardson as umpire. In this half the spectators went wild with enthusiasm while watching the fastest and most scientific game of basket ball ever played in Thief River Falls. In this half the local boys changed their style of play and fed the ball continually to Carter, with much better results, he doing wonderful basket shooting and securing 14 out of the 18 baskets thrown in this half. The Fosston boys were hopelessly outplayed and it was soon evident to the audience that the jig was up with Fosston. They secured only 4 points in this half and all these were thrown from the foul line.

The boys were allowed considerable rough work, playing as they were under Collegiate rules. The teams were about evenly matched in weight, but the local boys were of a much trimmer build and looked the more capable of the two. In a team where each man is developed to the highest possible efficiency it is hard to say that one is better than another. Such must be the case when such a well-scienced and strong a team as Fosston can be kept for 20 minutes without throwing a single field goal.

Saint Paul Symphony Orchestra Will Draw Record Breaking Crowd.

SYMPHONY.

The effort of booking the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra by some of our citizens seems to meet with approval of outside people and should have the support and encouragement of all local citizens, and in order to make this event a success let every person who has not alerady subscribed for or purchased tickets do one or the other at once, for we should have another full house. Read what neighboring papers have to say:

MUSIC.

St. Paul Symphony Orchetsra Coming To Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls made a name for itself by having the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra last spring and encouraged by the success of that venture, an attempt is being made to book the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra for some date this spring and we hope that this will also be a success as it deserves to be, and in this event people in the near by towns should all be on hand as such opportnnities are rare.—Bronson Budget.

Another treat will probably be offered the people of Thief River Falls and vicinty in the way of a concert by the St. Paul Symphony orchestra at the Auditorium in that city some time this spring. Such bookings are a credit to a city many many times the size of Thief River Falls and deserve a liberal patronage.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

People of Thief River Falls should take pride in the fact that they are favored by performances from such high class musical organization as the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, for it not only puts Thief River Falls on the map as one of the important cities of the Northwest but also shows a desire for a higher culture and development of musical taste and ideas.—Clearbrook Journal.

The concert given by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at Thief River Falls last Spring was a great success and now we understand an effort will be made to book the St. Paul Symphony Orheestra for a concert this spring. We hope this worthy undertaking will meet with success, and deserves hearty co-operation of all citizens in Thief River Falls and vicinity.—Gully Reporter.

People in Thief River Falls should not allow the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra to get away, as a performance by such an organization is not only a great treat but an advertisement for the city, and the Spectator predicts a large attendance from nearby towns.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

Local People Were on St. Olaf Club Program

The Northwestern Minnesota St. Olaf Club held their annual meeting in the United Lutheran church at Crookston last Friday. Members from Thief River who were present were Dr. O. F. Mellby, 2nd Vice President, Miss Charlotte Ramstad, Mr. and Mrs. Rev. Adolph B. Roseland and Mr. Roscland, science instructor in the High School. An excellent program was given, followed by pleasingly served and appropriate refreshments. A piano solo "Caprice Espangnol—Mozkowski, O. P. 37" was rendered by Miss Ramstad, and Rev. Roseland addressed the club on the "Four Forces that Made St. Olaf."

NOTICE

The attention of all residents of the city is hereby called to the cleaning-up of their premises and adjoining alleys.

All manure, garbage and other waste matter must be removed before the warm weather sets in, in order to prevent breeding places for flies and other insects.

Manure and other garbage deposited on the river bank must be removed

The attention is also called to the ordinance which forbids the keeping of hogs within the city limits.

Every resident should take special pride in keeping his back yard as clean as his front yard, not for the sake of looks merely, but principally for the sake of the general health of the community and the prevention of disease.

Do not make it necessary for the Board of Health to send you a personal notice to clean-up.

O. F. Mellby, Health Officer.

Temperance Lecture

Mr. P. L. Williams, who held the temperance lecture at the Zion church last Monday evening last week, will give another temperance lecture at the Presbyterian church this Friday evening March 22, at 8. P. M.

Mr. Williams speaks from experience, having been for a number of years a confirmed inebriate, and his utterances have the ring of sincerety and are marked by practical common sense. He will give you new light on practical temperance work.

Remember the date and do not miss this opportunity.—I. L. Lasseson.

Eberhart and Popular Discontent

Governor Eberhart in his Duluth speech to the state grocers' association deprecated as strongly as he is capable the public attitude toward the state administration and the legislature, and intimated that it wasn't pretty to be all the time hurling brick bats of criticism at public officers.

In other words, he informed the public that it had "got to quit kickin' his dawg aroun'."

Another governor—Governor Harmon of Ohio—in a recent speech said something which Governor Eberhart may well take home to himself for careful study and consideration.

Addressing the Kentucky legislature, Governor Harmon warned all public officeholders to ANALYZE THEIR OWN RECORDS to see just how much they were responisble for the unrest that, he said, was making a demand for innovation in government generally.

Said he: "Whatever we may think of the innovations in government that we are hearing so much about, it behoves every one who holds a public position to make diligent self-search to find whether any shortcomings on his part figure in the unrest which the proposal of these changes signifies. For, while some doubtless advocate them for other reasons, the greater number would not lend an ear without some real or supposed ground for discontent with public agencies as they are."

We know of no public officeholder in this state or any other, who could profit better by that advice than Governor Eberhart of Minnesota.

If Governor Eberhart will sit down all by himself and his conscience some day and think that over carefully and honestly, he is likely to find the effect if he really is careful and honest, very disquieting.

Certainly, if he is careful and honest in his consideration of this valuable advice, he will be very unlikely to make any more speeches upbraiding the public for its discontent and unrest and desire for change.

It may be that Mr. Eberhart believes that he has done his full duty by attending to the routine of his office—when he was in the state to attend to it—and by an ardent advocacy, day in and day out, of conservation and the consolidation of rural schools.

But it is highly improbable that there are many people in the state who will agree with him.

While he has been the responsible head of the government of this state, reapportionment, long denied and long promised, has failed in a session of the legislature which was committed in every possible way to a promise to provide it.

Though there was good reason to believe that if an extra session of the legislature had been called reapportionment would never have been provided, Governor Eberhart refused to call that extra session, though he had promised Northern Minnesota, but a short time before that if reapportionment failed at the regular session he would call an extra session to take it up.

While Eberhart has been the responsible head of the government of this state the railroads have imposed upon its people the ignominy of being the only people in the Northwest compelled to pay three cents a mile for passenger travel instead of two cents; and no move was made by the state to redeem the people from this humiliation.

While Eberhart has been the responsible head of the government of this state it has been shown clearly that railroad property is grossly undertaxed, and that unless an extra session of the legislature were called to propose an increase in the railroad tax rate the state would lose forever the increased revenue for two years yet he called no extra session.

Where the legislature adjourned last April it was under a pall of disgrace for its conspicuous failure to enact needed legislation demanded by the people. Not one of these measures would have failed if it had come to a vote. If the legislature had been in session a week longer it would have been impossible to prevent any of these measures from coming to a vote. There is hardly a governor in the Union who would not, under these circumstances, have called an extra session forthwith. Governor Eberhart did not.

Minnesota, under Governor Eberhart, has come to rank with Rhode Island as a standpat and Tory state, without the slightest progress in popular government.

Yet Governor Eberhart has the effrontery to rebuke the people of this state for being discontented and dissatisfied and for demanding a change.

Look to your own record, Governor Eberhart, before you scold the people of Minnesota again for their lack of confidence in the public officials they have elected to represent them and to do their will—not the will of every special interest powerful enough to force the election of a delegate to a state convention.—Duluth Herald.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents)$340.93) which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Lewis B. Geerlings and Nancy Geerlings his wife, mortgagors, to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, mortgagees, bearing date the 11th day of June 1910, with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota on the 13th day of June, 1910, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of mortgages on Page 178 and subsequently upon the division of Red Lake County and the creation of Pennington County, whereto the records of the herein described mortgage have been transcribed, and now appear in book 22 of mortgages at page 343 in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by the said First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota by written assignment, dated the 15th day of February, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington, County, Minnesota on the 16th day of February 1912 at 1:00 o'clock p. m., in book 8 of mortgages, on page 78.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date of this notice on said indebtedness the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) principal and interest, and whereas the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue by power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described, in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots numbered six (6) and seven (7) in Block eleven (11) of Porters Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota (formerly in Red Lake County,) according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds, within and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said County and State on Saturday the 6th day of April, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay the said debt of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) and interest and taxes if any on said premises and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATORS

First in 1878 First ever since

Save Their Cost Every Year of Use

If you are thinking about buying a cream separator, and have only a small amount of ready cash to invest, don't be tempted to put your money into one of the so-called, "cheap" machines.

Why pay your hard-earned money for a "cheap," trashy machine, when you can buy a reliable De Laval upon such liberal terms that

It will more than earn its cost while you are paying for it.

When you buy a De Laval you have positive assurance that your machine will be good for at least twenty years of service, during which time it will save every possible dollar for you and earn its original cost over and over again.

If you purchase the so-called "cheap" separator, you must pay cash in advance and then take the chance of the machine becoming worthless after a year or two of use, to say nothing of the cream it will waste while it does last.

More De Laval machines are in use than any other make. There is a reason. Come in and we will tell you why.

Easiest to turn, easiest to wash, skims the cleanest lasts the longest

Official Paper of the City

FRIDAY, MAR. 22, 1912

The man who sits still on such beautiful spring days as these is certainly not making use of his opportunities.

We note that the Democrats of Pennington county will have no representation in the next Democratic State Convention. The Committee must have discovered that all the Democrats of this county voted for Eberhart.

It is rumored that F. H. Peterson of Moorhead may try for a seat in Congress from the Ninth Congressional district. Mr. Peterson served for eight years in the Senate and is an able man and would make a strong candidate if he decides to enter.

From a news item in one of the papers of Blue Earth county we learn that at a straw vote for governor taken at the spring election in the townships of that county Ed. Weaver received three votes to one for Eberhart. That looks kind of bad in the Governors own county.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette carried North Dakota over Theodore Roosevelt by over 15,000 votes at the primaries held there on last Tuesday. This is very significant. It was the first Presidential primary ever held and the People Won. That is the reason all the Bosses are opposed to the primaries.

"One of the most pathetic sights in this world is a man trying to support an automobile wife on a wheelbarrow salary," says Wheelock's Weekly. And, "Oh, no. More pathetic isthe spectacle of a woman trying to support a fastidious and bibulous husband on a washtub wage," says Mary McFadden.—Binford Times.

Governor Eberhart has come out for Preisdent Taft for renomination. The governor has been in favor of fine weather, good crops and consolidated schools for some time and "Taft for president" will make another plank for his platform. With state issues like these before the people there ought to be a lively campaign.—Fergus Falls Journal.

Governor Eberhart has been endorsed again at Mankato. Think of the governor's home city being canvassed for three days by ten men to secure an "endorsement" of his official acts and a certificate of his character. Of the 336 names secured by these ten men 134 are Democrats, six are non-residents, three are under age, three are not naturalized and four others have not been in the city long enough to vote. Further, this so-called Republican "endorsement" contains the names of at least twenty who are now or have been allied with the liquor interests. Try again Borther Wilson.—Blue Earth County Enterprice.

Buffalo Lake (Renville county) News: The first substantial endorsement given to any of the four present progressive candidates for governor, was given to Wm. E. Lee last Saturday, by the Hennepin county progressives. This looks like a sensible move on the part of the progressives. With four candidates out for the head of the ticket, none would get it. If they hope to win against the Eberhart forces, there is only one way to do it; that is to unite on one candidate and all pull together. Eberhart has a strong financial backing from various interests, besides his official prestige, and it will mean a hard fight to defeat him for re-election. Unless there is an agreement among the progressives as to who shall be the candidate, Eberhart is bound to win. While all four men talked of as progressive timber are clean and capable men, there is only one who is sufficiently experienced to make the fight against the present incumbent, the Hennepin progressives have had sense enough to see who it is.

WILLIAM E. LEE OFFERS VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS ON HOW TO DISPOSE OF THE STATE LANDS TO GOOD ADVANTAGE.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

In an item in the Dispatch in relation to what I have said about the sale of state lands, it is stated, "He could do the state a real service if he would point out how to improve the method of handling the state land sales under the present constitutional restrictions."

At present, there is no information as to the character or quality of state lands. Prospective purchasers must spend too much time finding what they want and then they must wait until a sale is held in the county where the lands wanted are located before they can make a purchase. In most counties these sales are held at long intervals and people who go there to locate cannot wait months to get a chance to bid on lands even though they have been to an expense of time and money to make an examination of them, so they pass on to find land owners who are ready to do business. I would have the state make a thorough examination so as to know just what kind of lands it has for sale and what they are worth; this information I would file with the auditors of the counties where the lands are situated so that prospective purchasers could get it. I would have the county auditor authorized to sell any of these lands in his county at "public sale," as required by the constitution, at 10 o'clock every Monday morning at not less than the appraised value. If there were no bidders there would be no sales, but if there were those present who wished to purchase, the particular tracts desired would be offered, and if the appraised price or more were bid, the land would be sold and the transaction closed at once. This would enable the emigrant the state has induced to come here to buy what he wants without delay and at the least expense to him. Perhaps weekly sales would not be necessary at all seasons of the year, but there is nothing to prevent having them as often as desired, and they can be conducted by the county auditors at a small expense. Provisions for settlement and improvements as a condition of perfecting title could be imposed.

This simple method of handling these lands would result in selling them to people who would settle on them and who would become citizens and taxpayers of Minnesota instead of moving on to Canada.

WILLIAM E. LEE.

Long Prairie, March [illegible]

LEE AND STATE LAND SALES

William E. Lee of Long Prairie, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, makes interesting and valuable suggestions for the improving of the method of disposing of state lands. He proposes, in a communication in another column on this page, that the state should get accurate information as to the character and quality of the land to be offered for sale; that such information should be on file in the office of the auditor of the county in which the land is and that it should be open to inspection by prospective purchasers. He would have the county auditors hold land sales at 10 o'clock every Monday morning at which tracts could be disposed of at not less than appraised values.

Mr. Lee's suggestion that accurate information concerning the land should be available will appeal to all as common sense. The state should know what it is selling and the buyer should know what he is getting. The information also would stimulate land sales by adding settlers and others to pick out what they want. The weekly sales he proposes, no doubt, would meet the constitutional requirement that the lands must be disposed of at "public sale." They might lead to abuse that would result in disposing of choice tracts at practically private sale at appraised vaule. However, the Legislature should be able to devise safeguards that would make Mr. Lee's plan satisfactory. His suggestions are worthy of serious legislative consideration.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Messrs. Pierce and Wallace of the Pierce, Wallace Land Co. Winnebago, Minnesota, arrived in the city Wednesday and are looking for a suitable place in which to open an office.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

How Department of Agriculture Aids Housewife in Handling This "Bugaboo."

Washington, D. C., March 22.—No other nation takes such an interest in the housewife as does the United States. This isthe assertion made by Uncle Sam's experts in the Department of Agriculture, an institution which is continually giving out useful information in the shape of bulletins and publications to housewives who want the latest word on the scientific preparation of food and household management. The Department of Agriculture always has on hand a corps of skilled men and women who make a study of food subjects. The result of their research is published in the form of bulletins and distributed. One might think that this Department studies only questions which relate to the use of agriculture products on the farms, but such is not the case. The activities of this very useful department are much broader. Much of the investigation relates to the subject of food nutrition and the preparation of human foods, the object being to help the housewife in her efforts to provide a good living at reasonable cost, without undue labor.

One of the most popular of the house-hold bulletins was the so-called "Uncle Sam's Cook Book." Members of Congress were well nigh swamped with requests for this popular bulletin. The number of this bulletin is 391, and the title of it is "The Economical Use of Meat in the Home." So great was the demand for it that Congress authorized an additional issue of a half million copies. Most of these bulletins are distributed through members of Congress upon request of those desiring copies.

Recently, the Department has issued a second "Uncle Sam's Cook Book," which relates to the preparation of various cheese dishes. It bids fair to rival in popularity the one devoted to meats. The number of this bulletin is 487. Its title is "Cheese and its Economical Use in the Diet." According to this publication cheese occupies a very important place in our diet and has an unusually high food value. The capable housewife can prepare some very palatable cheese dishes, using the recipes given in the bulletin for her formulas.

The Department informs the writer that the number of bulletins on food topics has reached the total of 9,968,000. There are some twenty-four bulletins on food subjects, embracing the food value of milk, sugar, bread, meats, fruits, and vegetables; methods of preparing food for the table, and the care of food in the home. To give one an idea of the popularity of as well as the demand for Uncle Sam's household publications it is stated that over 700,000 copies have been published of the bulletin on bread making. Of the one entitled "Eggs and their uses as food," 550,000 copies were printed. The one on canned fruit, preserves and jellies was of course a popular one, and of this 762,000 copies came off the government printing presses. Bulletin No. 256, on "The Preparation of vegetables for the Table" required an addition of 740,000 copies to supply the demand. But the bulletin which heads the list in the demands made for it is Bulletin 391, "The Economical Use of Meat in the Home," already referred to. In the past two years since this bulletin was published eighteen regular editions, aggregating 1,420,000 copies have been issued, and, in addition, a special reprint of 500,600 copies were ordered by Congress making a total of 1,920,000 copies.

One of the purposes in publishing the food bulletins was to help solve the high cost of living problem. The Department not only aids the farmer in making two blades of grass grow where one grew before, but enters the food department of the housekeeper and aids her in her efforts to make one dollar do the work of two in providing for the family table, to meet the daily requirements for food, the tastes of the family, and the income. It is therefore a most uesful agent in more ways than one. It has well been said of this Department that it is the "general welfare" bureau of the government. Its usefulness to the people as a whole is yearly becoming more noticeable. It does not attempt to do things for the people, but it does pretend to direct, to co-operate with individuals all over this broad land in home making and scientific home management. It is a vast store house for useful, scientific information But more than this: It is a great distributing agency for this information. In so far as its resources permit, the Department sends bulletins to all citizens of the United States who request them, but the most wide-reaching distribution is made by members of Congress, who receive as their annual quota from 12,000 to 14,000 copies.

Any housekeeper may secure a set of bulletins which will have a direct bearing on her work, and materially assist her in the management of her home business, for the Department of Agriculture takes the view that house keeping is a science. The following bulletins are suggested as a desirable selection for the housewife who cares to add to her library a useful collection: No. 34, "Meats: Composition and Cooking." No. 85, "Fish as Food." No. 93, "Sugar as Food." No. 128, "Eggs and their Uses as Food." No. 182, "Poultry as Food." No. 220, "Tomatoes." No. 249, "Cereal Breakfast Foods." No. 252 "Maple Sugar Sirup." No. 256, "Preparation of Vegetables for the Table." No. 291, "Evaporation of Apples." No. 293, "Use of Fruit as Food." No. 298, "Food value of Corn and Corn Products." No. 332, "Nuts and their Uses as Food." No. 345, "Some Common Disinfectants." No. 348, "Bacteria in Milk." No. 359, "Canning Vegetables in the Home." No. 363, "The Use of Milk as Food." No. 375, "Care of Food in the Home." No. 389, "Bread and Bread Making." No. 391, "Economical Use of Meat in the Home." No. 413, "The care of Milk and its Use in the Home" No. 459, "House Flies." No. 487, "Cheese and its Economical Use in the Diet."

SCHOOL NOTES

The reading and spelling contests last Friday evening attracted a large audience to the Lincoln assembly. The reading contest was between teams representing the third grades from the three buildings. The Judges decided that the Washington team won first place, the Centrals the second, and the Knox pupils were third. In the sixth grade spelling contest, the written test of fifty words by all the pupils was won by the Knox children, with the Washingtons second and the Centrals third. The Central and Knox students tied for first in the time contest, not a pupil on either missing a single word in the time alotted. The Central team of ten, however, won the spell down.

On account of illness, Miss McConnel was absent from her room the first of the week.

State examinations in the four common school subjects were held on Monday and Tuesday in the grammar grades. The final state examinations in all subjects will occur the last week of May, and the teachers' examinations will take place immediately following the close of the teachers' summer school in July.

The basketball team gloriously redeemed themselves last Friday evening at the gym. from the impression which so generally prevailed in the fall that theye were unable to play winning basketball. The overwhelmingly score of 48 to 9 against the Fosston high school team, which proudly boasted that they were the Northwestern champions, proves conclusively that the local boys are second to none in basketball knowledge and skill. An immense crowd saw the contest and witnessed the fastest game which was ever played in Thief River Falls.

Mr. Bugbee, the agriculture extension worker, and Mr. Haskin held eight meetings last week in Pennington Co. They succeeded in reaching 760 people. The former gentleman proved himself the most practical and useful lecturer which this section has listened to this winter. Mr. Haskin is organizing corn growing associations in the rural districts and these will be under the direction of a central association of which Rev. H. Pope of Rocksbury is president. If all the interested farmers and farmers' children raise at least one acre of corn, as they have promised to do, this county will bear a striking resemblance to Iowa next Summer.

The Short Course will close one week from Friday. The 39 young people, nearly all of whom are from the country, who have been attending the local school during the five months of this coures will then lay aside school studies and take up the more active duties of farm life. It is the pravailing impression among teachers and students that this Short Course is the most useful feature of the whole high school work.

A U. S. cream separator was received at the high school this week. The laboratory of the agriculture department resembles a machine shop, as it ought to do. All the machines there are loaned free and serve as advertising mediums for their various manufacturers.

Samples of the products and byproducts prepared by the Standard Oil Company and the Armour Packing Company have been received by the school. They are neatly arranged in glass cases, properly labeled and described and serve as a valuable addition to the laboratories.

Janitor Runnestrand has been undergoing a severe siege of illness for some weeks. At present he shows indications of improvement.

A conference of the high school agriculture instructors and the extension workers is called at the College of Agriculture at St. Paul the last week of the month. As this was the time chosen for the proposed farmers institute in this city, it must necessarily be canceled. In lieu thereof, the Department will send Mr. Carlson of Erskine, who will spend the following [illegible] the county, talking [illegible]

According to announcements sent out this week by the department of public instruction at St. Paul, no first grade subjects will be permitted to be taught at the teachers' summer schools. All prospective teachers desiring instruction in the first grade subjects will have to attend a state normal or a school of agriculture at Crookston or Morris. A sixth state normal school at Thief River Falls would prove a great convenience to hundreds of young people this summer under this and similar rulings. At the present time they have to travel long distances to reach Moorhead in the central western part of the state. Moorhead is almost exactly west of Brainerd, which lies about the same distance from the extreme north and south ends of the state.

It might be of interest to the citizens of Thief River Falls to know the comparative enrollment in the schools of Thief River Falls, Crookston and Bemidji. The report to March 1st is as follows: Thief River Falls had 245 enrolled in the high school and 1004 in the grades; making a total of 1249; Crookston had 266 in high and 1187 in the grades, a total of 1453; Bemidji had 152 in high school and 1022 in the grades, a total of 1174.

The Senior—Junior reception will take place at the Lincoln next Friday evening, as a suitable hall could not be secured down town. This annual event is considered one of the most important and enjoyable of the school year and is attended only by the members of the two upper classes, the faculty and the board of education.

On account of the reception mentioned above, the spelling and reading contests will be postponed.

DANCE IN MAVIE HALL SATURDAY APRIL 13TH.

Another big dance will be given in Mavie hall Saturday evening April 13th. Plans are under way to make this the biggest and best dance of the season, it being the last dance before spring work begins in earnest. The last dance was given March 16th and, even tho it was a stormy night, more than 76 people attended. Everyone reported a jolly good time and many compliments were handed out to C. W. Nelson for the efficient and generous manner in which he cared for the comforts of the guests. If your constitution is able to withstand the effects of a mighty good time, put on your gray bonnet with the blue ribbon on it and be at Mavie hall SATURDAY night April 13th.

RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

The following named teachers received certificates as a result of the last examination:

First grade:

Melvin O. Skarsten, Grit, Minn.

Second grade:

Robert Jackson, St. Hilaire

Ida P. Kalland, St. Hilaire

Anna Moran, Thief River Falls,

Gunheld Sollum, Thief River Falls

Marget Sorenson, Lambert

Selma Strand, Greibrok

Limited:

Lilly M. Bodum, St. Hilaire

Harold L. Homes, St. Hilaire

Myles H. Jackson, St. Hilaire.

A large number of credits was obtained by other applicants. A harder application to stuyd and renewed efforts at the summer training school to begin June 24th in this city, will probably land the coveted prize, the certificate, at next examination.

The State High School Board examination was held on Monday and Tuesday in the following rural districts:

District No. 37, Highlanding, Herbert Swift, conductor.

District No. 219, Thief River Falls, Miss Clara Backe, conductor.

District No. 25, Thief River Falls, Miss Katie B. Dahl conductor.

District No. 35, Hazel, Miss Anna Paulson conductor.

Several of these schools did splendidly in last years examinations. We hope for equally good results this year, altho, perhaps not as many graduates.

The Agricultural Department of the local High School in conjunction with the Extension Division of the University Farm, St. Paul, is doing a laudable effort to diffuse useful knowledge regarding agriculture among our schools.

This week Mr. Walter Haskin, teacher in agriculture at the Lincoln building, and Mr. Bugbee working under the auspices of the Extension Division aforesaid, has made the rounds of some of our schools. It is the kind of work and knowledge we need.

I had the good luck to attend one of these meetings at Highlanding, on Thursday afternoon. I must say it was an inspiration to all present. The school house, presided over by Mr. Swift was filled to overflowing by the pupils, parents and farmers of the three adjoining schools. It is lectures like these that makes one feel encouraged and interested in the farms. May we have more of these meetings.

Supt. Schulz, of the State Dept., of Public Inst. has called a meeting of the Co. Supts. at Crookston for Wednesday, the 21st to consult on matters pertaining to Summer training schools etc. Your Supt. will be there considering the well being of our school to begin June 24th and to last five weeks.

We also acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to be present at the graduation at the N. W. School of Agriculture at that city March 17th, to 21st.

R. F. D. NO. 2

Miss Margaret Berglund is seriously ill with lung fever.

Torbjon Skomedal bought the Eskeliden farm for $29.00 per acre.

John O. Eskeliden, last week, bot the Anderson farm in Silverton for $25,00 per acre.

Olaf Skomedal has been on the sick list this week.

John O. Eskeliden has been busy hauling hay to his new farm this week.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. meets next Tuesday afternoon March 26th with Mrs. Ben Christianson.

Congressman R. P. Hobson has been lecturing recently in Chicago. Among other things he said: "I would rather see every power in this world declared war against this nation than to see this terrible curse of alcohol continue with its distruction. In a single year no less than 700,000 men are killed in one country by liquor which is more than [illegible]

BRUNKEBURG PHILANTHROPIST, HAD TO PAY FOR THE PLOWING

Hans P. Dahl, of the town of Eckvold, said in Municipal court Tuesday that he had $33.50 coming for cultivation work done on a farm in Valley township. A. O. Sandland, of Kratka thot that he had been damaged to the extent of $400, because even tho some of the ground had been worked it had not been seeded and Mr. Dahl had generally battered the contract existing between them. Judge Tarrant decided that Mr. Dahl should recover from Mr. Sandland for plowing 26 acres at $1.50 the acre and that the latter gentleman should pay the costs.

Mr. Halvorson, for the plaintiff, and Mr. Michelet, for the defendant, put up very good pleas for their respective clients. Mr. Halvorson was inclined to be humorous. He referred to Mr. Sandland as the Brunkeburg philanthropist.

MARBLE AND GRANITE WORKS NOW BUSY.

Under the direction of L. G. Sands the Thief River Falls Marble and Granite Works has started work preparatory to filling the large number of orders that were received this winter. A carload of marble from St. Cloud is now here and a carload of marble from Vermont is expected any day. The Marble and Granite works has a thoroughyl modern equipment and an excellent workshop. A complete pneumatic machinery system is one of the many conveniences. M.r Sands is one of the most expert workmen in the state and under his competent supervision the highest quality of work is assured.

A. L. Almen left Saturday afternoon for Fergus Falls and other points in the southern part of the state in the interests of his publishing company. He reports splendid success and Thief River Falls will derive great benefit from the advertising which his company is doing.

The Commercial Normal School have two applications for male stenographers which they are unable to fill. The demand for its students has been so great that all those prepared are now in good positions. This speaks well for the future.

At The Lyceum.

Brydons Dogs, a Troupe of White Eskimos will perform at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. This attraction comes highly recommended and will be sure to furnish an interesting entertainment. There will be a matinee Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

What $10 Did

What is $10.00? It is 10 cents a day for a little over three months. What is 10 cents? It is the price of a cigar or dish of ice cream. What will $10.00 do, invested in one of the lots in the Wheeler-Ardmore Oklahoma oil field, now being sold at the Evelyn Hotel—room 2?

This is bound to be a good proposition because this is located right in the midst of splendid oil and gas wells in Oklahoma, the greatest oil state in the Union. Each man owns his own lot, pays $10.00 and gets a warrantee deed.

It Is Said That

$10.00 invested in the Home Oil Co. has since had a value of $5000.00; $10.00 invested in the Lucile Oil Co. has since had a vaule of $1600.00. $10.00 invested in the Kern River Oil Co. has since had a value of $450.00; $10.00 invested in the W. K. Oil Co. has since had a value of $300.00 and numerous others the same way. $10.00 invested in any of these [illegible]

ROCKSBURY

The voters in town of Rocksbury decided to relect the old office holders except probably a few changes in road overseers, and what's the use in talking about good roads when the pay is so small.

Quite a number of young people were present at the young peoples society held at C. Oion's place last Sunday. A good program was pulled off. The singing class did credit to itself by giving several numbers of nice music.

Mrs. H. G. Halvorson, Mrs. A. J. Aaland, and Miss Ida Halvorson and Messrs Otto Olsen and C. M. Lee were callers at the Langseth home last Thursday.

The Lecture in Vallhalla Hall Friday evening on poultry and one acre of corn, was quite interesting, and a good number of farmers were persent.

Mrs. Helgeson of Hazel visited at Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Lee's last week.

Last week Mrs. Sesland went to Grand Forks to visit with her daughter.

Mr. Usgaard has rented the Ben Erickson farm for the 1912 season. Success is wished to you.

Mr. Usgaard is a good neighbor and deserves to be well paid for his labor.

Mr. P. Engelstad and family visited with C. Falk last Sunday.

Mr. Paul Borge of Hazel called at Engelstad's last Friday, beisdes taking in the lecture at the Hall.

Mr. Elmer Colp is preparing to move to his new home in town of Smiley. Well Elmer, we hate to see you leave good old Rocksbury, but wish you success and much prosperity in your new home.

Messrs. Ely Petterson and Clyd Baker of Thief River Falls called at Engelstad's last Sunday.

On Wednesday March 27th the Ladies Aid meets at Haroldson's. All are welcome.

Mr. Albert Klungness has rented the Rasmus Oen farm and has taken possession, while Mr. P. Liden moved to town of New Solum.

NEW SOLUM NEWS

Mr. Tyrie Sturland had the misfortune of breaking one of the big drivers on his gasoline engine.

Mr. Eddi Erickson is now busy sawing wood near Strip. Say, you who thot that this rig could not saw wood, go over and see for yourself.

Some of our boys are trying to organize an Athletic Association. It's a good thing, stick to it boys.

The spelling match last Friday between district 34 of New Solum and the Viking school resulted in a victory for New Solum. A nice present was handed the winners by Miss Zonnet of the Viking school.

The election of last Tuesday resulted in reelecting the following: S. Ostgaard, Clerk; E. Silverness, Supervisor; P. Sorenson, Treasurer. The new officers are, John Sjolsvold, Constable; M. Kulseth and O. Opseth, Justice of the Peace; and Ole Hanson, Assessor.

We don't believe in kicking but we can not help but mention the way the manager at the I. O. G. T. Hall in Viking runs things. We don't say more about it this time, but those who remember the mouth organ trouble last fall, and those who have heard the recent Medical show and [illegible] will know [illegible]

E. L. QUIST

The Barking Wolf.

The prairie wolf, the coyote of the Mexicans, is the American representative of the old world jackal. It is thirty-six to forty inches long, with a tail measuring sixteen to eighteen inches. Its color is usually a yellowish gray on the back and sides, with black cloudings. The under parts and inside of limbs are of a dirty white tint. The cry is a sort of snapping bark, and for this reason the animal is known as the barking wolf. It lives and breeds in burrows and has its young in April, often ten at a time. It hunts in packs and is very fleet.

Passing Counterfeits.

Johnny—Say, papa, passing counterfeit money is unlawful, isn't it? Papa—Yes. Johnny—Well, papa, if a man was walking along the street and saw a ten dollar counterfeit bill upon the sidewalk and did not pick it up wouldn't he be guilty of passing counterfeit money and couldn't he be arrested and put in jail? Papa—More likely the lunatic asylum. Now you may go to bed, my son.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Making It Personal.

"Did you ever long for death?" asked the soulful, dyspeptic young man of the practical young woman. It was the fourth long call he had made on her that week, and she was sleepy.

"Whose death do you mean?" she asked in a dry, discouraging tone.

Fire Insurance Folks.

A young Englishwoman introduced a new phrase to a New Yorker the other day. She had been telling of her home town, of its extraordinary sanctimoniousness, until her hearer asked, "Why, what sort of folks live there?"

"Oh," she said, "they're all fire insurance folks."

It didn't seem that any one community could be made up of people in one line of business, and the hearer asked for an explanation.

"Why," came the answer, "fire insurance folks are returned colonials who lived abroad and have committed every crime in the calendar. Then when they get old they come and try to square up by living six years of the most painful piety. That's why we call 'em fire insurance folks."—New York Sun.

They done [illegible] grand high most worthy ex[illegible] [illegible] plenipotentiary, but it [illegible] sounds jes' a little bit [illegible]

Emergency Rations.

On active service every English soldier carries what is known as an emergency ration, though its use is forbidden except by the order of an officer or in extremity. When occasion for its use arises the center band is torn off, and two tins are disclosed. One tin contains one-quarter pound of concentrated beef and the other one-quarter pound of cocoa paste. These rations can be eaten dry, but if water is available greater benefit can be derived. An ounce of the beef boiled for an hour makes a pint of tea; by simmering one ounce of the cocoa paste in a pint of water for a quarter of an hour a liquid cocoa of good strength is obtained. If the ration is eaten in small quantities at a time it is calculated to maintain strength for thirty-six hours.

Down the Scale.

A Knoxville bride is very much in love with her husband and very willing to admit it. She likes to sound his praises to her mother and to her girl friends, which is quite as it should be. She has a number of original expressions. When her husband is good she says he is "chocolate cake three layers deep." When he is very good he is "chocolate cake four layers deep," and so on up the scale.

Occasionally, however, things take a turn. The bride's mother dropped in the other day. The bride was a trifle peevish, but her mother pretended not to notice this.

"And how is George today?" was her inquiry. "Chocolate cake four layers deep?"

"No."

"Three layers deep?"

"No."

"Two layers deep?"

"No." This with a pout.

"Then what is he?"

"Dog biscuit!"—Pittsburgh Post.

Heard the Same Sound Twice.

In the New York Telephone Review is a striking illustration of the speed with which sound travels over telephone wires as compared with the speed with which it travels through the atmosphere. The manager of a large manufacturing plant in Paterson, N. J., was standing at the telephone in his residence, which is about two miles from his factory, speaking with the superintendent of the works when the whistle of the factory blew for 1 o'clock. The sound came to him very distinctly over the wire, lasting about five seconds, then ceased, and a few seconds later the same sound of the whistle blowing came to him through an open window near which he was standing, this time coming via the slower route—the sound waves of the atmosphere. He thus actually heard the same sound twice.

CAN YOU ASK MORE?

Your Money Back For the Asking. You Promise Nothing.

We are so confident that we can furnish relief for indigestion and dyspepsia that we promise to supply the medicine free of all cost to every one who uses it according to directions who is not perfectly satisfied with the results. We exact no promises and put no one under any obligation whatever. Surely nothing could be fairer. We are located right here where you live, and our reputation should be sufficient assurance of the genuineness of our offer.

We want every one who is troubled with indigestion or dyspepsia in any form to come to our store and buy a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them home, and give them a reasonable trial, according to directions. If they don't please you, tell us and we will quickly return your money. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sick Kidneys.
Are endorsed by thousands.

Mrs. Edward Hance, 513 St. Paul Ave., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy for kidney trouble in children's cases. Our little girl was delicate and her back ached a great deal. The kidney secretions were unnatuarl and proved that a kidney medicine was needed. Nothing brought relief until Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained at Curtis' Drug Store. This remedy toned up the child's system, effecting a complete cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

SUGARS

L. W. Minford writes as follows:

"Judging from the statistical position, particularly as compared with two years ago, prices for Raw Sugars in our market should be as low this week as we will see them. There are a good many cross currents in the market, which make it unusually difficult to attempt to forecast prices, and the amount of sugar that Cuba will produce, which is the most important factor, is uncertain. Approximately, Cuba produced 584,600 tons of sugar this crop year to March 1st, against 740,766 tons for the same time in 1910 and in the latter year the production for the balance of the crop was 1,063,583 tons, the greatest output they ever had from March 1st on. At this time in 1910 and even later on, Cuba was not expected to produce over 1,650,000 tons for its entire crop and the final output was 1,804,349 tons. While there is just as much cane in Cuba this year as in 1910 the crop is much behind and the yield of the cane ont yet satisfactory. The United Kingdom has considerably more Raw Sugar on hand than in preceding years at this time, and the coal strike there is said to have already closed some Refineries, which is another factor depending upon its duration; moreover a coal strike is threatened in this Country on April 1st. Again, it is a question as to what extent the Tariff Bill in Congress will effect the carrying of invisible supplies during the coming months, for the bulk of the trade have provided for their normal wants for March and some even longer. The extent of the European Beet sowings in April will have a bearing. While the big speculator in Europe is said to have realised on part of his holdings on the February rise, he is believed to be still [illegible] ed in the Beet sugar market."

ANNUAL SELF DENIAL EFFORT

We are now about to enter upon our annual self-deinal effort, commencing Saturday, March 31st to April 7th.

Our work is so well known that it is not necessary to go into details as to our methods, the results speak for themselves, for we cover 56 different countries and colonies.

Funds raised for this effort will be devoted to the extension of our missionary work. I approach you in the hope that you will do your best to help us.

Donations in aid of this work may be sent or handed to Lieutenant Kit-

During the week there will be special meetings conducted by Adjutant George Molyerton, commencing Wednesday night, April 3rd.

COMMERCIAL MEN HAVE ORGANIZED

Met Sat. Night at Evelyn; Niclai Elected Secretary, Treasurer, Manager.

The commercial travelers, who make Thief River Falls their headquarters, met at the Evelyn Hotel Saturday evening and organized their baseball team for the coming season. Fred Niclai, of LaLunda fame, was elected secretary-treasurer-manager.

Eric Bakke, past manager, acted as chairman of the meeting. His report of last season's doings shows a balance of $1.12 in real money in the treasury. The team has good suits and a fair equipment of other baseball paraphernalia. No games have been scheduled yet, but "Andy" Anderson, who sat on a front seat, impressed upon Niclai very forcibly the importance of getting active along this line.

At this meeting the travelers took up the matter of becoming more closely affiliated in a Union Commercial Traveler's Council.

A dance for the benefit of the Traveler's baseball team will be given at the Auditorium April 12th. Preparations are well under way to make it all that you ever dreamed or imagined a dance could be in the way of a good time.

UP-TO-NOW HINTS FOR FARMER

Now is The Time To Decide About Smut in Grain. Short Paragraphs.

This is the time of the year to insure against smut in grain. Year after year smut appears in the State, and causes great losses. There is no reason why this should be the case if the seed is properly treated.

The best known and most widely-used substance for treating seed grain is formldehyde. This can be bought in drug stores at a moderate price. One pint is put into forty gallons of water, and the seed grain is then dipped in the mixture in such a way as to wet the outside of every kernel. Or the formaldehyde solution may be sprayed onto the grain, while spread upon the floor—it being raked or shovelled over frequently.

A few precautions should always be observed:

(1) Formaldehyde varies in strength and, if there is doubt as to its quality, a sample of it should be sent to the chemist of the Experiment Station, in order to determine its exact strength.

(2) The sacks in which the grain is treated should first be cleansed by boiling in water, or by washing in a strong solution of formaldehyde.

(3) Everything which the grain touches after having been treated, sacks, seeder, etc., should be very thoroughly cleaned with a strong solution of formaldehyde (1 pint to 10 gallons of water).

(4) If seed is kept for some time after treatment: Do not let it sprout or mold; do not let it freeze while swollen after treatment; allow for the swelling of the seed, if you sow the grain soon after treatment, by planting more per acre.

This formaldehyde treatment will prevent stinking smut of wheat, covered smut of barley, and smut of oats. It also prevents flax-wilt if the treated seed is sown on land which has grown no flax for five or six years. It will not prevent loose smut of wheat, loose smut of barley or corn smut. These must be dealt with differently.

Bulletin No. 122 and Extension Bulletin No. 14 of the Minnesota Experiment Station give all information and precautions necessary in treating for smut. Every farmer who intends to treat his seed grain should send for these bulletins at once.—E. C. Slakman, Assistant in Plant Pathology, Minn. Col. of Agr.

An Iowa apple-grower decalres that by thorough spraying, several times repeated, he is able to gather a crop 99 per cent free from worms. That this counts when marketing-time arrives, is shown by the fact that he gets twice as much per barrel for his apples as do growers who have neglected spraying, besides having a larger crop to sell.

Experiments at the Michigan Station show that there is little if any difference in the amount of butter-fat in the milk of a heifer and of a mature cow. Somebody's imagination would seem to have afforded the only foundation for the popular belief to the contrary.

As was anticipated, the consolidated school is proving to be a great promoter of puncutality in attendance. Pupils quickly learn that they must be ready for the wagon when it calls at their homes, and the accidents are rare which prevent the wagon from reaching the schoolhouse "on time." Some schools report not a single case of tardiness during a term.

It is said that the musicians of a brass band are unable to play in the presence of a man sucking a lemon; it makes their mouths water so much. A semi-circle of cows gathered around a silo, when the silage is being served, will it is said, present a similar spectacle. They remember the, to them, delicious flavor of the silage, its odor titillates their nostrils, and the water fairly drips from their mouths. Here-in is further proof of the value of silage in cattle-feeding. A feed which thus stimulates the appetite of the cows can hardly be otherwise then excellent for them.

EXPLANATION OF SEWER QUESTION

Authority of The City; Who Pays The Bills And How Assesments Are Made.

Thief River Falls is rapidly outgrowing its present sewer system and it is only a question of a short time when extension of the present system will have to be taken up seriously. Having this in mind the Press submits for the benefit of the citizens at large the article following:

Power Of The Council

The City Council has the right, by a majority vote of all its members, to establish a general sewer system, district, joint-district and lateral sewers.

Kinds of Sewers.

A general sewer is one that is common to the entire city or several distinct portions of it, and leads into the river. A district sewer is one that drains some definite portion of the city and leads into the general sewer. A lateral sewer is one that drains a certain section of a district, and leads into the district sewer.

Who Foots the Bill.

The cost of constructing a general sewer is paid out of the sewer fund, if any, otherwise out of the general revenue fund of the city. The cost of constructing every district sewer is assessed against all the land in the sewer district subject to assessment for local improvements, without regard to cash valuation, and the assessment is in the ratio of the sq. feet of area to the total assessable area. The cost of constructing lateral sewers is paid by a front-foot assessment of the property by which the sewer passes, without regard to cash valuation.

The cost of putting a sewer across the street, catch basins, man-holes, lamp holes, etc., has to be paid for by the district in which the sewer is, except it be a general sewer. If any district should require a sewer more than 18 inches in diameter, then the city as a whole pays for the cost in excess of 18 inches, the district standing the cost up to and including 18 inches.

General Information.

After a sewer is laid in a street, the city can make any or all residences fronting on that street connect with sewer. This power is granted for health reasons.

There is a test case on now in Minneapolis to see if sewer assessments ought, legally, to be determined by benefits derived instead of by the front foot.

Judge Grindeland, of Warren, recently held invalid a pavement assessment in Crookston on account of a slight irregularity in the procedure.

The tax assessed for sewers is payable in three annual intsallments.

NINTH ARTICLE ON TAXATION

State, County, Town, Village or City, School District Taxes, How And By Whom Levied.

The law provides that all taxes shall be levied or voted in specific amounts, and the rate per cent shall be determined from the amount of property as equalized by the tax commission each year, except such general taxes as may be definitely fixed by law.

Four different official bodies have to do with fixing the amount of the tax levy each year—the state, the county, the town, village or city, and the school district.

The state rate for general-revenue purposes is determined by the legislature and may vary from yearto year according to the needs of the state, the levy for such purpose this year being one and nine-tenth mills. The total state levy this year for all purposes, including the one mill shcool-tax, is 3.88 mills.

County taxes except as otherwise provided in case of counties having more than 150,000 population, are levied by the county board at its meeting in July of each year, and are based upon an itemized statement of the estimated expenses for the ensuing year, which statement must be included in the published proceedings of the board.

City and village taxes are determined by the local authorities in accordance with the methods prescribed in their charters.

The amount of taxes to be raised for town purposes is determined by the voters at the annual town meeting.

The amounts of the different taxes so determined must be certified to the county auditor on or before Oct. 10th of each year. The county auditor then computes the rate necessary to produce the required revenue and makes the levy accordingly.

There are, however, certain limitations on the amount of taxes that may be levied for different purposes in any one year.

Except where county commissioners township supervisors or corporate authorities of any city, town, village or school district are authorized by special law to levy any tax, the amounts that may be levied are limited as follows:

Counties whose taxable valuation is $1,000,000 or more, may not levy taxes in excess of 5 mills for general revenue purposes, and counties having a less valuation not in excess of $5,000, or exceeding a rate of 1 per cent.

Town taxes for revenue purposes shall not exceed 2 mills where the valuation is $100,000 or more, nor more than $150 where the valuation is elss than $100,000, and then not to exceed one half of 1 per cent. But towns may levy taxes for roads and bridges not to exceed 10 mills on the dollar, and for support of poor not in excess of 5 mills on the dollar.

School districts, in addition to the general 1 mill tax, may levy a tax not in excess of 15 mills for support of schools and 1 per cent for erection of school houses.

Will Establish Horse Market

Ramstad Horse Co. Will Build Stable and Bring in Desirable Horses.

The Ramstad Horse Co., has purchased a site on the Jensen property on West Third st. and will this spring erect a fine new barn, the kind that will be a credit to the city. The barn will be erected with a view to establishing an up-to-date and serviceable horse market. Mr. Ramstad has long had in mind the establishing of such a market, and has only been waiting until circumstances would permit him doing the job up in first class shape. There will be a general cleaning up on West 3rd. st., as soon as weather permits, and, before the summer is far advanced, will be one of the most attractive business places of the city.

The Ramstad Horse Co., does not intend to run a livery barn, their object, for the present at least, being to deal in horses best suited for Thief River Falls and surrounding country. Their idea is always to keep on hand enough good horses so they can give a man exactly what he wants. Every horse sold will go out of the barn with a guarantee that, if the isn't exactly as represented the owner may return the horse and get a satisfactory horse or his money back.

Mr. Ramstad's many friends know that he is not establishing a horse market primarily for the purpose of personal gain, but because he is all the time a booster for Pennington county and believes he can do the county no better service than introducing the right kind of horses. Successful farmers have good horses, that's why they are successful. Many a farmer has failed for no other reason than that he had cheap horses when he was trying to get a start.

A PARCEL SHOWER FOR MISS GOODWARD.

Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Carew, she, together with Mrs. McKinney and Mrs. George Curran, entertained at a parcel shower in honor of Miss Ruth Godward, whose marriage to Mr. Karl Korstad is to occur in the near future.

A large number of Miss Godward's friends were present, and spent a very pleasant evening playing "Hearts", "Forfeits," etc. A dainty lunch was served, after which Miss Godward was "showered" with numerous pretty and appropriate "parcels."

Mrs. Bjerkhoel was presented with the prize, as the most efficient player of the game of Hearts, while Mrs. Curran received the "consolation" prize.

NOTED DAIRY FARMER HERE

Mr. Carlson of Erskine To Be With The Farmers From April 1st To 6th.

Mr. Carlson, one of the most noted dairy farmers of the state, who has been conducting inst. meetings this winter thruout the Northwest, is to be with the farmers of this vicinity next week, April 1st to the 6th. Mr. Carlson and Mr. Haskin, of the High School, will hold meetings at various schoolhouse thruout the county. The farmers can not afford to miss hearing him at some one of these meetings. Mr. Carlson has succeeded in building up one of the best farmers' dairy herds in the tsate, and his ideas and experiences will surely be interesting and prove valnable to every one dealing with cows.

PARCEL POST LEGISLATION

Congressmen Flooded With Letters; Local Parcel Post Feature of Bill.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 25.—When the post office appropriation bill is reached in the House one of the sharpest fights of the session will be precipitated over the discussion of the parcel post provision, which has been incorporated in the measure. The proposition for a parcel post has been under discussion for several years, but has never reached the stage where legislation seemed probable until this session. The entire subject has been given publicity pro and con on an extensive scale. Publicity bueraus and writers have had more to say either for or against parcel post legislation than any other class of legislation which has come before Congress in years. Members of Congress have literally been swamped with letters and petitions on this subject. The retail merchants have generally been opposed to the proposed parcel post, while farmers are just as strongly in favor of the scheme. Just the other day the mails of representatives were heavier than usual. It was soon discovered that 75 per cent of the letters were from farmer constituents. The letters were written. The form petition, furnished by some publicity bureau, was not used in this instance, but the interested party had sat down and taken his pen in hand for the purpose of letting his congressman know that he wanted a parcel post, and a general parcel post at that.

It seems that there was a concerted effort made by those pushing the parcel post propaganda to flood Congress with written requests for the enactment of this legislation, so that the aforesaid letters, numbering several thousand in the aggregate should tumble in on Congressman on one and the same day, or nearly so. The eighteenth of March seems to have been theday set apart for this onslaught. The missives arrived in Washington on or about the 20th. One member told me that he had received as his share some two hundred letters. They kept stringing along for days, and the parcel post mail was so heavy that he was compelled to forego his usual custom of replying to each letter with a personal typewritten answer, but had his secretary get up a form letter which he sent out to each of his correspondents.

Well, the Democrats are in control of the House and I presume they will do as they please about parcel post legislation. The bill will be reached about the colsing days of March or the first of April. The prospects are that the debates will be exceedingly lively and interesting. There has been a dearth of Congressional debates of the spirited and animated sort, such as the country had the privilege of witnessing during the strenuous days when Cannon swayed the sceptre, and the Insurgents clipped him of his power, but the present situation gives prospect of a return to the old days of heated discussion.

• • •

In order to clear up some misunderstanding as to what the terms of the present parcel post proposition involve, I will outline briefly the legislation on this subject which will be brought to the attention of Congress. Under the terms of the bill the rate on merchandise, or fourth class matter is reduced from sixteen cents to twelve cents per pound, except on local parcel potss, where the rate is still lower, as follows: One cent for each two ounces or less, two cents for more than two ounces, but not more than four ounces; three cents for omre htan four ounces, but not more than eight ounces, four cents for more than eight ounces but not more than twelve ounces, five cents for more than twelve ounces, but not more than a pound, and two cents per

SAW MILL PROPOSITION

Everything Is Being Gotten In Readiness For a Seasons Run.

Everything is being gotten in readiness for a season's run in the local saw mill. The only possible thing that can prevent work is the failure of the river to rise enough to float a log. The pile driver is fast completing its work and the boats are being made ready for the spring drive. There is estimated to be already in the river 16 million feet of logs, and with any substantial rise of water these logs can certainly be gotten down. It is estimated that there is about 24 million feet of logs in the big lake. If only the logs in the river were brought down, there would be enough sawing to keep the mill running nearly a full season with one crew. If the Crookston and Grand Forks logs in the big lake can be gotten this far, they will be sawed here, too. Now it's up to the weather man to make good.

AFTER NORTH DAKOTA PRIMARY

In Response to Many Requests For Interviews, LaFollette Issues Statement.

When senator LaFollette returned from North Dakota to Washington, in response to many requests for interviews issued the following statement:

"I shall spend a few days in Washington and then begin a thorough speaking campaign covering all the territory I can until the last delegate is elected. Speakers from Minnesota North Dakota and other states are volunteering their help. In co-operation with state organizations and speakers we shall plan to reach the people directly with a discussion of the issues as we did in North Dakota, with I believe the same result.

"There never was a cleaner cut fight than in North Dakota. In the fiercest election campaigns I have never known more crowded meetings or keener interest in the questions

To The Parents:

Through special arrangements with the Management of the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra, all children attending schools in the city will be admitted to the afternoon concert for the small sum of fifty cents, and all parents are urged to give their children the advantage of this opportunity of bearing high class music by one of the greatest organizations of its kind in America.

This is not a ten cent show but an entertainment of high merit and of educational value.

Yours truly,
THE COMMITTEE.

* * * * * * * * * *

On Friday at 3 p. m., the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra will give a matinee exclusively for the pupils and teachers of the city schools. The entrance fee for this event has been reduced to 50 cents in order that the schools may have the privilege of hearing an entertainment of standard music rendered by a large company of artists. This is highly educational and ought to merit a large attendance of children.

School closes Friday for the week of Easter holidays. A number of the teachers will visit their homes during the week.

As the first primary rooms are now filled with children, one being on half day sessions, it is suggested that parents do not enter beginners after Easter. They can be more satisfactorily cared for when the new year begins next September.

It was considered best to postpone the second grade reading and the seventh grade spelling matches until the week following the Easter holiday. The Symphony entertainment and several of the teachers leaving for home would interfere with the success of the contests.

For the interest of former English students, the following set of test questions for the month of March in senior English is presented:

1. Give the arguments against consistency and conformity.
2. What is Emerson's idea of the revelation of truth?
3. What is Emerson's idea of God?
4. Explain, "An institution is the lengthened shadow of a man."
5. Explain, "When the spirit is not the master of the world,, it is its dupe."
6. What is the compensation for calamity (disasters of all kinds)? Answer fully.
7. Give the quotation from Ruskin or the one from Holmes.

The class scored high standings in the above test questions, and the answer of one pupil to the first question is given herewith as a sample of what the children are doing: "If a person conforms, he will do just as the other people and he will not have any development of character. Each person has his or her place in this world and a certain work to perform. If we do as others do, we will not be filling our place and won't be our real selves. If a person is consistent, he will keep to an old idea, even tho he knows it is wrong, for the simple reason that he had that idea yesterday. This leaves no room for character development. A person would then be as narrow-minded when he is old as when he was a young child. There will be no self-trust. If a person is consistent, the memory must help one and he must remember what he has said before. He has no opportunity to look to his reasoning power. He must ever be on guard against saying anything which he thinks does not correspond to his former thots."

The Senior class play will take place on April 19th. Reports intimate that this play will equal, if not surpass, those of former years, and that is saying must. Miss Goodwin is training the students.

In their class purhcases, the Seniors are procuring all their material from local dealers, so far as they can supply it.

As soon as some store window of sufficient capacity can be secured down town, an exhibit of the manual training work will be placed therein for the inspection of the public. This will not take place until after Easter.

The Junior—Senior reception at the Lincoln last Friday evening was a brilliant school success. The first floor only was used for the occasion and the class decorations made the handsome halls and rooms appear still more beautiful. These formal school affairs come but rarely and they will live long in the memory of those fortunate to participate in them.

Mr. Haskin will attend a meeting of the agricutural instructors of the state at the state university on Friday and Saturday of this week.

A horticultural meeting took place at the Lincoln gym., on Wednesday. Speakers from the state workers were present and Mr. Beardmore of Warren, the president of the Red River Valley Horticultural society, presided.

So much attention is directed of recent years to the industrial features of school work, that the old studies of language, science and history are almost forgotten by the public. They still retain their important places on the school courses and will remain there permanently, despite the present strong inclination towards the more practical studies.

Infantile troubles, such as chicken pox and whooping cough, are prevalent in the city. It is considered impossible to check them and many believe it wise to let them run their course and thus protect mature years against what is at best but an inconvenience to young people.

The Short Course students close their five months of work Friday of this week. They return to their homes in various places, a few remaining in Thief River Falls. The course has enrolled 39 students, all of whom with the exception of about five, are from the country. They have proved themselves to be ideal students and all the teachers speak words of praise for the short course boys and girls. The studies taken up in this course were practical arithmetic, English with penmanship and business forms and correspondence, spelling, ordinary accounting, agriculture, manual training in wood and iron, domestic science, sewing, cooking, and some typewritting.

Thief River Falls Land Company Organized

A new land company, the Thief River Falls Land Company, has been organized, consisting of well-known business men of this vicinity. They will conduct a strictly upright business in real estate. Loans on improved real estate will also be made. They are directly connected with the Great West Investment Co., of Minneapolis, who will bring men from Iowa, Illinois and southern Minnesota to buy lands. They are hopeful of making a number of ready sales this summer of some of the best farm lands in the community. They are wishing to get as large a list of lands for sale as possible, and the names of the members of this company will insure every one having business with them a square deal.

Their office is over the First National Bank. The officers of the company are, Rasmus Oen, President; F. H. Gambell, Vice-President; and Henry Wilken, Secretary and Treasurer.

That Easy Three Hundred.

Soon after Senator John Sharp Williams arrived in Washington some years ago as a member of the house of representatives a man on the staff of a magazine approached him with a request for an interview of a thousand words on the outlook for the Democratic party. Reflecting that at that time the outlook was anything but bright, Williams said:

"I'll dictate it to my stenographer and mail it to you."

A month later the magazine man stepped up to Williams and handed him a check for $300.

"Is that for me?" asked Williams quizzically.

"Yes, sir."

"What for?"

"For that article you wrote for us on the outlook for Democracy."

"And this is authorship!" mused the lawmaker, smiling. "Well, it's the only easy money I ever made. What's the use of being a patriot anyhow?"—Popular Magazine.

Peacocks' Feathers.

Peacocks' feathers have been handed down to us from the ancient days of mythology as emblematical of treachery, evil and misfortune. The origin of this strange superstition is founded upon the following classical story: Osiris, king of Egypt, upon starting on his Indian expedition left his queen, Isis, regent, with Argus, his minister, as her chief adviser. Argus, with his hundred eyes, or, rather, his spies, soon made himself so formidable and powerful that he seized the queen regent, shut her up in a strong castle and proclaimed himself king of Egypt. Mercury was sent against him with a strong army, took him captive and cut off his head, whereupon Juno metamorphosed him into a peacock and set his spies in his tail. From this legend and the various additions made to it from time to time the belief has arisen that it is unlucky to have peacocks' feathers inside a house.

The Point of the Cape of Good Hope.

Cape point, which terminates the mighty headland known as the Cape of Good Hope, consists of a towering promontory of sandstone, which rises from the sea to an altitude of 840 feet. At the base of this stands a big solitary column which is known as Vasco da Gama's pillar. The lighthouse which here illuminates the meeting place of the Atlantic and Indian oceans is one of the most important and most useful of its kind. It is visible from a distance of thirty-six miles. The cliff scenery is wild and sublime, the rocks are magnificent, and the far reaching sea, with the fierce surf beating on the iron bound coast, is impressive. In the water directly beneath the cliff sharks are abundant.

Soldiers' Superstitions.

Among the numerous superstitions of the Cossacks there is none stronger than the belief that they will enter heaven in a better state if they are personally clean at the time they are killed. Consequently before an expected battle they perform their toilets with scrupulous care, dress themselves in clean garments and put on the best they have. This superstition is not confined to the Cossacks alone, but is widely prevalent in all branches of the Russian army.

Might Have Changed History.

Here is the story of an averted tragedy which, if it had not been averted, might have changed the whole course of modern history in Europe. The time was about three weeks after Sadowa. The place was the little village of Pirsdorf, about thirty miles from Vienna. King William of Prussia and Bismarck were there, and they sat down on a terrace outside a small cafe to drink beer. Kern, an Austrian forester, saw them. He regarded them as the deadly enemies of his country. He was an excellent marksman, and he had his double barreled gun with him. Taking aim from behind cover, he was about to fire when his wife, seeing what he was after and fearing the consequences, clutched him by the coattails. He turned to argue with her, and before the argument was finished the king and his chancellor had disappeared. So nothing happened. But if Kern had been allowed to fire there might have been no German empire.—Westminster Gazette.

Singing on Carpet.

Standing upon carpet has a tendency to muffle the voice, since a layer of inelastic and nonconducting material is then interposed between the seat of voice production and the floor, which, when it is not covered, acts as a sound board, taking up the vibrations and giving increased effect and distinctness to them. This can be illustrated by placing a timepiece first upon a rug or carpet and then upon the bare floor. In the latter position the ticking is much louder, because the vibrations of the clock are then much more forcibly communicated to the floor and so to the air of the room and finally to the ear by actual contact between the clock and the floor. A carpet damps or kills these vibrations because it is a bad conductor of sound. The difference, which is so audible in this case, is in some degree to be detected when the voice is heard under similar conditions.

Waked Up John.

"John," said Mrs. Dorkins, "stop reading your paper just a moment."

"All right. What is it, Maria?"

"Before you come home this afternoon I want you to go to some store and get me a dozen thumb tacks. Think you can remember that?"

"Certainly."

"If there's any more than one size—listen now—I want the larger ones. You won't forget?"

"No."

Late that afternoon Mr. Dorkins remembered.

He rushed over to the nearest department store.

"I wish you'd tell me," he said to the floorwalker, "where you keep your—er—thumbscrews."

"Chamber of horrors, top floor, northwest corner," said the floorwalker, pushing him in the direction of the elevator.—Chicago Tribune.

Nest of a Turtle.

The manner in which a turtle constructs her nest is both interesting and suggestive, it being one of the most expeditious operations ever performed by that slowmoving creature. After selecting a suitable spot she begins digging out a hole with her hind legs, moving slowly in a circle and throwing the excavated sand in a rim all around [illegible] into it, pulls the rim of sand over them and, rising on all four legs, lets her body drop heavily on the covering sand until she has made it as compact as any part of the surrounding beach. She then makes a few false demonstrations on the shore to mislead inquisitive enemies and hastens to the sea as fast as she can travel.

Children and Books.

Dr. Johnson held views far in advance of his age on the subject of children's books. The child itself, he held, was the best judge. "I would put a child into a library (where no unfit books are) and let him read at his choice," he said. "A child should not be discouraged from reading anything he takes a liking to from a notion that it is above his reach. If that be the case the child will soon find it out and desist. If not he, of course, gains the instruction, which is so much the more likely to come from the inclination with which he takes up the study."

Old Fasting Advice.

Thomas Cogan in "The Haven of Health," published in 1583, discusses the no breakfast question at considerable length. "Touching breakfastes, whether or no they are to be used, it may be some question, because they are not mentioned in Galer and other ancient authors of Physicke, neither are they appointed by order of the universities, but only two meals of the day spoken of, which be dinner and supper. But the temperature of this our country is such that I think it good for Englishmen not to be long fasting. Yet some may better bide without than t'others. Children and young men until they came to the age of thirty-five may not be long fasting without inconvenience. Men of middle age—that is, from thirty-five to forty-nine—may better beare it. Old men, being not decrepite—that is, from fifty to seventy—may best of all abide fasting, but after seventy years they are to be dieted as children."—London Chronicle.

The Scorpion's Fainting Fit.

The scorpion that is placed in the center of a ring of coals does not commit suicide by stinging himself to death as has been claimed. In lands where the scorpion abounds it is a regular pastime among countrymen to ring a scorpion with fire and watch him commit, as is believed, the happy dispatch. Nevertheless the scorpion has the last laugh and not the spectator. The scorpion, though an inhabitant of torrid regions, is so delicately organized that a very slight increase above the normal temperature produces a condition in him analogous to a fainting fit. Driven desperate by the heat, he lashes his tail wildly, giving the impression that he is plunging his sting into his own body. Then he falls motionless. As a presumably dead scorpion has no further interest for the spectators, he is usually left where he has fallen, and after the fire has died down he recovers and crawls away.—Harper's.

A Novel Trap.

A short time ago a hunter found in a patch of woods in Connecticut eleven large blacksnakes tied up in hard knots and stone dead. Two telegraph wires ran through the woods overhead, and a few days before there had been a heavy blast set off in a quarry near by. This broke down the wires and started a colony of blacksnakes from their slumbers in a neighboring ledge. One of the wires was crossed in a distant city by a trolley wire, and hence the broken wires which lay near the snakes' den made a death trap. When the snakes came to the wires trailing on the ground one after another crossed over them, touching the ends of both wires at the same time. They thus "short circuited" them and received a shock which caused death. Immediately upon being shocked each snake curled up in a hard knot, thus opening the circuit and setting the trap again.

Life in Virginia in 1648.

In the old days in this country farming and manufacturing were carried on together to a very large extent. A letter written from Virginia in 1648 gives the following picture of life on the plantation of a certain Captain Matthews, a leading citizen of the colony: "He hath a fine house and all things answerable to it. He sows yearly store of hemp and flax and causes it to be spun. He keeps weavers and hath a tan house, causes leather to be dressed, hath eight shoemakers employed in their trade, hath forty negro servants and brings them up to trades in his house. He yearly sows abundance of wheat, barley, etc. The wheat he selleth at 4 shillings the bushel. He kills store of beeves and sells them to victual the ships when they come thither. He hath abundance of kine, a brave dairy, swine great store and poultry."

NOTICE

The attention of all residents of the city is hereby called to the cleaning up of their premises and adjoining alleys.

All manure, garbage and other waste matter must be removed before the warm weather sets in, in order to prevent breeding places for flies and other insects.

Manure and other garbage deposited on the river bank must be removed

The attention is also called to the ordinance which forbids the keeping of hogs within the city limits.

Every resident should take special pride in keeping his back yard as clean as his front yard, not for the sake of looks merely, but principally for the sake of the general health of the community and the prevention of disease.

Do not make it necessary for the Board of Health to send you a personal notice to clean-up.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents)$340.93) which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Lewis B. Geerlings and Nancy Geerlings his wife, mortgagors, to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, mortgagees, bearing date the 11th day of June 1910, with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota on the 13th day of June, 1910, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of mortgages on Page 178 and subsequently upon the division of Red Lake County and the creation of Pennington County, whereto the records of the herein described mortgage have been transcribed, and now appear in book 22 of mortgages at page 343 in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by the said First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota by written assignment, dated the 15th day of February, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington, County, Minnesota on the 16th day of February 1912 at 1:00 o'clock p. m., in book 8 of mortgages, on page 78.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date of this notice on said indebtedness the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) principal and interest, and whereas the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue by power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described, in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

To The Committee on Rules:

House of Representatives, United States Congress:

Whereas the workers in the woolen mills in the city of Lawrence, Mass., refuse to return to work in the mills without the increase of wages which all fairminded men admit is their rightful demand for their services; and Whereas the millowners, thru their powerful olitical machine, by virtue of ownership of the means of production, without which the workers are obliged to starve, are using the police and militia in forcing the workers to return to their places in open violation of law and the constitutional rights of the citizens of the United States; and Whereas the millowners in Lawrence are unwilling to give the striking employees a chance to produce wealth except on conditions dictated by the owners.

Therefore, be it resolved, by the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, that we respectfully pray the United States Congress for and investigation by that Honorable Body into the actual conditions existing in and about these mills; that the militia be withdrawn and that no further interference with strikers be allowed in their exercise of their rights and privileges of citizens of the United States; That the contending parties be left to settle their differences through an arbitration committee appointed by Congress; and Be it further resolved that we respectfully and urgently request your committee to report favorably upon the resolution introduced in Congress relating to the strike in Lawrence, and which is now in the hands of your committee.

Roll call:

Aldermen voting Yes; Roth, Gullrud, Tanem, Mousley and Bjorkman.

Aldermen voting No; None.

Resolution declared passed.

Arthur Tanem,
President of Council.
Approved Feb. 29th 1912.
Lars Backe, Mayor.

OTTERTAIL WANTS CONGRESSMAN.

Hon. A. G. Anderson, the popular mayor of Fergus Falls, is being urged by a large number of Republicans from all parts of the ninth district to become a candidate for Congress. Mr. Anderson is a most capable gentleman and if he should decide to enter the race, would get practically the solid vote of Otter Tail county and the neighboring counties where he is personally known, and would without doubt land the nomination and election.—Perham Bulletin.

When the Free Press called the above editorial to Mayor Anderson's attention he expressed surprise, saying that he is in no sense of the word a candidate, though admitting that quite a number of politicians, dissatisfied with Congressman Steenerson, have suggested that he become a candidate and have tendered him support

Two years ago Mr. Anderson was also under consideration as good timber for congressman, and the Free Press has known that he would be suggested this year. Congressman Steenerson was never personally popular in the district and the White Earth revelations have made him weaker than ever. Indeed, we know that men who have hitherto been his supporters have now turned away from him in disgust, and it is quite probable that there will be a concerted movement to bring out a good, clean, able man in opposition, and we have known that some of the foremost of the anti-Steenerson men believe that it is up to Otter Tail county to furnish the candidate.

In view of this feeling it is perfectly natural that Mayor Anderson should be favorably considered. He has made a record of exceptional efficiency in all positions he has occupied, and he has the ability and personailty to make an excellent record as congressman. Should the situation so shape itself that he becomes a candidate, it is certain, as the Bulletin says, that he would get practically the solid support of Otter Tail county, and if he made an active personal canvass of the towns in the district where he is not known he would rally to his support more than enough voters to give him the nomination and election.

The young folks enjoyed themselves at Usgaard's place last Saturday evening.

The Engelstads spent Sunday with M. Anderson's on the west side.

Miss Lillie Borgen and Nina Johnson of Thief River Falls visited last Sunday with Mrs. H. G. Halvorsons.

Mr. John Boe is back from Spooner where he has been logging this winter.

Mrs. Rod of Spooner was visiting at Engelstad's last week.

Mr. Ole Langseth intends to build a barn on his farm this summer and Mr. C. M. Lee is helping him getting the material ready.

Ben Erickson is moving his dredge to town where he intends shipping it south to some point along the Soo line.

Last Friday Messrs. Ole and Tom Linn took a trip east on the reservation looking for claims, returning well pleased with prospects.

Last Sunday Miss Louisa Engelstad and Mrs. Rod of Spooner visited the Rose Hill school after school hours. They and Mr. Otto Olsen, Prof. Has[illegible] and Miss Ward, teacher in Domestic science made a short call at the [illegible] home.

WILL ROOSEVELT WITHDRAW?

The North Dakota presidential primary, which attracted national attention yesterday, is over. It was admitted that it would have a determining influence in the fight between Roosevelt and La Follette, the opposing progressive candidates. The fact that North Dakota was Roosevelt's old home state made many believe that he could not be beaten there.

The fight there, however, was not so much against Roosevelt as it was against the stalwarts, who, bitterly opposed to La Follette and really for Taft, thought they saw a grand opportunity to execute a clever coupe by rallying under the standard of Roosevelt and thus shelve La Follette.

The question is, what will Roosevelt do? Regardless of what he does he is eliminated practically as a factor in the presidential race. We will venture the assertion that within a very few days Col. Roosevelt will make a public statement to the effect that he never was a candidate in the broad meaning of the word, and that he does not want to be considered as a candidate. He may come out stronger than that, but we believe it a pretty sure thing that he will make some kind of an announcement relative to his not being a candidate.

No wagers.—Crookston Times.

A CHANCE IN MINNESOTA, TOO.

Col. Roosevelt, expressing pleasure that President Taft is for the presidential primary even with large reservations, says that if Taft's supporters are sincere there are a number of states where legal presidential primaries can be arranged for.

He didn't mention Minnesota, but Minnesota is one of these states. There is plenty of time for an extra session of the legislature. Governor Eberhart, who alone can call an extra session, has expressed himself in favor of a legally guarded presidential primary. If he is sincere he will call an extra session of the Minnesota legislature to provide one, and also to pay the expenses of the session two hundred times over by increasing the railroad gross earnings tax.

If there is good faith in the professions of the Taft supporters that they favor proper primaries, here is a chance for one of them to make good.—Duluth Herald.

KITCHEN SHOWER FOR MISS GODWARD

Wednesday evening Miss Ruth Godward was the guest of honor at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Kretschmar and Mrs. Myrland, at the home of the latter. "Rum" was played at six tables. A most delicious lunch was served, after which the bride-to-be was presented with a number of useful kitchen utensils, many of which were also ornamental. A very enjoyable time was had by all present.

After each one had had his physical wants supplied the audience was turned over to Toastmaster, C. L. Dobner, who very mercifully called on only those slated by the program and even on these without allusion. In fact he played his part so well that it is safe to say that he will have an opportunity to act in that capacity again.

A large delegation of neighboring enthusiasts were present and helped to make the evening both enjoyable and instructive.

Those from out of town who partook in the festivities were H. L. Wood, W. F. Powell, L. Lamberson, A. N. Eckstrom, I. M. Mybro, Justice Carlson, Chas. Wittensten, J. Baugh, C. Schulz, Geo. G. [illegible] [illegible] locals or personal feelings [illegible] Hanna [illegible] issue in North Dakota than Dan Hanna is in Ohio or Bill Ward in New York.

"You will find in all progressive territory protest against the surrender of the the Progressive movement into the hands of soft shell Progressives and Reactionaries. The people are not following the politicians in their hasty jump to what they believed to be a band wagon. The result in North Dakota is proof that the great body of the people are notwilling to sacrifice the organization and movement which has cost a quarter of a century of struggle to a policy of expediency and compromises. They want to make headway in the solution of the social and economic problems that confront us. They demand deliverance from the burden of the thousands of millions of over capitalization of the great transporation, tariff, trust, and money monopolies. Political manipulation may have succeeded in obscuring the issues and bringing about temporary disorganization of the Progressive forces here at the Capital, but the people throughout the country never saw more clearly, never were more strongly united for Progress.

"In devoting my time so largely to public discussion of the issues throughout the country, I am confident that I shall be rendering my best public service at this time.

"No substantial legislation of importance to the people can be expected until both the executive and Congress shall hear from the country in a way to make it understood that the Progressive cause is the greatest power in the land and that it is still one of principle, not expediency."

pound for each additional pound or fraction thereof up to and including a total of eleven pounds. That is, a merchant in a small town or city could send out into the country by rural carrier a package of eleven pounds for 25 cents. This rate, however, applies only from the point where the route starts and to points on that route. This is the local parcel post feature of the bill. That same package of eleven pounds sent from New ork to the farmer on the route would pay the government $1.52.

Another feature of the bill is the provision providing for the appointment of a commission of six persons, three of whom shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and three by the President of the Senate, the purpose of the commission being to make a full and complete inquiry and investigation into the feasibility and propriety of the establishment of a general parcel post. MUST GET BUILDING PERMIT

Hereafter ordinance No. 73, relating to the getting of a permit for erection, moving and repairing of buildings, whether within the fire limits or not, will be strictly enforced, according to a recent decision of the Council.

The City clerk keeps a record of all permits issued by him, numbered in order of their issue, and a record giving details about the building erected or repaired. The applicant pays $1.00 for the permit.

The object in requesting that permits be obtained is to give the city and fire-warden opportunity to see that proper work is done. The fine for violation of ordinance No 73 is not less than $5.00 and not more than $50.00 and costs of prosecution or imprisonment for a period not exceeding sixty days.

A PAGE OF SHORT STORIES

A HOBO'S DREAMS

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

On a summer day two hoboes dropped off a freight train at the village of Bakersville and inquired for the home of Justice of the Peace Williams. They were directed to the largest house in the place, for the judge, as he was called, was the big man around there. He had several reputations, one of which was being down on railroad and highway tramps.

Judge Williams lay in a hammock under a cherry tree in his front yard when he heard the gate open. As he sat up and looked he rubbed his eyes. Was it possible that he saw aright—two husky hoboes at the gate as bold as brass? Yes, they were there. As the judge continued to stare one of them retreated, but the other advanced with a swaggering and defiant gait. The gait alone raised the judge's gall. It could belong to none other than a beetle browed villain.

"Hello, old hoss!" was the salutation as the hobo paused.

Old hoss! Never before in his life had the great man been thus addressed, and it was now right in his own yard. Could it be possible that his ears had heard the words?

At that moment a constable arrived on the run, and he was ordered to escort the hobo into court without a moment's delay. The man didn't resist. On the contrary, he grinned and went willingly. He continued to grin as he got a ninety day sentence and was taken over to the jail. He seemed perfectly satisfied. His comrade was chased a mile, but got away.

The hobo had served five days of his sentence and was the only inmate of the jug when he said to the jailer as his breakfast was handed in:

"If you was to dream the same dream five nights runnin' would you think there was anything to it?"

"Five times over, eh?" queried the jailer.

"Five times straight—same tree, same ground, same diggin' down three feet and hearin' the spade strike a box."

"What did you dream you were digging for?"

"Gold."

The jailer couldn't tell whether he was being guyed or not, and he turned away without any further questions. Next day he hoped to hear the hobo say he had dreamed for the sixth time, but the matter was not mentioned until two more nights had passed. Then the prisoner fidgeted around and finally said:

"I wish I knowed an honest man around here."

"Why?" was naturally asked.

"He'd have to be as square as a dot. If I knowed such a man I'd tell him something worth lookin' into."

"Been dreaming that dream again?"

"Yes. It sticks right by me. I'm beginnin' to think the gold is there."

The jailer tried to get him to say more, but he was a clam. He had said enough to excite interest and cupidity, however, and that day the jailer took a scout around. The hobo had spoken of a lone tree. In two hours' walk the jailer discovered forty lone trees within a mile of the jail. There might be a box of gold at the roots of any one of them, but he couldn't spare weeks and months to find out. He was now a believer in the hobo's dream. He wanted a share of that treasure, and so he played a new hand.

"Look here, Sam," he said to his prisoner; "I'm an honest man and a man of my word. If you've got anything on hand I'll go in with you on an even whack."

"You see, I don't know you," was the reply.

"But I tell you I'm all right. I've lived right here for thirty years, and no man can say I owe him a cent or ever broke my word."

"There may be nothing to it."

"But tell me what you dreamed."

"I dreamed of diggin' down three feet under a certain tree and comin' upon a box."

"And what was in the box?"

"I hadn't got it out of the hole nary time when I woke up, but there was a chinky sound like coin when the spade struck it—maybe gold and maybe silver."

"And where was the tree located?"

"Nixy. I'll attend to that when I get out."

The jailer told Judge Williams about the case. The judge believed in dreams. He called at the jail and threatened the hobo in vain. Then he coaxed. No use. Then he offered to buy the secret, and after two or three days $200 was settled on as the price. The prisoner had an idea that there was $10,000 in the box, but he wasn't greedy. Two hundred dollars would last him the rest of his natural life. The agreement was that when the spade struck the box the $200 was to be passed to him. The judge and the jailer took him from the jug at night, after his dreams had reached the number of twelve, and he walked straight to a crabapple tree half a mile away and took the spade and went to digging. In five minutes the tool struck a box. The money was passed to him, and while the judge and the jailer were struggling over the spade and the box the hobo vanished.

There was a box. It had been buried by the other hobo. It contained sand—just sand. The judge called the jailer an infernal fool, and the jailer called the justice an unmitigated ass. There was never another hobo sent to jail for [illegible].

MY LITTLE SISTER

By EDWARD L. SPENCER

I was brought up in luxury, but without father, mother, brother or sister. When I became six years old and was still kept from going about with other boys nature rebelled against not having playmates, and those who were responsible for me were obliged to make some provision in that direction.

I lived in the house in which I was born, my father having died before and my mother at the time of my birth. I knew nothing about this, being taken care of by a Mrs. Perkins. One day she brought into my playroom a girl about my own age and told me she had a little sister for me. At that age I felt no great surprise as to the existence of a sister, though I remember asking some questions as to why I had never seen her before. I would have preferred a brother, but was nevertheless delighted to be relieved of my loneliness, and from that time forward my life was very different from what it had been.

Lucy was my sister's name, and since we were kept from other children we grew very much attached to each other. I was a fiery little fellow, while Lucy was of the quiescent kind. She was always soothing me. There was a good deal of the boy in me or I might have become effeminate, playing as I did all the while with a girl. I think I did not miss boy associates as much as I would had I not become so much attached to Lucy.

The reason why I was kept so close at home was that my mother, knowing that she must leave me to the care of others, had manifested to Mrs. Perkins, who was to bring me up, a fear that I would learn "badness" from my associates, which she, my mother, would not be with me to counteract. Had it not been for a strong masculine nature in me I would have been spoiled as a result of this motherly timidity. Mrs. Perkins engaged tutors for me and for Lucy as well, and, being educated alone, when we were fifteen years old we knew as little about the world as when we had been just brought together.

It was at this time that Lucy and I began to discuss our situation. Why was it that we had no parents like other children? Why had we never met till we were about six years old? These and other similar questions came up for discussion, and we asked Mrs. Perkins for answers to them. But she evaded giving direct answers, and we were no wiser than we were before. All we could get out of her was, "When you come of age you will know all about it."

When I was in my sixteenth year I was sent to boarding school, where I prepared for college, Lucy being sent at the same time to a girls' seminary. I was dreadfully homesick for Lucy, and she wrote me that she suffered the same for me. During my stay at school there was no one to tell me anything about myself more than I knew. Two years after that I went to college, and the period in which I was born over which seemed to hang a veil began to interest me. I was old enough to make an investigation, but when Mrs. Perkins said I would know all about it when I was twenty-one I preferred to wait. One thing especially deterred me, a dread lest I should find out something I would rather not know.

While I was at college Lucy discovered what was being kept from us, but she did not tell me. I came home one vacation during my senior year at college and met her there. I threw my arms about her and kissed her, as I had been accustomed to do at our meetings, and was surprised to see a blush on her cheeks. I wondered at the time what it meant, but it soon passed out of my mind.

However, from this time I noticed a great change in Lucy's treatment of me. She seemed constrained. I was telling her one day of a girl friend of mine who I liked very much. Lucy looked serious. I persisted in sounding my friend's praises, and Lucy suddenly got up to leave the room. I caught her and, pulling her down beside me, told her that she need not fear for my deserting her for a sweetheart or a wife, for I would never marry and did not see how I could bear to have her marry. This seemed to satisfy her, and she smiled at me through her tears.

I was twenty-one years old a month after being graduated from college. A lawyer had notified me that he would call on me on my birthday, and he did so. Lucy and I were both at home. The lawyer said he wished to see us together and told the secret. My past or most of it has been told. Lucy's was as follows:

Her father died when she was two years old and her mother when she was three. Our mothers were sisters enjoying an undivided fortune. They had arranged that we should be brought up together and for each other. The fact of our being kept in ignorance that we were cousins was that in the beginning of our intimacy Mrs. Perkins had told me she had a little sister for me. She thought nothing of it at the time, but put off telling us the truth till we had grown to an age at which she did not like to disabuse our minds. Besides this, she thought the plan of our mothers to unite us when we came of age would be best served by our being kept in ignorance of the truth.

The will of my mother and of Lucy's mother expressed a wish that we should marry.

And we did.

Just Cause

For Forbidding a Wedding

By OSCAR COX

Just before the civil war broke out there was a colored man living on a plantation in Tennessee called Courtney St. Leger. This aristocratic name seems so out of place for a negro slave that a word of explanation is necessary. It had been derived from Colonel St. Leger, who had owned the man in Louisiana, and a previous master named Courtney, for at that time negroes took their names from their owners.

Now, Courtney had had a wife on the Courtney plantation, and from her he had been divorced by the fact only that he had been sold to Colonel St. Leger. While under the colonel's ownership he had married another wife, and a few years later he had been sold to a Mr. Harland of Tennessee. Not long after he had been bought by Mr. Harland he concluded to take a wife from among the women owned by that gentleman.

Susan Clarke, whose name had come to her from a former master, had been bought in New Orleans. How many husbands she had had would not have been known on the Harland plantation had it not been that Pete Lefevre, one of her fellow slaves in Tennessee, and his wife Phoebe had been bought at the same time with her and knew of at least two that she had had under different ownerships.

Courtney and Susan concluded to blot out their remembrances of past connubial bliss and trials by taking each other for lawful partners. Missey Harland, as they called their mistress, was a good woman and would like to have stemmed the current of such marriages among her slaves, but the system of slavery was not condusive to squeamishness on the subject, and she was obliged to take the situation as she found it. So long as couples were sold apart there were to be found cases wherein a strict regard for the letter of the divine institution of marriage was not observed. So when permission to marry was handed in at the manor house it was granted. The wedding took place in an Episcopal church.

The rector was colored, and the wedding guests were also people of color. The pair marched up the aisle to the chancel, the groom with a magnolia in his buttonhole, the bride in a white muslin gown given her by her mistress. The ceremony went on glibly till that part of the service was reached in which the clergyman says:

> If any man can show just cause why they may not lawfully be joined together let him now speak or forever after hold his peace.

Then Pete Lefevre arose from among the wedding guests and said:

"I know why Court St. Leger shouldn't marry Sue Clarke. Fust off, Pete, he got three wives areddy, and Sue, she got two husban's I knows on and"—

The remarks were interrupted by Uncle Ben Parker, who arose with a threatening look on his face. The bride, the groom, the clergyman and guests all changed their astonished glances from Pete to Uncle Ben.

"Wha' fo' yo' mis'able Louisiana nigger yo' cum hyar fo' t' mak' distu'bance in de house ob de Lord? Yo' shut up dat red and black mouf o' yourn or dis hyar congregation gwine to put yo' out!"

"How can I be asked to show just cause why Court and Sue mayn't lawfully be jined togedder and yo' say yo' gwine put me out ef I do?"

Ben scratched his head, looked like a bull just about to lift a rail fence with his horns and finally said:

"Dat part o' de ceremony wa'n't meant fo' niggers at all. It war meant fo' white folks."

"You's all wrong," said Mose Tucker, coming into the fray. "White folks don' pay no mo' 'tention to dat dan niggers. De finest people an' de richest people in de worl' hab de mos' husbands and wives."

"How dey do 't?" asked Uncle Ben.

"By divo'ce—jist as easy as fallin' off'n a greased log. But dem kind o' weddin's tak' money. Dat's de reason de richer dey air de easier it air to swap husban's and wives."

"Bredderin'," said the parson, looking benignly over his spectacles, "you's all gwine wrong. De Lord ain't no suspecter ob pussons. He hab de same law fo' de white man and de nigger. It's de interfretation wha' mak's de difference. De white man interfrets de word accordin' to his possessions, de nigger accordin' to his necessities. De interfretation in dis case is dat it is all right fo' Pete to show just cause why dis marriage sha'n't tak' place, but accordin' to de interfretation Court and Sue libin' under de auction hammer, de Lord ain't gwine to hold 'em to de same account as dem as is worf a million dollars. Now, yo' Pete, yo' shet up or I gib my divine permission as pastor ob dis chu'ch fo' to put yo' out."

Pete subsided, the ceremony proceeded, and at its conclusion Court and Sue sailed smilingly down the aisle and out of the church.

"Pa'son," said an old darky to the officiating clergyman, "dey war anudder freological p'int in de sarvice yo' didn't say nuthin' about."

"Wha' dat?"

"Why, it's, let no man put asunder. Dat don't mean nottin 'bout de las' time de man or de woman war put asunder. It only mean dis time. And dis time don't hab nottin' to do wid de nex' time nudder."

The Half Fool

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

One day when Abner Gray appeared in the village of Medina for the first time the first citizen he met sized him up for a half fool. He appeared to be a young man of about twenty-four and was stout and lusty. About all that he had to say was that he was looking for work, and he found it at the livery stable. He was given work at $10 a month, which the stableman had been paying double that to have done, but he had said to Abner:

"You see, you may run across a buried treasure, and if you do it's all yours."

He worked for the liveryman for two months, and then, having found no treasure, he decided to quit his job. There was a rush to secure his services. He was a good worker, and he could be had at half price. He put in a month at the village tavern, and as the treasure still eluded him he engaged himself to Deacon Spinney.

The deacon had a talk with Abner. He was not going to deceive the man in the least.

"Abner," he said, in his slow and honest way, "I have got ten acres in corn."

"Yes, sir."

"I want to hire you to attend to them."

"Do you think the British buried any gold in that field?" was asked.

"Um! I can't say. Folks are saying that they buried gold somewhere around here. It might have been in my cornfield, and it might not. If you want 40 cents a day and board till that corn is shelled you can go ahead."

"But I must be looking for buried treasure while I work."

"And I'll allow you to do that."

"And if I find a box of gold?"

"It will be all yours—that is, half of it shall be yours."

"But I want it all. Mr. Jones, the carpenter, wants me to go to work for him. He says a carpenter often finds buried treasure, and he always keeps it all."

"Well, I can afford to be as liberal as Mr. Jones. Go to work, Abner, and make the dirt fly."

The village was still keeping track of the half fool. There was a general grin when it was known that he had gone to work for Deacon Spinney, and he was accosted on all sides with:

"Hoe away, Abner. You'll find that box of gold before snow flies."

"How deep do you suppose they buried the box?" Abner would ask in a whisper.

"About two feet. You see, General Washington was hot on their trail and shooting them in the back, and they wouldn't have time to dig more than two feet."

"And how much gold would there be in the box?"

"At least $20,000 and maybe double that. The British were mighty mean about some things, but when they buried their gold they heaped up the measure."

"All right. I'll be looking for that box every day."

Abner had been working in that cornfield for ten days and doing two men's work in one when Deacon Spinney found his conscience troubling him. He therefore walked down to the field to say:

"Abner, I think I ought to tell you that I don't believe the British ever buried any gold hereabout. I can't find in history that there were ever any British soldiers as far west as this."

"So you are going back on your word?" asked the hired man.

"Well, n-n-no, but I want you to understand that I don't believe there is any treasure here. It's 40 cents a day."

"But I'm to have all the treasure I find?"

"Exactly."

"Then it's all right?"

"But I'd like to have you tell people that I don't believe there is any treasure here."

"I will."

Abner kept his promise. When asked about his wages he would reply:

"It's 40 cents a day and board and lodgings and all the treasure I find."

There are people yet in Medina who will tell you that on the afternoon of the seventeenth day of corn hoeing Abner Taylor was seen jumping up and down and running about and swinging his arms. Those who saw him from a distance did not go near him, thinking he had been attacked by bumblebees. No inhabitant of the village saw him drop from his window that night and head for the cornfield on the run nor return four hours later. It was the same next night, and on the morning after Abner said to the deacon:

"I have found the treasure and am going away."

"What, what!" exclaimed the deacon. "You say you have found something?"

"Yes, a box of gold."

"In my cornfield?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

"Half a bushel or so. I couldn't lift the box."

"And where is it? Abner, I think we must divide up that money between us."

But Abner took to his heels, and Medina saw him no more. They found the empty box, and they almost wept as they figured on the amount it had held, but the half fool had [illegible] and was far away.

Her Advice

By SARAH J. TUCKER

Two farms lay side by side, the one belonging to old Charnley, the other to young Peterson. Peterson had inherited his farm with a debt on it and had no money with which to stock or work it. The season for planting was coming on, and Charnley was looking out for hands. Peterson told him that if he would hire him for the whole season he would work for him. To this Charnley agreed.

One morning in April Albert Peterson was plowing in Charnley's field. The trees were just taking on that delicate shade of pale green which is so beautiful while the air was balmy with the first warm breeze coming up from the south. Albert rested his horses, tied the reins to the plow handle and, leaning against a fence, looked out upon the pleasant prospect. At intervals came a few notes from a bird or a pair of birds building a nest in a treetop. It was music to Albert, who loved the country and hated the city. He was thinking about the latter and how he should miss the former, for farming had not paid his father nor did he see how it could pay him. So he expected in the fall to go to town and try for a position in some store or manufactory. Suddenly he felt a pair of hands clasped over his eyes. They were not hard and coarse, but soft and fine. They must be a woman's.

"Guess who I am?"

"No guessing is required. Your voice gives you away. You are Ethel Charnley."

The clasp was loosened. He turned and on the other side of the fence saw a girl of nineteen.

"You look as if you had lost your best friend," she said. "What's the matter?"

"Oh, I was thinking how lovely the country is, and I've got to leave it in the fall for the city. I have no money to work my farm, and I don't propose to work for other people. Besides, farming doesn't pay."

"Do you know why it doesn't pay?"

"No; do you?"

"I've been reading in a farmer's journal that it could be made to pay if practiced scientifically. They say a few acres worked on scientific principles is far better than a great many worked in the old fashioned, blundering way. Why don't you go to some of those colleges where they teach new methods and learn how they do it?"

"I never thought of that," said Albert meditatively. But presently he added:

"To obtain money to pay my expenses while studying I'd have to sell my farm, and when I got it all learned I wouldn't have a farm to work."

There was a short silence, which the girl broke:

"Suppose you get the education and leave the rest to—well, to your own endeavors afterward. You'll be supplied with a capital better than a farm, for a farm is no use if you don't know how to make it pay."

"Well, Miss Longhead, what else do you recommend?"

"After I'd got the education it seems to me I would take a position for awhile in the service of some of those men in the city who handle farm produce. I don't see much use of learning how to get good crops if you don't know how to get paying prices for them."

Albert looked at her in surprise. "Where did you pick up all that?" he asked.

"I read a great deal. There's a lot in our country papers now we used not to get. Then I think about what I read. It has shown me that our old fashioned ways of farming are passing out.

"Farming is going to be like manufacturing. It is manufacturing in a sense. We mix chemicals with the ground and manufacture crops. The manufacturers of goods know as much about the business of selling as of making them. Why shouldn't it be the same with the farmer?"

Albert gaped at this slender girl and said:

"Whoever would think that a young woman, who couldn't guide this plow once across the field, would stand there telling me, a strong man, what to do? I'll not only go to college in the fall, but I'll write at once for bulletins announcing their courses of study and all that and nights when I'm not at work I'll be making my preparations."

Five years from that time Albert Peterson returned from his college and his business training. He stopped at the Charnley farm and, seeing a young woman directing some field hands preparing the soil for planting, said:

"I'll give you some points on that."

And he proceeded to lecture them for half an hour while they listened eagerly.

"Is that you, Bert?" asked the woman.

"Yes. I've finished what you advised one spring morning five years ago."

"Well, I'm glad to see you. Come into the house."

While Peterson had been preparing himself for a life work time had been preparing a field of labor for him. Old Charnley had died and left his property to his daughter. She had the farm, Peterson the knowledge. So they made a match, and today a small part of the Charnley farm is paying far more than the whole paid under the old system of farming. The owners look forward to the day when they will work all their land and make a small fortune every [illegible]

A Hunt For a Will

By JOEL R. WITHERS

Hearing that there would be an auction sale of furniture in a dwelling house the owner of which had recently died and that among the lot were some rare old pieces, I determined to attend the sale. This was because of a fancy I had for such things and not because I could afford to possess them, for I was poor. I went to the sale to see the articles, not to buy any of them.

Among those present was a girl who watched the proceedings with an interest very different from the rest. She attracted me so far that I forgot the rarities in her. It seemed to me that she was waiting and watching for some particular thing to be put up for sale. It came at last. A desk perhaps a hundred years old made of rosewood and handsomely inlaid was pulled forward where all could see it, and the bidding commenced.

Some one made a beginning by offering $20. The girl I have mentioned bid twenty-two. Another bid of twenty-five followed. A number of persons seemed to want the desk, and it was run up to a hundred dollars, when the girl ceased to bid. I cannot forget the look of disappointment, almost of despair, with which she gave up her effort to possess it. Why it was so desirable to her I could only conjecture. She did not appear to be a person who could afford luxuries, so I concluded that between her and the desk there must be some association. Perhaps it had belonged to one near and dear to her.

I had been saving in a small way and had $300 in bank. I determined to bid as high as what I thought the desk would bring in case I wished to sell it again and offered $110. My bids were raised till I finally offered $200, when the others dropped out and I secured the desk.

Turning to the girl who had been so interested in it, I told her that I didn't need it and if at any time she wished to possess it and had the means to pay for it I would be happy to sell it to her for what I had paid. In reply to this she asked me if I would permit her to make a thorough examination of the desk for something she thought might be concealed in it. I gave her the address to which it would be taken and told her that she might call the next afternoon.

As soon as I got the desk I opened every drawer, searched every pigeonhole, rammed my hand in every receptacle it possessed. It had evidently been thoroughly cleaned out, for I could not find a scrap of paper. The same afternoon the girl came, and as soon as I showed her the desk she began to press her fingers on every part of it.

"Oh," I said, "you are looking for a secret drawer."

"I am."

At this I joined my efforts to hers, but without avail. I not only pressed with my thumb, but with a little hammer, tapping continuously for half an hour. Nothing came of it. Then I invited the girl to tell me what she was looking for. She said that the house and furniture belonged to her mother's brother, who had died childless. He had always liked her and had once said to her, "I'll fix you some day." He had died without a will. There were a great many heirs-at-law to the estate, and she, not being a blood relative, would get nothing. She was not strong and could not very well earn a living by working like other girls. In fact, she had tried to do so, but had been obliged to give it up. Her uncle had once showed her this desk and told her that he kept in it his most important papers. It had not occurred to her that he meant her to take note of what he said till after his death, when no will was found.

I would have knocked the desk to pieces, but could not afford to lose the money I had put into it, and the girl had no means of her own to pay for it. She went away very much disappointed. I took her name and address and told her that I would do some more hunting and if anything was discovered would let her know of it. But this was simply to break her disappointment, for we had made a thorough search.

A month passed, during which I thought a good deal of the matter and tried to locate a space capable of holding a secret drawer, but I could not tell with certainty without taking the desk apart. My taste for old furniture led me to read any book I could find on the subject, and in one of them I saw it stated that some secret drawers in desks made during the eighteenth century had been of metal instead of wood.

Then an idea occurred to me.

Among my odds and ends was a pocket compass. I took it to the desk and held it near where a drawer would likely be if at all. I had not gone very far before I got a deflection of the needle. Moving it about near this point, I at last came to a place where there was the greatest deflection. With my knife I ripped off a strip of veneering and uncovered a round button the size of the tip of my finger. Out popped a steel drawer about ten inches long, but not over an inch square. There was a rolled paper in it, which I removed and found to be a will. Scanning it, I saw that the entire estate bequeathed by it was to be given to the girl whose name and address I had.

There is a sequel to this story, but the subject matter of that is a love affair.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ARE MICROBES IN YOUR SCALP?

It Has Been Proved That Microbes Cause Baldness.

Professor Unna of Hamburg, Germany, and Dr. Sabourand, the leading French dermatologist, discovered that a microbe causes baldness. Their theory has time and again been amply verified through research experiments carried on under the observation of eminent scientists. This microbe lodges in the Sebum, which is the natural hair oil, and when permitted to flourish it destroys the hair follicles and in time the pores entirely close, and the scalp gradually takes on a shiny appearance. When this happens there is no hope of the growth of hair being revived.

We have a remedy which will, we honestly believe, remove dandruff, exterminate the microbe, promote good circulation in the scalp and around the hair roots, tighten and revitalize the hair roots, and overcome baldness, so long as there is any life left in the hair roots.

We back up this statement with our own personal guarantee that this remedy called Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will be supplied free of all cost to the user if it fails to do as we state.

It will frequently help to restore gray and faded hair to its original color, providing loss of color has been caused by disease; yet it is in no sense a dye. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic accomplishes these results by aiding in making every hair root, follicle, and pigment gland strong and active, and by stimulating a natural flow of coloring pigment throughout the hair cells.

We exact no obligations or promises—we simply ask you to give Rexall "93" Hair Tonic a thorough trial and if not satisfied tell us and we will refund the money you paid us for it. Two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store—The Rexall Store.

A Bit of Railroad History.

"There is a grave in Greenwood cemetery," said an old time railroad man, "the stone at the head of which bears only the name of the man whose remains are buried there, the date of his birth and the date of his death. Yet that man, John Raymond, built the first mile of railroad for commercial use and designed for locomotive power ever put down on the American continent.

"That was in 1828, and that initial mile of railroad was the beginning of the Delaware and Hudson Canal company's railroad between the head of its canal at Honesdale, Pa., and its coal mines at Carbondale. And on that first mile of track the first locomotive to turn a wheel in America was run in August, 1829.

Professor Brander Matthews at a dinner in New York once said of literary criticism:

"A good deal of it, too, is biased. A good deal of it is like Mr. Walton's. During the Christmas holidays Mr. Walton gave a party in his daughter's honor, and at this party the young girl read from an improvised platform chapters out of her book. Her fond old father was carried away by the reading. Horses With Jewel Caskets.

Every great race horse in England has his special toilet case, marked with his name and provided with a special lock. Each animal has his own basins, pans and pails for the toilet, his feeding utensils, brushes and combs.

A race horse has many sets of towels of various grades and has blankets of various weights for all weathers. These are marked and numbered and are kept beautifully clean and well aired. The belongings of the horse are carried about in his toilet case when traveling.

Besides all this luxury, every great horse nowadays must have a jewel case, and with age and success the collection frequently becomes very valuable. In the casket, which is a compartment of the box, are kept the various trinkets presented by admirers. These consist largely of articles of wear, such as bridles finished in silver and gold, silver chained and mounted halters, and combs and brushes mounted in handsome style.—London Tit Bits.

Golf and a Prince.

"Golf has its humors," said a champion player. "And this struck me particularly in a conversation at a golf club that I once had with a Persian prince. The prince, as he sat on the club piazza watching the various champions drive off, drawled:

"'I don't see very much in golf. No object is to be gained by the depositing of a white ball in a subterranean cavity, and if any object were to be gained the shortest and surest method would surely be to carry the ball in the hand from cavity to cavity.'

"'But, prince,' I said, 'the difficulty of getting the ball into the cavities, as you call them, is what constitutes the attraction of the game.'

"'The difficulty constitutes the attraction, eh?' The prince frowned. 'Well,' he went on, 'it would be more difficult to shave with a coal shovel than a razor, but I don't think many men are tempted on that account to remove their beards each morning in that way.'"—Exchange.

Undertakers.

In England in 1614 undertakers were men of influence who undertook for a consideration to get such persons returned to parliament as would prove submissive to the royal will of King James I. The three chief undertakers of 1614 were Lords Bacon, Somerset and Neville. They undertook to bribe the chief speakers and men of influence in parliament that year over to the side of the king, with but partial success. Then there were undertakers in Ireland in 1608. They were English and Scotch colonists sent to north Ireland and were each allotted 2,600 acres of land. They were men of capital and undertook to pay a mark a year for every six acres and to admit no recusant for tenants; hence the name as applied to them. But neither the histories nor the dictionaries give any reason for calling the men who bury our dead undertakers.

Granite Telegraph Poles.

The great abundance of granite rocks and the lack of timber in the southern part of Switzerland have led to the employment of the former for purposes usually filled by the latter. Thus in many sections of this southern country the fences are of granite instead of wood, the supports for the grapevines are granite posts, and pavements, etc., are of granite. Perhaps the most striking departure from the ordinary, however, is the use of granite pillars in place of the usual wooden telegraph, telephone and electric power transmission poles. Near Lake Como and Lake Maggiore the old highroads originally constructed by the Romans are fringed with granite pillars eighteen feet high carrying telegraph wires.—Popular Mechanics.

Munchausen.

Many a reader of the fictitious adventures of the famous hero of the "Munchausenaid" (which was first published in English at Oxford during the lifetime of this prince of all liars) has no conception that the hero was a real person. Baron Hieronymus Karl Friedrich von Munchausen was a Hanoverian nobleman, a subject of the first three Georges. He was born in 1720 and died in 1797. He took service in a Russian cavalry regiment, but retired in old age to his ancestral estate at Bodenwerder, in Hanover, where he became notorious for the magnificent lies about his military adventures with which he used to entertain his neighbors at his hospitable board. A collection of these stories, entitled "Vade mecum fur lustige Leute," was published at Berlin in 1781 without the baron's permission. The English work "Baron Munchausen's Narrative of His Marvelous Travels and Campaigns in Russia," was an expansion and improvement of the Berlin collection.

Marriage by Capture.

"Marriage among Wa-Unga of northeast Rhodesia is much less of a formality than among the neighboring tribes, betrothal being unnecessary and very often the parents know nothing of the marriage," says a writer in the Geographical Journal. "In the old days before they came under the government, marriage by capture was common, the abduction being done in canoes. In fact, the lake tribes seemed to be continually raiding each other, and among fellow tribesmen, too, capturing sheep, goats and women. Often raids would be made on Wa-Wisa villages on the banks of the rivers. The raiders, waiting till the men of the village were out, would approach in their canoes and catch all the women they could. As the rule of Europeans, with European law, gets a firmer hold this marriage by capture will presumably give way entirely to the common method of marriage by barter. The local value of a woman is one sheep (market value about 75 cents). In the case of a [illegible], who was killed, compensation was fixed at one canoe, one sheep and a string of beads."

How the Name "Turncoat" Started.

The opprobrious epithet, turncoat, took its rise from one of the first dukes of Savoy, whose dominions lying open to the incursions of the two contending houses of Spain and France he was obliged to temporize and fall in with that power that was most likely to distress him, according to the success of their arms, one against the other. So, being frequently obliged to change sides, he humorously got a coat made that was blue on one side and white on the other and might be indifferently worn either side out. While in the Spanish interest he wore the blue side out, and the white side was the badge for the French; hence he was called Emanuel, surnamed the Turncoat, by way of distinguishing him from other princes of the same name of that house.—[illegible] Rumbaugh, "Gleanings For the Curious."

Civil Service In Anam.

A novel method of identifying the work of candidates is employed in civil service examinations in Anam. The examination itself somewhat resembles similar examinations in China. Each student squats in his little hut while he works at the tests provided to show his literary taste and intelligence. The subject during the last examination was the teachings of Confucius and the candidates prepared [illegible] commentaries. The examination lasts fifty hours. At the end of the day's work each candidate, when delivering his papers for handing in, [illegible] and retains a little piece from the first sheet. When the best compositions have been selected the candidates having the pieces that fit the torn places are declared winners in the competition.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Above Market Value.

Lady Customer (pleasantly)—I hear you are about to get married, Mr. Ribbs. I suppose I must congratulate you.

Mr. Ribbs (the local butcher, doubtfully)—Well, I dunno so much about congratterlations, mum. It's costing me a pretty penny, I can tell you. Mrs. Ribbs as is to be, she wants 'er trousseau, you know, an' then there's the furnishin' an' the license an' the parson's fees, an' then I 'ave to give 'er an' 'er sister a piece of joolery each. An', wot with one thing an' another—she's a 'eavy woman, as you know, mum, thirteen stun odd—I reckon she'll cost me best part o' two and eleven a pun before I git 'er 'ome.—London Answers.

The Iron Glove.

A refinement of cruelty is the torture of the "iron glove," as it is called, which used to be common in Morocco. A lump of quicklime is placed in a man's hand, which is closed up into a fist. Then the fist is tightly bound with leather thongs and plunged into a tub of cold water. The agony soon becomes extreme. The torture is continued for eight or ten days, until in the end mortification ensues and probably death.

A Southpaw Winder.

"I wish you would tell me what is the matter with my watch," said the girl.

It was her first watch, a birthday present, and as the jeweler took it and deftly wound the stem between the thumb and index finger of his right hand she watched him closely as if it were an operation involving some mysterious incantation.

"It seems to be all right," said the jeweler, handing it back to her. "You ought to keep it wound up though."

"It looks very simple when you do it," replied the girl, "but I could wind it all day and it wouldn't go for me."

And then the jeweler saw where the difficulty was. "No wonder," he said, laughing. "I see you are left handed, and instead of winding it up you've been turning the stem the wrong way."—New York Press.

Masks and Faces.

Masks are of very ancient origin. In a tomb 3,000 years old at Mycenae Dr. Schliemann found two bodies with faces covered by masks of gold. One of the masks represented the head of a lion. Among ancient Greeks the lion mask was a sign of distinction. With the Peruvians of old it was a mark of royal lineage. In a grave of considerable antiquity in Peru a silver mask was found on the head of a mummy. The mummy of a prince who lived in the reign of Rameses II., discovered in a small vault at Memphis, in Egypt, had a mask of gold leaf over the face.

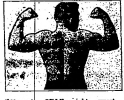
Big Wrestling Match To=morrow Night

Wonderful German Wrestler Carl Busch, Meets Curtis At The Lyceum To-morrow Night.

Carl Busch, champion middleweight wrestler of Germany and as yet undefeated by men of his weight, 162 pounds, in the United States, and L. Curtis, 153 pounds, of Halstad, will meet in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match at the Lyceum Theatre tomorrow evening, April 6th.

CARL BUSCH



Champion Middleweight wrestler of Germany who meets Curtis tomorrow night.

The husky Teuton, since coming to the U. S., four years ago, has met all the wrestlers of any reputation from the bottom to the top. He has met champion Frank Gotch three times, and lost due to the great difference in weight. At Rochester N. Y., in 1908 he stayed with Gotch forty-five minutes, and in Montreal, Canada, in 1907 he stuck one hour in the Greco-Roman style wrestling. Busch's recent victories in the northwest were secured over Chas Gustafson, champion of Canada at 158 lbs., and Al Powers champion middleweight of North Dakota. Busch carries with him a very comprehensive press-clippings record of his bouts in the U. S., and is pleased to show proof to any skeptical men in regard to his being the "real thing."

Busch—Monson Exhibition

Carl Busch and Ludvig Monson, of Holt, gave an interesting wrestling exhibition at the Lyceum Monday night, so as to give the fans an opportunity of seeing Busch in action. The first round was purely an exhibition affair and showed what Busch can do with a good man weighing 170 pounds. Busch was the aggressor all the way thru and when he got ready threw Monson with a body and arm hold. Busch won the second round in one-haf minute by simply taking hold of Monson and laying him on the mat. Everyone was well pleased wth the bout and went away thoroly imbued with the idea that Busch is the "goods."

Curtis—Busch

The Busch—Curtis match tomorrow night will, without question, be the best ever pulled off in Thief River Falls. Both men are known top-notchers and both are konwn to be absolutely on the square. Curtis has completely recovered from the shoulder injury received in his bout with Al Powers here lost winter. The men will enter the match in the pink of condition, each man determined to win.

TENTH ARTICLE ON TAXATION

How And When Taxes Are Collected; Provisions of Law in Regard Thereto.

As explained in the preceding article, the county auditor computes the rate of levy necessary to produce the aggregate amount of money required by the four separate taxing authorities, and extends the tax against each description of land and each individual assessed for personal property.

The auditor makes a separate tax list for each taxing district of the county showing ownership and description of property, with columns for the valuation and for the various items of taxation included in the total.

The tax lists are turned over to the county treasurer by the auditor on or before the first Monday in January of each year, and the treasurer proceed to receive and collect the taxes therein levied.

On receiving the tax lists from the auditor the treasurer, if directed by the county board, is required to give there weeks published notice in a news paper, specifying the rate of taxation for all purposes, and the amounts raised for each specific purpose. He may also be directed by the county board to visit different places in the county for the purpose of receiving taxes.

Personal property taxes become due and payable on and after the delivery of the tax list to the treasurer, and if not paid before March 1st, they become delinquent and a penalty of 10 per cent is added.

Taxes on real estate also become due and payable on delivery of the tax list to the county treasury, and if not paid before June 1, a penalty of 10 per cent is added; and if such taxes remain unpaid until January 1 folloing, an additional penalty of 5 per cent is added.

The law, however, permits the payment of real estate taxes in two installments—one-half prior to June 1, and the remaining one-half any time prior to November 1, provided that the taxes charged against any tract or lot of land exceeds one dollar.

Upon payment of any tax, the treasurer is required to issue his receipt therefor, showing the name of the person, the amount and date of payment, and the land, lot, or other property on which the tax was levied and the year or years for which such levy was made.

against Personal taxes are asTHH

Personal property taxes are assessed against the person and not against the property, while real estate taxes are assessed against the property and not against the person. If personal property taxes become delinquent collection is enforced against the person assessed by distress and sale of any personal property he may own, while the collection of delinquent real estate taxes is enforced by the sale of the property assessed.

The next article will explain the provisions of law relating to the collection of delinquent real and personal property taxes.

YOUR ATTENTION PROG. REPUBLICANS

Senator LaFollette States His Position Upon Some Leading Issues of Campaign.

An Open Letter To The Progressives:

In twenty-five years of political struggle, I have found one great issue over-shadowing and including all others—THE ENCOACHMENT OF THE POWERFUL FEW ON THE RIGHTS OF THE MANY. All the issues of today are but phases of this one great question. How sahll the individual, the farmer, the worker, and all those who pay tribute, be set free from the unjust exactions of the traiff, the railroads, the money power, and other forms of oppression by special interests?

The combinations have unlawfully taken possession of the whole country. They control transportation, manufacturing, mining, capital and credit, the market price of everything the farmer sells, the wages of men, women and children in the factories and mines, and the market price of everything the consumer must buy. They have achieved this control,—except as to a few of the older trusts,—almost entirely under the last two administrations, notwithstanding the prosecations for which so much has been claimed.

When Roosevelt became President, the total amount of the stock and bond issues of all combinations and trusts, including the railways then in combination, was only $3,784,000,000. When he turned the country over to Taft, whom he had selected as his successor, the total capitalization of the trusts and combinations amounted to the enormous sum of $31,672,000,000, more than 70 per cent of which was water. Prices were put up on transportation, and on the products of thermines and factories to pay interest and dividends on this fraudulent capitalization.

The organization of these combinations in transportation, mining, manufacturing, money, credit and the control of the markets, was a criminal conspiracy. It was in violation of the common law, and federal statute, It was subject to punishment by both fine and imprisonment. Moreover, under the provisions of the statute, every such combination could have been enjoined, and a violation of such injunctive federal statute specifically made it the duty of the government to execute the law.

If, in the earlier stages of trust fowmation, the Executive had used all the power of this great government to enforce the Anti-Trust Law, it would have saved the people the payment of hundreds of millions of dollars wrongfully taken from them in excessive transportation rates, and in exorbitant trust prices which they have had to pay for the necessaries of life. Had this been done before these combined monopolies acquired such absoulte mastery, the people would not now be confronted with this momentous question: Ahe those trusts and combinations stronger than the government itself? That is the supreme issue. Can the people free themselves from this power? Can the unjust burden of fradulent capitalization be lifted from them?

The trusts and combinations, the railroads, the steel trust, the coal trust, all are scheming to secure some action by the government which will legalize their proceedings and sanction their fictitious capitalization. The situation is critical. It may be expected from the attitude of the Supreme Court as shown in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, that any act on the part of the executive or the legisaltive branch of government giving countenance to a trust or combination will be construed as an approval of the thousands of millions of watered stocks and bonds issued, and will fasten upon the people for all time the speculative capitalization of our public service and business corporations.

The time is at hand to declare for a statute which shall make it everlastingly impossible for any president, or any congress, or any court, to legalize spudious capitalization as a basis of extortionate prices.

The Progressive Republican platform must take advance ground upon this question. It must declare for the speedy abolition of all privilege. It must deal rationally but firmly with the complex problems which have been permitted to develop mainly in the last dozen years. It must be to the last degree a constructive platform.

But a platform, however strong and progressive, is not enough. For example, the platform of 1908 was a plain declaration for a revision of the tariff on the basis of the difference in the cost of production. Revision in compliance with that pledge would have enormously reduced the Dingley duties; but the President elected on that platform, approved the Payne-Aldrich bill, increasing the Dingley duties.

The lesson is obvious. Its teaching must not be forgotten. The citizen should ask what the candidate has actually done toward solving the problems that confront us; whether his course of action gives assurance of profound conviction; whether he is equipped with patience, determination and experience to deal with these problems, constructively, in his public interest.

In this spirit I ask you to consider my candidacy.

I shall not undertake, within the compass of this letter, to discuss the issue, or indeed to more than suggest my position upon the vitally important ones.

I believe in:—

The Initiative, Referendum and Recall and direct nominations and elections, not only as applied to states but also in the extension of these principles to the nation as a whole;

The equalization of the burdens of taxation, upon a property basis, thru the adoption of graduated income and inheritance taxes;

The Parcels Post;

Government ownership of express companies and government operation of express business at actual cost to the public;

The reasonable valuation of the physicial property of railroads, justly inventoried and determined, as the basis for fixing rates, and the extension of the powers and the administrative control of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

I would have the nation know how much of the $18,000,000,000 capitalization was contributed by those who own the railroads, and how much by the people themselves.

I believe in the creation of a commission, with power to investigate and ascertain the illegal acts of all trusts and combinations, and with power to ascertain the reasonable valuation not the monopoly valuation—of the physicial properties of the great monopolies, beginning with such as the natural resources, such as coal, oil, and iron; in the creation of

FORM NEW LAW FIRM

Thief River Falls is to have a new law firm. Its members are H. O. Kjomme, who has been practising in the city for the past year, and Chas. A. Pitkin, of St. Hilaire, recently of St. Paul. Mr. Pitkin, the new member is a lawyer of several year's experience and considerable ability, and comes well recommended. Mr. Kjomme's position among the city's professional men is already established and needs little comment. Both are young men of push and enterprise and the new firm is launched with every prospect of success. The firm name is to be Kjomme & Pitkin. Temporary offices have been secured over the First National Bank. They expect, however, to move to more commodious quarters which their business requires, as soon as they are able to make the necessary arrangements, office space being a very scarce article in Thief River Falls at the present time. Mr. Pitkin will be joined by his family about May 1st.

A REMARKABLE COUNTY, THIS

The Change From Winter To Ideal Spring Weather Has Set Things Moving.

The finest spring weather that this country has ever konwn has been the lot of this locality during the past month. Crows and other early Migrating birds have been seen in large numbers. Farmers are busy preparing for spring work. Some have already started and are looking across the fields with wondering eyes, questioning, why does not the other fellow manage to get started? The transposition from a bleak and snow covered prairie to beautiful and promising farm opportunities has been the work of only a few days of April Sun.

In order to keep pace with the rapidly moving farm operations the city folks have been obliged to get on a sort of half-trot gate and one can see some of these business men bustling about from early until late rivaled in the city only by the progressive house-wife trying to get her house-cleaning done early.

Thus it is that we open another summer of presperity, thrift, and happiness and if present indications are at all a criterion this will be the one great and prosperous year for Thief River Falls and adjacent territory.

Symphony Concert Great Success

The two concerts rendered by the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra last Friday afternoon and evening were a success from both musical and business stand points. The organization was all it was represented to be from standpoint of musical proficiency and the manner in which Mr. Rothwell handled this large aggregation of musicians was nothing short of wonderful. The three soloists disclosed by their performance that they were high class artists, particularly, Mr. Kellerman, who was heard here a year ago with the Minneapolis Orchestra; whose rendition of "Dennie Diever" was particularly inspiring and brought forth abundance of applause. The rendition of "Per Gynk Suite" by the Orchestra was a revelation to the listerners and was undoubtedly a perfect interpretation of the author's ideas.

The fact that this Orchestra was greeted with practically a full house in the evening shows that the people of Thief River Falls and vicinity know and appreciate good things and disproves the assertions made that the people will not patronize the Auditorium, and it appears that there is no lack of attendance when high class attractions are brought in. We must not, however, forget to mention that the Committee who had charge of this concert is entitled to great credit for the success in this venture and notwithstanding the many predictions made that the concert would be a failure from a financial standpoint the Committee reports that all expenses have been paid and a neat surplus left over, which will be used to advance the musical cause in Thief River Falls. If the management of the Auditorium would cut out all cheap shows and book attractions that the people want to see there will be no trouble about attendance.

New Assistant Cashier

George Johnson of Warren has purchased a block of Stock in the First National Bank and after May 1st will assume his duties as Assistant Cashier of the Bank.

Mr. Johnson comes here very highly recommended. He served for many years as Deputy Auditor of Marshall County and later has been connected with one of the financial institutions of that city.

Work Of The City Council

Gates At Soo And Great Northern Crossings; Sewerage Lecture; New Brick Building on LaBree Avenue.

The Council met Tuesday evening in an interesting session, all members being present.

Alderman Akre advised that the city take steps immediately to confer with the proper officials of the Soo and Great Northern railways in regard to putting in gates at the 3d-st and Main-st crossings. The matter will be taken up at once and an effort made to get the the gates in before someone is killed.

The Kiewel Brewing Co., ask permission to move the Stockholm saloon building out into the street while they are putting up a modrn brick structure. All members expressed themselves as being very desirous of seeing a new building put up. The matter of street obstruction by the old building was referred to a committee.

Alderman Bjorkman said that if asked to, the State Board of Health would send a man here to lecture on the sewerage question. This lecturer would be thoroly versed in modern sewer systems and could give the people some very important suggestions on this now important question both in regard to economical installation and the general needs of a city like Thief River Falls.

In another place in this paper look for sale and team to rent ads may be found.

Street Commissioner, Melby was instructed to clean off the bridge across the Red Lake River, but not to dump the dirt in the river. Men have been busy all the week cleaning up the streets.

Julien Provencher was granted a building permit. As is now generally known he intends putting a hotel on corner 3d-st and Horace Ave.

FROM THE NATIONS CAPITOL

No Oleo Legislation This Session; Bill Amending Act Relating To Homesteads.

Washington, D. C., April 3d.—Within the past two weeks sentiment in Congress has undergone a radical change of heart in regard to the so-called Lever Bill, reducing the tax and eliminating the color line as between that product and butter. The Lever bill was violently opposed by the dairy interests generally. A short time ago a hearing was held before the House committee on agriculture which was attended by some sixty or more representatives of the dairy intersts. The hearings continued for two days. Before that time and up to within a few days ago Congress was flooded with petitions from dairy and creamery associations, so that what might easily have resulted in a victory to the oleo manufacturers has been turned to the advantage of the butter advocates. Before the hearings it was stated that the House committee was favorable to the Lever bill and would probably report it out to the House. If it had reached the House a few weeks ago it was confidently predicted that it would have easily mustered a sufficient number of votes to have been put through. What the Senate would

CARL NELSON SUCCUMBS TO APPENDICITI

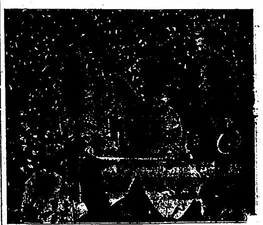
The funeral services of Carl Nelson took place at the Zion church Wednesday afternoon. The church was packed with friends of Carl, the Junior, High School class attending in a body.

Carl had an attack of appndicitis three months ago and was taken to the Warren hospital and operated upon. He did not recover very well from the operation and it was finally decided to bring him home to die. His death occured last Saturday evening on the train from Warren. He was eighteen years of age. A Father, mother and two sisters mourn his loss, together with the many friends of the popular young man.

BACK FROM WEST

P A. Amdam who owns a farm near Anstad but who has been spending the winter on the Pacific Coast returned to this city on Wednesday. He says he has had enough of the west and is now ready to settle down to business in this country

The west is no place for a poor workingman to go. There were as many as a thousand working men idle in the city of Vancover at one time and it cost the city about $10,000 to board them for a month.



Senator Robert M. La Follette, before the people as a presidential didate, is quite a family man. Invariably he seeks rest from arduous p duties in the quiet of domestic life. He is shown here in a family grou the lawn of his home just outside of Madison, Wisconsin. Reading from to right, those in the photograph are Phillip, the senator's younger son, Dr. Phillip Fox, the La Follette family physician, Robert M. La Follette, Jr., the senator's wife, Mary, the younger daughter, and the senator himself.

STEEL TRUST IS BACK OF TEDDY, SAYS HOUSER.

LaFollette Manager Scores Conolel Roosevelt.

Denver, Colo., March 29.—"Theodore Roosevelt is backed by the same interests which are supporting Pres. William Howard Taft. The steel trust is back of his campaign and his boom was started by a steel trust man in order to split the progressives backing LaFollette. It is the biggest political game that has ever been attempted in this country."

With these words, W. L. Houser, manager of the campaign of Robert M. LaFollette, attached, Theodore Roosevelt today.

He is on his way to California, where LaFollette will speak in April.

Houser said Roosevelt is not a progressive, and has shown it in his acts as president of the United States.—St. Paul Daily News.

Governor Eberhart is out with a circular asking for a square deal. We wonder if he considers he has given the people of Minnesota a square deal in giving Taft the support of the state as far as he is able to control it. We have heretofore admired the Governor for the reason that he was for Minnesota first, last and all the time and believe he has made a good Governor, but in defying the wishes of his constituents by supporting Taft he will lose many of his best friends.—Eleven Towns.

Who's Who In Grafton

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

One day when Johnny Shaw was about five years old he began crying with toothache, and after he had kept it up for three hours his mother put her fingers into his mouth and found a loose tooth and wrenched it out. The same day other things happened. Johnny cut his heel on an old tin can, a playmate of his fell from a tree and broke his arm.

Johnny Shaw's father was a carpenter and did not even own the house he lived in. He intended that the boy should learn the same trade, but at the age of eighteen Johnny ran away and was not heard of for years. As he was always talking about the sea, it was supposed that he became a sailor. He had been gone a year and no news had come from him, when an uncle died and left him a legacy of $5,000. The money was invested until he should turn up. Three years after that the father died. When eight years had elapsed without news from the missing son the mother was advised to have him legally declared dead and to benefit by his legacy, but she decided to wait awhile longer. She did wait until eleven long years had passed away. Then, one summer's day as she sat sewing, the long lost boy walked into the house and took her in his arms.

Until the news that Johnny Shaw had got home circulated around the village no one but the mother had identified the stranger, although he had walked about for two days. Then there was a division of opinion right away. It would seem that if a mother were satisfied as to the identity outsiders ought to be. It was so in this case with only about half the residents of the town.

When the matter of the legacy was finally taken up there was only one person in Grafton who still doubted. It was Elder Frisble of the Methodist church. When Johnny Shaw was fourteen years old he and another lad had stolen tomatoes from the garden of the elder, and quite a fuss had been made about it. The elder had insisted that Mr. Shaw tan his son's jacket, and this has been done.

The new John Shaw in talking over old reminiscences could not remember the above incident. Elder Frisble had never forgotten the least detail, and he argued that no boy of fourteen could drop a thundering big licking out of his memory in eleven years. He himself could remember lickings he had received forty years before. Right on that one incident the elder began a talk that resulted in a keen legal investigation. John Shaw must prove his identity beyond a doubt. You will say that with his mother behind him this ought to have been a very easy matter, but it didn't turn out to be. There were sharp lawyers engaged on either side.

When the boy, John Shaw, left home it was at 7 o'clock at night, and his mother had run in to a neighbor's to borrow something. When the man, John Shaw, was asked to state how he left home and the hour, he claimed that he lowered himself from his window at midnight. This was the first break he made. The family had a dog when he left. The name was Billy. Shaw gave the name and breed all right, but when asked the color he could not give it. There was a big pear tree in the back yard, and he had eaten of its fruit and climbed its trunk many times. Two years after he went away the tree blew down. When asked about the tree the man denied that there had ever been one there.

During the first day's examination the man was caught about twenty times, but, on the other hand, he was correct in some fifty different statements. On the second day the proportion was about the same. It was of course argued that one who had been away for eleven years and passed through adventures and hardships and grown from youth to manhood would naturally forget many things, but there were many who were far from satisfied. On the third day came the supreme test. The mother was still sticking by the son and was highly indignant at the assertion that he was an impostor. Of course, she would furnish no material to help expose him.

On the third day a woman who had been married about five years came forward to testify. At the age of sixteen the boy, Shaw, had been madly in love with her. On a certain day, which she and others remembered because of the burning of a barn, John had proposed an elopement and marriage and had been laughed at. Now he could remember nothing of the incident. In fact, he denied it, though there were at least six witnesses to corroborate the one on the stand. The court decided that no boy of sixteen ever went crazy over a girl and forgot all about it in eleven years, and John Shaw was held as an impostor and at his trial was more fully exposed and sentenced to prison for three years.

What followed was strange. He confessed to meeting the real Shaw in Australia. They were partners for years, and from day to day he pumped Shaw and secured information. He did not know of the legacy, but had the impression that Shaw's people were rich. It was in knocking about the world that the fellow, who had various names, found himself in the United States, and he determined to play a game. The strange part of the matter was that the mother was so readily deceived. Even after the confession she stuck to the man, and had her real son returned home she might have driven him away.

A Certain Silver Sixpence.

Beau Brummel had a very odd way of accounting for the sad change which took place in his affairs at this time. "He used," observes one of his friends at Caen, "when talking about his altered circumstances, to say that up to a particular period of his life everything prospered with him and that he attributed his good luck to the possession of a certain silver sixpence with a hole in it, which somebody had given him years before with an injunction to take good care of it, as everything would go well with him so long as he did and vice versa if he happened to lose it. The promised prosperity attended him for many years while he held the sixpence fast; but, having at length in an evil hour unfortunately given it by mistake to a hackney coachman, a complete reverse of his previous good fortune took place and one disastrous occurrence succeeded another till actual ruin overtook him at last and obliged him to expatriate himself."—Captain Jesse.

Origin of the "Three R's."

The famous toast to "the three R's—reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic"—was made by Sir William Curtis, lord mayor of London, in the year 1795 and for many years one of the wardens of the tower. What made it more ludicrous was that he proposed it at a dinner given by the London board of education. It was received with great applause and drunk amid much merriment. At the time it was recognized as a jest, but was afterward taken up in earnest by the mayor's detractors, who have handed his name down to posterity as a blundering ignoramus. A writer has now come to his defense and says that when he was a boy an aged member of the board of education assured him that Sir William knew better and that he really used his famous alliteration as a jest. To many people, however, the story will always sound better when it is based upon the belief that Sir William was really serious.

A Record Hailstorm.

One of the worst hailstorms ever known in the United States occurred Sept. 5, 1898, in Nodaway county, Missouri. The path of the storm was about three miles wide and eighteen miles long, its greatest violence being felt over a region of four square miles east of Clarmont. At one point in this region the fall of hail was so heavy that a drift unprotected by artificial means remained lying on the ground for four weeks after the storm. At the end of that time people in the neighborhood were found gathering the hail for the purpose of making ice cream. During the storm cylindrical pieces of ice were picked up four inches long by about two and a half in diameter. The growing corn was practically all destroyed. In a field of eighty acres only one stalk was left standing.—Chicago News.

A View of Jefferson Davis.

Very straight and tall, thin, with a clear cut, clean shaven, distinguished face, with a look half military man, half student, with a demeanor to all of perfect if somewhat chilling courtesy; by temperament a theorist, able with the ability of the field marshal or the scholar in the study, not with that of the reader and master of men, the hardest of workers, devoted, honorable, single minded, a figure on which a fierce light has beaten; a man not perfect nor always just, bound in the toils of his own personality, but yet an able man, who suffered and gave all, believed in himself and in his cause and to the height of his power labored for it day and night. Such a man was Jefferson Davis.—Mary Johnston in "The Long Roll."

Didn't Tire Him.

He had taken pains when he applied for work to assure the farmer that he never got tired. When his new employer went to the field where he had put the man at work he found him lolling on his back under a tree.

"What does this mean?" asked the farmer. "I thought you were a man who never got tired."

"I don't," said the hired man calmly. "This doesn't tire me."—Exchange.

Liquid Ones.

They were waiting for dinner, and the virtuoso, who was to play afterward at the musicale, was whiling away the time at the piano. "How would you like a sonata before dinner?" he asked.

"Hardly," returned the host. "I had four on the way home."

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Lewis B. Geerlings and Nancy Geerlings his wife, mortgagors, to the First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, mortgagees, bearing date the 11th day of June 1910, with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota on the 13th day of June, 1910, at 5 o'clock p. m., in Book 37 of mortgages on Page 178 and subsequently upon the division of Red Lake County and the creation of Pennington County, whereto the records of the herein described mortgage have been transcribed, and now appear in book 22 of mortgages at page 343 in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Pennington County, Minnesota.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by the said First National Bank of Thief River Falls, Minnesota by written assignment, dated the 15th day of February, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington, County, Minnesota on the 16th day of February 1912 at 1:00 o'clock p. m., in book 9 of mortgages, on page 78.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date of this notice on said indebtedness the sum of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) principal and interest, and whereas the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue by power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described, in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

Lots numbered six (6) and seven (7) in Block eleven (11) of Porters Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota (formerly in Red Lake County,) according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds, within and for the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said County and State on Saturday the 6th day of April, 1912, at 11:00 o'clock a. m., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay the said debt of three hundred forty dollars and ninety three cents ($340.93) and interest and taxes if any on said premises and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 20, 1912.

How Hail Is Formed.

Limiting the observations to such compound hailstones as are the most destructive and are produced during a tornado or a violent thunderstorm, the following theory has been advanced as to how they are formed: When the winds gyrate rapidly round an axis more or less inclined to the earth the space at and about the axis is rarefied. When air charged with vapor is drawn into this rarefied space it may be condensed into cloud or rain or, at a greater elevation, into snow. Now, supposing the rain formed in the lower region to be drawn up by the ascending current into the snowy region and so held for a short space, the drops will be frozen and then, if propelled beyond the gyrations, will fall to the ground as a shower of ordinary hail. But if in the descent they are again drawn in by the inflowing current they will be again carried up into the cold region and so acquire another coating of ice. In this way the globule may make a number of ascents and descents and acquire a fresh coating each time.—Harper's.

"No," snapped the hard featured woman, opening the kitchen door about six inches, "and, to be perfectly plain with you"—

"You couldn't, marm," gallantly interposed Tuffold Knutt, lifting his tattered remnant of a hat—"you couldn't be otherwise than perfickly harnsome with me!"

"I was going to say," she rejoined, visibly softening, "that, to be plain with you, there is nothing in the house but cold victuals, but if you care to try a plate of warmed over hash you can come in."—Chicago Record-Herald.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR

More Than 1,375,000 in Use

The Machine By Which All Others Are Judged

For more than thirty years the De Laval cream separator has been acknowledged as the World's Standard.

You may hear it said of some separator that "It's as good as a De Laval;" or if some competing salesman wants to make his argument particularly strong, he'll say "It's better than a De Laval."

The concern with a cheaply and poorly constructed machine says "Just as good as a De Laval and costs less."

But everywhere the De Laval is recognized by experienced creamerymen and dairymen and even by makers of would-be competing machines as the World's Standard.

The cream separator is more frequently used than any other machine on the farm, and for that reason, if for no other, only the very best should be purchased, and that's the De Laval.

Easiest to turn, easiest to wash, skims the cleanest lasts the longest.

Thought Concentration.

Professor Elmer Gates performs a very interesting experiment by immersing his hands and arms to the elbows in separate vessels filled with water just to the point of overflowing. By withdrawing his thougnt absolutely from one hand and concentrating it on the other he so expands the blood vessels in the latter by sending an extra supply of blood to it that the water in the vessel in which it is over flows quite perceptibly. To further prove this power of thought concentration he transfers the thought from one hand to the other without changing their positions until the other vessel overflows.

Professor Bell, inventor of the telephone, said that when driving in the provinces in extremely cold weather when he was in great danger of having his feet frozen, he was able to send an extra supply of blood to them by concentrating his mind upon them and thus saved himself from a very painful experience.—Nautilus.

Jamaica's Booby Eggs.

Trade in booby eggs is one of the sights of Kingston, Jamaica. Long ago the British seamen gave the name "booby" to several of the species of gannets, because these fowls are regarded as stupid. The eggs are gathered in vast quantities on the islets at certain seasons of the year and taken to Port Antonio by the boatload. The arrival of a boat with booby eggs is the occasion of no little excitement among the negro women, who buy them by the box and then sell them by retail chiefly in Kingston, though they are also sold in other towns on the island. Though sold mostly by the dozen to housekeepers, booby eggs are also peddled, hard boiled, on the streets of Kingston, salt and pepper being provided that the purchasers may eat the eggs at once. These eggs are about two-thirds the size of an ordinary hen's egg and are quite palatable.

The Part of Wisdom.

Everybody in Middle Bay knew that Mrs. Captain Liscomb was talking about making a visit to her married daughter in Cincinnati. She had been talking about it for two years, but age and the natural timidity of a woman unused to travel had postponed the great event from month to month until the neighbors began to wonder whether it would ever come to pass. So one morning, when Uncle Billy Evans met Captain Liscomb in Eccles' store, there was a twinkle in his eye as he asked:

"When's Mis' Liscomb going out to Ohio, Daniel?"

"Don't ask me!" returned the captain, a little peevishly. "I don't know nothin' about it. If I tell her to go she says I want to get rid of her. If I tell her to stay at home she says I'm mean! I ain't sayin' a single word!"—Youth's Companion.

Bulldogging a Steer.

Perhaps there is no contest that is a greater tax on human endurance than that demanded by "bulldogging" a steer, and the "bulldogger" must go it alone. The pony is as great a factor as the man, for when once the lasso tests over the horns of the range animal all depends on the rapid way in which the mustang wheels so that the trailing rope will trip the steer. When the steer is on the ground the plucky pony must keep the rope taut. The range rider leaps off and with a length of rope ties the steer's four feet together. Time is then called. Unless he has completed all these operations from the word go in less than three minutes he is not deemed fit to enter the finals. As a matter of fact, one contestant cut the time to 29 seconds, a world's record.—Sunset Magazine.

Begging the Question.

The phrase "begging the question," or in Latin "petitio principii," signifies the treating of a proposition as a fully demonstrated fact when it is actually only a premise or statement brought forward and not yet proved. In other words, to beg the question is to assume something to be true, in order to evade the task of bringing forward the necessary argument to show its truth.—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Official Paper of the City

FRIDAY, APR. 5, 1912

The Socialists of Milwaukee were defeated in the recent election for Mayor but they increased their vote 30 per cent over two years ago. Their defeat can, therefore, be attributed to the fact that the Repubicans and Democrats fused. Just think of it a fusion of the Rep. & Dem.

RAILROADS OF STATE ESTABLISH ANOTHER RATE FOR FOR SAME SERVICE.

Discrimatory Reminder No. 40—

The city papers of last week announced that the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Soo roads had offered a two cent (or confiscatory) rate from the Twin Cities to the lakes in northern Minnesota for those who want to go fishing. The rate is to be operative as soon as the fishing season opens.

There is no announcement of change in the three cent rate to farmers or to those occasional travelers who do not have to fish.

If a St. Paul man wants to take his wife and go to Park Rapids, there to spend a few days outing among the flowers the woods and the streams they can ride at two cents per mile. But if a Park Rapids citizen wants to take his wife to St. Paul for an outing, there to attend a lecture or a concert or other entertainment, they muts put up straight three cents per mile or stay home.

Why the discrimination?

The "fish pole" is a new basis for classification in passenger rates that seems to be altogether original. The published announcement does not state if any particular kind of a fish pole is required to be presented to the twin city ticket agents in order o qualify for the "fish pole rate" so we presume that any kind of an old pole will pass.

However, if the fishermen are subdivided into classes on same basis that governs the present classification as to passengers and rates, the man with a swell new split bamboo nickel plated ferrule pole will be given a little better rate than will the fellow who tries to climb aboard with just a common, ordinary cane pole.

There is lots of travel from the Twin cities up into the north part of the state so now when one of the travelers can not put up $40 for a mileage book and thus get the confiscatory rate, he can secure the rate by adding a fish pole to his regular luggage equippment.

When the season opens we presume the local passenger train going north will look like a farm wagon headed for a sorghum mill.

The new rate announcement makes necessary a new alignment as to calssification so that the following shedeule of ticket prices is now in effect—

Class A—Celrgymen 1½ cents.
* Class B—Fishermen. 2 cents.
Class C—Plutes, 2 cents.
Class D—Fairly well to do people, 2½ cents.
Class E—Poor devils. 3 cents.

*All parties qualifying for Class B must present one fish pole to ticket agent for identification. Only one ticket sold for each pole. Passengers with extra long or cane poles must line up on platform directly opposite station window and agent will spot the poles and sell tickets through the window.—Long Prairie Leader.

W. E. Lee Says Governor's Personal Expenses Show He Is Not Saving State's Money.

William E. Lee of Long Prairie came back today at Governor A. O. Eberhart, who has been defending the state government against Mr. Lee's charges of extravagance. Writing from Atwater, Mr. Lee declares [illegible] per capita cost of government [illegible] in Minnesota than in [illegible] states, and brings the [illegible] the governor by calling [illegible] the personal expense [illegible] the governor as shown by [illegible] the contingent fund [illegible] [illegible] cars and for numerous railroad trips are criticized by Mr. Lee, who says that a governor making such charges is not in a position to urge economy on the legislature or state departments.

Efficiency In the Home

Acquired by handling household business in businesslike way

Making deposits in the First National Bank regularly to cover household expenses and issuing checks to pay them, is the sensible, business like way to conduct the business of the home.

This method enables you to keep your expenditures well in hand, offers an incentive to economize, and helps you to accumulate a reserve from the fund set aside for living expenses.

Household accounts are invited at the

First National Bank

Corner 3d-st. & LaBree Ave.

Mr. Lee's letter follows:

To the Editor of The Journal.

"Atwater, Minn., March 27, 1912.

"I find the governor is reported to have said at Mankato in his address before the Social Science and Commercial club that he was planning to abolish eighteen or twenty boards. He outlined some such plan before the session of the last legislature, but that was as far as he followed it. I cannot find that he put forth an effort to carry his recommendation into effect.

Comparison of States.

"I do not wish to do him any injustice, but am obliged to suggest that his present talk would be accepted as of more value if this were his first utterance on the subject. He is quoted as taking issue with the generally accepted belief that his administration has been expensive and compares this state with other states. The newspaper report does not show how he reaches his conclusions, but a comparison of Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan with Minnesota does not bring the result he is quoted to have given.

"Perhaps he and I would not agree as to just what items ought to be classified as expense of administration or just what items would be considered as unnecessary, but I will mention a few in his own department that appear to me quite unnecessary to the proper administration of the state's business, viz:

Press clippings since 1-18 '11	$354.77
Twin City Taxicab Co. 1-18 '11	34.50
Subscription to Duluth News Tribune since 1-18 '11	15.00
Railroad fare, compartments, and incidentals from Jan. 17 '11 to Jan. 24, '12	$1,345.15

(as against $153.50 used for like purposes by Governor Nelson from January 1, 1893, to June 30, 1894.)

"A detailed examination of this expense account will show that most of it was for trips outside the state.

Increase by Legislature.

"A governor with that kind of an expense account is not in position to say much to the legislature that has increased its expense account from $145,929 in 1901 to $319,791.91 in 1911, or to the state boards, whose expense account has increaesd from $129,276 in 1901 to $556,861.44 in 1911.

"The few moments I have between trains will not admit of going further into details at present, but I wish to say the disbursements of our state treasury has grown from $6,810,858 in 1901 to $16,427,506.76 in 1911, and the tax levy from 1.5 on a valuation of $786,000,000 in 1903 to 2.65 on a valuation of $1,212,000,000 in 1911.

"As to the per capita cost in the states he reviews will say the total receipts of the treasurer of each for the year 1910 were as follows: Minnesota, $6.69 per capita; Michigan, $4.76 per capita; Iowa, $2.11 per capita; Wisconsin, $2.81 per capita.

"I trust I may in the near future be able to treat this subject more in detail, but it seems to me I have said enough here to give the governor an opportunity to be heard again. Yours truly,

—W. E. Lee."

GOOD NEWS FROM C. C. Jackson.

Word comes to us thru The News, the live-wire newspaper of Whittier, Cal., that C. C. Jackson, formerly of the Jackson-McGinn Hardware Co., has sold his ranch in East Whittier for $16,500. The Jackson ranch includes five and one-half acres of citrus fruit and an attractive California bungalow. Mr. Jackson purchased the place last May for $11,000.

BAKKEN—JOHNSTAD

Martin Bakken, of Marshall county, and Christine Johnstad, of Thief River Falls, were united in marriage April 1st at the Zion parsonage, Rev. A. L. Larson officiating. The newlyweds will make their home on the groom's farm in Marshall county.

NO SPECIAL SESSION

Governor Eberhart has emphatically declared that he will not call an extra session of the Legislature unless the demand becomes far greater than ithas been so far. We do not doubt that statement in the least. When will the governor be convinced that the demand is strong enough? Will he be convinced of that only when the Interests and their subsidized Press will make such a demand? Or shall the People still have some little consideration? The People want the extra session. The only way that the Governor can square himself with the People is to grant what they demand.

GERMANTOWN PIONEER DEAD

Mrs. Nic Bundhund one of the pioneer residents of Grand Plain township died last Monday morning after an illness of above five weeks. Deceased was 44 years of age and leaves her husband with a family of five children. The remains were entered at the German Lutheran Cemetery on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Seltz officiating.

TRAMPS ARE THAWING OUT EMPLOYMENT AGENCY IS MAKING GOOD

The Supt. of Police handed in this week a report of the amount of business done in his department during the months of January, February and March.

There were a total of sixteen arrests and fines collected to the amount of $27.50. Twenty-six tramps were lodged, but none committed. There were three lodged in January, five in February and eighteen in March. This record shows that the frost line is rapidly moving north and spring is at hand.

The employment agency department shows that three men and two women asked for work, and that suitable employment was found for all of them. This is a new feature of the police work that deserves extended support and encouragement.

ARE BIG FARMERS

Ole Amundson and sons, who live five and one-half miles east of town, have bought another quarter section of land. These men now own eight sections and are putting more and more of it under cultivation each year. Ole Amundson owns three quarters and the boys own five Ole will this spring put 260 acres into small grain, such as wheat, oats and barley; 60 acres of the quarter he bought last fall into flax, and 40 acres of the quarter purchased this week into flax.

Black and White.

For many years a large department store has spent thousands of dollars on placards with which almost every article of merchandise is ticketed throughout the store, and only within a short time did they realize the amount of money that was wasted in using the white cardboard with black lettering. These white cards soon become soiled and shop worn if allowed to remain in place any length of time. The cards which are handled by customers in bins, trays, etc., are even more so. By substituting the black cardboard with white lettering this store has overcome this difficulty to a very great extent. The show cards are always clean, fresh and bright looking and they last many times as long, saving the firm several hundred dollars in the course of a year.—Business.

Wesley's "Narrow Neck of Land."

The actual first and last house in England is a shed where a woman sells specimens of rock. Just below this, as one goes down the zigzag path between the rocks, on the neck of the peninsular is a flat stone about two feet square and rising six inches above the ground. This, tradition asserts, is that upon which John Wesley sat when he composed the hymn—

Lo, on a narrow neck of land
'Twixt two unbounded seas I stand
Secure, insensible!

It is also stated that Wesley wrote other hymns there. Apparently he had at this time (July 30, 1743) experienced a bad spell of weather at Land's End, for he writes, "I saw a strange sight—the sun shining in Cornwall."—English Illustrated Magazine.

His Specialty.

"Do you speak several languages, father?"

"No, my son," replied Mr. Henpeck, gazing sadly at his wife, "but I do know the mother tongue."—Judge.

GOOD ROAD ENTHUSIASTS

G. W. Allen of Madison Lake, Blue Earth County was in our city between trains on Monday. He stated that as he owns a farm near Viking he is very much interested in the "Good Roads" movement for this country. He said that in the vicinity of Madison Lake the farmers and business had gotten together and the result had been the graveling of about 32 miles of roads leading into that village.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. meets next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Nels Berg.

In harmony with the prayer "lead us not into temptation" we want to be careful not to license an institution that is constantly leading others into temptation.

Does it ever occur to the average taxpayer that we are after all a most extravagant and inpractical people? The biggest bill that the community or the state which tolerates the saloon has to pay is its drink bill. The next largest is for the maintenance of such institutions as juvenile courts, detention homes, orphan asylums, boys' and girl's reformatories, rescue missions, insane asylums, work houses and penitentiaries.

FAHEY—SAWYER

Thomas Fahey, of Three Hills, Alberta, and Irene M. Sawyer, of Thief River Falls, were united in marriage in the Methodist church at Calgary last Thursday, the 28th. The newlyweds will make their future home on the groom's 360-acre farm at Three Hills.

have done with the bill is not so certain, but there are some who claim that even in the upper chamber it would have pasesd.

It is stated on good authority that there will be on oleo legislation at this session. The Lever bill will be permitted to repose peacefully in the committee room of the House. It is now stated that the committee is about evenly divided on the proposed legislation, and that rather than risk the possibility of a turn-down in the House, the bill will not be pushed at this time. The fight which the dairy interests put up at the hearings were decidedly beneficial, so it is esserted, in so far as preventing adverse legislation at this time. The States of Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and other dairy states were not slow to let their congressman know of their opposition to the Lever bill. Representative Haugen, the author of the bill which the dairy and creamery associations are supporting, states that he is satisfied to let well enough alone and he will not push his measure this session.

The Boarh bill amending the act relating to homesteads was reported favorably to the House, and passed that body. The object of the bill is to amend the homestead laws in two important particulars. It reduces the period of residence from five to three years. It permits the entry-man and his family to be absent from his homestead five months during each calandar year of the residence period. The Senate bill allowed six months leave of absence each year. The House committee's report on the bill states that "the committee is of the unanimous opinion that the passage of the three-year homestead bill will largely check the tremendous exodus of farmers to Canada and it is hoped may posisbly encourage the return of some of them to this country. We confidently believe that if the law is construed in the liberal spirit in which the committee hope and intend that it will afford an impetus to the settlement of the west by home esekers, home builders, and men who will develop our resources and become the producers of wealth and the substantial citizens of the country. The bill is in the interest of the actual settlers who, your committee believe, will have ample opportunity in three years to entirely demonstrate their good faith and to establish a permanent home. It should be remembered that as to our remaining public lands subject to homestead settlement, the Government needs "the man on the land" quite as much as the man needs the land. When a homestead meant a 160 acres that would all produce profitable crops by the mere turning of the sod, the homestead probelm was comparatively a simple one: But now the remants of the public land in the arid West, the reclamation homestead, and the dry-farm homestead present entirely different and much more trying problems, and if we are to continue to obtain for the conquest of these lands are men best qualified for the work, we must establish conditions which will encourage them in the undertaking."

RICH OIL AND GAS FLOW

New Wells in Wheeler-Ardmore Field

A large number of local people will be pleased to learn that the wells mentioned in the article following are within two miles of the property bought from Woolsey and McLennan, and assure oil beyond a doubt. Ask thse gentlemen in regard to these wells.

Rich Gas Flow.

Ardmore, Okla., March 27.—What is said to be the greatest gas well in Oklahoma was brought in yesterday in the Santa Fe field adjoining Oil City and was tested today. It produces twenty-two millions of feet of gas every twenty-four hours and is a stronger well than that bought in by Dings and Ledbetter a year ago in the same field by seven millions of feet.

W. M. Babcock brought a new oil well in yesterday in the same field. He said his well and the appearance of being a good one and that a test would be made this week.—The Daily Oklahoma.

a tariff commission of experts clothed with real power to determine the valuation of all the elements of production, costs and profits, and in the reduction of tariff rates to the ascertained difference between the labor in this country and abroad. Instead of each of these government commissions investigating the same facts independently, I believe it would be practical for a single board of expert accountants, statisticians, economists, and engineers to be empowered to get the facts, not for the confidential use of the President or the Departmens, but for Congress and the public.

I am opposed to ship subsidies, which, once entrenched, will become another corrupting influence in our politics.

I am opposed to further extravagance, on the advice of interested persons only, in building battleships and political navy yards, and favor an unprejudiced commission to investigate and report what is required in the way of national defense.

I am oppoesd to the dollar diplomacy which has reduced our State Department from its high place as a kindly intermediary of defenseless nations, into a trading outpost for Wall Street interests, aiming to exploit those who should be our friends.

I am opposed to the Aldrich currency scheme, which, under the guise of providing elasticity to our currency system and relieving monetary conditions, is in reality a means of concentration of the currency and the credits of the United States under a fifty-year franchise into those hands which have already secured control of the banking and insuarnce resources of the country.

I favor a poilcy of government ownership and operation of Alaska railroads and coal mines, and of an Alaskan steamship line by way of Pacific ports through Panama to New York.

I was opposed to the Canadian Reciprocity Agreement when President Taft submitted it to Congress, January 26th, 1912; I was opposed to it when it was before the Senate, argued against it, voted against it, andI AM AGAINST IT NOW.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert M. LaFollette.

GIRLS BEWARE

Some of you young girls want to be more careful how you run out on the streets all hours of the evening unprotected. I notice some of you are meeting trains and your chief aim seems to be to flirt with any strange man that comes along. You may think it is a smart thing to do, but remember you are putting yourselves in a dangerous position. Some of you may have to pay a high price for your foolishness. Father and mothers ought to look after their girls and see where they are and who is their company.—Supt. of Police.

MY NEW AUTO

By ROBERT MATHEWSON

I had just bought a new automobile—one of the new light make—for $1,050 and was trying it on the road. It was a very pretty machine to seat five people, the tonneau being of aluminium. It was rather early in the spring to ride for pleasure, for the roads were still execrable, but I stuck to the best of them and was delighted with the performance of my vehicle.

I was driving along, feeling very fine in my new toy, for the purchase of which I had been saving for a couple of years, when I overtook a young man and a young woman hurrying along, the man carrying a suit case, the woman holding up her skirts to keep them from the mud. The man, hearing an auto, looked back and, seeing me coming, stood in the middle of the road and motioned for me to stop. I pulled up, of course. He was fashionably dressed, as was the girl, who was as pretty as a peach.

"Beg pardon for stopping you, sir. Would you mind giving us a lift? We are anxious to catch a train on the C., L. and B. railroad. If you would take us over there you have no idea what a favor you would do us."

Now, the C., L. and B. railroad runs parallel with the road I was on and can only be reached by crossroads which I knew to be in bad condition. I had no mind to put my machine to such a test, so I told the gentleman that I was sorry, but I hadn't time to go so far, whereupon he took me into his confidence, telling me that he and the girl were a runaway couple. The girl's father was dead set on her marrying a broken down British nobleman three times her age and was to have taken her abroad the next day to be married, the old fellow being so infirm that he couldn't stand a journey to America.

I turned to look at the couple, and the girl gave me an appealing glance that won me.

"What station do you wish to reach?" I asked.

"Carrington."

"That's fifty miles."

"With this splendid machine you can do it in an hour; certainly in an hour and a half."

"Not on the roads I shall have to use."

The girl put her handkerchief to her eyes and began to cry. At the same time we heard the distant chug of an auto coming at full speed.

"We are lost!" she wailed.

"My friend," said the lover in a tremulous voice, "we are rich and able to pay you any price for the use of your auto. Name it."

I had no mind either to sell my auto or to take advantage of the necessities of a pair of lovers. "All right," I said; "I'll take you over, but not for pay. All the world loves a lover, and I'm a lover myself."

I let her out and on reaching the next road that led toward the railroad turned into it. Soon after this we heard the automobile behind us pass the road we had taken, but when it pulled up, returned and followed us we knew that it was after us. The man looked very nervous, and the girl was quite hysterical. For a matter of ten miles we were on a very fair road, then struck one not so good. I had distanced the pursuing father on the fair road, but had scarcely entered upon the inferior one when I heard an ominous chug-chug, indicating that he was not far in the rear. I put on full speed, but we began to bounce, and with every "thank you, ma'am," I winced. I had not intended to expose my auto to such a strain. I slowed up.

"For heaven's sake, go on!" cried the girl.

The noise behind sounding nearer I put on a little more speed. I heard the two whispering, then the man said to me, "Slow up for a moment." I did so, and to my surprise he jumped out with the suit case and took to the woods.

"Go on," said the girl.

Not understanding the strange proceeding I did not quite know what to do and sat thinking about it when I felt something cold at the back of my neck. Turning, I saw the girl poking a revolver at me.

"Move on, mighty quick," she said in a man's voice.

There was nothing for it but to do her bidding. I knew now that I had been fooled by a pair of thieves, that one of them intended to take the swag away, while the other would force me to lead the pursuers on while his pal secured the plunder. It didn't make any difference how many ruts we went over, the girl I had behind me insisted on going faster and enforced her demands at the point of the pistol. I knew my beautiful new auto was getting frightfully damaged, but what could I do? It was a terrible ride over roads that got worse every mile. When we reached a point within half a mile of the station we broke down completely and ran against a telegraph pole, and I landed in a soft ditch. Getting up, I saw the girl limping for the station.

My machine was only good for the scrap heap, and when the pursuers came up and I told my story I got no sympathy. The man who took to the woods got away, and the one who continued on to the station caught a train before the pursuers came up.

I have no further use for eloping lovers.

A Napoleon Of Finance

By ROGER L. SIMPSON

We were talking about money making as a talent. I mentioned the case of Spangler.

Spangler and I were schoolmates. He was always wanting to trade something and invariably came out with the best of the bargain. He was a miniature multimillionaire of the present day, a sort of whirlpool sucking in all things that came within a certain radius. We boys at the school could not figure out how he did it. It was not pleasant when we got a new knife or sled or pair of skates to have Spangler come around with something positively dazzling and offer to trade, for we knew in the end he would have our goods and his own too. But in spite of ourselves our avarice would get the better of us, and we would lose what we had in an attempt to get something better. The funny part of it all was that we never could detect the boy in the slightest dishonesty or even sharp practice. When he had anything to dispose of or was offering a trade, he would say: "Now, fellers, I'd rather you wouldn't. There are certain things about this racket I'm giving up I don't like, but you may not object to them. As for me, I don't know whether I shall be satisfied with what you've got or not. Anyway, I won't blame you if I'm not."

By the time he left school he had all the jackknives, tops, marbles, kites and other such boys' belongings. He went to the high school, and though he didn't capture any prizes he took away all the best tennis rackets, footballs and hockey skates. He got through with his education when he was nineteen, and those of his class who didn't go to college, but went into business, were surprised to hear that Spangler, instead of learning something about mercantile affairs, [illegible] once to be a full fledged producer. And when they heard what he was [illegible] He was going to raise chickens.

I told my father about Spangler's move, and he said: "It is impossible to raise chickens and eggs at a profit, because the farmer, with whom you must compete, will not look upon his chickens as an asset. In other words, he is ready to sell them for what he can get and consider it so much gained." I told this to the boys, and they all agreed that, although Spangler's way of getting things had been all very well at school, now that he had got out into the world he would find he was not so superior to us after all. We were told that if there was any way of making money out of chickens it must be right alongside of a good market, but when we heard that Spangler had bought with money of his own—the things he had acquired of us turned into cash—a little farm away off in the country, with no available road to market, we howled with delight.

One grudge I bore the trader. I had a diamond ring that had been worn by an aunt of mine and which she had willed me. Spangler got it. If I remember correctly, in place of it I had a pair of skates, four kites, a bag of marbles and a gold watch and chain, both the latter plated.

Well, this is the way Spangler worked chicken farming: He bought up all the chickens in the vicinity of his farm. When we heard that we concluded the farmers must buy from him all the chickens they needed for their tables. Then some one suggested that farmers never eat chickens; when they have them they sell them; when they don't have them they take no interest in them. It was evident that Spangler had got out of his depth.

The effrontery of the man was made manifest when he sent me a circular that he was distributing among his neighbors. He had lost the diamond ring that had been mine. He didn't know, but he believed that one of his chickens had swallowed it. Then followed the announcement that his chickens were for sale at reasonable prices and if any one should happen to buy the one that might have swallowed the ring he would be some $40 to the good.

When I read this circular all my ideas of revenge diffused like vapor. I saw his scheme. But surely the hardy sons of toil in the country would not be taken in by this cheap device. I ground my teeth together and waited. Presently I got another circular stating that 50 per cent of Spangler's chickens had been sold and the ring had not been reported found. The remaining half were still for sale, but the price had been doubled.

What nonsense! Pay $2 for a chicken that might possibly have swallowed a diamond ring! I couldn't believe that any more farmers would be gulled, especially since this ridiculous price had been put on a chicken. But they were. Spangler sold 40 per cent of the remaining chickens at $2 each, then raised the price on the remaining ten chickens—skin and bone—to $5 apiece, taking three old roosters himself. The ring was found in the crop of one of the trader's birds.

When I had finished my story Thompson asked what had become of this Napoleon of finance. I told him that Spangler acquired all the land round about his farm, then went to the city, raised a company to build a town on it, sold out his interest at a big price, became a promoter and was now at the head of one of those mammoth institutions that the government is trying to dissolve.

Doing Two Things At Once

By OSCAR COX

I went into a pay telephone station to send a message. The place was in care of a young lady, who worked a typewriter as well.

"How much for a city message?" I asked.

"Ten cents."

"Where's the booth?"

"Over there."

How the girl could carry on the conversation with me and go on working her typewriter I couldn't conceive. I would not have been able to do anything else when talking with her. She never stopped her clickety-click once during the brief interview. I vowed that before I got through with her I would make her stop rattling the keys if I had to pull her hair. However, for the time being I was satisfied and, going into the booth, delivered my message. When I came out I asked how much.

"City or long distance?" she asked, still punching the typewriter.

"City."

"Ten cents."

"Isn't that pretty steep for a city message?"

Perhaps she didn't hear. At any rate she made no reply, keeping on hammering the keys.

"Can you change a five dollar bill?"

"No."

"A dollar?"

"No."

"Well, here's 10 cents."

She stopped just long enough to take the 10 cents, open a drawer, then recommenced the clicking. I said "good morning," but she made no response.

The next day I went into the telephone office again.

"Can I send a city message?" I asked.

She turned her head toward a booth without speaking or ceasing to play the typewriter. I went into the booth, left the door open and called up Charley Jones—that is, I pretended to do so. "Hello, Charley! [illegible] I'm in a telephone station. I want to ask you something. Do you consider it polite if a gentleman has business relations with a young lady for her to ignore all except what is absolutely essential to the transaction, or should she be civil?"

I held the receiver to my ear, keeping my eyes on the girl. I was pretending to listen to what Charlie had to say about it. My scheme had no more visible effect on the girl than if she had been stone deaf.

"You say you think she deserves a jilting? Well, what is a fellow going to do if he has no authority, no way of inflicting punishment, no hold whatever?"

I paused again for a reply that never came. There was no apparent interest in what I was saying on the part of the girl; she didn't even write a mite faster or slower. I proceeded:

"Not let it bother me? How can I help it? I'm all broken up over it."

Another interval for Charley to say something more.

"Candy! She wouldn't have it—that is, from me. I have a mind to try flowers."

Again I listened for further suggestions from Charley.

"Oh, that's all very well for talk, but it isn't the real thing. When a fellow can't sleep nights, can't eat and all that, what's he going to do? However, I'll try the flowers; if they don't improve matters I'll call you up again. Goodby."

I hung up the receiver, went to the girl and asked "how much?"

"Ten cents."

I took out a dime, laid it on the desk beside her and went out. There was not a sign of interest in her face, and I was literally clicked out onto the sidewalk.

The next day I went back with a bouquet of flowers, and, walking demurely up to the girl, I handed them to her, saying:

"I've bothered you so much during the last few days and you have been so patient, so affable, so amiable, so kind that I feel impelled to offer you some reparation."

My assurance was too much for her. She leaned back in her chair while a peal of musical laughter rang out from her beautiful throat. At the same time she reached out for the flowers, pressing them to her face. The victory was won, the ice was broken.

"Here's the 10 cents for Charlie's message," she said, handing out the dime I had given her the day before. "There's no charge for one sided messages."

"How do you know?"

"By the ring, or, rather, the want of it."

"And you'll keep the flowers?"

"Certainly, and I can't sleep nights for the obligation I'm under to you for teaching me how I must have appeared to persons coming in here on business. The truth is, the interruptions are so frequent that I have become accustomed to going right on with my work, merely nodding toward the booth and taking the pay."

"I expect you'll have to keep it up while you're trying to do two things at once."

After this I did a great deal of telephoning. I had an instrument put into my house and went frequently to the pay station, professedly to send messages, but really to chat with the manager. I took up so much of her time that she was finally discharged. But it didn't make any difference, for I wanted her for a wife.

A Message

It Was Sent by General Washington and Stopped on the Way

By GENEVIEVE GOODMAN

Before leaving New York for New Jersey Washington's headquarters were at Dobbs Ferry. A force was at Fort Lee, on the opposite side of the Hudson from New York, but the stronghold was given up, and Washington's next permanent stopping place was at Morristown. Before leaving the river the commander in chief desired to communicate with General Lee—the same Lee who afterward proved a traitor to the colonist cause—and, sending for a young private soldier who had done some scouting for him, gave him the message, written on tissue paper and rolled into a ball the size of a small pill. Herbert Burrage, the messenger, proposed to go dressed as an ordinary farmer's boy, these precautions being necessary because he would need to pass over debatable ground, and the Tories were active in behalf of the British cause.

Burrage's route took him through Elizabethtown, now called Elizabeth and then but a small village. Unfortunately or fortunately, as the case might be, he had a sweetheart there. Her father was an arrant Tory, and Burrage felt that it would be very risky for him to stop on the way for a kiss from his girl. But when it is a question with a lover between his girl and danger danger is sure to win. Burrage on passing the Erskine farm, near the town, loitered near till he saw Molly go to the spring house. Then, dodging behind trees and fences, he went there himself.

"Why, Herbert!" she exclaimed, astonished at the sudden apparition. "What are you doing here?"

"Hush! I'm carrying a message from General Washington to General Lee."

The girl paled. "When men carry messages between armies in war time not in uniform aren't they liable to be hanged if caught?" she asked, trembling.

"Well, in the first place, many of our men have no uniform and this is not exactly within the enemy's lines. I am chiefly concerned for the message. I have taken a great risk in coming here to see you, for if your father knew my errand he would hold me, and if he could get a hand on the message it would go to General Howe instead of General Lee."

If Herbert Burrage had been an old soldier he would have known better than to remain in a spring house, where he could be easily cornered.

The woman in such affairs usually keeps her wits about her better than the man. Molly realized the danger and kept her eye on a little window through which she could see the farmhouse, a short distance away. But even she did not think far enough ahead, for when she saw her father coming it was too late for her lover to beat a retreat before being seen. Seeing her start up Herbert started too, and on discovering her father he resumed his wits sufficiently to dispose of the message. He took it out of his waistcoat pocket and put it in Molly's ear. Then he waited for the blow to fall.

The door of the spring house had been closed, but Molly threw it open. When Mr. Erskine saw Herbert Burrage, whom he knew to be his daughter's lover, he greeted him not unkindly, but with surprise.

"I thought you had enlisted," he said to Herbert.

"So I did."

"Then why these citizen's clothes?"

Herbert made no reply—indeed, there was nothing to say.

"It is evident," said Erskine, "that you are on some business for the army. I must take you in. Go to the house. If you make any resistance there are those within call who will shoot you down on my request."

Herbert, who, loath to injure Molly's father, having transferred his message, made no resistance. At the house he was locked in a room by himself, and presently several Tory neighbors came in and searched him. Not finding anything, they were tempted to let him go; but, being convinced that if he had no written message he at least had a verbal one, they decided to hold him.

The season was late autumn, but the snow had not yet fallen in that region. The moon was full, and Herbert from the window of his prison room could see far and wide. He knew Molly must have been searched to determine if he had not transferred his message to her and wondered if it had been found. What was his relief and joy to see a horse issue from the barn and by the moonlight a rider on its back and that that rider was a girl, Molly. He knew her errand. She possessed the message and was going to carry it to General Lee.

The next morning Molly was discovered to be missing. Her father saw through the matter, divining that Burrage had carried a message and that it had been transferred to Molly, who had carried it to its destination. He called his Tory friends together, and they discussed the situation. It seemed that nothing was to be done but to hold the prisoner till her return. As for following her, she had doubtless too good a start.

When Molly returned, and admitted that she had carried the message from Elizabethtown, to what point she would not say, after a conference among the Tories it was decided that, rather than have it known that they had been tricked, they would set Herbert Burrage at liberty.

A QUICK CHANGE

By WINIFRED G. TEALE

Tom Davis was a hard headed, matter of fact sort of fellow engaged to Lucy Tisdale, a very romantic young lady of eighteen. The only objection Lucy had to her Tom was that there didn't seem to be a spark of romance in him.

One day Lucy surprised Tom by telling him that she believed her mother was not intending to let her marry him. Since he had always appeared to be a favorite with Mrs. Tisdale, he could hardly believe this story and told Lucy that she must be mistaken. Lucy said she wasn't and that an elopement was necessary. This didn't suit Tom. He pointed out to her that without a certainty as to her mother's opposition they would be very silly to antagonize her and make themselves absurd to all their friends, whereupon Lucy said that he must show some spirit in the matter or resign her. Tom reluctantly consented to an elopement.

They eloped in an auto, and Lucy waited outside the parsonage while Tom went inside to secure the services of a minister.

Very important matters often hinge on very little ones. The minister kept Tom waiting while he shaved, but, having cut his cheek, took time to stanch the blood. This gave Lucy time to consider, and the fact came to her that she was making a fool of herself. Every moment she expected the parsonage door to open and Tom to come out to take her in to the wedding. Yielding to an impulse, she started the auto, gradually accelerating the speed till she turned into the main road leading homeward, when she put on all the power. It was an ignoble flight, as she well knew, but anything was better than either facing Tom or going home married to confront a mother who hadn't the slightest objection to her being wed in an ordinary fashion.

When Tom came out and saw nothing of Lucy he made inquiries as to whether she had been kidnaped, and when he learned that she had driven away the true solution of her action occurred to him.

Now, Tom had been brought up with a cousin with whom he had been used to consulting whenever anything bothered him. Indeed, they had been so psychically intimate that he had never thought of marrying her. It so happened that this cousin lived in the very town he had come to for matrimonial purposes. When Tom emerged from the minister's house saying that he would be back with the bride in a few minutes and found himself deserted he didn't like it at all. What distressed him most was that Lucy had proved so weak a character. His first impulse was to go and talk with his cousin about it, and he did so. When he had told her how Lucy had left him in the lurch he added:

"I'm in a very absurd position, Eunice, with reference to the minister. He's waiting for me to come with my girl to be married. No doubt he's thinking what he will buy for his family with the fee. I dislike awfully to go back and tell him that the girl has backed out."

"I don't see how you can help yourself."

There was a pause during which both were thinking. Then Eunice added, "That is, if you're going to try it again with Lucy."

"I'm not," said Tom decidedly, "but I don't see how that helps matters."

"You might take another girl to the minister. He won't know the difference."

Tom stood looking into her eyes, a new idea slowly working its way into his brain. When she lowered them the slow process ceased and the idea went galloping onward, gaining strength with every bound. What in the world had he been doing in leaving this girl, on whose judgment so far back as he could remember he had been accustomed to rely, to whom he had gone for comfort or to be stimulated or soothed, as the case required, to fall in love with a girl who had not only made a fool of herself, but of him?

"Eunice," he said presently, with the suspicion of a tremor in his voice, "will you help me out of this?"

"How?"

"By going with me as that other girl."

"Better think it over, Tom. You might regret it."

"No; I pledge you my word I won't. On the contrary, I see plainly what an ass I have made of myself in leaving you out of my calculations. Can you forgive me?"

She looked up into his eyes and saw that a great change had come over him.

"Come," he added; "there will be an advantage to me in completing the wedding arrangements now and avoiding future discussion, criminations and such like."

"Any course is the right one if you are sure."

"I'm sure. I only hope you are."

"I've been sure for years."

There was but little time for the tender scene that followed. Eunice went upstairs and in a few minutes returned ready for the bridal. It was but a few steps to the minister's, and when they entered his study he was not aware that since he had been called upon to officiate there had been a change of brides. He made them man and wife.

When Lucy heard how her place had been supplied she groaned in spirit. She has never married.

WATCHED LOVERS

By JOHN W. JONES

It is said that love laughs at locksmiths. Verily love laughs at pretty much all efforts to separate those he would bring together. He laughs at distance, at poverty, at homeliness, at pride. In my case he laughed at watchfulness—that is, I managed to communicate with my love, who was watched by her mother for the express purpose of preventing my doing so.

Helen—my Helen—there is only one Helen for me in the world—was an heiress and was to be given only to a husband who could match her fortune with one of his own. Helen was at an age where the feminine heart is easily moved when I was thrown in her way. I was young myself, too young to consider her fortune. I was altogether absorbed in herself. It would not have made any difference to me if she hadn't a cent, and I don't suppose she stopped to consider whether I was rich or poor. The only spur for both of us was that we were not expected to love each other.

We were conscious of the fact that Helen's mother did not leave us alone together a moment. I suppose she realized that her daughter, like most girls of her age, was ready to fall in love with the first young man with whom she was brought into contact and the mother did not propose to take any chances. Circumstances placed me under the same roof with them for a week's vacation, and during that time I was to be given no time to work up a love affair.

Helen was the most obedient, demure, retiring creature in the world. To look at her when her mother was present—and she was always present—one wouldn't suppose butter would melt in her mouth. The first evening we were together the three of us played cards. The second evening—I was out most of the day—the mother read to us from—not a love story. Oh, no. There was not a bit of love in the story, nor was it in Helen's and my glances—that is, we were unconscious that it was. What was read to us was a report of missionary work in India.

By the time the third evening came around the lady, not having noticed any evidences of interest between her daughter and me, was content to occupying herself with some sewing and permitted us to talk to each other. I took up a book from the table, near which we all sat. It was a work called "Letters to Young People." I glanced over a few pages and spoke of how helpful such a book would be to so many growing into manhood and womanhood, entering upon the most critical period of their lives without the valuable experience of their elders. In a letter upon "Obedience" I left the imprint of my thumbnail upon the two words "sweet" and "heart" and, handing the book to Helen, asked her if she did not think the advice given in the letter very well expressed. She took the book and presently returned it to me open at a letter on "Filial Responsibility." I looked for thumbnail marks and found them. They read, "Am I really that to you?"

The good mother sat quietly over her work, well content with the way she was keeping two tender vines from intertwining, while we were writing our cipher love messages. They were very short and very simple, nothing like the protestations of lovers in books, but there was in them the very honey of love for us. However, we dared not work our scheme long lest the watcher's attention be excited. At 10 o'clock sharp Helen was ordered up to bed and I, having no way to amuse myself below, went to my room.

I sat up till midnight writing on the backs of my visiting cards I had with me, in letters large enough to be read across a room, love messages to be used the next evening. When that evening arrived and we assembled in the library I said I felt dull and would amuse myself with a book. I found the best light behind the mother, though I faced the daughter. We had scarcely got comfortably settled before I whipped out my cards and held one after another so that Helen could see it. Her blushes soon frightened me off, however, but not before I had communicated the fact that I would love her for ever and ever and if I lost her I would perish.

I found seven days quite enough to arrange an elopement. During this time I had never been alone with the girl a minute and had never spoken a word of love to her. True, I had once taken a fearful risk. When we were passing out to dinner we dropped behind her mother, and I seized the opportunity to take a kiss. That kiss, though hasty, was nectar for the gods, the first sip of wine, the acme of bliss.

Well, the upshot of it all was that at the end of the week we were both missing. We went to a clergyman, were married and returned to my wife's home. Her mother looked at us in wonder. The first words she uttered were, "How in the world did you do the courting?"

She was obliged to make the best of it. The marriage turned out no worse and no better than the majority. But that was luck.

Years after our marriage we confessed to my mother-in-law how we had begun our courtship by pressing our thumb nails under the words to make a message and continued it by my exhibiting cards—behind her back—with love words written on them.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

"She had been through my pockets first."

A Help to Promptness.

Anxious Voice Over the Phone—Doctor, please hurry over to our house. One of the family has suddenly been stricken with a fainting fit. Is there anything you want ready when you get here, so that there will be no time lost? Doctor—Yes—er—you may have my fee ready.—Lippincott's.

Easy Enough.

"Maw, I've come across a word that I can't pronounce."

"Spell it, dear."

"G, e, o, m, o, r, p, h, y."

"Why, that's a proper noun—Geo. Morphy. Pay more attention to what you are reading and don't bother me again."—Chicago Tribune.

His Tribute to His Wife.

The following obituary notice was published in a German paper:

"Today red, tomorrow dead. So it was with my wife, who only seven days ago 'was springing over bench and table,' and was buried yesterday. During her life she was a live woman, who did not easily mistake an X for a U. For that reason everybody can tell the extent of my sorrow; so young and so merry, and now buried. What is human life? I have said to myself repeatedly within the past few days, and also yesterday in the church yard when I paid the sexton, who will also keep the grave mound in order. So cheerful a wife I shall certainly never, never find again, and therefore my sorrow is a righteous one. I wish that heaven preserves any man from a similar sad fate, and thanks for the flowers, as well as th Herr Cantor, the music master of the choir, for the grave hymn, which went through and through me, but was very well sung. Ackerman, Master Locksmith."

Not the Silent Partner.

"I want to telegraph $25 to Chicago," said a man to the clerk in a Boston telegraph office recently.

"The name, please," asked the receiving teller, a good looking young woman behind the counter, whose age might have been twenty-five.

"It's for Mrs. Mary K. Brown, 175 —— avenue," answered the man.

"Your name, too, please," again questioned the young woman.

"My name is Henry Brown; I'm the other half of the firm," answered the man.

"The money goes to the silent partner, eh?" good naturedly remarked the young woman.

"Not on your life she isn't!" answered the man. "Nothing silent about her. She's made more noise for the last two weeks for this $25 than you can imagine. She's the noisy partner of the firm, and she makes good with the title too."—Boston Traveler.

The Giraffe as It Feeds.

The singular shape of the giraffe is adapted to its habits of life. It feeds on the young branches and top shoots of the trees, and its long fore legs and neck enable it to browse at a far greater height than any other animal, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. In feeding it stretches up its neck and with its long prehensile tongue, which it can protrude to a surprising distance, hooks down the tender shoots and leaves into its mouth. But the creature's peculiar form, though enabling it to feed on what it likes best, is sometimes the cause of its destruction. The fore legs are so long that to reach the ground it has to stretch them wide apart and bend down its neck in a semicircle, and while drinking in this defenseless attitude the lion or leopard springs upon it and overpowers it before it can recover itself.

Splinters In the Fingers.

When you get a splinter in your finger it is sometimes possible to get at it by pressing the point of a needle under it, but unless you have deft fingers or a pair of tweezers you may not be able to pull it out even then. A new pen nib is a very good substitute for a pair of tweezers. Lay the nib over the splinter so as to hide it. Then press down hard enough to separate the nibs. If you now let the pen down level with the splinter and allow the nibs to close again they will take hold, and you can draw the splinter out. Remember that any metal thing that is to be applied to a wound, such as a needle, penknife or pen, should be passed lightly through a flame first so as to disinfect it. A gas jet or a match will do.—New York Sun.

Love and the Drama.

A periodical devoted to the drama pleads for plays based on some emotion other than love. The difficulty in producing such plays is that every play must have a hero, and in making a hero the playwright as well as his audience almost inevitably adopts the view expressed 2,000 years ago by a scribbler on one of the dead walls of Pompeii, "He who has never loved a woman is not a gentleman."—Exchange.

Lucky Bessie.

Having need of some small change, the mistress of the house stepped to the top of the back stairs.

"Bessie," she called to the maid below, "have you any coppers down there?"

"Yes'm—two," faltered Bessie, "but they're both my cousins, please, ma'am."—London Punch.

Before.

"You used to say," she complained, "that I was your sunlight; that the world was gloomy when you were not in my presence."

"I know," he sadly replied; "that was before you had acquired the habit of telling me candidly every few minutes what you thought of me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Queer Elephant Shrew.

One kind of African mice we seldom see or read about is the little elephant shrew. It is barely four inches long, but the trunk and shortened tail combined gives it another four to five inches. The fur, though drab instead of gray, is otherwise like that of a chinchilla, as also are its large and delicate ears, while both in the formation and the manner of using its legs it reminds one of a new species of miniature kangaroo. Again, at times, when in a sitting posture, it looks not unlike a fluffy young chicken which is trying to put out of sight a worm that has proved almost too much for it. Indeed, at all times the elongated and highly sensitive nose or trunk is very much like a dark colored and uneasy worm—that organ, which during wakeful moments is always slightly on the wriggle. It has swift leaping powers. It will tuck up its appendages and, like a ball, roll over and over in a straight line, and, after a meal, which occurs at very short intervals and consists of several mouthfuls only, quite surprises one by standing stock still, apart only from a gentle quivering of the trunk.

A Certain Shot.

The aged, wrinkled gamekeeper whistled his dog and scratched his grizzled head before turning to the company.

"Yes, sir," said he; "the rummiest master I ever had were old Parson Sharpe. As blind as a bat, he were."

"And did he go shooting?" exclaimed the audience in the village workingmen's club.

"Shooting!" replied the gamekeeper, with a snort of contempt at the question. "Ay, that he did. Yes, he shot reg'lar. When he was in the woods and anything rose I'd cry, 'Birds, sir!' and then I'd run behind the parson and the dogs 'd run behind me."

"And then?" asked the audience.

"Then the old gent'd blaze away with both barrels."

"And did he ever hit anything?"

"Oh, yes! Sometimes it wur a cow or a horse or a pig or a dog. Now and again it wur a man. But he always hit something. He were a certain shot, he were!"—London Answers.

Spiking the Guns.

The expression "spiking guns" is a survival from the day when all that was necessary to put a gun out of action (provided, of course, that you had access to it) was a large nail or spike and a hammer. You simply drove the nail into the touch-hole at the breech. If the nail was long enough to turn round at the end on the bottom of the bore so much the better. It is just as simple, perhaps simpler, to put a modern gun out of action. All you want is a hammer. The breech block of the modern gun is held closed by screw threads. After the breech block is shut on the shell a turn of two or three inches engages the threads. By knocking a bur on these threads you prevent them engaging. Any attempt to fire the gun without the breech block being perfectly closed would, of course, be of material assistance to the enemy.

Women and the Violin.

"A distinguished violinist of this city," writes Philip Hale in the Boston Herald, "was talking recently about women who fiddled and now fiddle. He complained that nearly all of them classed as great erred in this—they tried to play like a man; they wished it said of them that they had a virile tone. He did not except Lady Halle, Maud Powell or Miss Parlow. 'The only great woman violinist I remember was Teresina Tua, and her greatness consisted in the fact that she always played like a woman. She was womanly and fascinating.' Saint-Saens once said apropos of Augusta Holmes that when a woman wrote for the orchestra she was noisier than any man because she wished to show that she was not a poor, weak thing on account of her sex."

Gambetta's Table.

There is a curious story told of the table at which Gambetta wrote. A previous owner, General Lahitte, minister for foreign affairs in 1849, dismissed his confidential servant because he believed he had stolen a large sum of money in 1,000 franc banknotes. Years afterward, when the table had to be repaired, the joiner employed for the work found the missing bundle of banknotes between the mahogany board of the table and the drawers below. They had lain there unnoticed for fourteen years. Unfortunately the story does not go on to say that the poor servant and his mistaken master were alive at the time of the discovery and that the one's character was cleared and the other's confidence restored.

The Japanese Hades.

The Japanese language has no equivalent for our word "hell," but has the word "jigoku" instead. Jigoku consists of, first, eight immense hot hells, ranging one beneath the other in tiers. Each of these hells has sixteen additional hells outside its gates, like so many antechambers, so that there are in all 136 hot hells. Second, there are eight large cold hells, each with its sixteen ante-hells, making the same number of cold that there are of hot hells. Besides these 272 hot and cold hells for offenders of the common sort, the wily Japs have twenty mammoth "hells of utter darkness," into which will be consigned the spirits of children who take the name of Dai Butsu, or Great Buddha, in vain.

Pulling an Elephant's Tooth.

Perhaps the greatest dental operation on record was performed upon an elephant in the City of Mexico. The aching tooth was twelve inches long and measured fourteen inches round the root. After the animal had been securely fasten with chains his mouth was pried open and a quantity of cocaine applied to deaden the pain. When this was done a hole was bored through the tooth and an iron bar inserted. Then a rope was twisted around the bar, and four horses were attached thereto to drag the offending molar out.—London Tit-Bits.

Speak to the Horse.

The human voice has more or less marked influence on all animals. In managing horses especially the voice is of the greatest use. It should be quiet and, though confident and masterful, not loud and boisterous. No one should ever touch a horse without at the same time speaking to it.—Exchange.

As to Papa's Wealth.

"Mamma, what is papa worth?"

"I don't know, dear, but it must be a great deal. I heard him say once that he had put $100,000 into a mining company's stock."

"What's the name of the mining company?"

"Wildcat, I think he said. I presume they named it that because it's in some unsettled country away out on the frontier."—Chicago Tribune.

CURTIS WINS FAST MATCH

Mat Was To Small For Bush, and Then, Too, He Had Hard Luck.

Loren C. Curtis, weighing 158 pounds, near champion middleweight of the U. S., threw Carl Busch, weighing 171 pounds, champion middleweight of Germany, two straight falls at the Lyceum theater Saturday evening, securing the first fall with a scissors and half Nelson in 5 minutes and 10 seconds and the second fall with a hammer lock in 57 seconds. Busch claims that during the first minute of their work on the mat he had a rib injured and that later when Curtis secured the scissors, the floater was so injured that he had to give up. In the second round he did not dare exert himself very much, hence his speedy demise. Before the match referee John Rodjers read a challenge to the winner of the Busch—Curtis match from Chas. Gustafson, champion middelweight of Canada. The challenge was accepted and the match will take place here next Thursday evening, April 18.

Main Bout.

Busch and Curtis climbed into the ring together amid hearty applause from the packed and highly expectant house, at 11:30 p. m. As a fitting welcome for the German wrestler the orchestra played "Die Wacht am Rhine." One minute later referee Rodjers introduced the wrestlers, saying Busch's weight was 171 and Curtis' 158, and that the match would be catch-as-catch-can with only the strangle barred. The crowd expressed surprise at the heaviness of the men, but it was probably correct since they were weighed on a butcher's scales.

TALKING ABOUT ROAD BUILDING

Being a Discussion of work Done by Office of Public Roads, Dept. Agr.

Washington, D. C. April 10.—A few days ago a good roads train started out on the Frisco lines on a cross country trip. The undertaking is the work of the Office of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture. The train is equipped not only with road engineers, who will do the talking at the various stops, but is supplied with miniature models illustrating the different kinds of roads, as well as road-making machinery. In orderto arouse interest along the route and get the people out to hear the good road talks, and visit the demonstration cars where the models are on exhibition, a well known publicity man has been employed to advertise the coming of this train. You wouldn't think that the arrival of a circus in a town and the coming of a good roads train would be heralded in much the same fashion. Yet this is just what is being done./ The advance man for the good roads train was formerly the publicity manager of a well-known circus, and the methods he is employing to arouse enthusiasm in the good roads propaganda are not unlike those seen in the flaming bill posters.

Up on the third floor of the office of public roads building, presided over by L. W. Page, who has the title of director, the government road experts are turning out model after model of the kind exhibited on the train. But they can't turn them out fast enough. Since the good roads movements reached a high water mark the director of the bureau has been besieged with requests for road models. Some of them have been on exhibition at State Fairs, some at technical schools and universities, but the supply does not equal the demand. These models are exact reprodnctions of sections of good roads, showing the kind of material used and the manner of construction. Model number 1 is a Sand Clay Road. The material is sand clay and the road

The Voice Of The People

N. Dak. and Wis. Unequivocally Show LaFollette Is the People's Choice.

Washington, D. C., April 10.—Two states have held presidential preference primaries. Senator LaFollette has carried them both by overwhelming majorities. North Dakota came first, and then Wisconsin followed with a vote of four to one in his favor.

LaFollette won all of Wisconsin's twenty-six delegates, with a decisive vote in every district. Yet an early report, given circulation by the reactionaries of that state for the purpose of creating a false first impression, was published all over the county to the effect that the result in certain districts was in doubt. The earliest, as well as the latest, election returns showed that LaFollette had carried every part of his home state.

Here is something that every citizen of the country should consider: No man ever became President or aspired to be President who could show a series of endorsements by those who knew him best that even remotely approached the record of LaFollette. The people of his home state in spite of unparalleled opposition, have voted

HAVE YOU CLEANED UP?

Fire Waste Caused by Careless Handling of Refuse Can Be Reduced.

At this season of the year, Nature is about to put on her most beautiful garb. The people generally realize the necessity of putting their premises in order. The figures furnished by fire statistics of 1911 emphatically indicate the necessity of CLEANING UP. $150,000 would not make good the fire loss in Minnesota in 1911 caused by carelessness in connection with the annual clean-up.

This cleaning should extend from cellar to garret, from house to outbuildings, alleys and yards. A flying spark, lodging, a lighted match or a live cigar, or cigarette stub thrown carelessly into rubbish in or

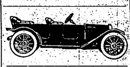
AUTO OWNERS ARE LIMBERING UP

Fifty Cars Will Pick Up The Dust In Thief River Falls This Spring.

K. A. Sundahl, manager of the Northwestern Auto Co, is making great preparations for handling the auto business here this summer. He says there will be fifty cars picking up the dust here this spring, ten of them being handled by new drivers. Last Sunday saw veterans and amateurs alike out warming up their cars to see if the machines were ready for spring work.

Mr. Sundahl now has a garage that is a delightful surprise to visitors and a credit to the city. He has a large well-planned concrete building equipped with all the modern conveniences for caring for cars. He stores and takes care of twenty local cars, sells the Willys-Overland and will this summer have three cars for livery service. Auto owners can get 'most anything they want in the way of repairs without sending away.

The following illustration will give the reader an idea of the graceful lines found in the 1912 touringcar.



The fashionable car has fore-doors with door handles inside, levers inside, and is built along distinctly graceful lines. There is no question that the modern car is much nicer to look at than the old style, still there are enough people yet who don't own automobiles, so that one can come out with last years make and be more envied than pitied.

It is calimed by manufacturers that one can get a better made car, more beautifully finished, at a lower price than formerly, owing to better system in the process of manufacturing and an increased output of cars. One firm turns out sixty-four finished cars every twenty-four hours.

For $900 one ought to be able to get a big roomy five-passenger touring car with enough reserve power and speed to meet all rational requirements. This should include: 106-inch wheel base; 5-passenger fore-door touring body; 4x4½ motor; 30 horse-power engine; selective, three speeds and reverse transmission; cone cluth; good ignition; good brakes; 1¾ inches wide, semi-elliptic front springs, threequarter elliptic rear springs; worm and segment adjustabel stearing gear with 16-inch wheel; tires and rims good, but not guaranteed; pressed steel frame; good finish; three oil lamps, two lamps, horn and generator; one complete set of tools, and a guarantee that the car will stand up for ninety days. The language usually used by beginners in learning to run a car may be obtained free of charge from Clyde Fitch, or anyone else who has ever tried to run a motor.

"WONDERFUL", SAYS SIBERIAN ENGINEER

Chief Engineer Peter Stakle, of Blogovestchensk, Comes Here For First View of Dredge.

When Chief Engineer Peter Stakle, of Blogovestchensk, Siberia, left here last Friday evening he carried with him an entirely new conception of the way big ditches are dug for the purpose of reclaiming wet lands. Having heard of the immense ditching propositions being carried out in Minnesota, Mr. Stakle came directly from Siberia here to get his first view of modern dredge work. During his two days stay here Mr. Stakle was the guest of the Northwestern Drainage Co., and was in charge of Mr. Aprin, who showed the visitor every courtesy and loaded him with all information necessary for a clear conception of dredge work. Mr. Stakle thot the work being done on ditch No. 11 was wonderful and highly compilmented Mr. Arpin of the efficient system used for carrying on the work here. He never dreamed work was being done on such an extensive scale. He was much taken up with the dredges and wanted to buy one right away, but none of them was for sale and he was advised to make the necessary preparations for building the dredges in Siberia. Mr. Stakle will make short stops in the Twin City, Chicago and New York City, sailing

WILL HAVE FAST TEAM

Baseball Boys Started Ball Rolling With Enthusiastic Meeting Monday Evening.

At the baseball meeting Monday evening there was much enthusiasm rampant for a good fast baseball team this summer. The boys had done considerable scouting among the business men and reported all of them interested in seeing a good team here this summer. The prevailing sentiment is that preparations be made for securing outside material for a battery, if necessary, and that the rest of the team be made up of local talent. J. P. Curtis and Louis Lonson are making a thoro canvass of the city in the interests of a baseball team and are receiving a most cordial reception and big subscriptions all along the line The business men all agree that wer'e a bunch of dead ones if we don't support the team in tip top shape. The question of a manager for the team has not been decided. There is plenty of good material, the only hindrance being to get a man who can devote enough time to the position.

The team will be run on a strict business basis, all money taken in on subscription and at the games being accounted for and all money paid out being accounted for. This report of receipts and expenditures will be pub lished regularly and the books will be open for inspection at all times. It was not thot advisabel to build a city park this year, but to fix up the old grounds and make special arrangements for taking out the spectators.

The boys are corresponding with several pitchers and catchers who may be desirous of playing ball and working as much as opportunity affords. There is considerable local material in the battery line, too, and later developments may show there is no need of importing material. Tenney Aasland is as good a pitcher as we could hope to get, when his arm is in good condition.

The Private Secretary

A comedy in 3 acts, at the Auditorium on Friday, April 19th by the High School Seniors. This class play was produced last year by Hamline University and St. Thomas College and proved a remarkable success. It is a laugh from start to finish. The greatest farcical comedy ever written. The high school plays have always been successes and this one will be no exception to the rule.

Cast of Characters:

Mr. Catternole, the uncle from India-	Ray Pope
Douglas Catternole, his nephew-	John Brudie
Mrs. Stead, the landlady-	Dagny Halseth
Mr. Spalding, the private secretary-	Erving Carter
Mr. Gibson, the tailor-	Clarence Larson
Miss Ashford, a spiritualist-	Myrtle Scovell
Mr. Marsland-	Claude Posten
Edith Marsland, his daughter-	Irene Chittick
Harry Marsland, his nephew-	Oscar Evenson
Eva Webster-	Agnes Wilson
John, a servant-	Eugene Hance
Knox, a policeman-	Carl Gullrud

Synopsis of Play:

Act 1.

Scene—Douglas Catternole's room in London. The plot to leave the real private secretary in London and Douglas to go to the Marsland home in the country as the real private secretary. Gibson, the tailor, who wants to soar in high society, arrives to collect bill. Quarrel ensues. Gibson is thrown out. Arrival of uncle from India. His ugliness frightens Mrs. Stead. Sees Mr. Spalding and mistakes him for his nephew. Spalding thinks Catternole a lunatic and tries to escape. Knox serves writ on Spalding by mistake.

Act 2.

Country home of Marsland. Miss Ashford's attempts to convince Marsland of the reality of spirits. Catternole arrives. Douglas, pretending to be real private secretary, gives the young ladies lessons in literature and starts flirting with them. Miss Ashford shocked. Catternole meets nephew and does not recognize him. Spalding arrives. Harry and Douglas hide him. Miss Ashford thinks him to be a medium. Spirits appear. Funny complications. Miss Ashford faints.

Act 3.

Time—Next morning. Private secretary hidden in chest by Catternole, behind curtains by Miss Ashford, under table by boys. Side-splitting complications, and mistaken identities. Douglas and Edith all in love, as do Eva and Mary. Spalding mistaken for burglar. Tangles straightened out and real private secretary presented.

Reserved seat Plan at Stebbins. Matinee for children at 3 p. m. Evening entertainment at 8:30. Usual prices. A crowd always attends the class plays, so get your seat early.

Eleventh Article On Taxation

Collection of Delinquent Taxes. Penalty of 10 per cent Added after March 1st, and June 1st.

Real estate taxes become delinquent on June 1, and personal property taxes on March 1 of each year. If not paid before these dates a penalty of 10 per cent is added, and any county treasurer who accepts payment of the taxes without including the penalty becomes personally liable for the amount of the penalty.

The collection of delinquent real estate taxes, as explained in the preceeding article, is enforced against the property assessed, and personal property taxes against the person assessed.

In the case of delinquent real estate taxes, on or before February 1 in each year the county Auditor files with the clerk of the istrict court a list of all tracts of lands or lots on

WILL EXCAVATE 2,600,000 YARDS

Northwestern Drainage Co. Fully Prepared to Operate Six Dredges When Frost Leaves.

The dredges of the Northwestern Drainage Co., will soon commence their season's operations, as soon as the frost is sufficiently out of the ground to permit them to work. This company expects to excavate the coming summer approximately two million, six hundred thousand (2,600,000) yards of earth, operating six dredges, four of which are known as the walking type of dredge, and two floating dredges.

On Judicial Ditch No. 11, the large project that extends from Thief River extending seven townships to the east, in which there are main ditches and branches, five hundred and fifty (550) miles in the one project, they have four dredges.

Their largest floating dredge is working westward toward Mud Lake, and will reach Thief River, the main outlet of this large system, this coming fall. Another floating dredge is constructed on what is known Branch No. 200 of this system, nine miles directly east of Elm Lake on Littel River. This dredge will dig its way westward thru Elm Lake to Thief River, which operation will be completed this fall. In passing thru this territory this dredge will drain practically the only extremely wet area left in the eastern country, between Red Lake on the south and Moose River on the north, and it will likewise pass thru what is known as one of the greatest peat bogs in this section of the country east of Elm Lake, where the peat extends to a depth of nine feet before the clay sub-soil is reached.

On this same project at Grygla a walking dredge will start north and work in a northwesterly direction toward Rollis. Another will start northeast of Mud Lake, which was drained last year, and will work in a northeasterly direction towards Rollis. These two walking dredges will complete all the small ditches north of the main ditch, as far north as Thief Lake, and as far east as Gatzke, the present season.

Road crews will follow each indi-

* * * * * * * * * * *

It has been found almost impossible for the department of agriculture of the local high school to secure guaranteed seed corn, as the matter was taken up with the seed dealers of the city, with the result that they are prepared to furnish a supply. The school can assist the corn club members to secure some pedigreed seed, but is unable to do more than this, this season.

The high school sewing classes are cutting and making dresses. The material is supplied by the students and real dressmaking is being taught and with most satisfactory results. Next year a course in millinery will be added

Miss Eleanor Connelly substituted for Miss Peterson in the 7th grade at the Washington Monday forenoon.

Miss McConnell was detained at her home in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., until Wednesday evening by the illness of her mother.

Supt. C. G. Selvig of the Crookston Agriculture School and J. H. Hay attended a meeting at St. Hilaire last Friday, where the proposition of the consolidation of four outlying districts with the village school was discussed.

School opened Monday for the spring term of eight weeks with an increased enrollment of new pupils. At the same time, a [illegible] had moved out to [illegible] thus the balance of [illegible] instituted.

G. O. Carlson, the well known Erskine dairyman and state institute conductor, accompanied W. A. Haskin through the county last week holding corn and dairy meetings. This closes the extension work of the agriculture department for this year. At least 1000 people were reached by the school house meetings held during the winter and a decided interest was aroused. Organizations for corn growing, poultry raising and social puproses were established or revived and a foundation laid for further effort next season.

All the three first primary rooms have been placed on half day sessions for the current term of eight weeks. The forenoon and afternoon sessions will be extended, so that the interests of the children may not be impaired. Parents may send their beginners, if they are of school age, but they will have to attend in the afternoon only.

The class play takes place at the Auditorium on the 19th inst. This play is well prepared and Miss Goodwin has spared no pains to secure a perfect presentation. It will be a laugh from the time the curtain rises until it drops at the close. The funds obtained will be used to purchase a class memorial for the school and to aid in meeting the necessary graduation expenses. No one can afford to miss this evening of fun and all are guaranteed a good time. When fake shows are so prevalent, it is a relief to find at least one class of entertainment which is clean, mirth provoking and for a local purpose.

The enrollment in the high school language classes is as follows. First year Latin, 11; Caesar, 8; Vergil and Cicero, 4; Norwegian, 31; first year German, 15; second year German, 13.

It has taken years to improve the school grounds in this city and they can and will be still further made attractive. They constitute the only public parks or playgrounds in town, are centrally located and ought to be utilized as parks for the citizens during the warm weather. Action necessary to accomplish this is scarcely within the province of a board of education, so it is suggested that ward movements be started in the four sections of the city, to co-operate with the school board to provide seats and substantial playground material for the convenience of adults and particularly for the children. Suitable apparatus is now manufactured in abundance and is being installed in various towns as suggested. If the city cannot secure city parks, what is the objection to utilising the public grounds that are available? The details can be easily worked out as public sentiment strongly favors parks in Thief River Falls.

WOULD WASH WALKS AND GUTTERS

Street Commissioner, Melby, has suggested that he be authorized to have the big hydrant hose turned on the side-walks and gutters early every morning during the summer months. His idea is that this would be a good move towards keeping the City clean and would also be the means of removing bad odors, making the city healthier and fresher throughout the day. When asked what would be used to keep the dust down this summer, Mr. Melby said: "[illegible] will likely be the water sprinkling method." He recommended that those interested in other means of keeping the dust down read up on Dustoline, Tasscoil and Granulated Calcium Carbide, a good account of these being fonud in the March issue of The American City, a magazine devoted to Municipal Problems and Civic Betterment.

THE FLIP OF A COIN

By LUCY K. WYNKOOP

Muriel Beakes was born, so to speak, in the swim. When she was eighteen she was given a coming out party, thereby being launched in society as one of the buds of the season. Her father had means just sufficient to maintain the family social position, but when his children married they must either have fortune or sink beneath the golden surface.

Muriel was sufficiently forethoughtful to understand this and that she must make choice between dropping out of society upon her marriage or snaring a fortune.

Toward the end of her first social season she had done considerable angling, but had caught nothing worth retaining. She had thrown them all back into the swirling waters. In February her father decided to go for a trip to Mexico and take her with him. Balls, dinners, operas and theater parties had taken the bloom out of her cheek, and she was glad to recuperate and bring it back for the summer campaign.

Those were the days when Mexico had begun to develop under the stimulus of capital from the United States. Mr. Beakes was interested in the improvements being made there and went over the line of a railroad in process of construction the shares of which had been recommended to him as an investment. A young civil engineer from Pennsylvania was assigned to the duty of conducting him and explaining the advantages that would accrue to the road upon its completion.

Now, though love laughs at locksmiths, he laughs at goldsmiths as well. That is, he has no respect whatever for matrimonial advantages. This young man—Denton Brown was his name—and Muriel Beakes had scarcely met before they loved. The route they traveled over was some 200 miles, and they used all sorts of conveyances, from a donkey to a caboose car. The journey was a veritable picnic, and everybody knows that the little god gets in more work in these unconventional affairs than in all the social functions in the world. Whether the party were journeying in a mule wagon, on a handcar or a locomotive, Cupid was firing arrows at them. It was summer in that latitude, and the region through which they passed was clothed in verdure. Their route, too, ran through a mountainous country, and the scenery was very beautiful.

Muriel strove with herself to throw off the spell under which she had fallen. What would be her fate to marry a civil engineer, whose pay was probably not over $100 a month? She shuddered at the thought, not so much of dropping out of the social swim as of living a life of poverty. She was so [illegible] ready to relinquish [illegible] but could not make up her mind [illegible] the second.

[illegible] and the terminus [illegible] journeyed was reached [illegible] before Muriel [illegible] the young engineer the two walked out to a point where below a broad [illegible] was spread before them. It was that witching hour of evening, twilight, when the glare of day is softened by the coming night. There the man told his story. The girl listened and would have gladly yielded but for prudence. She confessed to the dictates of her heart, but other considerations stood in the way. When she returned to the north she would give him her decision.

She had not been at home a week before she was surprised at receiving a call from her lover. His arrival caused a flutter within her, for she had not come to a decision. She told him plainly that it was a case between him and a life far different from that which he could give her.

"In such cases," he replied, "I merely toss a coin and abide by the result. I would recommend that course to you now."

There was something so coolly deliberate in his recommendation that it won her completely. Half in jest, half in earnest, she gave a tacit consent. He took a coin from his pocket and handed it to her.

"Heads I win, tails I lose," he said. "Best two in three."

She flipped the coin and heads turned up. He was watching her closely and saw that she was secretly pleased. Handing her the coin, she flipped it again. This time it was tails. This time she showed disappointment. His manner changed as he laid a hand upon hers and said impressively:

"I am willing, when there are two equal sides to a question, to permit a bit of inorganic metal to decide for me; but, the decision once made, it must hold. Do not flip the coin again unless you understand the matter as I do."

Muriel sat for a long while, her elbows on the table where lay the silver, her head resting on her hands. Her lover did not attempt to hurry her. She took up the coin and toyed with it awhile; then a sudden resolution came to her. She tossed the coin high in the air, and, coming down on the table, it bounded to the floor. She was bending down to pick it up when he eagerly caught her in his arms and begged her to decide for herself without the coin's assistance.

"No," she said. "I have resolved to abide by it, whatever be its decision."

Both bent over it. It was heads up!

A mutual embrace told that they were both satisfied with the result. Indeed, had Cupid been satisfied with direct methods there would have been no use flipping the coin.

A Temporary Goddess

By CARROL H. PIERCE

I awoke one day in a new room and didn't know where I was. I lay on a [illegible] the floor was stone, and stone cold at that, with not a decoration on the wall, even a calendar. But there was somebody sitting at a table in the corner, writing something down on a piece of paper. My first vision of it was little bits of blue and white lines running up and down, but these soon resolved themselves into a nurse's uniform dress. She turned, saw me looking at her and, rising, advanced toward me.

"Where am I and who are you?" I asked.

"Don't disturb yourself. You have met with an accident and have been brought to a hospital."

I attempted to draw up one of my legs, but concluded to let it alone. There were other things I could do I liked better.

It turned out that I had been running an auto at express train speed, a tire had burst, and I had done a sky rocket act, lighting on the ground some distance from the road.

I was a week in that hospital, attended by that same nurse, seeing no one else except the doctor, before I began to get straightened out. Now, I defy a man to be shut up with one woman for any great length of time, be she homely as a hedge fence, without the pangs of love growing up in his heart. As the physical pangs grew less the love pangs grew greater till at last I could stand it no longer. I must speak. She came to me one morning with a thermometer in her hand to take my temperature, but first felt my wrist. Those soft fingers were too much for me.

"I wish to say to you," I broke out, "that you're the loveliest creature on the face of the globe. Your eyes are heaven's windows, through which an angel peers; your skin is alabaster, your lips are budding roses, your"—

"Let me see your tongue?"

I didn't like the shut off, but during my confinement I had got used to being bossed, and I obeyed instantly. She pushed the thermometer into my mouth, and speech was out of the question.

She couldn't leave the thermometer there forever, and when she took it out and wrote something down on her ruled blank I opened fire again, or, rather, I went on from where I'd left off. "Your hair is of gold; your cheeks are a pair of roses; your teeth are pearls; your figure is that of a Venus; you are inconceivably beautiful."

This time she let me go on till I had exhausted the catalogue of her charms, when she said quietly:

"Would you like chops or steak for your dinner or a slice of roast beef? The doctors say you may have what you wish."

"That means that I'm near a time when I shall be forced to leave you. I won't go. You needn't bring me anything but gruel. I positively decline to be put on the convalescent list."

"All right. I'll make it roast beef."

"You are cruel."

"Oh, I'm used to this. I can't be shut up with a sick man, he having nothing but bare walls and me to look at, but he gets an idea into his head that I'm a houri. I've had three propositions of marriage this year and have accepted them all. I positively decline to accept any more."

"Three propositions! You have accepted three?"

"Yes. Why not? I never heard from any of the proposers after they were discharged and had a chance to come to their senses."

"Do you mean to tell me that I shall ever consider you anything but a goddess; that when I leave this place?"—

"If you ever come back to it—which you won't—you will see that I am a plain, even homely, old maid, and you will wonder what induced you to think me beautiful. Did you ever write something you thought was a stroke of genius and take it up after you had cooled, to discover that you had done a job you were ashamed of? Well, if you come back here to see me that is the way you will feel."

"Not at all. I'll consider you what you are, beautiful."

"You'll do no such thing. You'll see me as I am, anything but beautiful, even homely."

"I won't. I'll clinch it now. Be my wife."

"I'll bet you the price of a sealskin coat you do."

"Do what?"

"Find out your mistake."

"I take the bet."

"Very well; 'tis a go. You pay the bet or marry me."

"Done!"

I left the hospital a week after that, and as soon as I got outside and rode along the streets where many women, some of them pretty, were shopping, I began to feel a reaction. When a month had gone by and my leg and my head and my heart had got righted I knew I didn't wish to marry my nurse or any other woman. I would not go to see her, for if I did I would have either to admit that she was unattractive or make her my wife. Instead, I sent her the handsomest sealskin cloak I could buy and wrote her a note saying that marriage was impossible with me, so there would be no use for me to see her.

Later a woman with my sealskin on bowed to me on the street. I wondered who she was. Then it dawned upon me that she was my former nurse. She was a perfect scarecrow.

Buncoed Out Of
$77,000,000

Enough "Easy Marks" in United States to contribute to "Get-Rich-Quick" projects $77,000,000 in single year.

From the final reports submitted by inspectors covering the arrests for the fiscal year, it has been ascertained that the promoters of fradulent schemes who have been put out of business during the past year, have obtained approximately $77,000,000 from the public.

This is the astonishing statement made in the annual report of R. S. Sharp, chief postoffice inspector. It will probably be incredible to the average person that there are enough "easy marks" in the United States to contribute $77,000,000 to operators of "get-rich-quick" projects; but, according to the chief inspector, this amount does not represent nearly all that went into the pockets of swindlers. The $77,000,000 is the profit of those who have been caught, and does not take in those who are still operating.

These fradulent schemes (said Chief Inspector Sharp) cover a wide field, and are of endless variety—from the simplest business transaction to a gigantic project involving the sale of worthless stock in fake mining companies and fictitious institutions existing only on paper or in the minds of the promoters. The result of the year's work has developed the fact that these fraud manipulators are a distinct class of criminals, some moving in the highest social and business circles, but nearly all having more or less affiliations and connections with, or are advisers with, schemes or enterprises of illegitimate character, in which they are known as promoters.

Only the few arrested last year obtained approximately $77,000,000. There are doubtless numerous persons operating similar, as evidenced by the complaints which are pouring into the department, the public evidently becoming more familiar with their methods as a result of the year's crusade and the publicity given cases of this character by the daily press throughout the country, which has proven of great assistance in protecting the American public from the illegitimate schemes of ingenious operators.

During the fiscal year 1911, 522 individuals were indicted on charges of using the mail in furtherance of schemes to defraud. During the same period 196 persons were tried, of which 184 were convicted, 12 acquited, and 177 are awaiting trial, while 72 are awaiting grand jury action, and 28 were arrested but not indicted. The number who got away and are being traced is 46.

The schemes in which there were convictions generally fell under the following groups:

Promoting and sale of worthless mining or other stocks.
Inducing betting on fake horse races and athletic contests.
Fake land schemes.
Commission merchant swindles.
Selling worthless goods through misrepresentations.
Obtaining commisisons on fradulent orders.
Work at home schemes.
Failure to furnish goods schemes.
Fake correspondence schools.
Sales of cheaps books and divining rods for locating minerals.
Phoney guarantees for stocks and bonds.
Forged bills of lading in cotton deals.
Brokerage swindles.
Obtaining money by impersonating others.
Selling state rights and establishing fictitious agencies.
Selling unfair gambling devices.
"No fund" check schemes.
Selling canceled postage stamps and Mexican money.
Turf tipster schemes.
Selling cigar outfits.
Defrauding employers by means of forged leases and keeping money received from cash customers.
Defrauding insurance companies for alleged injuries.
Obtaining expense money in promises to sell stocks.
Requesting fees for fake positions.
Selling the rights to a patent many times over in the same state.
Securing advance payment on goods not delivered.
Obtaining payment from relatives of deceased persons for goods supposed to have been ordered before death.

MISS VIOLET OAKLEY.

Woman Artist to Finish Work Begun by Abbey.

IN PENNSYLVANIA CAPITOL

Paintings Begun by Edwin Abbey Turned Over to Woman Artist.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 9.—Miss Violet Oakley, who was chosen to complete the paintings in the state capitol that were left unfinished by the death of Edwin Abbey, the artist, will receive the same compensation, $50 a foot, as Mr. Abbey's contract called for. This will net her something like $100,000. Miss Oakley has a wide reputation for remarkable skill in mural work. She was born in New Jersey and studied art under some of the greatest masters.

Papa Did Too.

"This is my son Frederick, Mr. Fosdick," said Mr. Glanders proudly, introducing his five-year-old boy to his caller.

"Well, Frederick," said the caller, "do you obey your mamma?"

"Yes, sir," replied Frederick promptly, "and so does papa."

Her Cultivated Taste.

"Very well," answered Mr. Cumrox. "She has got along so far that when I ask her to play anything I like she looks haughty and says, 'The idea!'"—Washington Star.

Coloring a Meerschaum.

"The secret of coloring a meerschaum pipe," said a man who makes them, "is in not allowing the bowl to get too hot. All meerschaum pipes are boiled in wax, which penetrates the clay—for that's all meerschaum is—and which carries the tobacco oil to all parts of the surface, preventing its exuding. The nature of heat is to drive any liquid away, and if the pipe is smoked too fast the heat generated will drive the wax to the extremes. That is why most meerschaums show color first in those places. Just as soon as the wax is all driven out there is an end to the hope of coloring the pipe unless it is reboiled.

"To prevent this burning smoke slowly, with long, steady puffs. If the bowl gets hot lay the pipe aside at once. Also, let the pipe be thoroughly cold before refilling it after smoking. Nothing will ruin your pipe sooner than keeping it steadily in use."—New York Times.

Wept as He Ate.

General Winfield Scott was a notable figure in the Washington society of sixty years ago described by Mrs. Marion Gouverneur in her volume of reminiscences, "As I Remember." The general was something of an epicure. Mrs. Gouverneur recalls seeing him sit down with great satisfaction to a meal consisting principally of jowl. He did the family marketing personally and was discriminating in the selection of food. Terrapin, which he insisted upon pronouncing tarrapin, was his favorite dish, and he would order oysters by the barrel from Norfolk. On one occasion he attended a banquet where all the states of the Union were represented by a dish in some way characteristic of each commonwealth. Pennsylvania was represented by a bowl of sauerkraut, and in speaking of the fact the next morning the general remarked, "I partook of it with tears in my eyes."

Sesquipedalian Words.

Mark Twain is not the only person to find amusement in the German language. A writer in the Paris Siecle accounts for the deliberation with which the negotiations over the Morocco difficulty were carried on. "Our interlocutors cannot end their explanations," he says. "With the best will in the world they cannot pronounce rapidly such words as this: [illegible]plaseedruckkostenvoranschlagprurungscommissionsversammlungeinladungskarten.' This little word means 'Invitation cards for the meeting of the commission for verifying the accounts of the expenses of printing the list of members of the anti-alcoholic congress.'"

The effect of the German tongue is thus seen to be the exact opposite of what it might be supposed to be. It is a deterrent to war instead of a provocation.

The Teasel.

Those who have never seen a teasel can imagine a fir cone or "swamp cattail" set all over with little stiff hooks. It is the bur (or tassel or flower head or thistle top) of the plant dipsacus. However familiar to people who live in lands where the teasel is extensively grown, the fact may be that the prickly heads of that plant are universally used to raise the nap on cloth. A multitude of persons in this country probably never heard of it and would be astonished to learn in what enormous quantities the plant is cultivated. In France alone many thousands of acres of land are exclusively devoted to the cultivation of the teasel. French manufacturers use enormous numbers of the prickly heads, and from France there are exported many millions of them. They are also raised in Austria, England, Belgium, Poland and the Crimea. The prickles of the teasel have a small knob at the end, and this, mounted on an elastic stem and set with great precision on the central spindle, affords a little brush such as the utmost mechanical skill has never been able to rival, at all events at the same price.—Harper's Weekly.

Tea Testers in Formosa.

In the Formosan tea trade the most important man is the cha si, or taster. He inspects and tests samples of all teas offered to his firm, and his judgment determines the price to be paid. In a room admitting light only from the north the cha si does his work. He first examines the leaf, then its fusion in hot water and lastly its odor and taste. Practically all the faculties are exercised in making this test. It requires the services of an expert, and the tea tester receives a good salary, though relatively not so large as obtaining twenty years ago. A tea taster never uses any perfume which would destroy the tea odor. He must not allow the acuteness of his taste to become dull. He never drinks domestic tea. Constant tea tasting, it is said, will injure the health. In Formosa the tea testers are Americans or Englishmen.

Useless.

"Your wife has filed suit for divorce. Are you going to contest it?"

"No. It wouldn't do me any good. I've lost every argument I ever had with her."—Detroit Free Press.

Comforting Her.

Miss Wry—I have a picture in my mind of my future husband. Miss Guy—I bet it will never be developed.—Smart Set.

Tact and Success.

Tact is a combination of good temper, ready wit, quickness of perception and ability to take in the exigency of the occasion instantly. It is never offensive, but is a balm allaying suspicion and soothing. It is appreciated. It is plausible without being dishonest, apparently consults the welfare of the second party and does not manifest any selfishness. It is never antagonistic, never opposes, never strokes the hair the wrong way and never irritates. Tact, like a fine manner, eases the way, takes the jar out of the jolts, oils the bearings, opens doors barred to others, sits in the drawing room when others must wait in the reception hall, gets into private offices when others are turned down. It admits you into exclusive circles, where wealth abounds, even though poor. It secures the position when merit is turned away. Tact is a great manager. It easily controls people, even when combined with small ability, when genius cannot get along.—Leslie's Weekly.

Control of Children.

Wife (reading)—After their separation he sent her a legal document giving her control of their child. Husband (with a sigh)—I wish I knew where we could get a document that would give us control of our child.—Pearson's Weekly.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR

A Money Maker and Saver

The Cow's Best Friend

If you are still skimming milk by the old-fashioned "setting" system you are losing about one pound of cream in every four and you are not giving your cows a square deal.

With a De Laval cream separator you would get 20 to 35% more, and much better, cream, and besides would have warm sweet milk to feed to your calves and pigs.

We know that the De Laval will give you better service and last twice as long as any other separator and will be a money-maker for you.

Ask any of your neighbors who use a De Laval what kind of service their machines have given them. If a De Laval will save cream and make money for your neighbors it will do as much for you. Why not give it a trial?

Easiest to turn, easiest to wash, skims the cleanest lasts the longest

Official Paper of the City

FRIDAY, APR. 12, 1912

The Elwell State Road Law was sustained last week in the case of Pennington County V. S. The State to determine the validity of the law. This settles the fact that the State road to the east of this city will be given the much looked for improvements.

The above caption was a plea seriously put forward, in the fall election in our city in behalf of a candidate for one of the more important offices. It is a matter for much serious thot when an argument of that kind can be used to influence votes. A man who was worth his salt as a public official would regard such an argument for his eelction as a gratuitous insult. It is not the need of the man but the need of the office that the voter should study, and, if "need" is the only qualification that can be named, it is safe to say that the voter had better vote for someone else. Public officials that are elected merely because they "need it" are generally either a joke or a disgrace.

This method of electing public servants brings to the front the most worthless men in the community. The failures, the down-and-outs, the grafters, the paupers, the driftwood of society. It puts a premium upon laziness and rascality. The plea is at the bottom of the failure of the modern American city to govern itself and is giving point to the numberless shifts which the people are making in an endeavor to rid themselves of the political barnacles and parasites.

The men who feel perfectly contented to elect incompetents to public office would never think of employing them in private life. To employ a man to build a house because "he needs it" and not because of his ability to build would be to have our houses tumbling about our ears, while to call in a man to treat us in sickness because "he needed it" would be to travel to the graveyard by the poison route. When we realize the same responsibility towards efficiency in the public esrvice, that we do in our own personal affairs and demand, for the public a dollars worth of service for every dollar of cash expended, we will have a class of public officials that will look after the public good.

It must not be supposed that this article is intended as a slur to honest poverty, or to say that the honest pauper should not be cared for; on the contrary put them, by all means where they will be well cared for, but not in public office. Send them to the poor farm.

Fortunately for the city's good the man who needed it was elected to stay at home.

EXAMINER, BOOSTROM, SPEAKS WELL OF PENNINGTON COUNTY'S OFFICIALS.

Assistant Public Examiner, Charles R. Boostrom was here this week examing the county officials' books. Mr. Boostrom was very well pleased with the showing that has been made by Pennington officials and says that he found the books of all the various offices uniformly well-kept in strict accordance with the provisions of law. He says the officials got the right kind of a start and have been using modern methods all the way thru, not being hampered with old traditions as is the case in some of the older counties. The local officers appreciate these compliments of Mr. Boostrom's to the fullest extent, for he is not a man that hands them out promiscuously.

WINS AGAIN

The international Pure Food Show held in Paris March 1912, has just awarded Calumet Baking Powder the highest honors, giving them the Grand Prize and Gold Medal

This, in addition to the Highest Award that Calumet won at the World's Pure Food Exposition in Chicago, gives Calumet the highest honors issued by two of the largest Pure Food shows ever held and proves conclusively the superior wholesomeness, purity and uniformity of Calumet Baking Powder.

HOTEL OGAHMAH SERVES SUMPTUOUS BANQUET.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Brumund proved themselves very adept in the banquet line Tuesday evening, when they served a sumptuous 7-course banquet in honor of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Hamre, tendered them by the operating force of the Langseth Mercantile Co. The eighteen assembled guests enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent from nine until twelve p. m. There were elaborate floral decorations, and delightful music furnished by the Ogahmah.

Rev. Roseland admirably handled the part of toast master. In his speech Rev. Roseland emphasized the presence of good feeling and hearty co-operation between the employees and their leader Mr. Hamre. Mr. Hamer responded with a few well chosen words, expressing his appreciation of the confidence placed in him and for the honors accorded him at this function. Other appreciated toasts were given by Mr. Brown, Mr. Storholm and Mr. Thompson.

Osterdals May Come In June

The manager of the Auditorium received this week an answer to the letter he wrote to the secretary of the Osterdals Society inviting that society to hold their annual meeting here sometime in June. [illegible] will select for a meeting place either Thief River Falls or Fargo, a great deal of sentiment being strongly in favor of Thief River Falls.

The Commercial club has sent the society a cordial invitation, and Mr. Jacobson has sent all information in regard to our facilities for entertaining such gatherings.

Osterdal is a country in eastern Norway, bordering on Sweden. The citizens from that section are known as jolly good people and not afraid to celebrate when they get together. Let everybody get ready to extend the glad hand.

night in order to give the people of the city one more opportunity to see a first class game before the baseball season opens. It is said the second team is made up of practically as good, and in their opinion just as good, palyers as the first team. There is a great deal of rivalry between the teams, and the spectators should come prepared to see a fast and exciting game from start to finish. There will be a small admission fee, the proceeds going towards the support of the baseball team. Aside from the fact that your presence will mean a boost for the ball team, everybody ought to be present for the pure wholesome pleasure they can get.

Have you Cleaned Up

outside of buildings has caused many disastrous fires. The chore boy may carelessly throw a match or cigar or cigarette stub into the rubbish surrounding barns or in barns; the clerk may throw either into the rubbish of the basement of business blocks where paper, excelsior and other packing materials are often allowed to accumulate; the thoughless passer-by may throw a cigar or cigarette stub thru the grating in the sidewalk into the dust and filth below. Perhaps we cannot precent the people from carelessly throwing matches or cigars, but we can prevent the accumulation of combustible and inflamable materials, if we will.

In this cleaning up of premises, the attic hsould not be forgotten. In them dust and spider webs accumulate and all sorts of inflamable stuff is stored away. Attics are too often without ventilation. Thus, when the fierce summer sun beats down upon the roof, the attic becomes a veritable furnace and spontaneous combustion occurs in the rubbish, dust, oily rags, highly varnished pieces of furniture, etc.

Spring is the painting season and a caution as to the handling and storing of rags used in wipping varnished or oily surface or wipping paint from the painter's hands is timely. The only safe place for such rags is in the stove. If kept for any length of time to be used again, they should be stored in a substantial, covered iron receptacle.

Many fires are started each year by the careless burning of the rubbish accumulated in yards and alleys during the winter. The burning of this rubbish is too often left to the children, which annually not only costs a large number of lives or serious injury, but result in the total destruction of many thousand dollars of property.

The people of Minnesota are beginning to take an active interest in the idea of prevention of fire waste and there is no greater opportunity for them to do effective work along this line than in thoroughly cleaning their premises inside and out, the proper handling of the refuse accumulated therefrom.

City and Village authorities and boards of health are requested to cooperate with the Minnesota Fire Marshall Department in reducing the annual loss caused by the careless handling of refuse at this season of the year. Again we say, CLEAN UP. [illegible]

The match was so fast, right from the start off, that the best one man could do was see half of what was going on. Curtis went after his man with blood in his eye and Busch reciprocated very nicely. They went to the mat in two seconds with Curtis on top, and then on rolled all over the canvass with Curtis mostly on top. Busch complained of the smallness of the mat, and once the audience was given a breathing spell of a second while Curtis was made to release his grip on Busch's little digit. When the fall came Busch was complaining about being off the mat, but in the referee's judgment he was on and Curtis was awarded the fall. In the second round, after sparing for a few seconds, the men went o the mat and Busch fell into the hammer lock, giving up almost immediately.

Comment.

Curtis made an excellent showing and delivered the goods just like the fans thot he ought to after his match here with Betcher. He is now looked upon as one of the best, if not the best, wrestlers in the whole country. His match with Gustafson should worthily draw the biggest crowd that ever witnessed a wrestling match in Thief River Falls. Curtis is a firm believer now that it pays to be on the square.

Busch did not make as good a showing as he sincerely thot he would make. There's no question about his being a good man. It looked from the ringside as tho he had especially tough luck. It isn't likely any of the local fans would back him very strong in a return match, tho Busch earnestly claims he is the better man. One thing is sure, he is either a very good man or a very poor man, from his exhibition here there is no half-way ground for him.

Referee, Rodjers, tried to be fair and was fair. The audience did considerable uncalled for talking at certain stages of the game, and Rodjers showed remarkable self-control when he did not tell them to go to a hotter place than the Crookston baseball diamond on a cloudless day in August.

for St. Petersburg April 13th and shortly going from there to his work at Blogovestchensk.

Mr. Stakle is engineer in charge of an extensive drainage project in eastern Siberia and has for his problem the reclaiming of sixteen million acres of rich prairie land, his situation being almost identical with certain sections of Pennington and Marshall counties. The Russian government gives forty acres of this land free to any person who will agree to make his home on it, their primary object being to make this land produce supplies for the army in eastern Siberia.

All the ditching done in Siberia so far has been by hand at a cost of 50 cents a yard, and it isn't to be wondered at that Mr. Stakle grew enthusiatsic when he learned the Northwestern Drainage Co., was moving dirt at about 10 cents a yard. It would look as tho the Northwestern Drainage Co., had a good opportunity to extend their operations into Russian territory.

This company owns, and will operate another walking dredge east of Thief River Falls, in the vicinity of Torgerson, on what is known as Judicial Ditch No 13. This dredge, in completing this system, will work in a northerly direction toward the east end of ditch No. 20, from whence it will finally work its way up on Judicial Ditch No. 11 making five dredges the greater portion of this summer, working night and day on the one project.

West of town, in the vicinity of Viking, the Northwestern Drainage Company owns another walking dredge, which will work this season on Judicial ditch No. 15, in Marshall County.

CURTIS—GUSTAFSON
At The Auditorium Next Thursday Evening

Definite arrangements have been made for a wrestling match at the Auditorium next Thursday evening, April 18th, between L. C. Curtis and Charles Gustafson, of Winnipeg. This match will be for the purpose of deciding which of the two is the logical man for meeting champion Miller.

Gustafson is the undisputed champion middelweight of Canada and has already met Miller twice, winning a match in Winnipeg and losing one in St. Paul. Curtis has tried repeatedly for a match with Miller, but the champion has always side-stepped him.

This match is being held at the Auditorium in order to accomodate the immense crowd that is expected, and at the same time to give opportunity for erecting a standard size stage.

The preliminaries will begin at 9:15 and the main bout at 9:45 p. m. A special invitation is extended, to the women This will be a good clean match and the crowd will be as good, or better, behaved as at any other attractions that have appeared at the Auditorium.

WILL RAISE MORE AND BETTER HORSES

Joseph Duchamp of Germantown has imported a fine Belgin stallion, weighing 1630 pounds. The stallion was brought in for the purpose of raising more and a uniformly better grade of horses in the townships of Cloverleaf and Grand Plain. Duchamp says that if the farmers carry out successfully their present plans it will not be long before they will have as fine horses as any section of the state, and that they will be selling high-grade farm horses instead of buying them.

NEW CLOTHING STORE OPENS TO-MORROW

Liberman Brothers will open tomorrow a men's clothing, furnishing and shoe store in what were the Palace cafe and Hornseth confectionery buildings on LaBree Ave. The wall between the two former places of business has been taken out and the whole made into one nice big store. Liberman Brothers moved their store from Coelraine here, and from now on will operate two stores, one at Thief River Falls and the other at Grand Rapids, the latter being one of the finest clothing stores outside the big cities. It is their idea to have fully as good a store here as soon as the people demand it. The firm has secured Charley Peterson, one of the city's most able clothing men, to assist them.

FLOUR MILL MAKING GOOD USE OF RISE IN WATER

The Hanson and Barsen Milling Co., greatly appreciate the present rise in water, caused by the melting of sonw and ice, and are keeping the mill running day and night, trying ever to keep up with the great demand for Vivo Flour. It isn't likely the river will maintain a high stage for more than a week unless spring rains came to the rescue. Vivo flour easily holds its own in competition with other brands of flour selling at a like price, and is one home product for which there is deservedly an immense demand. The many friends of Vivo sincerely hope the river will be a source of power for all time and not make necessary the expense of a motor, except as occassional auxiliary power.

POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE ARE MARRIED

Charley Peterson, of this city and Nona Thompson, of Mayville, N. Dak. were married at Grand Forks last Saturday. The happy couple came directly to this city where they will make their future home, Charley having land interests here and an excellent position with Liberman Brothers, the new clothiers on LaBree Ave.

Both of the young people are wellknown here and very popular. Mrs. Peterson spent a part of her school days here, later teaching school. Charley has lived here for several years and is looked upon as one of the most worthy young business men of the city. He has spent much time studying the fine points of the clothing business and is an undoubted success in that line. A married life full to the brim with happiness is the wish of their many true-blue friends.

SPECIAL TERM OF DISTRICT COURT TO-DAY

The District court meets in Special session today, the main case being that of Frank Finley Vs., Nels Erickson et al. Finley is bringing action to acquire title to a piece of land which he is supposed to own thru mortgage foreclosure. One of the claims the heirs will bring up is that the foreclosure was made in the name of a dead man, of New York City, and for that reason may not be legal, and Finley has no claim to the land thru subsequent purchase.

MRS. A. C. MAIR

The many friends of Mrs. A. C. Mair better known by her maiden name, Minnie Nordhagen, will be grieved to hear of her death which occurred at Sask., Canad after a short illness. Mrs. Mair was wellknown in this city, her folks living seven miles west of town where she spent her childhood and maidenhood, moving to Canada four years ago. She was loved and respetced by all who knew her, and leaves to mourn her loss a husband, mother, four sisters and two brothers.

CULLUD GE'MEN IS RESCUED

When that Cullud ge'men, Mr. Peter Jackson, left Paris, Kentucky, last week with his employer Mr. E. F. Spers, it was with the intention of accompanying Mr. Spers into Canada and attending to the more personal needs of the southern gentleman. At Emerson the officials side-tracked Mr. Jackson and sent him back towards Paris, with a ticket taking him only as far as this city. John Thomas, another darkey, took Peter in tow, until Mr. Spers made arrangements to get him thru into Canada. If Jackson deserved to go thru, the officials should have let him thru in the first place, and if he didn't they should have furnished transportation to Paris and not stranded him in Thief River Falls.

At The Lyceum.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Wells present their successful rural playlet, "The Boy Who Wore the Blue," at the Lyceum Thursday and Friday of this week, and on Saturday evening the same people will present an entire change of vaudeville, putting on all-laughter comedy skits. When Mr. and Mrs. Wells appeared at the Majestic theater in St. Paul, the Evening Dispatch said in part: "One of the very best acts that has yet appeared at the Majestic theater this season is appearing there this week. The name of the piece is: "The Boy Who Wore the Blue," and Mr. and Mrs. Wells, the stars in the most enjoyable little playlet, pleased the large audiences immensely last evening."

A CARD

On account of failing health, I have been compelled to give up the tailoring business at present, that I have kept up here for the last eigth years. And having rented my shop and outfit to Mr. Ernest P. Ahlborn, from Minneapolis, will hereby take liberty to present him to the public, as a fully competent tailor, and cutter, who will and is perfectly able to turn out a first class job in the line of mens or ladies suits. I have known Mr. Ahlborn for twenty years, ever since he used to be the leading man in teh large tailoring-firm of Westberg Brothers & Co., of Wilmar, Minn, and am taking pride in recommending him, at the same time that I ask to be allowed to express my thanks to my Customers for their faithfulness to me in these many years, by always giving me their work in my line through the several affictions, befallen our community, in the shape of "would be tailors" in the past.

Yours truly,
O. L. Bakken.

REFUSED TO OUST CLERKS

Congress Gets After Certain Federal Judges.

HOUSE IS FIRST TO ACT

Passes Bill Giving the President Power to Remove Clerks of Federal Courts Over the Heads of the Jurists. Shortage in Accounts Alleged Against Several.

Washington, April 9.—A resolution will be introduced in the senate shortly calling on the department of justice for full information relative to the course of five federal judges who have refused to remove clerks of their courts found to be short in their accounts.

This action will come as the result of a bill passed by the house and now pending in the senate empowering the president to remove clerks of federal courts over the heads of federal judges. This bill was slipped through the house without attracting any attention and its significance has just been discovered.

The last report of the attorney general disclosed the fact that twelve clerks of federal courts were short in their accounts. When the facts were laid before the judges of these courts seven of the clerks were either removed at once or given opportunity to resign and those who did not make good the shortage promptly were made defendants in suits to recover.

Five Judges Refused.

Five judges declined to remove their offending clerks, but insisted on shielding them. The judges under existing law have the sole power to appoint or remove clerks and there was no recourse against the judges in question. When the matter was brought to the attention of President Taft it is stated that he at first insisted that impeachment proceedings should be instituted against the judges.

He was dissuaded from this, however, as to impeach five federal judges at one time on such a charge would do much toward increasing popular distrust of courts and judges.

Instead a bill was prepared and introduced in the house giving the president the power to remove the clerks of any federal courts at any time.

PATENT DECISION STANDS

Supreme Court of United States Denies a Rehearing.

Washington, April 9.—Rehearing of the so called "patent monopoly" mimeograph case was refused by the supreme court of the United States.

On March 11 the court decided that in selling a patented machine the patentee may require the purchaser to use only such supplies for the machine as are purchased from the owner of the patent, notwithstanding that the supplies are not patentable.

The decision was supported by only four members of the court, Justices Lurton, McKenna, Holmes and Vandevanter. Chief Justice White and Justices Hughes and Lamar dissented, claiming that the court had extended the patent law to cover everything in the universe, to the detriment of every householder in the land. The government joined in the application for a rehearing and asked to be made a party to the case.

PRESIDENT LEADS IN IOWA

Taft Has 741 Delegates, Cummins 650 and Colonel 25.

Des Moines, April 9.—President Taft now has 741 delegates to the state convention in Cedar Rapids April 24; Senator Albert B. Cummins has 650 delegates and Colonel Roosevelt twenty-five delegates, according to figures compiled here. These figures are based on returns from eighty-six county conventions and nine county caucuses already held. A total of 742 delegates governs the selection of a delegate-at-large to the national convention. This week will complete the county conventions.

WAVES GREETING TO MOTHER

Lineman Then Falls Dead From Touching Live Wire.

East Aurora, N. Y., April 9.—Death came to John Carmody, twenty-seven years old, a lineman, while he stood on the cross arm of an electric light pole in front of his mother's home.

Carmody went up the pole to untangle crossed wires. When he reached the top he turned and waved a greeting to his mother, who stood in the doorway. The next moment Carmody grasped a wire to steady himself and fell dead.

Wife Held for Murder.

New York, April 9.—Walter J. Snyder, thirty-seven years old, managing editor of the periodical Sports of the Times, was found dead in the bathtub in his apartments with four stab wounds near his heart by the bell boys who were called into the room by his wife, Mrs. Mary S. Snyder. She was arrested later and charged with homicide.

BUILDING GIANT DIRIGIBLE

Californian's Airship Will Carry Seventy-five Passengers.

Los Angeles, April 9.—L. L. Hill, builder of five successful dirigible airships, has almost completed what he claims to be the largest passenger carrying dirigible airship in the world.

The aircraft measures 208 feet by [illegible] diameter. It holds 300,000 [illegible] gas and has a lifting capacity of 10,000 pounds. Part of the lower double deck passenger cabin has already been completed.

According to the inventor the dirigible will be used in a proposed commercial air line in Southern California. It will be launched in July. It is being equipped with parachutes and life preservers, will carry seventy-five passengers and will have five compartments, an observation car, engine and power plant room, kitchen and dining room, a sleeping compartment and a wireless room.

SIOUX CITY IS TURNED DOWN

Interstate Commerce Commission Rejects Rate Petition.

Washington, April 9.—The interstate commerce commission declined to disturb the existing through freight rates on grain in the Middle West. The petition of the Sioux City Terminal Elevator company against the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway and other rail carriers was rejected, except as to certain local rates.

It was urged by the Sioux City petitioners that existing rates in and out of Sioux City were discriminatory against that city as a grain center and gave preferential advantage to the cities of Omaha and Kansas City, direct competitors of Sioux City.

The existing local rates on grain from the states of South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa to Sioux City, however, were held to be unreasonable, and the railroads were given time in which to readjust them.

COLONEL SPEAKS AT M'KINLEY'S HOME

Replies to Statement of Taft's Manager.

Decatur, Ill., April 9.—In the home district of Congressman McKinley, manager of President Taft's campaign, Colonel Roosevelt took up the cudgels against the congressman. Speaking to a large crowd in front of the courthouse at Clinton Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I understand that Mr. Taft's manager, McKinley, said some time ago that this district was for Mr. Taft to a man, but apparently he was mistaken.

"I understand he told you last week that Mr. Taft was not a politician. But Mr. Taft's whole campaign is intrusted to as thoroughgoing politicians as there are in the United States, to Messrs. Tawney, Barnes, Penrose, Gallinger, Cannon, Guggenheim, Lorimer and others with whom Mr. McKinley is associated.

"Mr. McKinley need not groan about finding himself lonely for lack of associates who are politicians. The professional bread and butter politicians are all for Mr. Taft."

Romance of a Statue.

The statue of Charles I, which now stands in London was sold to a brazier during the commonwealth with the understanding that it should be broken up. The buyer, however, saw a chance to make money and buried it instead. To cover his action he made a large number of bronze knives and forks, which were eagerly bought by both royalists and Puritans as souvenirs. When the monarchy was restored to power the statue was dug up again and bought by the government to be placed in its present position, where it has remained since 1674.

"On what grounds do you seek a divorce from your wife?" asked the lawyer.

"Simply because of a pun," replied the long suffering husband. "You see, she's a sculptress, and it gets on my nerves to hear her remark twenty times a day, 'Will you love me when I mold?'"—New York Times.

Head Chief of White Earth Chippewas.

MAY-ZE-KE-GE-SHIG.

The Chippewa chief was born in 1825 in what is now Crow Wing county, Minn. He is therefore eighty-seven years old, is still in fairly good health and takes an active interest in public questions affecting his people.

The old chief is progressive in his ideas, and believes that the interests of his people will be best served by them adopting the white man's ways.

He can see no future for them as old-style Indians, and has strongly advocated all progressive legislation, such as the allotment acts and the Clapp act, and also all measures for the education of the Indians.

Five million dollars of the funds of the Chippewa Indians have been expended by the Indian Bureau without any accounting to show who received it.

The Indians have been trying to secure an accounting for several years past and Congressman Steenerson has been very active in the matter.

But in spite of their efforts the Indian Bureau has so far been able to avoid an accounting of these funds.

It is the idea of the Indians that the attacks on Congressman Steenerson by Judge Burch and Congressman Graham are for the purpose of discrediting him and preventing him from forcing an accounting for the $5,000,000 of Indian money spent by the government officials.

Origin of the Steenerson Act.

Under the treaty of 1867, establishing White Earth reservation, each Indian was to have 160 acres of land whenever he had cultivated forty acres, or forty acres whenever he had cultivated twenty acres, or twenty acres whenever he had cultivated ten acres. This is what is called the cultivation clause, and only about 200 Indians ever secured their full 160 acres under this clause. The Nelson act of Jan. 14, 1889, provided for allotments of only eighty acres each, but that law was not to take effect until approved by two-thirds of the male adult Indians of each tribe or band. When the commissioners, Senator Rice, Bishop Marty and Mr. Whiting, held the council with the White Earth Indians they refused to agree to the law, under which it was proposed to cede 4,000,000 acres of land in Northern Minnesota to the government, unless they were promised the 160 acres mentioned in the treaty of 1867. They promised, and thereupon, in consideration thereof, the Indians signed the agreement, and the Nelson act went into effect. The land was ceded to the United States in trust to be disposed of; the agricultural land to homesteaders at $1.25 per acre, and the timber land to the highest bidder. When the secretary of the interior proceeded to allot the land to the Indians of this reservation under the law he issued instructions and directed that each Indian should only have eighty acres. The White Earth Indians went to Washington and made a protest, and invoked the promises made by the representatives of the government. The secretary of the interior and the commissioner of Indian affairs asked the commissioners, Senator Rice, Bishop Marty and Mr. Whiting, if they had promised 160 acres to each, and they wrote back and said that they had so promised, and referred to the printed council proceedings, and said further that they thought they had the right to so promise and waive the cultivation clause of the treaty of '67. The secretary then, in 1892, wrote a letter to the senate committee on Indian affairs requesting that a law be passed authorizing him to carry out the promises of 160 acres of land made to the Indians, and Senator Dawes of Massachusetts, then chairman of the senate committee on Indian affairs, introduced and secured the passage through the senate of a bill, which is exactly the same proposition as was afterwards passed and which is now known as the "Steenerson act" of 1904. The Dawes bill failed of consideration in the house. It was again introduced in the senate in 1897, and on motion of Senator Nelson was again passed, but it again failed of consideration in the house. Later on it was three times introduced in the house in three different sessions of congress by Congressman Eddy, but failed to get consideration until Mr. Steenerson took hold of it soon after his first election. The honor of the United States was pledged to the Indians to pass the "Steenerson act," giving them the additional eighty acres. That promise was the consideration for the ratification of the Nelson act, under which more than 4,000,000 acres of land was ceded, and no one can justly criticise congress for enacting the law, but a great deal of criticism can be laid against the administration of it by the department.

Administration of Steenerson Act.

The commissioner of Indian affairs now admits that these provisions of the act were so violated that there are four or five hundred Indians entitled to additional allotments who cannot receive them because there is not enough land to go around. There was ample authority in the department to cut down the additional allotments to forty acres of agricultural land, and they could have reserved from allotments all the pine timber for the common benefit of the tribe; but they saw fit to so administer the act that the valuable timber was not only unequally disposed of, but four or five hundred Indians entitled to additional allotments were left without possibility of securing even a part of the same.

The Allotment Incident.

In recognition of Mr. Steenerson's services the Indians held a council and elected him a member of the tribe. They also decided he could have an allotment on the reservation, and the old chief wanted to give him his own allotment. Mr. Steenerson refused at the time, in the presence and within the hearing of thousands who had gathered to witness the ceremonies, but later he was visited by a delegation of Indians who explained that a refusal to accept the gift would be regarded, according to Indian usages, as an insult to the tribe, and he consented to sign an application on the condition that if anything came of it he would return the value of it to the tribe by establishing a hospital, or in some similar way. The Indian council proceedings proposing the enrollment of Mr. Steenerson were certified by the Indian agent to the secretary of the interior and he held that the White Earth band alone could not authorize the enrollment, but that it required the favorable action of all the Chippewa bands of Minnesota, and as soon as Mr. Steenerson was notified of this he requested that his application for allotment be withdrawn and nothing more was done with it. The facts in regard to this episode were extensively published in the newspapers throughout the district at the time and were referred to in Mr. Steenerson's official biography. Mr. Steenerson has been elected to congress three times since and the whole matter was forgotten by nearly everyone until now resurrected for political purposes. This is all there is to the allotment matter. The newspaper reports of the Graham investigation have sought to create a wrong impression by insinuation and inference, so that many good people got the idea that Congressman Steenerson received an allotment and sold it for $12,000, and it is proper that they should be set right on that point, for the insinuation is utterly unfounded.

Of course Mr. Steenerson's political opponents will question his sincerity in stating what he expected to do with the allotment if he got it.

That is politics.

But Mr. Steenerson has a record of thirty years of honorable dealings with the people of Northwestern Minnesota that will not be forgotten; dealings that will stand the test. Thirty years during which he has fought for the laborer, for the farmer, and the small business man, as against the more powerful railroad and other corporations; and he has fought for the rights of the Indians against the bureaucrats at Washington, who are eating up the Indians' funds, in the same way that he fought for the lumberjack and the laborer as an attorney.

RATE CASES ARE REOPENED

Supreme Court Gives No Reason for Its Action.

Washington, April 9.—Reargument of the so called "intermountain rate cases" was ordered by the supreme court of the United States. Chief Justice White gave no reason for the reargument, merely stating that they would be restored for argument be[illegible]

The reargument will permit Justice Pitney to participate in the decision of the cases. All the other justices heard the cases when they were argued in February.

The cases involve the constitutionality of the "long and short haul" provisions of the interstate commerce law and the power of the interstate commerce commission to make blanket rates over a large zone of territory instead of acting merely on rates from specific points.

FALLING STONES KILL TWO

Seven Immense Rocks Drop Off New Building in New York.

New York, April 9.—William Budge, a rigger, and an unidentified laborer were instantly killed by the falling of seven stones, each weighing 1,000 pounds, from the third floor of a building in the course of construction on upper Fifth avenue.

A derrick on the fourth floor, thrown from its fastening by the weight of the stones, crashed to the street, injuring several pedestrians.

PASSENGERS TAKEN OFF BURNING SHIP

Wireless Summons Rescuers to the Scene.

Ditch Plain Livesaving Station, L. I., April 9.—The Merchants and Miners' line steamer Ontario, from Baltimore to Boston, which carried fifteen passengers and a crew of forty, is on the rocks off Montauk Point with a fire raging fiercely in her hold.

The passengers were taken off by a tug, but the crew remained aboard fighting the fire. Long before daylight they had chopped a dozen holes through the pithouse and water was poured from the vessel's own engines into the hold. At 6 o'clock a. m. Captain Bood sent word ashore that the fire had been checked.

The fire broke out during the night and became so threatening that shortly before 2 a. m. Captain Bood ordered the wireless operator to send "S. O. S." distress signals. An hour later he turned back upon his course and drove the vessel full speed ahead for the reefs off Montauk Point.

Through the early morning hours the wireless sputtered along the entire North Atlantic coast with news of the vessel's danger. Ten minutes later the men at this station saw the ship on the rocks, hurried off with a breeches buoy apparatus and later dragged their boat on its truck three miles over the beach to the burning steamer.

The lifesavers, reinforced by a crew from the Hither Plain station two miles away, transferred the passengers in small boats to a tug and stood off at readiness to take the crew ashore if need be.

TAFT MEN ARE IN COMPLETE CONTROL

New York State Convention Will Endorse President.

Rochester, N. Y., April 9.—Plans for the platform to be adopted at the state Republican convention "carry the war directly to Colonel Roosevelt" and his followers.

They denounce in specific and unmistakable terms the recall of judges, saying such legislation would put the "judiciary at the mercy of the mob" and compel "every jurist of repute to leave the bench to preserve his self-respect."

The followers of William Barnes, Jr., the state chairman, who are in control, made it very plain that they are certain that this plank and others fully as conservative will be adopted as outlining the issues of the coming campaign. They say they do not care whether the delegates at large are instructed for President Taft or not; that what they do intend to do is to place the attitude of the New York Republican organization before the country in unmistakable terms.

The Taft administration is to be warmly endorsed. The president is to be praised for vetoing tariff bills, "prepared without any knowledge of the actual facts," and the party will declare for a "scientific reduction of the duties along the lines to be determined by the tariff board acting in the public interest and doing justice to the wage earner, the importer and the people at large."

TO TRY TO SAVE RICHESON

Counsel for Minister Start Movement for Clemency Plea.

Boston, April 9.—The first move to save the life of Clarence V. T. Richeson, the confessed murderer of Miss Avis Linnell, who is sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of May 19, has been made.

The former minister's attorney, William A. Morse, had a short conference with Executive Secretary Hamlin, after which it was announced that on April 26 counsel for the condemned man would appear before Governor Foss and argue on the question of preferring a petition to the executive council.

GIRL CRUSHED TO DEATH

Duluth, April 9.—Alino Sackso, eighteen years old, was crushed to death by the elevator in the St. Louis hotel. She was running the car. The girl's cries gave the alarm. A cool headed guest rushed to the cage and stopped it. The girl's body, pinned by the automatic door, then fell out.

She was so terribly mangled that she died on the way to the hospital.

Louisville Schools Closed.

Louisville, Ky., April 9.—In a final effort to eradicate cerebro-spinal meningitis the city health department has ordered the public schools to remain closed this week. About fifty deaths from the disease have occurred in the last two months, including among its victims the son of Episcopal Bishop Charles E. Woodcock. The situation has improved lately.

DIXON WRITES LETTER TO TAFT

Complains of Action of Kentucky Postmasters.

DEMANDS THEIR REMOVAL

Charges Deliberate Theft of Several Districts by Federal Officeholders and Warns President Not to Be a "Receiver of Stolen Goods."

Washington, April 9.—In an open letter to President Taft, given out at Roosevelt's headquarters here, Senator Joseph Dixon, campaign manager for Colonel Roosevelt, declares that the president "will become the deliberate receiver of stolen goods" if he does not repudiate the action of certain federal officeholders in the Kentucky elections Saturday and institute proceedings against them.

Senator Dixon's letter was sent as the result of a telegram received from E. C. O'Rear, former chief justice of the supreme court of Kentucky, and Republican candidate for governor at the last election. This telegram was as follows:

"Later returns give Roosevelt First district, but chairman of McCracken county, who is deputy postmaster at Paducah, signs Taft certificates, though Roosevelt carried county by 1,006 to 517. In Carlisle county Roosevelt had all but three, one of whom was the chairman, but the postmaster signs Taft certificates. The district chairman is postmaster at Mayfield.

"Nothing approaching these high handed methods ever has been developed before in Kentucky politics."

Senator Dixon in his letter declares that federal officeholders supporting President Taft specifically are charged by Judge O'Rear with violating the law, the civil service regulations and executive orders.

"These acts operate to subvert the directly expressed will of the majority of the voters in the districts where committed," said the letter.

Receiver of Stolen Goods.

"In plain language, these acts constitute theft. Unless they are promptly repudiated by you, and those who committed them immediately are cited to trial, you cannot escape the charge of being willing to profit knowingly by such theft. In other words, you will become the deliberate receiver of stolen goods."

Senator Dixon declares postmasters have ignored President Taft's recent message to congress recommending the transfer of postmasters to the civil service; or that they "refuse to credit you with sincerity in your public declarations."

"Failure on your part now to act in prompt rebuke and punishment of these crimes can only convince the whole country that the assault upon your honor by your subordinates in Kentucky is justified.

"I call upon you, not as a candidate for renomination, but as president of the United States, to issue an order to the officeholders of Kentucky to cancel their illegal action.

"I call upon you as president of the United States to punish these men guilty of violating the civil service rules and the orders of your predecessor. I call upon you as president of the United States to enforce the law."

Senator Dixon stated that he had sent the reports to the civil service commission. In giving out the letter he said the matter would be "before congress within twenty-four hours."

WILL RAIN LATE IN WEEK

Weather for Northwestern States as Forecasted by Bureau.

Washington, April 9.—Temperatures will be near the seasonal average throughout the country this week, with rains generally light and local, according to the weekly bulletin.

"Warmer weather is probable in the Middle West early in the week," says the bulletin. "The next disturbance of importance to cross the country will appear in the Far West about Wednesday, to cross the Middle West about Thursday or Friday and the Eastern states near the close of the week; it will be attended by local rains and be followed by cooler weather, which will overspread the Northwestern states Thursday or Friday."

Forced to Vacate Homes.

Baton Rouge, La., April 9.—Citizens of two towns in Louisiana have become flood refugees during the last twenty-four hours, the crevasse in the west bank of the Atchafalaya river having forced those living in Elliott City and Lottie to desert their homes. The water has already inundated Elliott City and is moving toward Lottie, situated between Baton Rouge and the river. No loss of life has been reported.

Youth Shoots Girl and Himself.

Logansport, Ind., April 9.—Otto G Brown, nineteen years old, son of a Macy (Ind.) farmer, shot and probably fatally wounded his sweetheart, Leona Ehlinger, fifteen years old, and then committed suicide because the girl's mother refused her consent to their marriage on account of their ages.

Some English Names.

It is a difficult matter sometimes to spell an English name from hearing it pronounced. For instance, Farquharson is pronounced Fahrson. This, however, is simple as A B C compared with the weird renderings of some other names. Who, for instance, would dream of pronouncing Woolfardisworthy, Oosry, Wrenfordsleigh Rensley or Wyrardisbury Raysbury?—Pearson's.

GOOD NEWS.

Many Thief River Falls Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Thief River Falls are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. Reuben Hammond, Spencer, Minn., says: "For a long time my kidneys bothered me. I had acute pains in my back and hips and suffered from headaches and dizzy spells. At last I was urged by a member of my family, whom Doan's Kidney Pills had benefited, to try this remedy and I did so. I received relief at once and my health has since been unusually good."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

FLOOD DANGER MOVING SOUTH

Greatest Menace at Present Is Below Memphis.

UPPER LEVEES ARE SAFE

River Is Now Receding Slowly Above Memphis, but Is Rising Below That Point—Town of Modoc, Ark., Twenty Feet Under Water.

Memphis, Tenn., April 9.—Flood conditions in the Mississippi valley showed some improvement when a sunny day gave further encouragement to those conducting the work of rescue among the hundreds driven from their homes by the high water.

All levees in the flood district were holding strong and at this point the river had subsided seven-tenths of a foot.

With upper district levees holding, however, the strain in the dikes in the Yazoo section increased and men worked all night on the embankments south of Memphis to bolster weak spots.

The danger at several points along the Arkansas shore has not passed.

South of Memphis there were minor breaks in the embankments protecting the Arkansas shores and while these crevasses temporarily relieve the strain on the Texas and Yazoo dikes the water hourly works back into the main torrent.

Two hundred levee workers narrowly escaped being swept away when the embankment caved at Mile Post 24, sixteen miles south of Helena, Ark.

The town of Modoc, near the break, is twenty feet under water. Modoc practically has been depopulated and those who remained took to flight when the roar of the water gave warning of its coming.

Rescued From Housetops.

The steamer Kate Adams was near Modoc when the levee broke and rescued those imperiled. A hundred or more panic stricken negroes were taken from a government barge. Later motor launches went into the flood and rescued a number of farmhands from the roofs of their cabins, from the trees and the peaks of knolls which were above the water.

The work of caring for the refugees from the lowlands is fast being systematized. Tents and supplies have been shipped for the establishment of a central relief headquarters at Helena.

Captain W. P. Baker, Fourth Infantry, U. S. A., will be in charge of the Reelfoot Lake region, with headquarters at Tiptonville, Tenn.

A relief train sent out from Forest City, Ark., to rescue farmers in the overflow sections of St. Francis and Crittenden counties returned with 100 refugees aboard, but with the mission only half completed.

The train could not proceed further than the town of Heth, twenty miles east of this city. Beyond that point, where many persons are believed to be marooned, only boats can be of service.

In Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana villages, behind the levees, alarm over the oncoming crest is spreading and hundreds of people have fled to the highlands.

FIVE THOUSAND HOMELESS

Hundreds of Tents Erected at Hickman, Ky.

Hickman, Ky., April 9.—The work of caring for 5,000 homeless persons required the attention of Hickman. The breaks in the levee near Memphis relieved the flood situation here considerably, the river falling eight inches.

Five hundred tents have been erected on the hills back of the town and the distribution of clothing and rations has been started.

HOPES TO RUSH BUSINESS

Governor of Wisconsin Expects Extra Session Will Be Short.

Madison, Wis., April 9.—By holding conferences with the presiding officers of each house of the legislature, chairmen of important committees and people particularly affected by the proposed legislation, Governor F. E. McGovern is hopeful the coming special session of the legislature can be concluded in one week.

All bills for consideration have been drafted and copies are being sent out to the interested parties.

April 30 is the date for the extra session and a new water power measure, relief for the Black River Falls flood situation and protection of Portage against floods are among the matters to receive consideration.

More Anti-Foreign Riots.

London, April 9.—Anti-foreign riots have broken out in the Chinese province of Shensi, where many Mohammedans have been massacred, according to a news agency dispatch from Tientsin.

Fifteen Cars Wrecked.

Columbia, Pa., April 9.—A southbound freight train on the Columbia and Port Deposit division of the Pennsylvania railroad ran into a landslide at York Furnace, Pa., seventeen miles below here. Fifteen cars were wrecked.

The Middle Aged Lodger

By KATHLEEN J. McCURDY

Evan Hunt had loved Mary Ashworth when they were young, but Evan had drifted away from her before he could support a wife, and Mary had lost track of him. Nevertheless she kept his picture in her mind's eye, and Evan did not forget her. Twenty years passed.

One morning Mary received a letter from her former lover, in which he said that he had heard of her through a mutual friend, who had given him her address; that he was intending to visit the town where she lived and would call upon her. He added a few very pleasant remarks the mutual friend had made about her, giving the impression that they especially interested him. In short, without committing himself he left it to be understood that since she was not married possibly he might renew the suit of his youth.

Miss Ashworth had changed considerably during the interval. She was not quite forty years old, but certain locks of gray were scattered among those of black, and the freshness had gone out of her complexion. She wondered how Evan looked and tried to alter the picture of him in her mind's eye from a boy of twenty to a man of forty.

However, she failed in this. Such pictures are impossible. If we are looking for one we have not seen for twenty years we may recognize him on sight, but otherwise the chances of a recognition are slight.

Evan was aware of the fact that he would meet a middle aged instead of a young woman. He thought he would like to settle in life with his former love, for he was fairly well off by this time, but would prefer to see what she looked like and study her disposition awhile before making up his mind.

One day Miss Ashworth's doorbell rang, and, answering the summons herself, she found a man who asked if she could tell him where Thomas Morgan lived. He said he resided on that street somewhere between 35 and 55, but the man who sought him had forgotten the exact number. Miss Ashworth said that she didn't know of any such person living in the street, but asked the stranger to come inside, for the weather was cold, and he seemed inclined to talk it over with her.

He accepted the invitation, and they sat down together in the living room. She asked him a few questions about the man he was hunting for, which he answered rather vaguely. Then he spoke of the lateness of the spring, told her that he was going to settle in the town and was looking for a boarding place.

She told him there was one room in her house she had often thought of renting, but she didn't care to serve meals. If he would take his meals somewhere else she would think the matter over and let him know. It depended somewhat on what he wished to pay for a room. He asked her what she would like to get for it, and when she told him he said that was about what he would be willing to pay.

He would think the matter over, too, and if she concluded to let him have the room she might address Edward Brown at the —— hotel. Soon after this he took his departure.

In a couple of days he received a note from the lady, signed Emily Higgins, saying that she had concluded to let him have the room if he wanted it, but she wasn't very particular about renting it. He might do as he liked.

In a couple of days more Brown wrote that he would take possession of the room at once. He didn't care to see it before occupying it; what he wanted especially was to get out of the hotel and into a house where he would feel more at home. He appeared with his belongings the same evening and settled himself in his new apartment.

Emily Higgins' mother, an old lady, lived with her, and there was one servant in the house, a woman. Miss Higgins told Mr. Brown that she had been largely influenced in letting him have the room because there was no man in the house and the three women were afraid of burglars. Mr. Brown replied that he was glad they were thus situated, since it had gained him a pleasant home.

In the evenings Mr. Brown played cribbage with Miss Higgins, and after that they had beer and cheese, and Mr. Brown smoked. One evening after the supper, when he was feeling very comfortable, he said to his companion:

"I'd like to know why you told me your name is Higgins? I've learned that it is Ashworth."

"For the same reason, I suppose, that you told me yours was Brown. I've learned it's Hunt."

Evan drew off and surveyed her in surprise.

"You know me, Mary?"

"Do I? I knew you, Evan, the moment you appeared at the door."

"And have been keeping dark until you found out what sort of a fellow I've grown to be. Are you satisfied with me at forty?"

"Yes. Are you satisfied with me at thirty-eight?"

"Yes; let's get married."

"I'm agreed."

"When?"

"Whenever you like."

"I tell you what, Mary," he said as he rose to hunt up a minister, "you women are too smart for us men. We might as well give it up at once and have it over with."

Talking About Road Building

looks real. Then there is the earth road model and the gracel road. Other models are the brick road, macadam, bituminous macadam. There are also bridge models, a crusher plant in minature, split log drag, road hones, ditch cleaner, road grader and ring roller, as well as other road-making machinery.

• • •

But the office of public roads does more than manufacture road models for demonstration work. Besides sending out engineers who lecture on road construction, it lends a helping hand to communities who wish to build an object lesson road. The United States government does not foot the bill. The community does that. Uncle Sam will furnish the road engineer who will see that a first class job is done, but the community interested in the project must supply the money, men, material and machinery. For the year ending December 31, 1911, the office of public roads superintended the construction of 52 object lesson roads, of 12 different types. The majority of the work is in the Southern States, where the road movement is not well organized, although some of these roads have been constructed in the north. Goodhue county, Minnesota, has an object lesson road built under federal supervision not a great many years ago.

Sometimes a county or a section of a State, or the State itself wishes to devise a model system of roads. The public roads office will give expert advice in a case of this kind and will prepare a plan for a system of roads, adapted to the community's wealth, traffic and general conditions. An expert from the government will visit the community and investigate the entire road situation, spending perhaps severa ldays or weeks in his study. At the conclusion of his investigation, he will make a report on his findings to the department. On this report is based a system of roads adapted to the community. During the year 1911 the government devised 14 model systems in eight different states.

Another important function of the office of public roads is found in the plant for testing of road-building materials. Some 685 samples were tested last year. If a community wants to know whether a certain material, which is found locally, is suitable for road construction, samples may be sent to the office of public roads and a test will be made free of charge. In this way it is very easy to determine the adaptability of certain materials for road building purposes.

The Department of Agriculture has just been calling attention to the fact that 300,000 miles of road must be improved in this country before the public road system can be considered really efficient. There are but 190,476 miles of improved roads which constitutes but 8.66 per cent of the total mileage of all public roads. It is estimated that in this country close to $2,000,000,000 will have to be spent before a proper road system is developed. Rhode Island, the smallest of all the States, takes first rank in its percentage of improved roads. While Rhode Island is first, with 49.14 per cent of improved roads, Massachusetts is a close second with 49 per cent. Indiana follows with 36.7 per cent. Alabama, Deleware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Minnesota, New Hampshire and Oregon have between 5 and 10 per cent of their roads improved.

According to a report recently issued by the Office of Public Roads, there were in Minnesota at the close of 1909, 79,325 miles of public roads, of which 5,416 were improved as follows: 137,35 miles with sotne, 4,228 miles with gravel and 1,051.5 miles with sand-clay. The mileage of gravel roads reported for 1904 exceeds the mileage for 1909 by 1,951 miles. The department takes the view that some of these roads have evidently been reported in 1909 as sand-clay roads, but aside from this fact there is considerable discrepancy for which there is no way of accounting except on the ground that in many communities gravel roads are being neglected and the people are turning their attention to the construction of stone roads. The report calls attention to the fact that in many places gravel roads which were built five years ago have so disintergrated owing to improper methods of construction or poor maintenance that they would naturally be reported as earth roads. Fourteen Minnesota counties furnish information in regard to the cost of gravel roads at a minimum cost of $150 and a maximum cost of $1700 per mile. The average for the counties reporting is $946 per mile, with an average width of 14 feet for the gravel surface. The average cost for sand-clay roads for the 17 States from which the reports were received is $723 per mile, the average width of surface treated being 17 feet and the average depth of material 9 inches. The average cost of gravel roads for the 31 States reporting is $2,074 per mile, the width of gravel surface being 13 feet and the average depth of material 7 inches.

Eleventh Article on Taxation

which taxes are delinquent, which list has the effect of a complaint in an action by the county against such tract or lot on the list.

Five days thereafter the clerk returns a copy of such list, together wih a citation to all persons interested to show cause why judgment should not be entered against each tract or lot of land. Publication of the notice and list is made by the county auditor, and 20 days after the expiration of the notice the clerk enters judgment against each tract or lot as to which no defense is made for the taxes, penalties and costs.

On the first Monday in May following, the county auditor sells at public vendue all tracts of land against which judgment has been entered, first giving 10 days notice thereof. Each tract or lot is sold separately and a certificate of sale issued to the purchaser. Three years thereafter, unless the land be redeemed, the purchaser of the tax certificate or the assignee, upon complying with certain legal requirements, becomes the absolute owner of the property.

In the case of delinquent personal property taxes, the county treasurer is required on the fifth secular day of April to file with the clerk of the district court a list of all personal property taxes remaining unpaid on April 1, and 10 days after, the clerk of the court issues warrants to the sheriff of the county directing him to proceed to collect the same by the seizure and sale of any personal properity owned by the delinquent.

Any person whose name is embraced in the delinquent list may on or before April 15 file an answer with the clerk of the court, verified as pleadings in civil actions, setting forth his defence or objections to the tax or penalty, and thereafter the issue raised is heard and determined by the district court.

If the sheriff for any reason is unable to collect the delinquent personal property tax assessed against any person he is required to report such failure to the clerk of the district court on June 1 following. Ten days later the clerk files the list of delinquents with the county treasurer, who in turn files it with the county board.

The county board examines the list of delinquents, and may cancel such taxes as it deems cannot be collected. The names of those against whom the taxes have been cancelled, as well as the names of those remaining on the revised delinquent list must be published in the official proceedings of the board.

Citations are then issued to the delinquents requiring them to show cause at the next term of the district court why they should not pay such taxes, penalties and costs. If they fail to pay or answer, judgment is entered against them. Execution may be issued upon the judgment against any property owned by them in the same manner as provided by law in case of executions upon judgments in civil actions.

their confidence in him more often and more emphatically than ever fell to the lot of any previous or contemporary candidate for President.

First, when a boy, he was chosen district attorney of Dane Conty. La-Follette was politically the same then as now. He has always done his political business directly with the people; that initial endorsement came from the people. Next the people elected him to Congress. Then the people made him Governor of Wisconsin—three times. Following that he was sent to the United States Senate a lonely place for the Pioneer Progressive, and farther from the people than he had ever been before. Again in 1910 the people, in the first Senatorial primary election ever held in the United States returned him to the Senate with a majority of 103,000 votes.

Now the people of Wisconsin have voted their faith in him and the principles for which he is fighting in this presidential campaign more emphatically than ever before. By a direct vote of four to one the Republicans of his home state have made him their candidate for the Presidency.

Senator LaFollette is now campaigning in Nebraska and will follow with speeches in the other presidential preference primary states.

list have about 230 Locals in the state and 66 in the Ninth Congressional District. It is difficult to keep track of all the Locals in the state, owing to the fact that new Locals are organized every week throughout the state.

About two weeks ago the Socialist Locals sent petitions to Congressman Halvor Steenerson, in which he was urged to start a Congressional Investigation, in regard to the refusal of the coal companies to sell coal to the city of Two Harbors, Minn.

Today Peter Becken received a letter from Mr. Steenerson informing him that a resolution had been introduced in Congress, aiming to investigate the matter thoroly.

Here is the letter received by Mr. Becken from Mr. Steenerson.

Washington, D. C., April 5, 1912.

Mr. Peter Becken,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Dear Sir:—

I have your favor of the 1st instant, incloseing petition signed by yourself and others praying for an inquiry into an alleged combination of coal operators and coal dealers, and in response thereto I inclose a copy of House Resolution 452, introduced by myself on March 21, 1912.

I want to assure you that I shall do verything in my power to bring about a full inquiry into the matter with a view to relief.

Very respectfully,
H Steenerson.

An Introduction

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

[illegible] Mr. Bradish," said Mrs. [illegible] "why don't you marry?"

[illegible] would I marry?"

[illegible] know some one who I think [illegible] make you an excellent wife."

[illegible] mean that you know some woman [illegible] in whom you take an interest who needs a husband and you would like to provide her with one."

"You are wrong. The lady I have in view for you is well off, attractive and in every way desirable. There is only one thing about her that may be considered objectionable. She is a grass widow."

"I am at your disposal, Mrs. Overaker. I confess I am rather interested in grass widows. There is something about them different from all other women. They are usually excellent fighters. What's the lady's name?"

"Miss Iddings."

"I thought you said she had been married?"

"A woman may resume her maiden name, may she not?"

"Certainly. When and where shall I meet Miss Iddings?"

"Let me see. If she knew I intended an introduction between you and her with a view to marriage she would decline. Her experience in marriage was not happy."

"Her husband was a brute, I suppose."

"No. I think it was a case of mutual misunderstanding. As to this meeting I will invite her and my friend Cheltenham for a game of bridge, you to play with Miss Iddings, Cheltenham with me. How would that suit you?"

"It would please me better to have you for a partner."

"Thank you very much. You will play with Miss Iddings."

When on the evening appointed Mr. Bradish appeared he found the others of the party already assembled and the whist table ready, with the cards. He had met Mr. Cheltenham before, but bowed very low to Miss Iddings. Miss Iddings also bowed low, with her fan before the lower part of her face. After a few commonplace remarks they took seats as had been arranged by the hostess. Mr. Cheltenham won the deal, and Mrs. Overaker asked Mr. Bradish if he would mind keeping score. He took the score card she handed him, turned it wrong side up, reversed it, wrote names on it where they were not required, endeavored to rub them out and made a smudge. Miss Iddings attempted to reply to some civil remarks made by Mr. Cheltenham and got very badly mixed.

"May I play?" asked Miss Iddings.

"If you please," replied Mr. Bradish, with an excess of politeness.

The game went on for an hour, during which Miss Iddings trumped Mr. Bradish's aces, revoked several times and when she played dummy usually threw the lead into the wrong hand. Mr. Bradish did not make these mistakes, but it was evident that he was thinking of something else than the game. At last Mrs. Overaker called a halt. The score stood 900 for her and her partner to 76 for their opponents. Putting her arm through that of Mr. Cheltenham, she walked him into another room. The other two being left alone, both made a hasty survey of the exits, as if meditating an escape from each other. The lady gave her fan a few short whisks, then seemed to resign herself to an adverse fate.

"Are you a resident of the city, Miss Iddings?" asked the gentleman, using a hackneyed conventional phrase by way of opening a conversation.

"No. I am not. I am here temporarily."

"I was not aware that Iddings was your maiden name," icily.

"It is not, as you know very well."

"Why did Mrs. Overaker introduce you as Miss Iddings? With your consent?"

"I didn't know what she was intending to do till I saw you. Now I see it all. She had no business to"—

"She deceived me as well, but she has done it all out of the goodness of her heart."

"A mistaken kindness. Persons who interfere in other persons' affairs usually get what they deserve in the end."

"One thing she said to me when she proposed this—I mean when she told me she would introduce me to a woman not living with her husband—that struck me forcibly. I remarked that he was probably a brute"—

"He acted like one."

"Mrs. Overaker replied that it was a case of mutual misunderstanding. All difficulties between those who love are traceable to this cause."

"You mean where one loves—has loved."

"The woman?"

"Yes."

Mr. Bradish took a turn up and down the room, then went to the lady and, taking both her hands in his, said:

"Lou, it was not only a misunderstanding; it was arrant nonsense."

At that moment Mrs. Overaker called out, "Come in here, you two, and have some refreshments."

They joined her, to find her eyes dancing with a delighted satisfaction. An elaborate supper had been prepared, and Cheltenham was opening a bottle of champagne.

When the so called Miss Iddings departed with Mr. Bradish, before leaving she hugged her hostess and said:

"Oh, Edith, how shall we ever be able to show our obligation to you? It's all made up. We are again husband and wife."

Dead Languages.

"Now, boys," queried the teacher, "who can tell me anything about the dead languages?"

"They are languages that were killed by being studied too hard," answered the boy at the foot of the class.—Chicago News.

Blind People From Old People's Home.

This is a group of old people kept by the government at White Earth Agency. They are blind, or nearly so, as the result of trachoma.

Trachoma is a disease of the eyelids, which eventually results in total blindness, if not given proper treatment. It is very common among the full-blood Indians, and there are a few cases among the mixed-bloods. The existence of this sickness has been known for twenty years past to the Indian Bureau. Congressman Steenerson, agents at White Earth and others [illegible] years tried to get a hospital established for the treatment of this and other diseases among the Indians, but have always met with the opposition of the Indian Bureau at Washington. Such a hospital is now being established, however.

None of these diseases could possibly be due to any land legislation, but is partly due to the ignorance and uncleanliness of the full-blood Indians themselves and partly to the incompetence of the Indian Bureau at Washington.

The above figure illustrates the amount per year the White Earth Indians get as annuities. This is somewhere near the average for the last ten-year period previous to this year. The annuities this year are in excess of nine dollars, the Indian Bureau having managed to increase it, no doubt, on account of the present agitation of White Earth matters.

This is all the mixed-bloods get. Some of the full-bloods get the rations when the agent thinks they are in need.

The mixed-bloods are self-supporting, absolutely, and have been for many years, and the $5.35 per year is merely an incident. It does not help them much, and the loss of it would not make any difference in their style of living. Most of the full-bloods also support themselves by hunting and fishing, and the $5.35 annuity has usually come in handy to buy some cheap clothes.

So that the theory which prevails that the government supports the Indians is clearly a mistake.

Instead of that the Indians support a horde of officeholders saddled on them by the government.

On the White Earth reservation there are ninety-one government employes drawing salaries at the present time, in the regular establishment and eighteen in the Burch corps. These figures may not be absolutely correct, but are near enough. Many of these are necessary, and many are not. For instance there is a superintendent of a saw mill that has not turned a wheel for three years drawing $125 per month; there is a "farmer" who has not been known to work for months, drawing $100 per month, etc.

Besides the regular force the Burch corps has been on the reservation for three years, headed by Judge Burch, who draws $5,000 per year, and contains among others Judge Burch's nephew, Arthur M. Seekel, who draws $290 per month for doing abstract work that competent help could be secured for at $75 per month. Even the judge's adopted son, a boy of fourteen or fifteen, has managed to connect with the government payroll at $75 per month.

There were NINE MILLION DOLLARS in the Chippewa Indian funds. AT THE PRESENT TIME THERE IS LESS THAN $4,000,000.

The difference of $5,000,000 represents what has been spent "for the relief and civilization of the Indians."

And right here is the big issue in the fight about White Earth reservation affairs.

No itemized statement of who this money has been paid to has so far been obtained from the Indian Bureau.

Congressman Steenerson has for several years tried to obtain such a statement, but has so far been unable to get it.

The Indian Bureau evidently has serious objections to giving out such a statement. Can it be that this alleged investigation of the Indian Bureau, by confusing the issue, is designed to protect it from the necessity of having to make such a statement?

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE FIVE MILLION DOLLARS?

No amount of wielding of the slush bucket by the government lawyers; no amount of sensational trembling for his country by the chairman of the committee; no amount of effort to discredit Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson by the administration at Washington will be satisfactory as an answer to this question the Indians are asking, and the answer to which they have a right to know.

There is a feeling among the Indians that any of their money that goes into the government treasury will never come out again except in the form of salary checks to white officials. This feeling is justified by bitter experience, and is back of the unanimous demand for such legislation as the allotment acts, the Clapp act, and the present demand for the distribution of the tribal funds.

The Clapp act was not a perfect law. It had a serious defect in that it did not provide for an official roll of mixed-bloods and full-bloods before the restrictions were removed. But it was what the Indians wanted, and had the Indian Bureau kept liquor off the reservation, as the law provides they should do, and for which they are paid big salaries, it would have been a success. As it is, many of the mixed-bloods have spent the money [illegible] their lands. Others [illegible] equivalent in property and some have greatly increased their share. Those who have spent their share have gone to work and are making a living just as they did before. None of them are starving and few of them are doing any complaining. Many of them have braced up and are taking a new start, having learned the value of having money by the loss of it.

After the removal of restrictions and the inrush of land buyers and speculators, and the total abandonment of all restraint upon the liquor traffic, such scandal resulted that the interior department called on the department of justice to furnish government lawyers to straighten out the complicated land frauds in court. Judge M. C. Burch, who had just been displaced as division chief, was given this Indian litigation, as he says as his "last case," and he at once proceeded to so plan things as to make it last for the balance of his natural life. He invented a new definition of "mixed-blood," contrary to the established rule, so as to make it include only persons who had more white than Indian blood. This enabled him to bring several hundred suits which no one had dreamed of before, until he has now instituted more than 1,200 suits in equity, involving as many eighty acre tracts of land. It is true that only one question is involved in all, and that is: Who is a mixed-blood, within the meaning of the act? This litigation and threatened litigation unsettled all titles, stopped all improvement and development, to the detriment of all the people, including the Indians, stopped payment of taxes, and threatened to close the public schools. Congressman Steenerson was appealed to and he introduced bills for remedial legislation. One of these provided for a commission to make authentic rolls of mixed-bloods and full-bloods separately, and was intended to equitably and justly dispose of the apparently endless litigation. But here Mr. Steenerson ran against a snag in the shape of a lot of hungry government attorneys and their assistants whose occupation would be gone if the 1,200 suits were disposed of. Their chief very shrewdly went before the committee to investigate the interior department and asked for an investigation of his own client, the interior department, and when he got it, after revamping the old scandals growing out of the administration of the Nelson and Morris and other acts for the disposal of Indian timber, proceeded to lay all the blame for mismanagement of Indian property to the law and to congress. In this way it was sought to not only discredit Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson, but to defeat the proposed remedial legislation, which threatened to cut short the salaries of these hungry lawyers and their dependents.

But Mr. Steenerson, by reason of his independence and fearlessness, had incurred hostility in still higher quarters. By his opposition to administration measures, notably Canadian reciprocity, he had put himself beyond the pale of executive favor, and no doubt these men who are now doing the dirty work were given a free hand in the attempt to destroy the political reputations of Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson.

This is the real animus of the whole matter, but the people will understand that this hostility is but an incident of the fight their representative has made in their behalf, and will rally to his support more strongly than ever.

Tribal Funds.

At the present rate it will be only a question of a few years anyway, until the tribal funds of the White Earth Indians will be all spent by the Indian Bureau. The best that could happen to them would be a division of the funds, after enough is set aside to care for the old and the infirm. Then let the capable ones take their place among the ordinary citizens of the republic. The tribal relations are of no value to them, and a sum so insignificant as $5.35 per year is of little value.

And the most peculiar feature of the Graham investigation was the report sent out of the discovery of disease and destitution among the full-bloods in view of the fact that the government has 109 employes on the reservation, looking after the welfare of the Indians—one for each ten full-bloods. Among these are five doctors [illegible] little army of Indian [illegible] not discover disease and [illegible] after spending years in the [illegible] could [illegible] Congressman Steenerson [illegible]

The corps of teachers will be Kate Kraus Munch, an experienced Normal teacher of Crookston; Edith B. Whitney, who taught in the Training School at Red Lake Falls last year and now teaching at St. Cloud; R. H. Gray from the Agricultural College at Minneapolis, and E. A. Mostue, County Supt. of Schools In addition to the regular teachers there will be different special instructors here once a week to lecture on industrial subjects of the day. More teachers than ever will take advantage of the helpful work offered by this summer school. one hundred twenty-five already having signified their intention of attending.

The school this summer is a joint session of Red Lake and Pennington counties, with a cordial invitation extended to teachers in neighboring counties. Everything possible will be done by the instructors, and citizens of Thief River Falls, to make the school a success and a pleasure for the visiting teachers. The excellent new High School building with its modern conveniences will greatly facilitate the work.

A review of subjects required for second grade certificates, How to Teach School, special work in Home Economics and Agriculture, will be feature of the work this summer.

Teachers desiring special information should write Supt. J. H. Hay or County Supt. E. A. Mostue, Thief River Falls, Minn.

INVESTIGATE FLAX FIBRE COMPANY

Mr. Gordon, Bradstreet of Winnipeg, Assured Committee That Company Is All Right.

As a committee to investigate what could be learned regarding the Flax Fiber Company that has been formed in Canada, Roland Thompson and E. L. Quist accompanied L. W. Beard to Winnipeg on last Saturday. The committee was met at the Royal Alexandria hotel by Mr. McAdam the inventor of the Flax Fiber machine; they also met S. Barth the manager of the Canadian company and Mr. Gordon who is the Bradstreet of Winnipeg and who assured the committee that from anything that he had been able to learn this company not only had a very strong financial backing but that the machine was a good and efficient one, and would do the work.

The Western manager of the Canadian company, Mr. Barth had just closed a deal with the village of Wadena, Sask., for a plant of ten machines and that village has a population of only 300 inhabitants.

Upon the comparison of straw from here Mr. Barth declared that the samples brought from the vicinity of Thief River Falls would yield 20 per

COMMERCIAL MEN MADE GOOD

Delivered the Goods to Perfection at Dance Given Friday Evening.

The Commercial Travelers gave the local dancing public a royal entertainment last Friday evening at the Auditorium. The affair, coming as it did after the long Lenten let-up social activities, brought out an exceptionally large crowd. Everything was done by the travelers to make things comfortable for the dancers.

The program of dances rendered by the local seven-piece orchestra was delightful. The musicians entered into the spirit of the evening and gave some of the finest dance music of the year.

One of the brilliant features was the splendid luncheon served at twelve o'clock at the Ogahmah hotel. Mr. Brumund is to be highly praised for the excellence of the service and the quality of the lunch he provided. The Ogahmah dining room was tastefully decorated with a false ceiling of green and white streamers. Vases of large white roses and violets were tastefully located upon the tables and furniture in the room. During the meal music was rendered by the orchestra.

The floor of the Auditorium was in perfect condition. Great care had been exercised in getting it thoroughly cleaned and waxed.

Many out of town people came here to attend the festivities. Large parties from Warren and Crookston were quite prominent in the merry making.

To say that the traveling men's dance was a success would be putting it mildly for, it was by far the most enjoyable social event of the year.

Save City $500

At their regular meeting last Tuesday evening the Council purchased of W. S. Nott Co., Minneapolis, a modern hose wagon and 500 feet of hose. The wagon has good ladder accomodations and carries in front a 40-gallon chemical with 200 feet of small hose. In addition to this they get various other equipment that goes with a hose wagon. The new wagon will carry all told 1200 feet of large hose.

The Council by buying at this time will save the city $500 on a $1400 hose wagon, according to the Nott Co., representative who was here Tuesday evening. The company is desirous of getting one of their wagons in here because they know it will give satisfaction and be an excellent advertisement for the sale of more wagons.

Arbor Day Will Be Cleaning Up Day

Arbor Day, April 26, will be cleaning-up day for Thief River Falls, says Dr. Mellby, Health Commissioner. The entire city is to get out doors on that day and do whatever cleaning up of rubbish is necessary. The schools will be closed for half a day so as to give the students an opportunity to help clean up. Both the business and residence districts will be gone over carefully. This cleaning up day will be a big success if every person in the city gets out and works for a few hours. If he has to receive a special invitation or ignores the day entirely, he will help to make it a flat failure. Co-operation is what booms a city. Get to planning now on all the things you can do to help beautify the city on that day. [illegible] for it by really doing [illegible]

PENNINGTON A DAIRY COUNTY

It Is Predicted Local Creamery Will Pay Out $10,000 More Than Last Year.

With the interest being taken in dairying and stock raising, and the advent of more intensive farming, it is predicted that the local creamery will pay out in cream checks $10,000 more to patrons than last year, when the amount was over $48,000. Favorable prices for cream and the adaptability of Pennington county to dairying has much to do with this new movement. This county on account of its abundant hay crop is destined to be a leader in the dairying industry. The old method of grain raising year after year is being dropped, and diversified farming is taking its place.

On nearly every farm there is a nice herd of milch cows and they are receiving better care than ever before. A large number of new silos will be built this summer and every farmer, whether he has a silo or not, will pay attention to raising fodder corn. The farmers are rapidly improving their stock, too, and for strictly dairying purposes most of them are selecting the Guernsey as being best suited to conditions here. Very few of them go in for dual-purpose cattle, either adhering to the recognized beef or dairy type.

The farmers take good care of the milk and put it thru the separator before the milk cools off. About ninety-nine per cent. of the farmers selling cream have standard make separators.

TAXING MONEY AND CREDITS

Explaining What is Meant By "Money" and "Credits"; Duties of the Assessor.

Money and credits have always been subject to taxation in Minnesota. Prior to 1911 the state attempted to tax such property on the same basis and at the same rate as other classes of personal property, but never succeeded in getting even a reasonable percentage of it on the tax rolls.

The nature of the property is such that it can be easily concealed. In 1910 the total amount of this class of property listed for taxation was less than fourteen million dollars, an an amount conservatively estimated to be less than three per cent of the actual value of such property owned in the state.

Realizing the impossibility of getting such property on the tax rolls under existing laws, the legislature in 1911 passed a law imposing a flat rate of three mills on the dollar, or thirty cents on each hundred dollars of valuation, such tax to be in lieu of all other taxes on this class of property.

The new law, known as Chapter 286, Laws of 1911, provides that such property shall be listed and valued on a separate listing blank and shall include "money and credits", as defined in the Revised Laws of 1905.

"Money" means all money owned by a person whether in hand or on deposit in a bank in this or some other state.

"Credits" include all book accounts, bills receivable, mortgage and land contracts not reacorded in this state, promissory notes, bonds, rents, annuities, and all other claims or demands for money or other valuable thing.

The assessment is to be made at the fair cash value of the property, and not at a percentage of such value. Debts cannot be deducted from credits.

The law requires each person subject to the tax to make a sworn return of his money and credits on the listing blank furnished him by the assessor. Such return must be made on or before June 1.

FEDERAL AID FOR ROADS

Government Would Pay Rental For Post Roads Brought Up To Certain Standard.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—Federal aid for the promotion of good roads has occupied the attention of members of Congress for some time. The agitation of the past few years in favor of the good road movement has been reflected in the several bills introduced in Congress. Before the House committee on agriculture there were until just recently over thirty good road bills pending, which is an indication of the general and widespread interest in this subject.

It cannot be said that Congress has arrived at a point where it is ready or willing to commit itself to the general proposition of federal aid for road construction or road maintenance. Many members of Congress take the ground that the States should take the initiative in this matter, and that if any appropriation is made it should go as rental for past roads. This is the view taken in the so-called Shackleford bill now pending in the House. The members of the House who had introduced road bills got together and after a conference agreed to support the Shackleford measure. Last week the House committee on agriculture voted to report the bill favorably to the House where it is now pending.

The bill which has been agreed on among the authors of the various bills provides for federal pay or rental for the use of rural post roads which are brought up to a certain standard. The bill does not provide for the payment of federal money for the construction or maintenance of roads, nor does it in any way interfere with the State or local administration of road activities. It does stipulate under what conditions the money shall be given.

* * *

The bill makes a three-fold classification of post roads. First, macadamized roads, for the use of which in transporting rural mail compensation shall be made at the rate of $50 per mile per year. Class B embraces roads which are surfaced, with a road track not less than twelve feet wide composed of burnt clay, gravel, or a proper combination of sand and gravel, the rental for which shall be $20 per year. Class C includes dirt roads which have been dragged, with ample side ditches, so constructed and crowned as to quickly shed water, for the use of which the government proposes to pay $10 per mile per year.

* * *

The director of public roads in the Department of Agriculture is made the officer to administer the proposed law. On showing that the roads have been improved in accordance with the required specifications he is to see that the money is turned over to the proper road authorities of the township, county or State responsible for the work. As pointed out there is absolutely no restriction as to the use to which this money is to be put. The only matter in which the government is interested, as proposed in the bill, is that the conditions as to the standardization of road construction shall be fully complied with. The bill is constructed on the theory that the township, county or State is entitled to some [illegible] compensation for the use of [illegible] over which rural mail is transported.

FAIR DATES ARE SET

At Annual Meeting of Fair Association; First Steps Taken Toward Best Fair Ever.

The eleventh Annual Meeting of the Pennington County Fair Association was held in the Commercial Club rooms Saturday evening. The fair dates were set for August 1st, 2nd and 3rd; officers necessary to get the fair under way were elected as follows:

W. W. Prichard, Jr—President
John Morgan—1st Vice-President
C. D. Gustafson—2nd Vice-President
G. A. Penney—Treasurer
Willis Akre—Secretary.

W. J. LaBree will have charge of concessions, such as the granting of stands, lot room and the ground privileges generally asked by those who wish to make use of the grounds for the inner and pleasurable sides of man. The committees on subscription, premiums and printing, and transportation will be chosen at an early meeting, as will the superintendents of buildings, sports and exhibits, and judges for the various exhibits.

The fair last year was a big success considering the miserable weather that prevailed. This year, with the same men as officers, and getting a good start the fair should eclipse by far any that we have ever had. The young men are going after the fair proposition in a vigorous and wholehearted manner because they fully realize that Pennington county is worthy of and can support the best county fair in the state. When it comes to agricultural exhibits there is nothing lacking, as all know who saw the wonderful display of agricultural products last year. The entertainment feature of the occasion is being given considerable attention and several novel attractions will be booked. The hearty co-operation of every citizen of Pennington county will help more easily to make the biggest and best fair of all.

Another Excellent Attraction Coming

Skovgaard, Danish Violinist, Will Appear at Auditorium Next Thursday.

Skovgaard, the noted Danish Violinist, assisted by Miss Ethel May Wright, mezzo soprano, and Miss Alice McClung, pianiste, will appear at the Auditorium next Thursday evening, April 25. Skovgaard has played before King Christian of Denmark, King Oscar of Sweden, King Hakon of Norway and Emperor Wilhelm of Germany by special request. Having been intimately associated with the eminent Joachim for nearly ten years, Skovgaard has absorbed much of the great master's personality, readily observed in his entire sinking of the player in the elevation of the composer and his wonderous music. He has spent thirty years of incessant training developing his hand and has it insured for $50,000. The magnificent Stradivarius he uses cost $13,000 and could not now be bought for any amount of money. Skovgaard has been received with much enthusiasm and praise in this

* * * * * * * * * * *

The state college of agriculture and the Crookston school of agriculture, also a state institution, have supplied the local high school with pure bred seeds for planting in the school plot. It is probable that the high school agriculture department will plant four or five acres of corn for seed purposes for next year. It is apparant from the seed experiences of Minnesota this spring that home grown seeds are the only reliable kind.

The Seniors are well prepared for Friday's class play. "The Private Secretary" is certainly most entertaining and its presentation will be snappy and full of vim. The proceeds wil be used to purchase a class memorial and to aid in meeting necessary graduation expenses. It might be stated that the pictures and ornaments in all the schools in this city—and there are several hundred dollars' worth—have been secured by the students in years past with funds raised by entertainments. The "Private Secretary" is worthy of your patronage.

School closes on Friday, May 31st.

The last week of school will be devoted to the state high school board examinations.

J. H. Hay attended the Clearwater county association of teachers at Clearbrook last Saturday.

School gardens will be started in several parts of the city for pupils above the fifth grade. There are many good reasons which might be advanced in favor of this movement, but space forbids.

Last week Mr. Haskin organized a farmers' club at the Sathre school southwest of town and another at the Wright school near Kratka.

It is gratifying to learn of the success of graduates of the local high school, who have attended higher institutions of learning, in securing positions in good towns in this and adjoining states.

Miss McConnell was detained by the illness of her mother at her home at Sioux Falls, S. D. until Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Haskin, Mrs. George Curran and Miss Dagny Halseth substituted during her absence.

The last basketball game of the season was played between the first and second teams Friday evening, resulting in a victory for the former by a score of 18 to 5.

The high school grounds will be improved this spring by Mr. Haskin, the agriculture instructor.

Up to April 1st, the Knox school enrolled exactly 139 boys and 139 girls. The total enrollment in all schools to same date was 1258.

Here are some of the features embodied in a modern school building recently erected in Lexington, Kentucky: "The basement of the school shows a kitchen, carpenter shop, and a laundry where the children will be taught. The swimming pool and the showers are to be open to the young people and the adults of the community as well as to the school children. On the main floor, in addition to the classrooms, there is a large room to be used as kindergarten, gymnasium and auditorium. In the morning, the kindergarten children will occupy it. It is a story and a half high to accommodate the gymnasium apparatus. With the stage at the end and folding chairs, it may be converted into an auditorium for stereoptican lectures, musical entertainments and plays. The top floor shows four class rooms, a library and reading room, where the excellent library extension work now being carried on may be developed. The flat roof may be used as out-door school. When the school buildings belonging to the people are used by the people as their club houses, where recreation, physical education and educative amusement may be had, social evils will not cut so much figure in our civilization.

NEW SOLUM NEWS

* * * * * * * * * * *

Two gasoline tractors were passing through here last Wednesday bound for Viking and New Folden.

Theodore Tomson and Albert Sjolsvold are doing carpenter work for Paul Erickson.

Mr. Richard Erickson bought a nice horse last week.

Oscar Ramem who has been working in Warren during the winter, is spending a few days with his folks.

Mrs. O. Olby visited with her sister Mrs. L. Tomson last Wednesday.

One of our base ball boys went to Thief River Falls Wednesday, where he invested in abont half a dozen bats and it looks as if the White Sox are going to do some bat busting again this summer.

Misses Lizzie and Anna Tomson visited at Olby's Sunday.

Some of our boys are getting such strong arms now days that they are shooting rabbits "the stone route."

Miss Ella Mellem visited with Laura Stengelson last Sunday.

Mr. P. Sjolsvold bought a valuable horse last Friday.

Mrs. K. Ramum and children visited with B. Sewalson Sunday.

Annie Erickson came home from Warren last week for a few days stay.

The young peoples society will meet at P. Sorenson's next Thursday.

Miss [illegible] Sewalson who has been staying in Viking for some time returned home Monday.

The Viking speed boys came over last Sunday to play a game of ball with the N. S. Cubs. The game resulted in a victory for the speedy youngsters from Viking by a score of 9 to 5. Next Sunday the Winners will clash with the White Leged team at the Sox' grounds.

We are now happy as a lark, but we would like to see our friend send in some more good advise, or at least some news. We all know that we are apt to make a mistake once in a while, but that ought not cause us to quit sending in news, as everybody is pleased to see some news from their community. So cheer up and try again. We will admit that we made a mistake and will try to be more careful in the future.

BE A TRAINED NURSE

Woman's Opportunity.

Ambitious women desirous of bettering their condition should take up Nursing as a profession. The small number of competent nurses make a constantly increasing demand for their service. Trained Nurses receive from $18.00 to $25.00 a week, some as high as $50.00, including their board. The Rochester Nurses Institute will train any woman to be a Professional Nurse in a reasonably short time, in her own home. Readers of the Press can get free information and instructions by writing to the Rochester Nurses Institute, 1017 Rochester, N. Y.

WHY HE WAS LATE

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by All Dealers.

You will look a good while before you find a better medicine for coughs and colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only gives relief—it cures. Try it when you have a cough or cold, and you are certain to be pleased with the prompt cure which it will effect. For sale by all Dealers.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alice B. Kratka and Frank H. Kratka, her husband, and Daisy L. Kratka, as mortgagors, to Isabella Hinkel, as mortgagee, dated on the 23rd day of June, 1904, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, 1904, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in Book 29 of Mortgages Page 431, on which there is claimed to be due, and is actually due at the date of this notice, the amount of $1500.00, as principal, and $127.20 as interest, amounting in the aggregate to a total indebtedness of $1627.20, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt, or any part thereof, secured by the said mortgage;

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of certain of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the main front door of the court house in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington (formerly part of said Red Lake County) and State of Minnesota, on Tuesday, the twenty-eight (28th) day of May A. D. 1912 at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale and fifty ($50.) Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of Foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage are all those tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, (said Pennington County being formerly a portion of the County of Red Lake) and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lot Numbered Five (5) in Block Numbered Five (5); Lot Numbered Six (6) in Block Numbered Eighteen (18); Lots numbered five and six (5&6) in block Numbered Twenty-six (26); Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) Block Thirty-four (34); Lots Numbered Thirteen and Fourteen (13&14) in Block Numbered Thirty (30); Lots Numbered Eleven and Twelve (11&12) in Block Numbered Twenty-nine (29); Lots Numbered One (1), Two (2), Three (3), Nine (9), and Ten (10) in Block Numbered Fifty-eight (58); and Lots Numbered Four and Five (4&5) in Block Numbered Sixty-three (63); all in the Original Townsite of Thief River Falls, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in said State of Minensota and subsequently transcribed and a copy filed and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the said County of Red Lake, in said State of Minnesota.

That all of said premises will be sold under and by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage except the following described racts or parcels, to-wit: Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) in Block Numbered Thirty-four (34), which said lots have heretofore (and subsequent to the making and delivery of said mortgage) been formally released from the lien of said mortgage.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR

The Cow's Best Friend

The Cheapest Machine for You to Buy

Because it will last longer, run easier and skim cleaner than any other separator.

Our margin of profit on the De Laval is smaller than most dealers make on other separators, but we know that the De Laval will please our customers and give them satisfactory service, and as there is a greater demand for the De Laval than for any other make we can afford to sell it at a smaller profit.

You know some neighbor who has a De Laval. Ask him how it works. We are always glad to refer a prospective separator buyer to an old De Laval user, because De Laval users are always boosters and the best advertisers we have. Used by 98% of the world's creameries.

Easiest to turn, easiest to wash, skims the cleanest lasts the longest

FRIDAY, APR. 19, 1912

"The Private Secretary" will secure funds for Seniors for a class memorial. This is a worthy cause. Come with the crowd and participate in the fun.

We stand uncompromisingly opposed to a subsidy on American ships unless they will at least supply an amount of life preserving boats equal to the entire number of its passage. The fearful loss of life on the Titanic is absolutely unexcuseable in, as much as if the Steamers had carried a sufficient amount life preserving boats every person on that great boat might have been saved.

Honorable F. H. Pederson of Moor head will contest with Honorable Halvor Steenerson for the republican nomination for congressman from the ninth district. Mr. Peterson has announced his candidacy and has thrown his hat, boots, past record and platform into the ring. As Halvor wears a big size headgear and his boots are lasted over a stump it will be necessary to enlarge the circle to make room for Peterson's boots and hat. It is understood that Congressman Steenerson does not care to have the Moorhead statesman fill his shoes and the contest will be a merry political battle with a big distance to cover. Then there is that man Sageng, what?

McCONAGLE MAKES A FORECAST

Special to The Journal:

Superior, Wis., April 16.—W. A. McConagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, the steel trust ore line, declared in an address before the members of the Superior Commercial club last night that the head of the lakes, as a result of the location of the $30,000.000 steel plant, would become the greatest manufacturing center on the continent.

He predicts the coming of Big Secondary plants, such as car works which he said would be located on Wisconsin soil and benefit both Superior and Duluth in equal measure. He asserted that discriminatory freight rates favoring the twin cities and others were about to be adjusted and that the head of the lakes would soon "reap the benefits of patient waiting."

SASKATOON GETS SUM

For Industrial Purposes [illegible] Five Days as [illegible]

Sask., April 12.—A million dollars within five days was the motto of the Saskatoon Industrial League campaign which was launched on Monday morning, and today the goal was attained, and what is believed to be a unique effort of its kind brought to a successful conclusion.

Saskatoon now stands ready to give aid to industrial projects backed by a million dollars in cash or the credit of her own citizens. At the noon hour it was announced that $913,000 had been obtained.

However, at six o'clock Organizer Weir was able to inform the workers that the full stock had been subscribed.—Winnipeg Telegram.

On account of failing health, I have been compelled to give up the tailoring business at present, that I have kept up here for the past eight years. And having rented my shop and outfit to Mr. Ernest P. Ahlborn, from Minneapolis, will hereby take liberty to present him to the public, as a fully competent tailor and cutter, who will and is perfectly able to turn out a first class job in the line of men's or ladies' suits. I have known Mr. Ahlborn for twenty years, ever since he used to be the leading man in the large tailoring-firm of Westberg Brothers & Co., of Willmar, Minn., and am taking pride in recommending him to the public and my customers.

Yours truly,
O. L. Bakken.

The assessor is required to accept the items of such list as true, unless the person making the return refuses to answer on oath all reasonable and necessary inquiries as to the nature and amount of his property taxable under this law. The assessor may, however, place his own valuation on the property so listed when in his judgment the valuation returned by the owner is not the true and full value of the property.

If any person subject to the tax refuses or neglects to make a return as provided for in the law, the assessor is required to make an arbitrary assessment against such person based upon the best information he can obtain, and then add 50 per cent to the valuation as a penalty for such refusal or neglect.

In making an arbitrary assessment the law does not require the assessor to have exact knowledge of the value of the property; he is authorized to make the assessment upon "his best information and belief" and in such cases he must impose the penalty. If the assessor should overvalue any of the items of the property the person against whom the assessment is made is not entitled to any relief, unless the aggregate of such assessment is excessive.

If a person was assessed for this class of property last year and fails to make a return this year, the assessor is required to make an arbitrary assessment and cannot fix the amount at less, but may make it more, than the amount legally assessed against such person last year.

Even though a person claims that he does not own any of this class of property he should nevertheless return his list to the assessor setting out such fact duly sworn to.

The next article will deal briefly with the reasons for changing the law, and will give some comparative figures of assessment and revenue in 1910 under the old law and in 1911 under the new law.

Federal Aid For Roads

ported. It is presumed that the purpose of the bill is to encourage good road building. By many it is held that if this bill goes through it will be an entering wedge for more general good road legislation in the future.

The author of the bill is strongly in favor of having the roads constructed by local authorities, rather than by United States engineers. On this point he says:

"Then too, if United States engineers, instead of State and county authorities, were to have control of our roads we might find ourselves with a few cross-continent highways of great perfection to be used by tourists, while the great majority of the people who pay the expenses would be without ways of travel. It would be pleasant if there was a well-paved avenue from New York to the Golden Gate, over which automobile enthusiasts might glide in pleasant pastime, but it would be more profitable if we had a general system of good roads over which the farmers could get their mail and transport their products to market. We would not be understood as inveighing against the use of automobiles. We realize that these vehicles are here and here to stay. They are rapidly becoming necessities to modern civilization, and we look with pleausre upon their growing use. They should be kept in mind in the construction of our highways. A general system of good roads, however, would afford far greater facilities for even automobile travel than could be had by expending all available funds on a few fancy highways, leaving the rest of the county neglected."

Another good road proposition now before Congress is that involved in the Underwood resolution creating a joint committee of the House and Senate to investigate the building of post roads in the United States. This resolution was recently favorably acted on by the committee on rules. The Shackleford bill and the Underwood resolution are now the only good road propositions which Congress will have to deal with. The latter is favored by the more conservative Democrats who want to delay legislative action at this time, by making the good road question so far as it relates to federal legislation the subject of a Congressional investigation. In the Underwood resolution the committee is authorized and directed to report to Congress all information obtained, together with recommendations as to the advisability of Congress granting national aid to the maintenance and building of post roads and national highways in the United States.

ADDITIONAL SCHOOL NOTES

Among other samples of corn which are being tested by the department of agriculture of the high school, is a lot of 45 ears owned by Fr. Adolph Dingman, which he received from Beaulieu on the White Earth reservation. This corn is a native product, developed by Fr. Roman Homer, the resident priest, from the small squaw corn by cross fertiliziation with pure bred Minnesota varities. It matures in ninety days and is a valuable contribution to the list of reliable varieties which can be grown with profit in northern Minnesota.

Bert Boyden, a member of the Caesar class, constructed a diminutive bridge, modeled on the plan adopted by Caesar's engineers. It is a clever contrivance of small sticks and ordinary twine, all weighing only one and a half pounds, but capable of supporting a weight of 150 pounds.

DEATH LIST OF TITANIC APPALLING

More Than Thirteen Hundred People Went Down With Ill Fated Vessel.

MOST OF THOSE SAVED WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Many of the Men Passengers and Practically the Entire Crew Perished.

New York, April 17.—The appalling magnitude of the wreck of the giant liner Titanic has been but little mitigated by the fragmentary information which has filtered in.

The rescuing steamer Carpathia has 868 survivors on board, according to the latest news received at the offices of the White Star line in this city. This increases the list of saved by about 200 from the number first reported. But except for this the favorable details are insignificant compared with the supreme fact that the Titanic is at the bottom of the Atlantic and that the shattered wreck took with her about 1,350 victims to their death.

The first reports giving the total survivors at 675 were varied by more favorable news, first from Captain Rostron of the Carpathia, who gave the number at about 800, and later by the positive announcement of the White Star line that there are 868 survivors of the Titanic on board the Carpathia.

OVER THIRTEEN HUNDRED UNACCOUNTED FOR.

But with these revised figures there remain 1,341 persons, passengers and crew of the Titanic, who are unaccounted for.

Hope clung desperately to the belief that the steamers Virginian and Parisian of the Allan line may have picked up survivors in addition to those on board the Carpathia, but this practically was dispelled when the Sable Island wireless reported that the Parisian had no survivors on board, and when the offices of the Allan line in Montreal issued a statement that the captain of the Virginian had sent them a wireless message saying he had "arrived at the scene of the disaster too late to be of service."

The Virginian has proceeded on her way for Europe.

The Carpathia, having on board the only survivors accounted for, is coming slowly to New York. All hope for details of the tragedy and its effects are centered on this ship. She will be in wireless communication with Sable Island soon, with Nantucket on Thursday, and she will reach New York some time Thursday night.

ENTIRE WORLD OVERWHELMED BY NEWS.

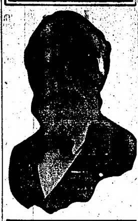
London, Paris and New York are overwhelmed by the news of the disaster. Tearful crowds of relatives and friends of passengers on board the Titanic thronged the steamship offices in all three cities, waiting hour after hour for news that more often than not when it does come means bereavement and sorrow. People in Paris and London went to bed in the belief that all the passengers on board the Titanic had been saved; morning brought them the appalling truth.

Of the survivors on board the Carpathia by far the largest number are women and children.

Many men of great prominence on two continents are among the missing. No word has been received of Colonel John Jacob Astor, his wife, however, has been saved. Alfred Vanderbilt was not on board the Titanic as first reported. He is in London. Isador Straus, the New York millionaire merchant and philanthropist, who was on board, has not been reported among the survivors. Major Archibald W. I. Butt, personal aide to President Taft, also is unaccounted for, and it is believed he went down with the ill fated vessel. W. T. Stead, the noted English editor, is also among the missing.

W. T. STEAD.

Famous London Editor Believed to Have Perished.



WOMEN AND CHILDREN FIRST TO BE SAVED.

From what has been learned here the officers and crew stood to their quarters with fine discipline when it was found necessary to send away the boats. First over the side were the women and children in the first cabin, then those of the second and then the steerage. With the women of the steerage in the lifeboats came the turn of the men in the first cabin, for the stewardesses and maids aboard the steamship ranked with the crew, which the unwritten law of the sea says must not leave the sinking vessel until the last of the passengers are over the side.

The sea was running high, but not breaking. Ice was to be seen in all directions, bringing with it a chill which bit through such clothing and wraps as the frightened passengers had thrown about themselves. In the boats were 800 odd men, women and children. To those left on board were left the lifebelts if they could don them and get far enough away from the sinking vessel not to be engulfed when she swirled below the water.

It was twenty minutes after 2 o'clock that the last bulkheads of the Titanic blew away and she went to the bottom, carrying over 1,300 souls with her. Before this her lifeboats had been sent away.

OTHER VESSELS REACH THE SCENE TOO LATE.

Two messages received by the Marconi wireless telegraph company from the company's stations at Cape Race and Sable Island made it certain that their are none of the Titanic's passengers on either the steamship Parisian or Virginian.

One message reads

"The Marconi station at Sable Island has been in communication with the Parisian and the ship has no passengers from the Titanic."

The other message reads:

"The Marconi station at Cape Race reports they have had communication with the Virginian, which reported none of the Titanic's passengers are on that vessel, which arrived too late to be of service."

All through the night the offices of the White Star line and of the newspapers were besieged by scores of persons anxious to learn the fate of relatives or friends on board the Titanic, while a flood of telegrams, cablegrams and telephone messages were received, bringing eager inquiries from different parts of the country.

Officials of the White Star line had little news to impart. Wireless operators worked throughout the night trying to send and pick up calls from the scene of the disaster. The wireless was handicapped in the early morning by a thunder storm, which finally silenced transmission for a time.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR PROBABLY PERISHED

Multimillionaire's Name Is Not Among Those Rescued.

New York, April 17.—Colonel John Jacob Astor is believed to have gone down with the ill fated Titanic.

Mrs. Astor is saved. She was the beautiful Madeline Force of Brooklyn, where her marriage to Colonel Astor on Sept. 9, 1911, was one of the most talked of events of the fall. It has been reported that an heir is expected.

Colonel Astor inherited a fortune estimated at between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000, making him one of the richest men in the world. The second Mrs. Astor contracted to give up all claim to his fortune, unless an heir was born, in consideration of a marriage settlement of $5,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Astor were returning from their honeymoon journey to Europe.

WISCONSIN PEOPLE ON BOARD

Five Are Saved and Eight Are Unaccounted For.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 17.—Out of eight Wisconsin people aboard the steamer Titanic five names, those of women, are included among the saved as follows:

Mrs. E. G. Crosby and Miss Harriet Crosby, Milwaukee; Mrs. W. B. Silvey, Superior; Mrs. W. H. Minahan, Fond du Lac; Miss Daisy Minahan, Green Bay.

Captain E. G. Crosby, Milwaukee; Dr. E. W. Minahan, Fond du Lac, and W. B. Silvey, Superior, are yet to be accounted for.

FOUND NOTHING BUT WRECKAGE

Titanic Had Gone to Bottom When First of Rescuing Fleet Reached Scene.

SURVIVORS SUFFER GREATLY

Put Into Lifeboats Scantily Clad and Spent Many Hours In Biting Cold.

New York, April 17.—The tidings that the Titanic had sunk came in a brief wireless dispatch to Cape Race, N. F., from the White Star liner Olympic, which reported that the Titanic had foundered at about 2:20 a. m. Monday morning in latitude 41:16 north and longitude 50:14 west.

The message added that the steamship Carpathia, then on her way to Naples, had reached the scene of the wreck at daybreak and found only boats and wreckage and that all the Titanic's boats were accounted for and "about 675 souls saved, crew and passengers, latter nearly all women and children."

This news was confirmed shortly afterward by officials of the White Star line here, who announced that the Olympic had sent them wireless dispatches that the Titanic had sunk.

A wireless dispatch received later at Boston, which was relayed by the Olympic from the Carpathia, stated that the Carpathia had 868 of the Titanic's passengers on board, mostly women and children, concluding with the words:

"Grave fears are felt for the safety of the balance of the passengers and the crew."

Thirteen Hundred Missing.

Out of the 2,200 souls on board this would make it appear that 1,314 had perished, or at least are unaccounted for.

The wireless dispatch from Cape Race telling of the sinking also gave the information that the steamship California was remaining and searching the vicinity of the disaster.

That the Virginian may have some of the shipwrecked passengers of the Titanic on board was indicated in a telegram received here from St. Johns which stated that she would bring to St. Johns such survivors as she "may rescue." Inasmuch as the Virginian was bound for Liverpool she would hardly return to the Newfoundland port unless for humanitarian reasons.

The brief wireless dispatches received show that the passengers and crew passed through thrilling experiences from the very moment that the monster Titanic crashed into the iceberg in the dead of night until the Carpathia several hours later, reached the scene and rescued the survivors from lifeboats floating in a sea of ice.

Danger still confronted even those who were so fortunate as to be put aboard the lifeboats. Huge quantities of field ice covered the ocean, a wireless dispatch says, and in the darkness the crews had to guide their boats with the greatest care to prevent being jammed and overturned.

Many Passengers Had Retired.

The collision occurred at a time when most of the passengers had retired or were about to go to bed. The shock of the collision sent many of the passengers to the decks partly dressed.

A wireless dispatch came through Camperdown, N. S., saying that the passengers were ordered to the lifeboats at once and that many were scantily clad as they took their places in the boats. This would indicate that the Titanic's condition was such that no time could be spared to return to staterooms for additional clothes.

The ice was so heavy that the lifeboats could not force their way through it and as a result the boats became widely separated. The air was biting cold and the chill that rose from the ice floes caused the passengers to hover close together to keep warm. All through the night the lifeboats bobbed helplessly between the shifting cakes of ice while the survivors prayed for dawn to come.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the sinking Titanic made her great dive into the sea, carrying with her hundreds of persons to death.

Daylight came and with it arrived the Cunarder Carpathia, which found only the score of lifeboats filled with crew and passengers floating helplessly about the vicinity where the Titanic had passed under the waves.

NORTHWESTERNERS SAVED

Names of Several Among Those Known to Be Rescued.

New York, April 17.—Among the passengers rescued when the Titanic went down are the following persons from the Northwest:

Mrs. Walter D. Douglas; Miss Constance Willard, daughter of D. Willard, Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. John Pillsbury Snyder of Minneapolis; Mrs. William B. Silvey of Duluth; Mrs. H. F. Chaffee of Amenia, N. D.

CAPTAIN E. J. SMITH.

CAPTAIN HAD FINE RECORD

Titanic's Commander Thirty-eight Years in Service.

New York, April 17.—The honor bestowed on Captain Edward John Smith, when he was selected to command the Titanic and taken off the Olympic for that purpose, was considered remarkable among steamship commanders, for it is a deep sea tradition that a captain's career is ended when his vessel meets with serious mishap.

The Olympic has twice met with misfortune with Captain Smith as her commander, but the White Star company knew that they were justified in placing every reliance on the man who has ruled over the finest steamships in the world.

Captain Smith has been in the service of the White Star company for thirty-eight years. He has commanded the Republic—the old Republic, not the one that the Florida sank off Nantucket lightship—the Britannia, the Germanic and the Majestic.

He brought over the Baltic when she was the biggest vessel on the seas; then the Adriatic and last the Olympic. In the White Star service he is known as "The Old Man."

TITANIC LACKING IN LIFESAVING DEVICES

Boats and Rafts Could Accommodate Only 1,170.

New York, April 17.—Statistical information of the lifesaving apparatus of the Olympic, sister ship of the Titanic, was given out by the bureau of inspection of steam vessels. Figures for the Titanic are not available, but as the two ships are almost identical in size it is not likely their lifesaving equipment materially differs.

The Olympic has sixteen lifeboats and four rafts, calculated to accommodate 1,170. This means about one-third of the total number of passengers and crew together, which is 3,447, can be accommodated. It was stated at the bureau that no ship is required to have sufficient boat room to accommodate all its complete passenger and crew list.

The Olympic carries 3,455 life preservers and forty-eight life buoys, and these equipments are made in compliance with the regulations of the British board of trade. The United States bureau has no power except to see that each steamship meets the requirements of its home government.

MOST OF THE MEN PERISHED

Women and Children Predominate Among Those Saved.

St. Johns, N. F., April 17.—Messages from Cape Race seem to indicate that a very large majority of the men who were on the steamer Titanic went down with the ship. Messages from the Carpathia picked up by the Cape Race wireless station state that all of the boats launched by the crew of the Titanic have been accounted for. The boats were filled largely with women and children, but had sufficient members of the Titanic's crew to guide them. The belief was general here that all who survived the wreck are on the Carpathia.

The steamer Virginian, which halted her voyage from Halifax to Liverpool when near the scene of the disaster, saw no signs of survivors.

GRAVE IS TWO MILES DEEP

Titanic Lies Far Under Sea About 500 Miles From Halifax.

Halifax, April 17.—The deathbed of the $10,000,000 steamer Titanic is two miles, at least, below the surface of the sea.

About 500 miles from Halifax and about seventy miles south of the Grand Banks is where the Titanic is believed to have gone down.

BELIEVES SHIP'S SIDE TORN OUT

Builder of Titanic Tells Why Vessel Sank So Rapidly.

LIFEBOATS INSUFFICIENT

British Law Relating to Lifesaving Apparatus Passed Before the Present Immense Ocean Liners Were Even Contemplated.

London, April 17.—Alex Carlisle, lately chief designer for Harland & Wolff, the ship builders, and the designer of both the Titanic and Olympic, in the course of an interview said:

"When the news first came that the Titanic was sinking by the head I thought it likely that she would reach port. The fact that she sank within four hours after the impact with the ice indicates that her side was torn out."

The apparent fact that the Titanic's boats were not sufficient to accommodate the ship's personnel is causing much comment here, although the papers are chary of discussing the subject. The law does not provide the number of boats the largest ships shall carry. It only applies to those vessels displacing up to 10,000 tons, as it was passed before the present big ships had been designed or built.

Standard Oil Official Misses Boat.

One of the best known London representatives of the Standard Oil company, W. H. Harrison, failed to sail on the Titanic, as he had intended. Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus had not intended to sail on the Titanic, but reached a sudden determination to take the new liner and caught the boat train at the last minute.

The message received by the parents of J. A. Phillips, the wireless operator on the Titanic, stating "making slowly for Halifax. Practically unsinkable. Don't worry," was sent by an uncle of the operator in London to Godalming, where the father lives, and the parents assumed that it had come from their son, as it was signed Phillips.

The transatlantic lines have agreed in consequence of the reports as to ice in the Atlantic, to cross longitude 47 in latitude 40.10 eastbound, and longitude 47 latitude 41 westbound.

MONETARY LOSS IS LARGE

Titanic and Cargo Worth Probably Fifteen Millions.

New York, April 17.—The Titanic was insured at Lloyds' for $5,000,000, according to advices from London, and it was said that the International Mercantile Marine company also carried a surplus fund for insurance purposes which could be applied to the loss. The cost of building the great liner has been estimated at $10,000,000, although Vice President Franklin of the White Star line insisted that her value was not over $8,000,000.

The total monetary loss caused by the sinking of the ship, however, is certain to run to many millions more, but the total amount cannot even be conjectured. It is generally understood that the vessel had aboard diamonds of great value, estimated as high as $5,000,000, and also a large amount of bonds. The amount of freight carried was comparatively small for the size of the ship and, according to a White Star official, its value would not reach over $500,000.

The Titanic carried 3,424 bags of mail of unknown value which it is hardly likely was saved.

SAYS ONLY 650 WERE SAVED

Marconigram Received at Charlestown Not Reassuring.

Charlestown Navy Yard Wireless Station, Mass., April 17.—"Six hundred and fifty, mostly women and children, on board the liner Carpathia, are the only ones saved from Titanic. Others went down with the ship and wreckage.

"Other rescue ships failed to find any more of Titanic's passengers."

This Marconi message, relayed by at least two ships, which caught it some distance east and north of Cape Cod and sent it within speaking distance of the United States wireless station here, was picked up by navy wireless operators. The message was perfectly clear, according to Wireless Operator Charles Kemper. It was twice repeated and it is thought to be from an authoritative source, although it was unsigned.

RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

* * * * * * * * * * *

The County Superintendent desires at this time to call attention to the Industrial Contest, mention of which was made some time ago in these columns.

Whether there will be a contest or not next fall will primarily depend: (1st) upon whether there will be a sufficient number of boys and girls entering the same and (2nd) on whether or not we can secure the necessary funds for payment of prizes.

These conditions satisfied, we will have a contest in the month of November and prizes will well be offered according to announcements made in Bulletin No. 3 of the Extension Division, Agriculture Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Division A—Grains:

Corn, ten-ear exhibit of Minnesota No. 13 and 23, or any other variety.

Wheat.—The best sample of wheat.

Oats—The best sample.

Barley—The same.

Division B—Potatoes:

1 Peck of Early and 1 peck late variety also 1 grand prize for the best display of garden vegetables.

Division C—Sewing:

Classes will be the same as those outlined in the Industrial Contest Bulletin No. 3 for 1912.

Division D—Cooking:

Classes will be the same as those outlined in above mentioned bulletin.

Division G—Manual Training.

For rural schools only not including associated:

Best milk stool

Bird House

Hog Trough

Mail Box

Model gate, not to exceed 2 feet.

There will be special prizes in corn and potatoes and 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prizes for the other classes or samples listed in the contest.

Bulletin No. 3 is sent out to the schools this week in a limited supply. Will the teachers kindly give a copy to each family represented in their respective schools. We anticipate much help in this movement from our teachers, and the success or failure of the contest will depend in no small degree on their co-operation. This subject should call forth much enthusiasm in the bulletins to children in their respective schools.

Will the teachers kindly report the work done as to this contest and the list of scholars entering the contest for their respective schools? Any scholar, not in a school in session, may report to me individually his or her name and the work each contemplates doing.

Anyone in need of a bulletin write to this office, or, better still, write to the University Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul, and get the names listed for the monthly Farmers Bulletin, sent free for the asking.

Gov. Eberhart has by proclamation designated Friday, April 26th to be observed as Arbor and Bird Day in our schools. I hope the Arbor Day manual will come to hand in time so as to be distributed to the schools.

I would respectfully ask the school boards with the assistance of the respective teachers do all things possible to beautify the school grounds. Let us have neat and model school grounds; make them the civic centre in which all take pride; the place for the social meets and celebrations for the summer. The Dept. of Public Instruction, C. G. Schulz, Supt. will send each school officer for the asking a neat pamphlet on the beautification of the school grounds, plans, etc. Send for one.

When Senator Robert M. La Follette, now in the public eye, was in the midst of his job of cleaning up Wisconsin, freeing it from the clutches of politicians and corporations and restoring, by legislation, its government to the people, he moved from the city of Madison to a farm. His new home was on the shore of Lake Mendota across from the city. Here he found quiet after each day of hard labor. Here, also, he took up farming where he had left it off as a young man on his father's farm, and found in its problems relief for his overworked mind.

In laying out the property, he cleared timber from a space between the front of the house and the lake in the direction of the central portion of Madison and the purpose of this was seen when through this clearing loomed up the dome of the state capitol across the lake.

"I want it so that dome will always be before me," he said. "It is my inspiration and keeps ever in my mind that Wisconsin, in her fight for progress and right has first claim on me until she wins."

CHARLES M. HAYS.

Montreal, April 17.—A wireless message received here says that Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk railway, is among the survivors aboard the Carpathia. His wife and daughter already had been reported saved.

RAINS ADD TO SUFFERING

Louisiana Flood Victims Driven to Take Refuge in Jail.

Tallulah, La., April 17.—Heavy rains, almost of cloudburst proportions, which have fallen here during the past two days, have intensified the already terrible condition of the flood sufferers, many of whom have been without shelter and in some instances without food since waters from the Mississippi invaded this territory. Freight cars, attics, upper stories, the courthouse and even the jail are occupied by unfortunates driven from their homes.

CALLS HARMON REACTIONARY

Bryan Opens Campaign Against Governor in Ohio.

Office Lawyers.

"Office practice is what the average lawyer seeks for now," remarked an attorney, "and that is the business that makes the largest returns for the least waste of tissue. More money is made nowadays by keeping clients out of litigation and free from the dangers of the law's delay than by defending them, even successfully, in court. It is safe to say that there are some 6,000 lawyers who are making a very good living in New York from law business that rarely or never takes them into court and that there are a large number of lawyers who from their counsel work and directing great enterprises and corporations, advising and guiding wealthy clients, take in each year princely—yes, even fabulous—amounts."—Lawyers' Diary.

COST OF LIVING REDUCED

Uruguay Solves Problem by Fixing Sales Price for All Produce.

By W. W. Jermane, Colorado Building, Washington, D. C.

Washington, April 13.—From away down in Uruguay, South America, in the region of the supposed perpetual revolutions, the United States government has just secured a solution of the high cost of living problem.

The government of Uruguay made an investigation of this question last year. The verdict was that the high cost of living was due not to restricted production, nor to increase of population, nor to the movement of the country people to the city, nor to the comparative cheapness of gold on account of the heavy production of that precious metal, all of which reasons had been alleged in that country, the same as in this; but simply and solely to the rapacity of the middlemen who, placing themselves between the producer and the consumer, formed combinations and took all the traffic would bear.

Having satisfied itself of the seat of the trouble, the government authorized the authorities of Montevideo to appoint a market bureau for the purpose of supplying a remedy. This was done for the establishment of so-called free markets in different parts of the city. The bureau investigated the prices of the various neccessities of life, paying particular attention to the questions of cost and reasonable profit, and placed large posters in all the free markets stating the prices at which the different articles might be sold there.

From the first the daily attendance at each market ran from 2,500 to 3,000 buyers, and the first merchants and butchers to establish stalls in the markets did so much business that prices all over the city were immediately effected. The attendance at the markets steadily increased. Business men who had declined to permit the markets to influence them were not only compelled to cut prices, but many of them have since applied for stalls in the markets themselves. At the present time merchants and butchers all over the city have reduced prices to meet the competition of the free markets and the old scale of prices maintained before the establishment of those markets has disappeared throughout the city.

The reports allege that the business men of Montevideo have been taught a salutary lesson. The market bureau has practically fixed the selling rate for everybody, and while it has not placed prices below a living profit, it has cut off so much from the rates formerly prevailing that the proof is conclusive that before the bureau took hold the people of Montevideo were systematically robbed.

Seeding is at full blast, on every quarter you can see the dust fly. The soil is in splendid condition for so early and prospects are very good.

Our creamery started two weeks ago and by the receipts the outlook is for a very successful season. To those who have not started to haul yet we wish to say, start in as soon as you can, get acquainted with our butter maker, H. Paulson, and we can assure you satisfaction.

The store is also doing splendidly and your correspondent is elected by the board to help wait on people on cream days.

Mr. Fetslow, and Mr. Bernstein of Libbey county were here last week for a visit with friends and relatives. Both were well-pleased with the appearance of the country.

We heave heard that John Holmgren, our drayman, has sold his farm. Suppose John will move into town now.

Henry Dau has been experimenting with a team of mule colts. Henry thinks they beat a brocho all around in meanness as well as in service.

The Young Peoples' Society has planned for a hat social on Sunday, April 28th.

Rambeck and Olson will have their plow rig ready this week, so you may expect to see the dirt fly.

Mr. Carmekel from Esplee passed thru here last week with a gasoline motor and plowing outfit, and another rig went up to Liner.

Selmer Bendickson and Edw. Ristau were called for last week to resume their work on the derdge. Selmar went, accompanied by Bennie Habedank. Edw. will stay on the farm this summer.

Bert Wilson has taken contract to grub a piece of land for Frank Kainz.

Ed. Larson will work for Mr. Skog this season.

W. C T. U. NOTES

* * * * * * * * * *

The effect of alcohol upon the will: The will is the controlling, guiding, enforcing or inhibitory agency in the mind of man.

It is especially concerned with moral conduct. It is the faculty by which the rational mind makes choice of its ends of action, determines to act in view of a certain end or a certain way or to refrain from action, and directs the energies in carrying out its determination. The elements involved are choice, purpose, volition. The will has to do with mental expression, memory, emotions, etc.

It is generally admitted that alcohol has a tendency to destroy the will power and the character of those who use it. As the will is dependent upon the intellectual processes, if they deteriocate, it must follow that the will also deteriocates.

The W. C. T. U. meets next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. E. O. Erickson.

Curtis Easily Defeats Gustafson

Champion Middleweight of Can., Never Had a Look in From Start to Finish.

Loren Curtis, aspirant for the champion middleweight title of the world, easily defeated Charles Gustafson, champion middleweight of Canada, at the Auditorium here April 18th, securing the first fall in 6 minutes, and 45 seconds with a double arm back hold with the legs and the second in four minutes and forty seconds with a half Nelson leg hold. Gustafson didn't have a look-in from start to finish and made a much poorer showing than the fans had expected. Curtis did all the aggressive work and was able to throw his man almost at will. Gustafson looked good, but he wasn't able to deliver the goods. This match has brought the fans to the conclusion that Curtis is the best middleweight in the country and can throw champion Miller any time that elusive gentleman can be induced to meet him.

There was a large crowd and many women could be seen in the balcony. The crowd was very gentlemanly and none of the gentler sex had any occassion to regret having attended the match. Promoter Angell is to be complimented on the good order he has maintained at all the matches. Hans says that plans are under way now to secure a match here between Curtis and Miller.

Kimpton. Morck and Granum furnished lively music before the match and during the interims. Harry Dobrin was the announcer and referred the preliminaries. John Rodjers referred the main bout. Dr. Swedenburg was the examining physician. R. J. Jordan kept the time. The wrestling mat was regulation size and in very good condition.

The Main Bout.

Curtis appeared at 11:11 and was very well received. Four minutes later Gustafson appeared amid lighter applause. The weight of either wrestler was announced as 158 pounds. The men gave quite an agreeable contrast, Curtis being dark complexioned and wearing green trunks, and Gustafson being very light complexioned and wearing red trunks.

In one minute after the men shook hands they were on the mat with Curtis on top. Curtis soon got the scissors and the men rolled off the mat, being brought to the center with a clean break. Curtis next secured a half Nelson, but Gustafson broke it, receiving hearty applause from the spectators. In the next few minutes Curtis got busy with his legs, secured a complicated leg and arm hold which immediately caused the downfall of the champion of Canada. The last round Curtis took it easy, prolonging it four minutes and forty seconds so as to give the fans their money's worth.

Preliminaries.

Al Betcher of McIntosh and four local boys, Dunc Stanton, McCrum, Eggerud and Joe Wickum, furnished the main entertainment in the preliminaries. Betcher's stunt was to throw all four of them in twenty minutes. Stanton staid one minute, McCrum one minute and fourteen seconds, Eggerud three minutes and Wickum eight minutes and ten seconds. Wickum proved to be the star performer, giving Betcher quite a tussle and even working on the offensive part of the time.

Cities Are Cleaning Up

To-Day Is Clean-up Day For Us. What Is Being Done Other Places.

Washington, D. C., April 26.—While politicians and campaign managers are doing their utmost to convince the people as to the merits of their respective candidates for the Presidency, the American Civic Association, with headquarters in Washington is devoting itself to the problem near at hand. Just now it is directing the crusade for town and city clean-ups. Presidential candidates may come and go, but a street, an alley, a park, a river bank,—these are always with us. With the avowed object of making city and town more attractive and livable, the American Civic Association is doing a great work. It co-operates with local associations the country over in the effort to beautify surroundings. How well it is succeedng in this task is evident from the encouraging reports received at the headquarter's office as to the remarkable civic progress in thousands of cities and towns.

While the Association approves and recommends the clean-up occasions, it does so with the expectation that it may serve as a beginning in the habit of civic cleanliness. R. B. Watrous, Secretary of the American Civic Association, Washington, D. C., has given me the following interview on the clean-up crusade and the general work of this organization:

"This is clean-up season and the American Civic Association, from its officers in Washington, is encouraging a very general movement for clean-up days and weeks in various parts of the country to be conducted by civic associations. However, it should be borne in mind that the Association approves and recommends these clean-up occasions only as an enthusiastic beginning of a habit of cleanliness for cities. It cautions those engaged in clean-up activities against allowing the enthusiasm to die with the end of the clean-up day or week."

Are there many communities preparing for clean-up activities this spring?" was asked Mr. Watrous.

"Yes, more cities and towns have this year inaugurated stated periods for thorough clean-up activities than ever before. To begin with the capitol of the nation, known as the cleanest and most beautiful city in America, nevertheless feels the necessity for a spring clean-up, and, with this end in view, an entire week, from April 15 to the 20th was designated, to be devoted to the cleaning out of the litter of backyards, old buildings and the rears of business and office structures."

"Has your Association any literature or helps for clean-up days?"

High School Baseball Team Organized

The High School baseball team has organized, with Elmer Iverson as captain and Maurice Fossum as manager. The boys are out practicing every day and manager Fossum is busy arranging games with Argyle, Crookston and Fosston. The number of players who are trying for the various positions is much greater this year than ever before, and the general quality of material is much better.

Just now it would be impossible to tell who is going to make the team, for there is considerable new material that is showing up good. The old-timers who have reported are Alfred Lee and Oscar Cerney for catchers, Maurice Fossum and Erving Carter for pitchers, Eugene Hance 1st base, Elmer Iverson 2nd base, Ben Lonson, Alfred Adolphs and Lyman Fossum for infield and outfield positions. New men who are showing up well are Axel Lofgren and Albert Teal for pitchers, Oscar Evenson at 3d base and John Brudie at short. Yesterday captain Iverson said: "There will be a lively tussle for positions this year. I haven't any idea now what men will eventually make the team."

Farmers Beware

A stranger was in our city last week endeavoring to induce some of our local land dealers to act as agent for his company, listing lands from the farmers and paying the local man a commission of 50 cents an acre for listing and showing lands so listed. It is hardly probable that our farmers will list their lands with strange companies after being handed the "lemon" in eastern Pennington this spring, whereby a foreign company has placed clouds upon the title of the farmers' lands, which in all probability will cost them something to get cleared up should they at any time decide to sell. All this trouble has resulted from listing lands and having the agreement put on record by these sharks. Moral: Deal with your local men whom you know to be on the square.

The Telephone Situation Now

Do We Want a Municipally Owned Telephone System? Think It Over Now.

The time has come when the local Tri-State Telephone Company can not give the city adequate and satisfactory service without enlarging the system now being used. Their switch board is full, making it impossible to install all the new and independent 'phones that are being called for. The only way they can increase the service at all is by putting two or more 'phones on the same connection, which usually serves only as a means of creating more dissatisfaction among patrons. This state of affairs means that something definite has got to be done in the near future to alleviate matters.

The question for the citizens to decide right now is whether they want to install a municipally owned telephone system or allow the Tri-State people to install a modern central-energy plant and extend their telephone service. There has been considerable adverse criticism of Tri-State people, but be that as it may there is no question now that they are ready to deliver the goods, if permitted to do so. It appears from a decision given by Judge Willard in United States District court held in Minneapolis, 1910, that Tri-State has no franchise, and, therefore, cannot go ahead and do anything without permission from the city.

The council has appointed Roth, Gulrud and Mousley as a committee to investigate the cost of installing a municipal plant. They have not made their report yet, but the estimate will probably not exceed $20,000.

Instead of kicking on the present service, it would be better for the public generally to get busy and do something. Talk it over. If you have statements you want the entire city and the tributary country line, to know, hand them in to the Press and they will be published next week.

Had Narrow Escape In a Runaway

Mrs. Harry Haraldson of the town of Rocksbury was driving a threeyear old colt into town Monday forenoon when the colt became frightened and started to run. The buggy struck a wagon opposite the Telemarken Hotel and was over-turned, Mrs. Haraldson being thrown out with such force that she was insensible for several minutes. Alfred Rasmusson came to the rescue and carried her into the hotel, where she was waited upon by Dr. Gambell. The doctor found that she had received a sever shoulder strain and was bruised about the face, but had not suffered any broken bones or internal injuries. Mr. Haraldson was telephoned for and by afternoon his wife was in condition to be taken home.

The colt turned the corner at the E. & E. Clothing Store and ran down the sidewalk, the buggy wheel smashing a big hole in the plate glass window at the side of the store. The horse continued down the walk and turned in at Jensen's livery stable. The buggy was completely demolished but the colt was only slightly injured. It is thot the colt first became frightened at an auto, conditions being aggravated by the rattling of a wagon.

Township Officers In Error

Under New Law Township Officers Are Not Authorized Fire Wardens.

Many township officers throughout the State seem to be under a misapprehension as to the Forest Law now in effect. A number evidently still believe themselves authorized fire wardens, as under the old Forest Law. Accordingly they have this spring signed claims for fire fighting and sent them to the State Forester. Under the new law this is no longer a part of a township Officer's duty. For the benefit of any who are still misinformed, the following explanation is made of the true situation.

The new Forest Law made effective in 1911, repealed the former Law under which township supervisors had been fire wardens. Soon after the new law went into effect all township supervisors who formerly had been fire wardens were notified by mail that they were no longer authorized to expend State money in fire protection work. Under the new Law, that area of the State where dangerous fires are most apt to occur has been divided into several large Districts. A District Forest Ranger has been placed in charge of each District. Under each District Ranger, during the fire season, are several patrolmen. District Rangers and patrolmen, paid through the State Forest Service, are the only men with direct authority to expend State Funds in fire protection work.

However, under the new Law it is the duty of all township and city officers to co-operate with the Officers of the State Forest Service. The former are required to look to it that conditions under their jurisdiction are such as to reduce the fire danger. They will be assisted by the Forest Officers in securing safer conditions. Local town and city officials should inform them of any condition which constitutes a serious fire danger, when they will take the necessary steps to remove the danger. Local officials should notify some Forest Officer of any fire which may be too dangerous for any neighborhood to handle without additional aid. It is only on such a dangerous fire, where timber and other property and life are at stake, that a Forest Officer calls out men. In such case the fire fighters will be paid except only that no man is paid for fighting fire within one mile of his own residence. The latter is true in any case. In no case will a man be paid by the State for fighting fire unless called out by or under the authority of a commissioned Forest Service Officer. This is because the Law expects a man to protect his own property and that of his close neighbors without remuneration from the State. Also, the Law, Section 24, requires that township and city organizations assume the responsibility for such fires as may be easily extinguished or are not a menace to life, or to property in considerable extent. This statement applies to any twonship situated within the established Ranger Districts, where the fire danger is greatest. It is equally true for such towns as are not included in the established Ranger Districts and where the fire danger to life and property is not considered

The committees on music and refreshments have completed their arrangements and guarantee these phases of the entertainment will be all that you ever dreamed or imagined they could be.

Sunday Services.

Next Sunday, April 28, the Odd Fellows will hold their ninety-third Anniversary Services at the Presbyterian church, Reverend C. E. Boyden delivering the address. The Odd Fellows and Rebeccas are to meet at the hall at 10:30 a. m. and march from there to the church, where the service will begin at 10:35. The choir has special music prepared for that day.

Proposed New Sewer Systems

City May Change Old Plans To Allow More Economical Installation.

The council has at present under consideration the building of three new sewer systems, of which survey was made three years ago, and when completed will serve the entire portion of the city which heretofore has had no such accommodation.

The total cost, as estimated by the engineers, was $300,000. Thinking this price high, the council is at present investigating the advisability of making a change in the plans for a more economical way of building.

It is proposed to divide each system into one for the sanitary sewer and one for the storm-water sewer, which latter would not have to lead into the septic tank, but could lead to the river at any point. This would eliminate the large sewer pipes, which, according to the old plans, would have to be cast into the trench with re-enforced concrete. The storm-water sewer could be constructed at a later date.

In order to overcome the deep digging, that in some places would have to be to a depth of 27 feet, it is proposed to lay (say for five blocks) on one slope to the manhole, sinking this quite deep and starting from this point on a new slope, and installing a pumping station in the manhole to lift the sewage to the higher level. This has been done in several cities in this state and is found to be much cheaper than the old method, where a continuous grade was used.

The council appointed last Friday Mr. George Walker as consulting engineer to make a checking survey of the former one and to change the plans in conformity with the above mentioned new scheme, that is recommended by the State Board of Health. The Board of Health has been appealed to for one of their experts to come to this city and confer with the council. Work will be started as soon as the necessary preliminaries are completed.

It is, however, regretful that the old out-grown charter of the city necessitates payment for the sewer in three years, while other cities organized under new charters, extend the payment for sewers over a period of ten years.

If the work should be let by contract, or done under the direct supervission of the city, the project will furnish much employment for day laborers and in this way help to make business the best it has ever been in the history of our city.

"Private Sec'y" Best Ever

People Enjoyed Heartiest Laugh of Season at Senior Class Friday Evening.

Local people enjoyed their heartiest laugh of theseason at the SeniorClass Play given at the Auditorium Friday evening. "The Private Secretary", was a laugh from start to finish. There wasn't a dull moment for anybody. The nature of the play, the excellent training of the students and the exceptionally good interpretation of their parts made "The Private Secretary" the most entertaining and at the same time the best rendered class play ever presented to the parents and general public of this city. The actors were uniformly good and did not show the least hesitation in remembering their parts. Miss Goodwin, who had charge of the training of the students and staging of the play, deserves much credit for the efficient manner in which the young people accounted for themselves.

Erving Carter, as "The Private Secretary," carried out very well his part of the over-studious youth who has almost entirely lost his sense of humor. Raymond Pope, as the

TAXATION OF MONEY & CREDITS

Showing the Effect of the New Law Imposing a Flat Rate of Three Mills.

In 1911, as explained in the preceeding article, a somewhat radical change was made in the method of listing and assessing money and credtis in this state. For more than 50 years Minnesota has been trying to reach such property for purpose of taxation with the same machinery and in the same manner as we taxed tangible personal property. Our experience was not materially different from that of other states and countries that had followed the same methods—at no time did we ever get more than a fraction of such property on the tax rolls.

Two causes have largely contributed to our failure to reach this class of property for the purpose of taxation—the intangible nature of the property and the high rate of taxation that prevailed in most of the taxing districts of the state.

Such property, known as intangible personal property, can be easily consealed, because, unlike live stock, or manufactured goods, or the goods and wares of a merchant, it is not susceptible to the touch or eye of taxing officials and cannot be appraised with the same degree of accuracy as tangible personal property. For this reason we are compelled to rely largely on the declaration of the owner as to the value of his property of this character.

Experience in this and every other state has demonstrated that when a tax consumes more than 10 per cent of the income from this class of property it will not be voluntarily listed for taxation. The tax rates vary in different taxing districts of this state from about one and one-half per cent to more than ten per cent, the average for the state this year being nearly three per cent. This means that in some districts the taxes on credits would amount to more than the entire income from such property, while the average rate in the state would consume from 40 to 60 per cent of such income. Under such conditions the natural tendency is to conceal such property from taxing officials, and perhaps justifiably so, for no man should be expected to contribute more than half of his income for support of government.

Realizing the difficulty of reaching this class of property for purposes of taxation under the prevailing system, the legislature, in 1911, passed a law imposing a flat rate of three mills on the dollar on such property. It was felt that a low uniform rate of taxation would result in placing a large amount of this class of property on the tax rolls that had heretofore entirely escaped taxation. It was contended that the average man desired to be honest and that a low rate would permit him to make a truthful return of property of this character that he might own without the fear of having most of its income confiscated for taxes.

The results the first year under the law have fully justified these conclusions. The assessed value of this class of property returned for taxation in 1910, under the old law, amounted to less than fourteen million dollars, while in 1911 the amount listed for taxation under the new law exceeded one hundred and fifteen million dollars, an increase of nearly 850 per cent in one year. In 1910 the assessed value of this class of property represented only 4.2 per cent of the bank deposits of the state, while the assessment of 1911 amounts to 33.8 per cent of such deposits.

Notwithstanding the low rate the total tax derived from this class of property in 1911 was but slightly less than in 1910, 67 of the 86 counties of the state showing an actual increase, while 52 of the 64 cities and villages of the state having a population of 2000 and over made substantial gains in revenue over 1910. Not only is the increase a very gratifying one, but the returns show conclusively that the tax is much more equitably distributed among the people than it was under the old law.

It is confidently expected that the assessment this year will show a considerable increase over last year. The purpose of the law is now better understood by both the people and the taxing officials than it was a year ago. The tax imposed under the law is not burdensome; it has been sustained by the supreme court, and is now an established part of the taxing system of the state. It is entitled to a fair trial, and if the ultimate results, after it has had a fair trial are not satisfactory it can be repealed.

Some criticism of the law is heard because it does not permit of the deduction of debts from credits. It should be remembered, however, that a person who owes a debt on his farm or his home, or on his farm implements or household goods or merchandise is not permitted to deduct such debt from the assessed value of the property. There is perhaps as much justification on the grounds of equity for deducting debts from these classes of property as from credits, but no such deductions have ever been permitted under the law. In the opinion holding that debts cannot be deducted from credits the supreme court says:

"Though this result leads to a departure of the long settled policy of the state to allow the deduction of debts in taxation of this kind, that policy was at its inception of doubtful merit, in that it extended to one class of taxpayers a favor not granted to others. It permitted the taxpayer holding credits to deduct his debts from the amount of his assessment, and denied the right to any owner of other property who was also in debt."

THE POSTAL SAVINGS SYSTEM

Information Concerning Postal Savings Bonds To Be issued July 1, 1912.

By applying on or before June 1, 1912, depositors of the Postal Savings System may exchange the whole or part of their deposits for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100, and $500, bearing interest from July 1, 1912, at the rate of 2½ per cent per annum, payable semiannually, and redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after one year from the date of issue, both principal and interest payable 20 years from that date in United States gold coin.

Postal savings bonds are excempt from all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal, or local authority.

Applications for the conversion of deposits into bonds on July 1, 1912, must be received on or before June 1, 1912, by the postmaster at the depository office where the certificates were issued.

If you neglect kidney backache,
Urinary troubles often follow.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney backache, and other kidney ills.

Thief River Falls citizens endorse them.

Mrs. Charles Krause, 707 N. Arnold Ave., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in the family and have given excellent relief. Last fall a member of the family had a very lame back. This person could hardly get around on account of the pains in the back. The kidney secretions were unnatural and there was sediment in them. Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained from J. P. Curtis' Drug Store and two boxes stopped the trouble. There has been no return."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Krause had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alice B. Kratka and Frank H. Kratka, her husband, and Daisy L. Kratka, as mortgagors, to Isabella Hinkel, as mortgagee, dated on the 23rd day of June, 1904, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, 1904, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in Book 29 of Mortgages Page 431, on which there is claimed to be due, and is actually due at the date of this notice, the amount of $1500.00, as principal, and $127.20 as interest, amounting in the aggregate to a total indebtedness of $1627.20, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt, or any part thereof, secured by the said mortgage;

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of certain of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the main front door of the court house in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington (formerly part of said Red Lake County) and State of Minnesota, on Tuesday, the twenty-eight (28th) day of May A. D. 1912 at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale and fifty ($50.) Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of Foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage are all those tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, (said Pennington County being formerly a portion of the County of Red Lake) and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lot Numbered Five (5) in Block Numbered Five (5); Lot Numbered Six (6) in Block Numbered Eighteen (18); Lots numbered five and six (5&6) in block Numbered Twenty-six (26); Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) Block Thirty-four (34); Lots Numbered Thirteen and Fourteen (13&14) in Block Numbered Thirty (30); Lots Numbered Eleven and Twelve (11&12) in Block Numbered Twenty-nine (29); Lots Numbered One (1), Two (2), Three (3), Nine (9), and Ten (10) in Block Numbered Fifty-eight (58); and Lots Numbered Four and Five (4&5) in Block Numbered Sixty-three (63); all in the Original Townsite of Thief River Falls, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in said State of Minensota and subsequently transcribed and a copy filed and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the said County of Red Lake, in said State of Minnesota.

That all of said premises will be sold under and by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage except the following described racts or parcels, to-wit: Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) in Block Numbered Thirty-four (34), which said lots have heretofore (and subsequent to the making and delivery of said mortgage) been formally released from the lien of said mortgage.

MR. AND MRS. J. B. THAYER.

Wife Escaped Death, but Husband Sank With Vessel.

PROMINENT IN RAIL CIRCLES

John B. Thayer, Who Lost His Life on the Titanic.

Philadelphia, April 24.—John B. Thayer, who lost his life in the wreck of the Titanic, was second vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad. His wife was among those who were put off the sinking ship in lifeboats and were later picked up by the Carpathia and landed at New York. Mr. Thayer was born in this city on April 21, 1862. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania. He entered railroad work in 1881 as a clerk and had filled many important positions. He was elected a vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad in 1909.

SOCIAL EVIL BASIS OF CORRUPTION

Jane Addams Denounces Present Method of Control.

New York, April 24.—Society's attitude toward prostitution was advanced as the supreme test of Christian religion by Jane Addams, the Hull House philanthropist, in a sensational speech on "The Church and the Social Evil" before the Men and Religion Forward congress here.

"The supreme religious test of our social order," said Miss Addams, "is the hideous commerce of prostitution and the sorry results of that test are registered in the hypocrisy and hardness of heart of the average good citizen toward the so called fallen woman.

"May we not claim that in consequence of this irreligious attitude prostitution today remains a hard, unresolved mass in the midst of so called Christian civilization until it has come to be called a vice which cannot be eradicated, sin which cannot be forgiven, a social disease that cannot be cured."

The policy of treating the social evil as a matter for contemptuous indifference, Miss Addams declared, had formed the groundwork for political corruption.

SOME BODIES SET ADRIFT

Survivor of Titanic Makes Charges Against Carpathia Officers.

New York, April 24.—Oscar Hedman of St. Paul, one of the Titanic survivors, made the charge that the Carpathia, after taking the living on board, turned adrift two lifeboats containing the bodies of about a dozen persons who had died of exposure on the boats before the Carpathia arrived.

Hedman and the Swedish passengers who are with him are agreed in their version of this horrible story, which has not hitherto been told by any one connected with the ocean disaster.

MORE BODIES RECOVERED

Funeral Ship Has Picked Up Remains of Seventy.

New York, April 24.—The White Star line was officially notified that seventy bodies of the Titanic had been recovered, of which forty-two had been identified. The company received an additional list of fifteen names which were on the cable steamer Mackay-Bennett.

It was stated that the ship would remain at the scene of the wreck until she had filled all of the 190 coffins taken from Halifax.

Loot Stolen Years Ago Found.

Boston, April 24.—A large amount of silverware and jewelry, part of the $5,000 loot taken from the home of a Boston millionaire by burglars nine years ago, has just been unearthed on the grounds of the Milton academy.

LOOKOUT TOLD OF ICE AHEAD

Warned Titanic Officers Just Before Collision.

STRUGGLES OF THE DYING

Witness Says Appeals for Help Were Ignored on Request of Rescued Passengers—Shrinks From Describing to Senate Committee the Cries of the Dying.

Washington, April 24.—Frederick Fleet, who was lookout on the crow's nest of the Titanic, told the senate investigating committee that on Sunday night some time after 10 o'clock he reported a black mass of ice ahead to the officers on the bridge. Just how long this was before the collision the lookout could not say.

Fleet told the committee that there were no lookout glasses in the Titanic's crow's nest after leaving Southampton. If he had glasses, he said, he could have seen the iceberg enough sooner to have escaped it. He said glasses were furnished the lookout from Belfast to Southampton, where they were taken away.

The life and death struggle of the victims of the Titanic disaster were pictured to the committee by Third Officer Herbert John Pitman of the sunken liner.

Chairman Smith pressed Pitman regarding scenes after the sinking of the ship.

"I heard no cries of distress until after the ship went down," he said.

"How far away were the cries from your lifeboat?"

"Several hundred yards, probably some of them. I told my men to pull toward the wreck that we might be able to save a few more. The people in my boat demurred. They said it would be a mad idea."

"Did any one in your boat urge or appeal to you to go back toward the wreck."

"No; not one."

All Passengers Objected.

"Did any woman urge you to go back?"

"No."

"Who demurred, the men with the oars?"

"Oh, no, they obeyed my orders, and all the passengers said it was a bad idea to go back; that we should add another forty to the list of drowned. Then we took in the oars and lay quiet."

When Pitman yielded to the importunities of the passengers he did not turn back to see, but merely pulled in his oars and drifted.

"Describe the screams."

"Don't, sir, please! I'd rather not talk about it."

"I'm sorry to press it, but what were the screams, intermittent or spasmodic?"

"It was one long continuous moan."

The witness said the moans and cries continued an hour and that he made no effort to go to the rescue.

"You drifted in the vicinity of the drowning people and made no effort to give them aid?" asked Senator Smith in surprise.

"Please, sir, don't!" pleaded Pitman. "I can't bear to recall it! I wish we might not discuss the scene."

"I have no desire to lacerate your feelings," said Senator Smith, "but we must know whether you drifted there without offering aid. Answer that and I shall press you no more."

"I did, sir," answered the witness.

BODY OF DOUGLASS FOUND

Minneapolis Victim of Titanic Disaster Recovered.

Minneapolis, April 24.—The family of Walter D. Douglass has been notified that Mr. Douglass' body had been recovered near the scene of the Titanic disaster.

Members of the family say the remains will be taken to Cedar Rapids, Ia., the old family home, for burial.

George C. Douglass, a son, and George R. Douglass of Cedar Rapids, Ia., a brother, have left to meet the steamship Mackay-Bennett when it arrives in Halifax with the bodies.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK

[illegible] in Eastern Ohio After Three Weeks' of Idleness.

Bridgeport, O., April 24.—Ten thousand coal miners in Eastern Ohio resumed work after being idle since April 1. Miners in Plum Run, Bradley and Piney Fork, where rules permitting pumpers and repair men to work pending the outcome of scale conference were alleged to have been violated, it is said, will be severely disciplined by the United Mine Workers.

Turkish General Dead.

London, April 24.—A special dispatch from Rome says an official report received there says Enver Bey, the most noted of all Turkish generals and the commandant of the advanced positions of the Turkish forces in Tripoli, is dead from gangrene as the result of a recent wound received in battle.

"My little son had a very severe cold. I was recommended to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and before a small bottle was finished he was as well as ever," writes Mrs. H. Silks 29 Wowling Street, Sydney, Australia. This is for sale by all Druggists

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a notice for a meeting to be held for the purpose of considering some hospital propositions. This is a worthy cause and we cannot too soon get together on this score. None of us, at the present time, have a right to feel that if we or members of our families were taken sick that they could not be given the best medical care and attendance. Sow up at the meeting and see that something is done.

COMING AMERICA HELD A RECENT PRIMARY

It took the combined strength of the Republican and Democratic delegates at a mock convention held late Wednesday by the debating society of East high school, Minneapolis, to beat Eugene V. Debs for the presidential nomination. On the final ballot La Follette got 301 and Debs 230 votes.

The first ballots resulted as follows: LaFollette 230; Debs 215; Wilson 75; Van Lear 7, and Taft 6. Roosevelt didn't get a vote.

The Socialist strength in the school was a distinct surprise, and was due to strenuous campaigning by Socialist students headed by Abe Sugarman. Irving Roth led LaFollette to victory. It is charged by the Socialists that girl delegates were influenced by his arguments, telling of the beauty of the Badger's pompadour, but this is denied by Roth. Underwood got the Democratic nomination by acclamation, following the bolt to LaFollette.—Minneapolis Daily News

Young Graves has Article on Socialism In "Masses."

A leading article in the current number of the Masses, the popular and growing magazine, is from the pen of John Temple Graves, Jr., son of the famous southern Democratic politician and now one of Hearst's editors

Like the grandson of President Eliot, who is waving the red flag in Harvard, young Graves is preaching Socialism in Princeton.

"Socialism is today an issue," says Graves. "In ten years it will be a dominant and absorbing issue. And as such it commands the study and tolerant criticism of every right minded man. It is no longer to be avoided as the creed of the bomb thrower or the Utopian dream of some wild eyed fanatic. Socialism today need not fear the tongues of logician nor the inquisitions of practical minds. In the perfecting processes of evolution it, too, has changed, and today, shorn of every shred of impracticability, its great original truths stand forth in the clear light of justice and equality. Let the young men study Socialism. School boys, college men, men of virility and ambition, look well ahead to the issues that will confront your entry into the world's great arena. Examine and overhaul Socialism and then reject and denounce it or take it and fight for it. Socialism is the theory of equal opportunity for all. It is the demand of the producer for the products of his toil."

WAS LINCOLN A PROPHET?

"It thirsts and burns for distinction; and, if possible, it will have it. Is it unreasonable, then, to expect that some men, possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push to the utmost stretch, will at some time spring up among us? And when such a one does, it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the government and laws, and generally intelligent, to successfully frustrate his design.

"Distinction will be his paramount object, and although he would as willingly acquire it by doing good as harm, yet nothing left in the way of building up he would sit down boldly to the task of pulling down. Here, then, is a probable case, highly dangerous."—From Mr. Lincoln's Speech Before the Young Men's Lyceum, Springfield, Ill.

gruff uncle from India, interpreted his part to perfection and made the hit of the evening. John Brudie and Oscar Evenson gave good suggestions on how to go about it to sow wild oats. Dagney Halseth's interpretation of the landlady's duties must have made many a young man wish it was thus with him. Claude Posten showed very nicely how a man should act who has a family. Myrtle Scovell acted the part of spiritualist, without smiling more than the part required. Even "Mutt" could not have played the part of an ambitious tailor any better than did Clarence Larson. Irene Chittick and Agnes Wilson were most pleasant surprises as innocent young women. Eugene Hance, as a servant, and Carl Gulrud, as a policeman, had little to do, but they did it well.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE

Every voter in Pennington county should be at the caucus that will be held in his township May (11) eleventh for the purpose of electing delegates to the County Convention to be held in the court house here May (13) thirteenth. May 11th is the beginning of the nomination of the republican candidate for president. It starts with the people, as it should, but if the people don't get out and vote they should abide by the decision made later on and keep quiet. Now is the time to find out where you are going to vote and whom you are going to vote for. There is a committeeman in your township whose business is to keep in touch with what is going on and furnish whatever information you desire.

ANDERSON-DAHL.

Anton Anderson and Hilda Dahl, both of Marshall county, were united in marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Krohn Wednesday, April 17. Both of the young people are well-known and well-liked here in the city. Mr. Anderson is employed as cook on one of the dredges.

A Card.

On account of failing health, I have been compelled to give up the tailoring business at present, that I have kept up here for the past eight years. And having rented my shop and outfit to Mr. Ernest P. Ahlborn, from Minneapolis, will hereby take liberty to present him to the public, as a fully competent tailor and cutter, who will and is perfectly able to turn out a first class job in the line of men's or ladies' suits. I have known Mr. Ahlborn for twenty years ever since he used to be the leading man in the large tailoring-firm of Westberg Brothers & Co., of Willmar, Minn., and am taking pride in recommending him to the public and my customers.

Yours truly,
O. L. Bakken.

SCHOOL NOTES

On March 22nd, the Thief River Falls schools were added to the list of Minnesota schools accredited to the colleges and universities of the middle west states. Accredited schools are those which, by reason of the standard of their work and the completeness of their equipment, are placed on an honor list and their graduates freely admitted without any restrictions to the educational institutions mentioned. This honor is enjoyed by but a limited number of Minnesota schools, and it is all the more gratifying in view of the fact that it came unsought by the local school.

Nearly three bushels of pedigreed seed corn were recently received by the department of agriculture of the high schools from the Crookston experimental station. It was guaranteed to germinate at least 80 percent, but a series of tests by Mr. Haskin developed the fact that not over 50 percent germinated satisfactorily. If this guaranteed seed from a reliable a source is almost valuless for seed purposes, the seed corn in the hands of neighboring farmers cannot be safe to plant. Mr. Haskin is anxious to test any corn brought him and to make a detailed statement of the result. He has the necessary equipment to do it properly and it will pay everyone to accept this free offer before seeding.

The local schools are under deep obligations to the city newspapers for the liberal treatment accorded their interests by the editors. The generous donation of weekly space for the SCHOOL NOTES, as well as the publicity granted every school activity, tend in large measure towards the success of educational movements in this city.

School gardens for each of the grade buildings will be organized and planted as soon as suitable grounds can be obtained. The children will be given all they raise and it is expected that parents will buy from their own children in preference to the regular traders. Various obvious reasons might be presented in favor of this movement, but space forbids. Later, particulars will be announced, and in the meantime, it is suggested that school patrons encourage this work.

In one of the Knox rooms, five children left school last week to accompany their parents to claims, and in another room, six pupils left during the same period on a like mission.

Among new arrivals this week is a family from Lisbon, New York state.

The comparative standings of the members of the graduating class were estimated last week. The result is that Martha Kleppe of Newfolden has won the honor of being valedictorian, while Myrtle Scovell of Middle River secures second place and will be the class salutatorian.

The following list comprises the students in the normal training department, all of whom will receive state certificates, entitling them to teach in the specially aided rural schools of the state: Olga Aos, post-graduate, Dagna Bakke, Mary Breese, Dagny Halseth, Hannah Halvorson, Annie Haugen, Alvina Jonas, Ella Kelly, Mabel Knutson, Inga Lee, Ruth Lee, Selma Lovas, Laura Moen, Anna Moengen, Gaya Olson, Florence Sallow, Anna Thompson, Alma Welo, Sena Welo, Arthur Alnes.

The senior class play, presented last Friday evening at the Auditorium, proved a decided success, both histrionically and financially. The make-up of the various characters was excellent and the play was put on without any hesitation or awkwardness on the part of the youthful players. The audience was delighted with the performance and declared the entertainment superior to the majority of the shows presented by traveling companies. The gross receipts amounted to $290, which will be used to purchase a suitable memorial for the class, and for necessary graduation expenses. Miss Goodwin, who trained the students for "The Private Secretary," deserves much praise for the skillful manner in which her proteges acquitted themselves.

Inquiry was made at the high school last week, to learn how many students desired to enroll in the normal training department next year. Twenty-six eligible students signified their intention of entering, fourteen of whom will be seniors. As the state sets twenty as the maxium enrollment, and even advises not more

BRAY

August Anderson, Dan Johnson, H. Hansen, A. C. and L. M. Olsen and F. Brown went out last Monday to see Mr. Peterman's breaking outfit, which seems to be the proper way to turn sod. Everybody was satisfied he had the real goods, one 40-63 horse power Pioneer gasoline engine, one J. I. Case eight-plow gang, 1912 model, also coal car, one 500 gal. oil tank, disks, harrows and drills. Mr. Peterman expects to break all of 11 and E½ of Sec. 2, and put it into flax.

The Judicial Ditch crew surveyors have pitched their tent near Emil Larson.

SANDERS

Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Sevre arrived last Monday from Colorado Springs, Colorado, where they spent the winter for the good of Mrs. Sevre's health. The stay did not prove quite as beneficial as expected. Mr. Sevre wants to buy at least one extra good team of heavy drafters, also wants to hire about 100 acres of timber grubbed this summer.

A big prairie fire went thru section six and seven last Monday, burning some hay for S. Thoreson.

Mrs. A.K. Lockrem went to Crookston last week to see the doctor.

MR. AND MRS. KARL KORSTAD ARRIVED WEDNESDAY MORNING

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Korstad arrived Wednesday morning from their honeymoon trip, without even telling their friends they were coming so that they could be at the train to meet them and tender a hearty reception. Karl was no doubt so absorbed in other things that he can be forgiven for neglecting this important matter. The newlyweds left on the morning of their arrival for the groom's claim near Highlanding.

Korstad—Godward

Karl Korstad and Ruth Godward were married in the Presbyterian church at Elbow Lake Thursday April 18 at 10 o'clock in the morning, Rev. Sharpless of Fergus Falls performing the ceremony. After the ceremony they, together with near friends and relatives repaired to the brides home, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. At 12:30 o'clock the happy couple left for the Twin City and other points on a short honeymoon trip, arriving here Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Korstad are very well known here and have a host of true friends who wish them the fullest measure of happiness and success. Karl is a jolly good fellow and a very intelligent young business man, having made a decided success in various business ventures. Mrs. Korstad is very cultured and a most pleasing young lady to meet. She is an accomplished musician and possesses the many qualities that go towards making life more worth the living.

The Misses Maude and Flossie Wright, who have been playing and singing at the Lyceum theatre for over a week, have made a decided hit with patrons of the Lyceum, as is shown by the generous applause they receive throughout the performances.

W. S. CAMPBELL IS MAKING GOOD

W. S. Campbell, manager of the Northern Cigar Company's factory located in the A. C. Hanson building on 2d-st, is making good in the manufacture of their new sigar, called El Ciro. There is already an extensive sale of the El Ciro locally and its sale is rapidly being extended to outside territory. The Northern Cigar Company has made the Hanson building into an attractive and sanitary factory. By the time summer is under way they expect to have the El Ciro well established and a large working force employed to care of the increasing demand for their goods.

LESLIE AND MYRA DIETZ

At the Lyceum Next Wednesday

Leslie and Myra Dietz, showing and lecturing upon the Cameron-dam pictures, will be at the Lyceum next Wednesday, May 1st. The Dietz people are using this means to raise money for the defense of their father, it is understood. Considering the intense public interest taken in the defense of Cameron-dam, there is no doubt that the pictures and the presence of the children themselves will draw a packed house Wednesday evening.

"A THOUSAND YEARS IN HELL"

A Chapter From a Book of That Name Written by a Local Author.

Author's Note:—Due to the fact that we have had a considerable number of inquiries in regard to the nature of this book, for the benefit of the querlious the writer wishes to submit to the public, the following extract from one of the chapters of the book, "A THOUSAND YEARS IN HELL."—By E. C. Schinderling, of Thief River Falls.

The Destiny of Man.

Perhaps it is because of the mistaken view of the import of modern science that the Chruch has so often and so bitterly opposed the teaching of such truths as science has brought before us.

With the advent of the Copernician Astronomy the funnel shaped Inferno, the steep mountain of Purgatory crowned with its terrestrial paradise and those concentric spheres of Heaven wherein beautified saints held weird and subtle conversa, all went their way to the limbo prepared for the childlike fancies of untaught minds whither Hades and Valhalla had gone before them.

As with the Copernician Astronomy so with the Darwinian biology we rise to a higher view of the working of God and of the nature of Man than was ever attainable before. So far from degrading humanity or putting it on a level with the animal world in general, the Darwinian theory shows us distinctly for the first time how the Creation and perfection of Man is the goal which Nature's work has been tending. It enlarges twofold the significance of human life and places it upon a loftier emminence than ever prophets have imagined and makes it seem more than ever the chief object of that creative activity which is manifest in the physical Universe.

The three ways in which great political bodies have arisen namely, conquest without incorporation; conquest with incorporation, and that of federation and this principle of federation whereby questions between states and nations are settled by due process of law, and must in the end reign supreme over all the earth, thus will come the end of Natural Selection upon, by throwing off the Brute inheritance being consumated by the message of Christianity.

The question as to a future life must ever remain an affair of religion rather than of science for science lacks the requisite data likely to ever make the immorality of the soul, a matter of scientific demontsration; however, she puts the expression of a trust in God, that he will not put us to permanent intellectual confusion.

May we not take the entire world of human thought as a revelation of the real divine wisdom, each bible, each philosophy, standing for its particular type in the Universe of revelation? If so, the only entire revelation is the whole truth.

One type is that of the orthodoxic believer who holds the old Adamic theory of man's fall, who, therefore, put the cause of sin far back in the past, locates heaven far in the future, puts God on a distant throne, believes in a vicarious atonement, and thus shirks the whole responsibility of the problem of belief about life acquired by inheritance and education.

Is the finite mind in any and all modes now acting according to law which when better understood will be our salavation from error, sin, and disease? Are we not missing the greatest power in the Universe;—that of consciousness, that the mind is that point around which impressions gather? Selfcontrol is perhaps a most pratical law of the human mind. It is the total self we aim to master, the phenomena of sleep and dream and the hidden self that never sleeps—Concentrate upon the ideal then await its subconscious realization.

Life for us is so much like the mood in which we observe it. Complexity is the organized whole;—for, in the last anayalses, as we have seen thruout of mental activity, everything reduces itself to the centre of consciousness which we find when we look within; the aspiring ego, or soul whose aspirations are intelligible only on the hypothesis that they spring from a Being of superior wisdom and will.

That we strive to know Him in the rock, in the flower, in the annual, in the Soul—is not this the meaning of our entire mental life, is it not the essence of the will?

We must turn elsewhere than to psychology if we are to consider the unity, individuality and continuity of self, for

"A man convinced against his will
Is of the same opinion still."

The soul is a part of God who draws the great world pictures thru us, his centres of activity. Whatever is known of it as active or, as mind, as deeds done, emotions felt, and as studied psychologically is only so much as phenomena may manestarily reveal.

But the philosophy of six thousand years has not searched the chambers and magazines of the soul. Ever onward and upward. There is perpetual becoming, compelling us to revise and enlarge our statements and systems of thought. Resident in the becoming is the remaining; admist the changeable, the unchangeable abides. The two are different, yet the one is complete through the other, and in their association lies the totality, the meaning of life. Inevitable it is that the two should seem disparate in thought. But that thot is not all, that feeling is somewhat more, that interest, or choice, and activity lies back of both and hence point to a permanent Being which knows all finite interests in one absolute cognition, are conclusions to which the mind is led, if it thus takes cognizance of the whole;—and just because it can thus transcend the limitations, alike, of feeling and of thought, of time and of space, is the Ultimate reason for saying that man has a soul—that man is a soul—whose final disposition is ushered into the realm of immortality through the portals of a physical death.

FIRST TOUR TO THIEF RIVER FALLS

Crookston Automobile Club Will Take First Run To This City About May 1.

Dr. Morley, chairman of the touring committee of the Crookston Automobile club, announces that the club has decided to make the first run of the season to Thief River Falls about May 1st, the exact date not having been set.

Stops will be made at St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls and the return trip may be made via a portion of the old Pembina trail, but the exact route will not be announced until the return of a scout automobile which will report on the condition of the various roads and which is the most advisable route to take.

The Crookston Automobile club will make several tours this year, and every one of them will attract a big following. There will be no objections this year on the speed question as all speeding will be eliminated, and a pace set at no time that will be dangerous or that will bother anyone to hold their place in the line. —Crookston Times.

CITIES ARE CLEANING UP

To-day Is Clean-up Day For Us. What Is Being Done Other Places.

"We are now preparing a brief bulletin, which will soon be ready for distribution, containing advice as to the best methods of procedure in the clean-up movement. For one thing a clean-up week be directed by a local civic association of the community, or commercial organization, and that all the interests of the community be joined in co-operation. It suggests that a form of proclamation be issued by the mayor declaring a day or week for a clean-up, and coupled with the proclamation a hearty endorsement by the local health officer. In cities where the municipal facilities for carting away debris are insufficient or lacking, it is urged that wagons be secured from business men. The Association is continually distributing literature, which is helpful in the various civic improvement activities. One of our most recent publications tells how Denver solved the street waste problem.

"Do you recall any one city or town where a plan has been outlined for a spring clean-up and can you tell me something of that plan?"

"Yes. Here is a letter I have just received from the civic association at Kirksville, Mo., a town of a few thousand, where the civic improvement fever has apparently got control of the entire citizenship. I will quote from the letter: 'The first week in May we have set apart as Clean-up Week.' I have asked every minister to give us "Civic Sermons" on Sunday, May 5, and I have asked the mayor to issue a proclamation and urge all loyal citizens to assist in putting our town shipshape. The teachers are going to teach the children songs to the tune of "Yanky Doodle" and "Baby Mine." The band master will teach them to the band boys and when we have band concerts, we will have a regular civic jubilee. I have asked the 5 and 10 cent picture shows to run appropriate slides and pictures that week, showing conditions before and after. The newspapers will be on hand with clippings from our bulletin that refer to the town's good and improvement. One of our largest clothing merchants is going to give away "Fly Swatters" during the week as souvenirs and urge the people to kill the first flies that come."

"What are the benefits following a season of genuine clean-up?"

"They are countless. The dirty places cleared away very naturally suggest the planting of flowers and shrubs, and in some places vegetables. In scores of cities contests have been started, participated in by the children. Seeds are given them to plant and they spend the summer getting the best results. In the fall the children are awarded prizes by the local civic association according to the merits of the respective gardens. From a similiar clean-up day there have resulted movements of very large proportions involving the development of parks and playgrounds and the encouraging of wise planting and care of trees. The American Civic Association favors the clean-up day or week as the beginning of a larger and more important work which will contribute to make beautiful surroundings."

"Have you many affiliated organizations in Minnesota?"

"There are several in St. Paul and Minneapolis. Outside of the Twin Cities, I recall the Civic Improvement League of Austin, the Town Improvement Association of Fergus Falls, the Civic Improvement League of Mankato, the Civic League of Rochester and the Civic Committee of the Woman's Literary Club of St. Peter. These are all affiliated with our organization. Incidentally, I might mention that the Civic League of Rochester has just written us that it is about to begin a campaign against flies and has asked for help along this line. We are sending this association our fly fighting material. The slogan this year will be 'Kill the flies and save lives'".

"In Minneapolis, Leroy J. Boughner, is doing much to promote vacant lot gardening. His work in this connection is widely known. His address before the last annual convention on Vacant Lot Gardens is now published in pamphlet form. It is one of the most popular of the association's publications. Miss Maud Van Buren, of Mankato, president of the Civic Improvement League, I consider one of our most effective civic workers. Her work with the juniors has attracted wide attention. Red Wing has a fine public square which was extensively advertised the past year in our picture talks. St. Peter has been doing fine work in improving her river front. These are but a few instances as showing the general interest communities in Minnesota are taking in making their surroundings attractive and beautiful."

SCENE OF AWFUL HORROR AT FEZ

Massacre of French Told by Correspondents.

GOVERNMENT IS CRITICISED

Newspapers of Paris Inclined to Believe That the Occurrence Might Have Been Foreseen and Prevented. Arabian Women Accused of Brutally Torturing the Wounded.

Paris, April 24.—The massacre at Fez, in which a large number of French officers, soldiers and citizens were killed and wounded, has given rise to considerable criticism of the government authorities for not foreseeing and preventing the occurrence. It is pointed out by the newspapers that the French troops occupied the Moroccan capital more than a year ago.

Premier Poincaire telegraphed to Eugene Regnault, the French minister, to make a complete investigation of the outbreak.

The special correspondents of the French newspapers at Fez indicate that the plot of the rebels included the massacre of the whole of the French mission, headed by M. Regnault, which recently arrived at the capital to establish the protectorate. This plan failed owing to the impatience of the Arabian women to begin the carnage.

Women Tortured Wounded.

These women are described by the correspondents as creatures of terrifying appearance, who passed their time in rushing about the streets and torturing the wounded and sometimes aiding the Moorish rebels in the final mutilation and desecration of the victims.

Scenes of awful horror occurred in the Jewish quarter of the city, where the mob murdered, pillaged and burned all the Jews they could find, throwing their bodies from the roofs. Many young girls were carried off to suffer indescribable outrages.

The Jewish quarter was set on fire and three-fourths of it entirely destroyed, rendering over 1,000 people homeless.

Fears are expressed in Paris that similar outbreaks may occur in other parts of Morocco.

HITS EXPRESS MONOPOLY

Bill Would Make Roads Accept Parcels on Fast Trains.

Washington, April 24.—Representative E. W. Martin of South Dakota has introduced a bill in the house which would deprive the express companies of their exclusive right to transport freight on fast trains.

The bill would compel all railroad companies to carry cars on passenger trains and accept for transportation all parcels and packages.

The rates would be subject to the review of the interstate commerce commission. The bill would enjoin the railroad companies from discriminating in favor of any express company. It was referred to the interstate commerce committee.

NOW UP TO THE RAILROADS

Mediation Offer Accepted by Eastern Engineers.

New York, April 24.—The offer of mediation from Charles P. Neill, United States labor commissioner, and Judge Martin A. Knapp of the United States commerce court, which was accepted by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers just after they had declared for a strike as the next move in their campaign for increased wages, came formally before the conference committee of railway managers.

That the eleventh hour proffer of mediation by officials of the United States government will also be accepted by the railroads is the general belief.

SEARCH FOR ASTOR'S BODY

Estate Will Spend $1,000,000 to Recover Remains.

New York, April 24.—Vincent Astor has admitted for the first time since the sinking of the Titanic that he has lost all hope of seeing his father alive.

The size of the reward for the discovery of the body of Colonel Astor by outsiders may be guessed at from the announcement that the Astor estate will spend a million dollars in an effort to find it. The managers of the estate have been in consultation with marine engineers, and have retained several to go with an expedition to the scene of the wreck.

SEVEN DEAD AT KANKAKEE

Reports Show Damage of $500,000 Was Done by Tornado.

Kankakee, Ill., April 24.—Damage amounting to $500,000 resulted from Sunday evening's storm in this section of Illinois. Reports from Grant Park show that forty-four residences and buildings were demolished there.

SHOPMEN ASK FOR MEDIATION

Threaten General Strike if Demand Is Ignored.

SEND MESSAGE TO TAFT

President Informed of Organization of Monster Federation of Railway Employes and of the Intention to Call Out 300,000 Members Unless Present Trouble Is Satisfactorily Adjusted.

Kansas City, April 24.—Declaring that unless the trouble of the railway carmen, who have been on strike on the Harriman lines and the Illinois Central for several months, is mediated a strike of more than 300,000 men employed on all Western railroads would be called, the officers of the Federation of Federations, an organization of railway crafts formed here, sent a telegram to President Taft advising him of their intentions.

The message was signed by the presidents of eight unions. The telegram follows:

"Convention of Federated Railway Employes, representing all roads west and south of Chicago, now in session at Kansas City, having under consideration the Harriman lines and Illinois Central strike, have decided to extend or to make preparation to extend the strike over all Western railways unless a settlement of an honorable character can be secured.

"Permit us to refer you to recent correspondence on this strike in which it was pointed out to you the great loss to business interests, the tremendous loss of life and the delay to the United States mail.

Defend Position Taken.

"The men are determined and when it is taken into consideration that these other roads affiliated with the General Managers' association are assisting the Harriman lines and the Illinois Central they cannot be blamed for the action contemplated.

"The seriousness of this matter can be measured by the effect of the one now in progress. Boiler explosions are becoming more frequent and the nonenforcement of the safety appliance law is endangering public safety."

The telegram was signed by the executive heads of these unions: Blacksmiths and helpers, boilermakers and helpers, railway carmen, steamfitters and helpers, sheet metal workers, Federal Labor union, Brotherhood of Painters, machinists and helpers and railway clerks.

The strike, if called, would affect forty-seven railroads west and south of Chicago. Unless a favorable reply is received from the president action will be taken at once, the officials of the federation say.

CAMPBELL FLAYS ROOSEVELT

Kansan Makes Spirited Attack on Former President.

Washington, April 24.—In the house Representative Philip P. Campbell of Kansas, Republican, made a spirited personal attack on Colonel Roosevelt. He declared the colonel had been going about the country for three weeks flaying him (Campbell) before the American public, because he had likened Colonel Roosevelt's recall of judicial decisions to an "appeal to the bleachers from the decision of the umpire."

"Colonel Roosevelt has been holding himself up to the people as the paragon of political virtue," said Mr. Campbell. "He has assailed every man who ventured to disagree with him on any question. He brands every man as an infamous scoundrel whom he cannot lash into agreeing with him."

WOMAN TRIED FOR MURDER

Mrs. Weideman, Independence, Wis., Charged With Killing Husband.

La Crosse, Wis., April 24.—Between moans and sobs, Mrs. Charles Weideman, aged sixty-five, charged with the murder of her sixty-seven-year-old husband, listened to the evidence which may mean the ending of her life within prison walls, at Independence, Wis.

Sam Cook, a member of the inquest jury, testified to finding a dress and apron stained with blood in an unused stove in the attic of the home.

A $2,000 life insurance policy, payable to his wife, is advanced as the motive by the prosecution.

Senate Favors an Appeal.

Washington, April 24.—Without a roll call the senate passed the Cummins bill instructing Attorney General Wickersham to appeal from the action of the superior court in its disintegration of the tobacco trust. To become a law the bill must be passed by the house.

Two Montana Miners Killed.

Butte, Mont., April 24.—Dave Fireman was killed at the St. Laurence mine by fall of ground and John Girando lost his life at the Mountain Consolidated mine by the jarring loose of a mass of ore in a chute, which carried him down with it.

than fifteen, it is evident that a second department must be organized to accommodate the students; in fact, it is probable when school opens next September, that the nonresident pupils entitled to enroll will compel the establishment of a third department. This possibility has been presented to the state authorities and they admit, that as Thief River Falls necessarily supplies high school facilities for a large territory lacking high schools, that the work of all the departments organized will be recognized and the state aid of $750 for each department made available. This aid practically pays the expense of conducting the training department through the year.

What boy does not grin with delight when called upon to drive to the railway station and bring father home to the bosom of his family? Such a grin adorns the features of Robert M. La Follette, Jr., in this picture. He has harnessed the roadster to the trap and is about to meet the senator from Wisconsin, now a presidential possibility, at the train as the latter comes from the nation's capital. Bob La Follette, Jr., is a husky, robust boy, brimming over with spirits and enthusiasm.

Co-operation Credit Ass'ns. and Banks.

The use of borrowed capital is general in all the great lines of business, commercial and manufacturing, carried on in the United States. By it merchants and manufacturers are able to multiply, many times over, the number and magnitude of the transactoins to which they would be confined did they endeavor to do business on their own capital exclusively—that is, without borrowing. The railroads afford an even more conspicuous example of great wealth accumulated by the use of borrowed means.

That the temporary use of borrowed money may often be of as great advantage to the farmer as to the merchant goes without saying. It is often, to the farmer, not merely an advantage but a necessity, if he would make any progress whatever. And as the farmer becomes more and more a "business man"—keeping accounts with his various undertakings as well as with the men to whom he sells his crops, and so acquiring the ability to see just when and where money may be spent on his land so as to bring the largest returns—it becomes of the highest importance that he should be able to borrow at the times and in the amounts he may temporarily need, just as any other business man does, and without the necessity of mortgaging his farm every time he borrows.

Under present conditions such borrowing is practicable only in the case of a few individuals, and even these are obliged to pay very much higher rates of interest than are current in the transactions of city men. The consequence is that the farming business lacks the stimulus that would be afforded by the use of ampler means, and opportunity after opportunity goes by unimproved because the farmer hasn't the money o improve it.

In our cities, finance and business work "hand in glove"—that is, in practical co-operation for mutual advancement. That they are organized while rural interests are unorganized, accounts largely for the fact that most of the "great successes" in a material way, are achieved in the cities.

It was the existence of a similar state of affairs among the farmers and small industrialists of Germany, no further back than 1890, that led to a great expansion of the Raiffeisen system of co-operative credit and banking associations; an expansion which has continued until to-day there are in Germany alone approximately 15,600 such associations, the total amount of whose loans to the farmers of that country—all without any mortgages whatever—now reaches over $1,600,000,000 a year. The rate of interest in no case exceeds 5 per cent.

These results have been reached, it is claimed, with practically no losses either to borrowers or lenders, through the adoption of two simple ideas:

1. The combined character and assets of all the members of an association are behind every application for a loan.

2. Character, and the productive use of the money borrowed, are the basis of every credit; the motto being: "Credit for consumption is the road to poverty; credit for production the road to well-being." No man, however wealthy, may borrow association funds for the purpose of speculation or extravagance.

It would be interesting to know, were the figures obtainable, how the amount of money our American farmers have been able to borrow at 5 per cent. without a mortgage, in any year, compares with the billion and a half or more so borrowed by German farmers!

Attempts are already being made to introduce the Raiffeisen system in America. As known in Germany it involves the organization of a bank—usually a savings bank—through which the money needed by the members, when such amount is in excess of their share-capital, reserve and deposits, is borrowed of the great financial institutions at a very low rate. The difference between the rate paid on such loans and deposits, and the 5 per cent charged the members pays the expenses of the bank.

That the plan will be welcomed in America, as soon as it is generally understood among our farmers and they can "get together" on the question, there is little doubt. The question is, however, whether the existing banks of the country may not wisely take charge of the movement themselves, promote the organization of a "Co-Operative Credit Association" in every rural community, and do its business on the same terms that the German association gives its members. The financial knowledge and ability of our bankers would thus be made available for our farmers, and the bankers themselves would escape a competition which they will no doubt prefer to avoid.

Riding is a pursuit daily indulged in by the members of Senator Robert M. La Follette's family, each one of whom has a saddle horse or pony of his own. A picture is shown the readers of this paper, of Phil. the senator's son, Anson Thomas, a cousin, and Mrs. La Follette, side saddle, about to start for a morning canter.

HOW DISCRIMINATION RATES HIT THE FARMERS IN MINNESOTA

Discrimination Reminder No. 41.—

We were talking with a farmer the other day about the matter of discriminatory railroad rates in Minnesota. He deplored the injustice of charging one man more for the same service than another man was charged, but rather thought the matter did not affect him particularly.

The farmer had just sold four head of cattle to a local shipper who ships to South St. Paul.

This shipper pays 13 cents per hundred plus a $2.50 switching charge at St. Paul to have these cattle transported to market. The distance is 137 miles.

The South St. Paul commission men can slip these same cattle to Chicago, a distance of 411 miles for 15 cents per hundred straight.

The price of cattle in Long Prairie is of course determined in part on what it costs to transport them to the South St. Paul market. So it is that the farmers in and around Long Prairie pay practically as much to have a car of stock shipped to their market as the big city commission men pay to ship more than three times as far to their particular market.

Why this discrimination?

If 15 cents per hundred is a fair price to charge to haul cattle from South St. Paul to Chicago (and it is reasonable to suppose the railroad is not losing money on the haul), the Long Prairie-South St. Paul rate is three times as high as it ought to be.

Is this costing the farmers of this locality anything?

What do you think it amounts to in one year?

Discriminatory rates eat at the vitals of all rural prosperity and every citizen is affected.

These same conditions will be found to apply to every rural community in the state. If only the local papers throughout the state would take up the matter, the condition would last just long enough for the legislature to convene.—Long Prairie Leader.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Advising the Farmer to Become a Better Business Man.

About Smoking Meats.

Smoking meat is an old and ancient custom that has been in vogue for centuries, and has probably undergone as slight a change as any branch of the meat industry. The object of smoking meat is to preserve it for summer use, and at the same time add the flavor which is so desirable. It also makes the meat more palatable, consequently greatly improving its usefulness.

Many artificial methods of flavoring have been recommended, and materials sold on the market, but none have been discovered that are as satisfactory as smoking with a proper fuel. After the meat has been in brine for a period of six or seven weeks, it is ready to be smoked. After taking it from the brine, all pieces should be soaked in water at about 55 to 65 degrees F. Keep the meat in the water for about five or six hours. The object of this soaking is to remove all the salt from the surface; which, if left on the meat, forms a crust and is very objectionable after smoking. After soaking, allow the meat to drip before hanging in the smoke-house.

A desirable smoke-house is one built of brick or cement; but it may be built of any material. For farm use, a convenient size is one that is about 6x8 or 8x10, and about 10 feet high. Ventilation should be provided, so that the smoke may escape from the house. Some people conceive the idea that all smoke should be held in the house and not allowed to escape; but when such is the case it becomes stale and does not impart to the meat as good a flavor as when it is allowed to pass from the smokehouse after coming in contact with the meat.

In hanging the meat in the smokehouse, no two pieces should be allowed to touch, as it means uneven smoking. The meat should be hung as high as possible, so as not to be too near the fire.

The best fuel to use is hard wood such as hickory, maple or any good hard wood, or sawdust. Soft woods should be avoided, as they give off considerable carbon, which forms an undesirable coating on the outside of the meat. In case the hard wood cannot be had, the best thing to use is good clean corncobs. The fire should never be more than enough to produce a continuous smudge, so as not to give off too much heat.

A light, continuous smoke should be started under the meat, and kept up for a period of from 36 to 48 hours. This is long enough to smoke meat if the fire is not allowed to die down. Meat, when properly smoked, should be of a light straw brown or amber color.—W. H. Tomhave, Extension division, Minnesota College of Agriculure.

HOW MUCH MONEY HAVE YOU MADE?

A Question Which the Farmer Should be able to Answer.

There is one question that always comes into one's mind after the year has closed, and that is, "How much money have I?" How many times have you heard a neighbor ask his fellow-neighbor, "well, Brown, how did you come out this year?" Brown very likely turns to his check-book or to his pocket, and tells the neighbor how much he has made. Surely this is all right, for he has paid all of his bills and he has so much money left. But the business farmer often says, "I don't see how one can farm and not know what enterprise is paying him most."

On nearly all farms there are several enterprises or "departments." Such a farm is a great deal like a department-store. No one believes that the manager of a department-store would for a minute allow a department to exist unless it paid its own expenses and a litlte profit. Why shouldn't the farmer use the same methods as the merchants? His business is devided into departments; as, for instance, a department each for horses, cows, young stock, swine, poultry, grain, hay, corn, pasture, machinery, labor, household, and miscellaneous. Did you ever ask a merchant how much he made on his laces? If so, you would have noticed that the first thing he did was to turn to a book and look for the word "Balance." If that came on the debit side he knew at once what the profit was. So it should be with every farmer. Farming is a business, and should be treated as a business. Then, when Brown was asked how he came out that year, he should have been able to turn to his books and say to his neighbor, "My cows made so much money for me during the year; my grain netted me so much profit; and I can give you the other items if you so desire."

On the other hand, suppose a farmer found that he had lost money during the year. I wonder if he could tell what caused that loss. His grain enterprise may have paid well, but his cows may have "eaten their heads off," and used up all the profit from the grain, and more; so that there was a loss at the end of the year. Now, how could the farmer tell that his cows were losing? Why, by spending a few minutes each night, he might have kept a record of each cow, and would have known that such and such a cow was not paying; or, in other words, he could have known at once which enterprise was not paying him.

The actual time spent in keeping accurate records of every department on a farm is not great. The time spent in this way, on some of the largest farms, does not exceed an hour a day. If the farmer is to become a strict business man, he must know how to keep accurate records of his whole business by enterprises or departments.—Leon H. Robbins, College of Agriculture.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Nearly every European country today is teaching the nature and effect of narotics in her schools. It will not cease to be a part of the regular teaching of the schools of the United States. Therefore, every city should take hold of this subject in a practical way and that Sunday means a suitable preparation of teachers, and the placing of proper text-books on the subject in all schools.

Some teachers may say: "When the parents use alcoholic liquor, how can I teach the truth to the child?"

If the matter is carefully considered the teacher will see that the fact of the parents having unhygienic habits does not interfere with the teaching of the truth concerning them. In some homes of the children the windows are closed and even stopped up wiht cotton during the winter months, but that does not interfere with the teaching that fresh air is required in all sleeping rooms and that to avoid disease we must all have fresh air both day and night. Bedding and clothing are not aired in some homes but the children must be taught the necessity of this. A very poor food may be used, the child must be taught the valuable kind to use. Indeed the child must be taught all food values, and the poorer the home, and the more improper the food ,the greater must be the emphasis laid upon teaching this particular child.

That the conservation of public health is the most important kind of conservation would be admitted today by any thoughtful person.

Over one-half of the human race die of preventable diseases. It is only through the education of the children that public health can be protected. And every child should be taught the evils of alcohol, tobacco and other narotics.

SAGMOE—FURAN WEDDING

The ceremony which bound Miss Emma Furan and Mr. Peter Sagmoe together to wander as one on life's voyage was witnessed by a large crowd of relatives and friends at the Norwegian Lutheran church, Wednesday, April 17th.

The wedding march was played by Mr. Herman Hagen to the step of which marched Miss Marie Holland, Miss Emma Furan, Mr. Bernt Furan and Mr. Martin Furan, bridesmaids and best men. They were followed by the groom, then the bride followed being escorted by her father, J. J. Furan, to the altar, who presented her to the groom.

After a beautiful and impressive sermon by the pastor, Rev. Kvalin, of Slayton, they all went to the home of the bride's parents where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to about a hundred guests.

The kindnesses and entertainments displayed at the Furan home were so royal that many stayed until the wee hours of the morning.

The bride was attired in white silk and the groom attired in the customary black.

The newly wedded couple were recepients of many beautiful gifts showing the esteem in which they are held.

The bride is one of Lake Sarah's most prominent young ladies and the groom is an exemplary young man.

The Leader extends congratulations and wishes them a happy life's journey together.—Garvin Leader.

A FLY CATECHISM

1. Where is the Fly born? In manure and filth.
2. Where does the Fly live? In every kind of filth.
3. Is anything too filthy for the Fly to eat? No.
4. (a) Where does he go when he leaves the vault and manure pile and the spittoon? In the kitchen and dining room. (b) What does he do there? He walks on the bread, fruit and the vegetables, he wipes his feet on the butter and bathes in the milk.
5. Does the Fly visit the patient sick with consumption, typhoid fever, and the cholera infantum? He does—and may call on you next.
6. Is the Fly dangerous? He is man's worst pest and more dangerous than wild beasts or rattlesnakes.
7. What diseases does the Fly carry? He carries typhoid fever, tuberculosis and summer complaint. How? On his wings and hairy feet. What is his correct name? Typhoid Fly.
8. Did he ever kill anyone? He killed more American soldiers in the Spanish-American war than the bullets of the Spaniards.
9. Where are the greatest number of cases of typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaint? Where there are the most flies.
10. Where are the most flies? Where there is most filth.
11. Why should we kill the Fly? Because he may kill us.

NEW SOLUM NEWS

We are certainly having fine weather for seeding this spring.

Mr. C. Rud, of Viking was seen up here last Friday and Saturday, surveying for the new Telephone line.

Mrs. L. Tomson and Miss Emma Sjolsvold visited with their brother, John of the town of Norden last Sunday.

Messrs. John and Albert Sjolsvold and Joseph Olby took in the ball game at Viking last Sunday.

Messrs. Sturlund and Pederson who have been drilling wells in this neighborhood left for Viking last Saturday, after a successful job at O. Dal's place, striking a good flow at a depth of sixty feet.

"We are sorry, but we coulden't help it," is what you hear among the White Socks this week.

Mrs. O. P. Johnson of Viking is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Sewalson this week.

Iver Krogstad shipped a fine Holstein bull calf to Olso last Thursday.

Bennie and Oscar Ranum left for Warren Thursday morning.

Mr. Olof Eide is doing the seeding for Paul Erickson.

Mr. Iver Finseth and daughter, Ada of Olso spent a few days at I. Krogstad's last week.

The New Solum band of White Sox journeyed down to Viking last Sunday to cross bats with the speed boys (or better known as champs) at the Telephone pole ball park. The game looked like a tie until the fifth round when the Sox were given the signal to start the fireworks; from then on it was a one sided affair. The fray ended with the score standing 24 to 5 against the champs. Batteries Viking. Herron and Hage catcher and Gustafson. N. S. Krogstad and Sewalson. As to the umpire we can only say that he deserves credit for the way in which he handied any disputes that happened to arise.

WILL ASSIST HOME SEEKERS

Representatives of Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Pennington Counties Organize Ass'n.

One of the most important moves toward advertising properly the Red River Valley, as well as encouraging immigration, was taken last Thursday, when representative men of four counties organized the Scandia Farm Home Association at Warren.

These men, thinking that "the bread basket of the world" was not getting its just share of actual settlers, took steps to find a remedy and formed a land corporaton. The articles of incorporation already are on the way to the secretary of state, and the business of the association has begun with a vigorous advertising campaign, which will extend thru Iowa, Illinois and the Eastern states.

The incorporators and other supporters of the association feel that more actual settlers can be had in the Red River Valley in a comparatvely short time. At the meeting statistics were produced to show that many home-seekers have arrived in this section of the state, but that they have been compelled to leave on account of inability to meet rather difficult conditions in their contracts with land agents.

This association does not intend to compete with any land agency doing business on a fair basis, but will, rather, assist in getting settlers located permanently. The association, thru its representatives in every community in this section of the Valley, will list only lands with a future, thus insuring prospective settlers' that they have sufficient inducement for coming to this territory.

The farmers and business men join in this move, as may be seen from the list of directors. Branch agencies will be established in every locality wishing to co-operate, and the association has been able to formulate a plan whereby there will be no discrimination in regard to the various communities. DAVIS VOCATIONAL EDUCATIONAL BILL

Appropriates $10,000,000 For Assisting States In Practical Training of Boys and Girls

By S. M. Ladd.

Washington, D. C., May 3.—The Davis vocational education bill, the measure which Congressman Davis of Minnesota has stood sponsor for since 1907, the date of its first introduction in Congress, is again in the limelight, and the friends of this proposed legislation are exerting every effort to secure favorable action at this session of Congress. Within the past few days hearings on this legislation have been held before the House committee on agriculture. One obstacle looms up big, which may mean the temporary defeat of the bill. That obstacle is the policy of economy which the Democrats are following when it comes to appropriating government money. The Davis bill appropriates some $10,000,000 for the avowed purpose of assisting the States in promoting practical training for boys and girls,—about the price of a battle-ship. The House Democrats shy at the $10,000,000, and while they know the bill is popular in the South as well as in the North, they have the economy bug, and, at the present time, at least, economy is their guardian angel.

Just to let the people know that they are interested in one phase of this proposed legislation, one Congressman Lever, of South Carolina, a Democrat and a member of the committee on agriculture which has this matter in charge, introduced a bill appropriating money for field demonstration work. This measure was especially designed for the South where

HOSPITAL WILL BE BUILT

Committee Appointed to Solicit Funds For Construction of Peoples' Hospital.

A very well attended mass-meeting was held at the Auditorium on Tuesday evening for the purpose of considering the proposition of building a hospital. Mayor Lars Backe was elected chairman of the meeting and Prof. J. H. Hay secretary.

Opinions of various men presented were heard. All expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the erection of a hospital and the only variance of opinion was with regard to methods of proceedure and ultimate ownership and control.

It was finally decided to appoint a committee to proceed with a stock plan for the purpose of raising funds for the erection of a Peoples Hospital. The committee named was Lars Backe, J. H. Hay, W. B. Fuller, Daniel Shaw and Dr. A. W. Swedenburg.

This committee was vested with authority to appoint sub-committees for the purpose of canvassing the different wards of the city as well as township committees to find what could be done thruout the different townships of the county.

After due deliberation the meeting adjourned to meet again three weeks from that date. Thus the next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening May 21st.

Now it is up to each one to consider the matter carefully and earnestly and be prepared to say just what he or she will give toward this most worthy cause. The solicitors will call on you in the near future and in as much as this is your cause you should receive them with courtesy and not send them away without encouragement.

JEANNE TOWLER IN "THE WHITE SISTER'

Great Actress Will Appear Here In Romantic Drama Next Wednesday Evening.

Theatergoers of Thief River Falls will have an excellent demonstration Jeanne Towler's versatility, when they observe her characterization of the Nun in "The White Sister" in which she will appear at the Auditorium on Wednesday night May 8th, accompanied by one of the greatest supporting companies ever organized. Miss Towler has succeeded in winning for herself a name to be envied and proof of this assertion is quickly forthcoming as soon as announcement of her engagement is heralded from any theatre in the country. But those who have followed her remarkable career will have a pleasant surprise when they see her, in her latest F. Marion Crawford play. In this romantic drama Miss Towler assumes the character of a sister who believing her lover to have been killed in battle, takes the irrevocable vow of a cloistered Nun. Contrary to her belief her lover has not been killed and the expiration of five years he returns to his own sunny Italy to claim the sweethart of his youth. Then comes the word that her lover is in Rome, hurrying to her and there is the little ivy-covered garden of the convent. Captain Giovanni, the lost soldier, frantic in his haste, bursts into the presence of Sister Giovanna. The White Sister gasps her lover's name and swoons at the feet of

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

How The People Feel About The Telephone Situation. Is Your Statement Ready?

In response to the invitation extended to the public to hand in statements in regard to the telephone situation, to date statements have been submitted as follows:

Arpin.

A. M. Arpin says: Thief River Falls at the present time cannot afford to install a Municipal Telephone System.

Municipally owned telephone plants have proven a success in many instances, but should not be attempted here at this time. I believe the franchise should be granted to the company offering the best facilities for serving the public. It should be the duty of the council to grant this franchise after due investigation of the improved plants now being installed elsewhere, to get the same things here, and at the earliest possible moment.

Halverson.

G. Halverson says: The City of Thief River Falls is certainly entitled to better telephone service than it has. The Courts have determined, as I understand, that no telephone franchise exists in Thief River Falls, hence the way seems to be open for the City to install its own plant or else to sell a franchise to private parties or corporations who might be willing to install an up-to-date telephone system.

It is well known that a telephone system in Thief River Falls in the hands of individuals or private corporations is a well paying proposition and there is no reason why a Municipal plant could not be profitable to the City, provided it is conducted on a business basis, and all politics eliminated and only those who earn their money be employed.

If Municipal ownership is a success then a Municipal telephone plant can surely be made a paying proposition to Thief River Falls.

Naplin.

O. A. Naplin says: I have made some inquiries regarding the working of Municipally owned telephone systems in other parts of the state, and find that they have proved entirely satisfactory both for local and long distance calls. If the city would establish a system here, I believe it would not only give better service, but also bring considerable revenue. The telephone question should be thoroly investigated before any move is made to grant a franchise to any stock company. We must think of the future.

Mabey.

Perl W. Mabey says: I would like to see the Tri-State ousted and a franchise granted the Northwestern with the proper restrictions. I do not believe the city should take up any more public utilities now and do not want to see two locals established here.

Ramstad.

Olaf Ramstad says: I believe the city can not afford a plant just now, so let the Tri-State go ahead and improve their plant. So far as local service is concerned, I do not believe the Northwestern would be any better than the Tri-State.

Tarrant.

Judge Tarrant says: The city by all means should own the telephone plant. The city is too large now to give anybody a franchise.

Fasel

County Auditor Fasel says: I believe in the city owning a plant, if in a position to do so; if not, a franchise should be sold with proper protection to the city.

Forder.

Milton Forder says: I think the question should be decided by a vote of the people. If the people turn it down, then the council should sell a franchise to the best interests of the city.

McGinn.

Robert McGinn says: Our present service is damn bum. I am in favor of a municipal telephone system first, last and all the time.

Quist.

E. L. Quist says: If Thief River Falls does not get busy and, in one manner or another, secure better telephone service, the present condition will soon prove a great handicap to the progress of the city.

Curtis.

J. P. Curtis says: I favor a municipal plant, and believe the city can afford one.

Midderigh.

Paul Meddrigh says: I believe everything will come out all right if it is left to our socialist council and Teddy Roosevelt is elected president.

Trovaton.

Andrew Trovaton says: I am not a socialist, but I believe in a municipally owned plant.

LaBree.

Jesse LaBree says: I favor a municipally owned plant.

Sterns.

Editor The Press:—

Dear Sir; Replying to your request for a statement in reference to the telephone situation I will say there probably isn't much that can be said that has not been pretty well discussed by our citizens.

Some have expressed their views in favor of a Municipal Telephone Exchange, while fully as many others have expressed themselves as being opposed to the city owning a telephone exchange.

During the past two years the demand for water which can safely be used for household purposes; the extension of the water mains; adequate sewerage for the entire city; and a great many other things which have become necessities and which we have yet to secure have become so great that many of the advocates of a Municipal Plant have expressed their opinions that it will be several years before the City will be able to finance all of those things and to buy or to build a Municipal telephone system.

The assessed valuation of real estate in this city has been increased this year fifty per cent more than the assessed valuation last year and with the increasing indebtedness and the necessary increasing taxes the city will soon be carrying about all the load the citizens will care to see placed upon it.

All the time the demand is increasing for better and more extended telephone service.

Considering all this and further that whenever the city is able to purchase or to build a telephone exchange its method of purchase will undobtedly be fair should it decide to purchase; the Tri-State Telephone and Telegraph Company is ready to build an all cable up-to-date telephone system if that is the desire of the citizens or such a system as the citizens desire.

Very truly yours,
Geo. L. Sterns, Mgr.

Further Comment.

Considering the amount of dissatisfaction that is prevalent in regard to the present telephone service, not as many people responded to last week's invitation as we had hoped would do so. The invitation is now extended indefinitely, or until the question is settled, to those who have not yet made statements and to those who have aready made statements but would like to say something further. We suggest that when the statements become so numerous that we can not handle them is the time to call a public meeting. We do not believe there is any use in calling a meeting or voting on the question until the citizens wake up to the fact that there has really got to be something done. Get a statement ready now and hand it in. Make it as long as you want to.

SOME EXCITEMENT AT GERMANTOWN

Joe Duchamp and Charley Cook Feature In Capture of Artillery Laden Burglar

A week ago yesterday quite a number of the residents of Grand Plain township were on hand to witness the strategic capture of an artillery laden burglar who had taken refuge in the livery barn at Germantown. When constable, Charley Cook, learned that the burglar carried two colts revolvers, an automatic rifle and a repeating shot gun, he decided the only way to take the burglar without bloodshed was to use strategy.

Accordingly Joe Duchamp, the noted scout, trapper and big-game hunter, was telephoned for. Joe, unarmed, entered the barn and, apparently engrossed in an examination of the horses, worked his way towards a rear stall where he could see the wary marauder peaking out to see what was going on. When Joe arrived opposite his man he suddently grasped the unsuspecting fellow and held him fast until Charley Cook came and removed the hardware. Joe and Charley then brought the burglar, who gave his name as Arthur Kenyon, to this city where he was taken care of by Sheriff LaBree until Saturday morning when the Sheriff of Beltrami county took him to Bemidji, his former home. Kenyon will probably be tried at the next term of the district court.

Kenyon claims that he escaped last winter from an insane asylum near Spokane, Wash. He worked his way eastward and obtained the firearms and some money by rifling homesteader's shanties in the Rapid River country, Jack Johnson of Bemidji being one of the men whose shanty was burglarized. Kenyon said his home was in Bemidji. He did not offer violent ressistance at any time and did not care to talk.

Flax Fibre Facts & Figures

Income From Flax Crop Should Be More Than $100,000,000 a Year.

The American Linen Fibre Company will utilize what is today the greatest and most valuable waste product in America—Flax Straw.

The Russian flax fibre crop of 1907 sold for $75,000,000—the seed crop for $17,000,000.

The flax seed crop of the United States the following year, 1908 brot $24,713,000. On Russian basis, our fibre crop that year would have been worth over $100,000,000.

The following statement is from Government Farm Bulletin No. 274:

"In the United States, Mililons of tons of straw have been burned each year. Much of which, in quality and length for the production of fibre, far excells the average straw from which the Russian peasant makes the fibre which chiefly supplies the linen fabrics of the world."

Another Government report quotation:

"In Ireland they grow for fibre, and, as a rule, throw away the seed; In America we grow for seed, and, as a rule, throw away the fibre. If the Irish peasant is accused of being wasteful, what can be said of the American farmer?"

By means of the McAdam fibre machine, owned by this company, both seed and fibre will be saved, and thus a double crop secured.

Men who are best qualified to judge assert that the McAdam machine will be to linen making what the Whitney Cotton Gin is to cotton production.

Using 31,000 cotton jins, America now makes an annual cotton crop of 14,000,000 bales (of 500 pounds each) having a cash value around $800,000,000.00.

The cotton crop of 1895 was 9,476,435 bales, average price 6¼c. Crop of 1911 (Government estimate)

Dogs Must Be Tagged

Dog Catcher Has Been Appointed And Will Start Work Next Monday.

An important statement issued by the city administration last Saturday is that the dog tax of $1 for males and $3 for females must be paid on all dogs over three months old or the dogs will be killed. Bernt Wold has been appointed dog catcher and he will start out Monday morning to see that the dogs are tagged. He gets 50 cents for every untagged dog he catches and puts in the pound, whether he kills the dog or not. He will keep any dog twenty-four hours and during that time the owner may redeem his dog by paying the tax.

At ten o'clock yesterday eighteen licenses had been issued, two for females and sixteen for males. Ira C. Richardson was the first man to pay the tax on a dog. The record shows that he has a male Water Spaniel dog whose name is Ned, and that the dog has brown curly hair. In the order given licenses have been issued to the following: Ira C. Richardson, James Farr, John Morgan, F. W. Kenyon, Val Yager, E. W. Lown, C. W. McDaniel, T. B. Aasland, Anton Langseth, Roy Longaire (two dogs), J. J. Varacek, W. K. Nichols, Alfred Holmgren (for Dave Winton), Charles Bengtson, Alfred Holmgren, Martin N. Benson and O. G. Storholm.

Ohio Progressives Endorse LaFollette

Decided In Conference At Columbus To Place In Nomination LaFollette Delegates

Washington, D. C., April 30—Progressive Republicans of Ohio, in a conference at Columbus, decided to place in nomination LaFollette delegates, and adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas, we, the representatives of true Republican Progressive sentiment of the state of Ohio, believe in Robert M. LaFollette as the living embodiment of progressive principles; and

Whereas, he was chosen at the outset of this campaign as the National Progressive Leader, and is today waging a splendid fight for the progessive cause, which will never cease so long as he shall live; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in LaFollette we see the ideal candidate of the average citizen. His support of the cause of education has contributed to the development of Wisconsin educational institutions to the foremost rank. His direct primary laws, applied to the nomination of all candidates for public office, have returned to the hands of the people their State government which had for long been under the control of political bosses. His record in the House of Representatives and in the United States shows him to be continuously watchful in the interests of legislaton affecting the interests of all the people, and proves him to be the one statesman in public life to-day who possesses the ability to both define the evils existing in our government, and to present practical remedies for the cure of these evils.

Resolved, That in Lafollette we see the ideal candidate of the laboring man. In Wisconsin he has instituted many salutary laws affecting the life of the wage earner, among them being effective laws against child labor; enforcing proper inspection and sanitation of workshops and factories; safety appliance acts; eliminating the defense of fellow servant and contributary negligence for the railways. In the United States Senate he has urged the exemption of labor organizations and farmers' organization from the operation of the Sherman Law, he has secured the passage of laws to protect the employees of railroads; and his voice and vote have always been used in behalf of the toiler.

Resolved, That in LaFollette we have the ideal candidate of the business man. In Wisconsin he has created and instituted laws under which all Public Service corporations and Common Carriers pay their fair share of the cost of government, based upon the fair physical valuation of their property, with regulation which permits a legitimate profit, and at the same time protects the public from exorbitant charges, and from the evils of stock jobbing and corporate manipulation. On the other hand those laws protect the corporations from legislative piracy, and their securities are rendered safe to investors. As Senator, he stands for similar regulation of Interstate Commerce, for a Tariff Commission with adequate powers to ascertain reasonable tariff rates, and is against sham reciprocity; and finally be it Resolved, That we, unequivocally and unconditionally endorse Senator Robert M. LaFollette as the logical candidate, and the only constructive leader to carry progressive principles to successful fruition as the nominee of the Republican Party for the office of President of the United States.

A Unique Prayer For Railroad Men

From Cambridge Times:

At a meeting of railroad men held in the South, one Rev. George B. Staurt, was requested to open the exercise with prayer he had compiled, giving utterance to this invocation. You will no doubt agree that it is one of the most unique you have ever heard of read. Here it is:

"O Lord, we meet as a body of railroad men, with our wives and daughters, to consult for our interest. We are reminded that life itself is a train and the road to Heaven a railroad; God's truth the rail, God's love the fire and His promises the signal lights. O Lord, we recognize Thee as the general manager of our road, the superintendent of our train and our chief dispatcher. Thou didst lay the track and ballast the road; Thou has furnished the rolling stock. Thou art the owner and controller of it all. We look to Thee for all our orders and Thou must sign the checks for our daily bread. Be merciful in handling our human mistakes and do not discharge Thy unworthy servants.

"We are grateful for the Bible, Thy book of rules and instructions, and look with charity upon our failures. Thy promises and warnings are our headlights and hand lanterns; help us to use them so to save our train from wreck. Deliver us from broken rails, blind switches, false signals and mistaken orders. Be with us on every high bridge of responsibility, on every sharp curve of emergency, and in every dark tunnel of trouble let the light of Thy promise shine out bright. Grant us passes for our wives and children and let them go with us. When the storms of temptation and trial come, save us from the fatal slide and washout that have wrecked so many trains on the road of life. Let our way be kept secure by Thy guardian care, always show the steel rail rock ballast and be solid and firm and free from obstruction. Deliver us from the snares of our enemy. May the headlight of Thy truth shine brightly on a thrown switch, false signal or fatal obstruction placed for the wreckage of our train. May the emergency brake of a strong will save us.

"As we make our last run, headed homeward, if it be Thy will, order our train on time. Let the light of Thy promise burn bright to the last dark tunnel of death, as we run through it to the Grand Central Station of the skies may we have the approving smile of the General Manager and Superintendent; sign with joy the payroll, receive our wages and have an eternal lay-off with God and the angels and the loved ones at home and we will praise Thee forever. Amen."

HOSPITAL PROPOSITION

company, the shares in which would be $10 each; and further, that when the necessary funds had been raised, that the subscribing shareholders would organize a hospital association by incorporation, a stockholder having but one vote, and that an elective board of directors should be authorized to expend the funds for the erection, equipment and maintenance of the institution. The foregoing, in brief, is the plan adopted.

To accomplish this, the committee learns by inquiry at home and in those towns, large and small, having hospitals, that it will require a minimum of $15,000 available cash to provide the most moderate public hospital facilities, and that $25,000 is nearer the requisite amount. These funds must be raised by subscription and donation. As this proposed hospital will serve the convenience of the surrounding country, as well as of the city, provision will be made whereby every neighboring town on the railways reaching Thief River Falls, the farmers also, will have an opportunity of contributing to the erection of this institution. Responsible citizens will begin a canvass of the public next Monday, using a card system, and the committee earnestly requests the most serious and kindly consideration of the proposition. Contributions may be in cash, or the equivalent, and ought to be made available at the earliest date possible. However, if the subscriber so desires, he may make his payments to suit his convenience by extending them over a term of months. The public demands that the proposed hospital be erected this summer and to accomplish this, the bulk of necessary funds ought to be in the hands of the directors by June 1st.

The success of the movement depends entirely upon the generosity of the public. It is expected that the present deplorable conditions, which are such a constant menace to life and health, the utter lack of any hospital service in this city, the heavy task laid on the committee and other workers, the broad and nonsectarian plan of the enterprise, and the motives which prompt this action will all compel a prompt, cheerful and liberal response to the canvassesrs. If the public does not rise to this important occasion, it were better that all efforts cease forthwith. Citizens of other towns have given dollars to their hospitals where they have given dimes for other purposes, and hundreds, and even thousands of dollars, have been contributed freely towards hospitals by individual citizens in nearby communities possessing less money and wealth and fewer people that does Thief River Falls. The committee believes that our own citizens will cheerfully assume this burden, respond nobly and unselfishly to this call and carry this movement to a successful issue, as they have many other public enterprises.

The committee calls upon churches, fraternal societies, all bodies and organizations of the city, to grasp this striking opportunity of exemplifying those principles on which they are founded, by lending this measure their support with voice and purse. Every person in city and surrounding country is urged to boost the proposition, to give it serious and frequent consideration, and to be ready to meet the canvassers with their best contribution when these workers appear. A strong pull at this time, and a pull all together, will soon and easily redeem our city from the terrible stigma which has so long attached to it of being a live wide awake community, but blind to the most important feature of a large and progressive city, an adequate hospital service.

Committee: Lars Backe, W. B. Fuller, Daniel Shaw, D.r. A. W. Swedenburg, J. H. Hay.

the Mother Superior. Thus ends the first act. Those who have observed Miss Towler wonderfully realistic characterization of Sister Giovanna have placed it high in the list of long-to-be-remembered interpretation of the American stage.

The critic in the Winnipeg Telegram says in part: "It is not often that theatergoers in Winnipeg have a chance to see a tradgey queen in her prime, and there is no doubt that by the time that Miss Towler visits Winnipeg again, she will be recognized for the great actress that she is. Her performance of the title role in "The White Sister" is wonderful." Manager Jacobson of the Auditorium was enabled to get this big high class attraction on account of it having one night out in going to Duluth, and an attraction of this kind is worthy of the support of the theatregoers of Thief River Falls.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alice B. Kratka and Frank H. Kratka, her husband, and Daisy L. Kratka, as mortgagors, to Isabella Hinkel, as mortgagee, dated on the 23rd day of June, 1904, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, 1904, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in Book 29 of Mortgages Page 431, on which there is claimed to be due, and is actually due at the date of this notice, the amount of $1500.00, as principal, and $127.20 as interest, amounting in the aggregate to a total indebtedness of $1627.20, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt, or any part thereof, secured by the said mortgage;

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of certain of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the main front door of the court house in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington (formerly part of said Red Lake County) and State of Minnesota, on Tuesday, the twenty-eight (28th) day of May A. D. 1912 at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale and fifty ($50.) Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of Foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage are all those tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, (said Pennington County being formerly a portion of the County of Red Lake) and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lot Numbered Five (5) in Block Numbered Five (5); Lot Numbered Six (6) in Block Numbered Eighteen (18); Lots numbered five and six (5&6) in block Numbered Twenty-six (26); Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) Block Thirty-four (34); Lots Numbered Thirteen and Fourteen (13&14) in Block Numbered Thirty (30); Lots Numbered Eleven and Twelve (11&12) in Block Numbered Twenty-nine (29); Lots Numbered One (1), Two (2), Three (3), Nine (9), and Ten (10) in Block Numbered Fifty-eight (58); and Lots Numbered Four and Five (4&5) in Block Numbered Sixty-three (63); all in the Original Townsite of Thief River Falls, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in said State of Minensota and subsequently transcribed and a copy filed and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the said County of Red Lake, in said State of Minnesota.

That all of said premises will be sold under and by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage except the following described racts or parcels, to-wit: Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) in Block Numbered Thirty-four (34), which said lots have heretofore (and subsequent to the making and delivery of said mortgage) been formally released from the lien of said mortgage.

Chief Wa-de-na in Summer Quarters.

This is a chief of the full-blood White Earth Indians. They constitute less than one-fourth of the tribe, a majority of the White Earth Chippewas being more white than Indian. Gus Beaulieu, whom Congressman Graham said it was a joke to call an Indian, is very near an average mixed-blood. The full-blood Indians are the ones who are reported diseased and destitute. That they are diseased has been known for years, and Congressman Steenerson and others have tried to get the Indian Bureau to help them. If they are destitute it is the fault of the authorities on the reservation, for they have power to and are expected to issue rations to those in need.

They were not affected by the Clapp act, which provides that only mixed-bloods could sell their lands. The effort to connect their disease with the land legislation is ridiculous. They have been diseased for a generation, and they could not possibly be destitute if the Indian agent issues the rations that are paid for from the tribal fund.

NEW SOLUM NEWS

We had a nice shower of rain last Saturday evening.

Mr. Theodore Thompson left for Duluth last Friday.

Jurette, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Dahl is reported to be on the sick list.

Mr. John Sjolsvold left for Duluth last Monday where he will work on the docks during the summer.

Mrs. Urland and children and Mr. and Mrs. Ralston visited with R. Nelson's Sunday.

Miss Clara Erickson left for Warren last Monday.

Misses Ida Krogstad and Sina Sewalson spent Monday evening with Miss Minnie Sorenson.

The dredges have started work on their respective places again this spring, so we hope we will have the ditches dug this summer.

It begins to look as though the Mexican war is going to last 'til one side or the other runs out of cigarettes.

The White Sox took such liking to the telephone pole ball park in Viking that they went down there last Sunday again to play. They lost Sunday by a score of 29 to 4. They will brace up for next Sunday tho and go to Newfolden for a game with that team. Vis ikke alle gamle merker slaar feil.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR

More Than 1,375,000 Are In Use

The Best Investment
Any Cow Owner Can Make

That's what nearly a million and a half of cow owners the world over have found the De Laval cream separator to be.

A De Laval farm separator costs from $35 to $160—according to capacity. It saves butter fat and produces a cream of superior quality over any setting system or any other separator every time it is used—twice a day—730 times a year.

It involves far less labor than any setting system, and runs easier, has greater capacity and lasts from two to ten times longer than any other separator.

That's how a De Laval separator saves at least its cost the first year, and frequently in a few months, and then goes right along saving your money year after year.

We have an arrangement whereby you can make a partial payment at time of purchase, and pay the balance on such liberal terms that your machine will more than save its cost while you are paying for it.

Easiest to turn, easiest to wash, skims the cleanest lasts the longest.

SOONER OR LATER YOU WILL BUY A DE LAVAL

FOREST GOING—AGRICULTURE FOLLOWS

"Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota are facing more and more earnestly the huge task of bringing back the forest upon that wide northern strip from which fire and the careless use of the ax have driven it; an area of several thousand square miles once covered with growth which for size was exceeded only by the giant forests of the Pacific Slope, and now a dreary useless waste of sand—a man-made desert with nothing but blackened stumps and charred fragments of great tops to tell of the glories which are gone."—Overton Westfeldt Price in the OUTLOOK, April 27.

The OUTLOOK may be a good vehicle for presidential candidacy but its willingness to accept unrealiable and untruthful statements such as have been offered by Mr. Price, shows how far it is willing to mislead the people on economic subjects. Neither Mr. Price nor any other man issuing such a statement has any knowledge of conditions in Wisconsin, as evidenced from this extract, and the conservation movement in referrence to forestry will gain little advancement through such means. It is recognized today that one acre of agricultural soil will produce for humanity a thousand-fold return when sown to agricultural products compared with reforestry schemes. It should also be known by any well informed forester that fully two-thirds of Wisconsin's timber was hardwood, grown on good soil, and of the remainder, white pine, the most useful timber which the Creator ever made, flourished on fertile clay loam soil largely amongst the hardwood, the Norway pine on lighter loam and jack pine in sandy loam and sandy soils.

[illegible] Federal forestry department [illegible] further to stimulate distrust in the value of its work, let them continue with such misleading generalities, denial of which is furnished by the United States census agricultural statistics and the work performed by the geogolical survey.

Twenty-six upper Wisconsin counties show an average increase in agricultural wealth of over 200% during the period 1900-1910, and the value of live stock in some of them doubled and trebled, while the average yield per acre of farm crops in counties once known as "pineries" equals, and not infrequently, surpasses yields secured from $200 per acre land in Iowa and Illinois.

The State Board of Immigration, in conjunction with Mr. Duffus, of the Board of Public Affairs, is taking this matter up with the editor of the OUTLOOK and the state and agricultural press, with hope that the effect of the foregoing misleading statements may partly be counteracted.

Madison, Wis., April 28, 1912.

B. G. Packer,
Commissioner of Immigration.

This may be just as well apply to Minnesota for where two decades ago the wild deer and moose played in the forests the gasoline tractors pant with heavy breath while plowing the soil for modern cultivation.

A RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE SOCIALIST LOCAL

Whereas: There appeared in the Thief River Falls News of April 11, the publication of an extract from the "Virginia" of Virgina, Minn., pertaining to the much advertised report of the suspension of the Appeal to Reason, which to the chagrin of a few individuals, who call themselves the "public," fails to be true and

Whereas; This extract contains the following: It (the Appeal to Reason) did little but excite many of its readers to deeds in which rich red blood flowed freely and its suspension is heralded with much satisfaction by those who believe in law and order And whereas; In the "News" comment appears the following passage: "If it had been true that it suspended publication what a blessing it would be to the public."

Therefore, Be it resolved by the Thief River Falls Socialist Local, that we request the Editor of the News to inform us and the public of any instance where the Appeal to Reason has advocated or approved of deeds in which rich red blood flowed freely, and we also request the Editor, please explain why and be more specific as to why it would be a blessing to the public if the Appeal to Reason had suspended, and also whom the Editor had in mind when the word "public" was used.

THE SLAUGHTER

They killed the little old Appeal,
Now wasn't that a shabby deal?

The brave Associated Press, Obtained the thrilling facts by guess.

The news they did not verify
Because they feared it was a lie.

The plutes went crazy with delight
And gloated for a day and night.
The federal judges took the bait
And danced a jig to celebrate.

Old Otis fairly threw a fit
The moment that he noticed it.
And oh, they were a sorry throng
When they woke up and found it wrong.

The "Army" simply said, "That's rich"
And gave its belt another hitch.

They knew the Little Old, but spry,
Appeal was not the sort to die.

SCHOOL NOTES

John Ryan, one of the 1911 graduates, and Ward Long, a high school student, have formed a partnership to cultivate a twenty acre tract of vegetables and market gardens on the Long farm. The boys have assumed a heavy task, but are confident they will have a generous balance on the right side of the ledger next November. They are satisfied to permit others to overload the crowded professions, while they will follow the more independent and lucrative occupation of raising dollar tubers and profit yielding garden stuff.

Supt. I. J. Borass of Ada spent last Friday visiting the local schools. He expressed some surprise at the size of the town and the heavy enrollment of school children. He and all his teachers will attend the Northwestern Minnesota Educational Association, which holds its annual meeting in this city next fall.

The attention of the public is called to the manual training exhibit which, by the kindness of Mr. Oen, occupies one of the show windows at the Oen Mercantile Store. The pieces are samples of the production of the grade and high school classes and are all absolutely hand-made, with the exception of the turned articles. They give the observer a fair indication of the service the manual training department is rendering.

The final results of the year are being determined and the class promotions arranged for. In the seventh and eighth grades and high school classes, the startling truth is confirmed that practically every boy who uses tobacco has hopelessly failed of promotion. Just why so many boys have become addicted to the use of the weed this year, others not connected with the schools may be able to explain, for the habit is not countenanced or indulged in about the school buildings. School Notes believes that tobacco and its incident accompaniments cause the failures, and that the failures do not create the tobacco users among half grown boys. It also believes that every boy young enough to go to school, is too young to indulge in this ordinary minor vice, even in high school, and next year, for his own good and the good of the smaller boys, he ought to be compelled either to quit the habit or the school. He needs all the nervous energy he possesses as a boy to cope with his school tasks, and will have ample time and too much opportunity after leaving school to indulge his inclinations.

On account of the inclement weather last Friday afternoon, the schools were not dismissed at noon for the city "clean-up" day, as had been planned by the city board of health.

A communication from President Vincent conveys the disappointing information that he cannot deliver the commencement address to the class of 1912. A first class speaker, or none at all, will be obtained.

To allay the unnecessary fears of those who sometimes question the ability of a senior class to dispense its funds wisely, it is proper to state how class finances are handled. When earned the money is placed in a local bank and checked out by the class treasurer only. This he does by direction of the class officers. Every class has a class adviser who directs the students and in this manner it is impossible for funds to be misspent or misappropriated.

Tests are being held this week thruout the grammar and high school grades. School closes May 31st and the last week will be devoted to the state high school examinations.

A meeting of the grade teachers was held last Thursday after school in the normal room.

The 72 eighth grade pupils who are entitled to promotion to the high school are preparing their graduation exercises. They will be presented the evening of Wednesday, May 29th, in the Lincoln assembly, when the diplomas will be handed the children.

36 letters received on Tuesday and 32 on Monday of this week mark the high tide of a strenuous correspondence, which has been floating into the office of the superintendent for the past few weeks. Nearly all of these communications demand a reply.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. F. J. Seltz, pastor of the German Lutheran church, on the evening of Sunday, May, 26th. The plan in vogue is to grant every church in the city having a resident pastor, the opportunity of holding this service, if it so desires.

Flax Fibre Facts and Figures

was 14,885,000 bales, present price 11¾c per pound.

This enormous increase in production, and almost doubled price, indicates that the rapidly increasing people of the world must be clothed.

Every person would much prefer linen to cotton for a large part of their wear and various uses.

No further argument is necessary on the question of market for flax fibre. Therefore, linen manufacture now promises to grow in importance and become one of the great industries of America.

The acreage area capable of growing flax is far greater than that suited to cotton, and the fibre yield per acre also more.

According to Government reports, in some sections of the United States, soil and climatic conditions are especially favorable and have produced fancy flax, equal to the best grown anywhere—some of the fibre having a value as high as 30c per pound.

Northern Minnesota has more than average conditions and should make the flax crop the most profitable of its permanent standard rotation farm crops.

By using care and attention to develop the plant and produce straw best suited for fibre, (two tons and more per acre) the farmer may come to realize as much or more from straw than from seed.

As to Company Earnings: Three plants, (30 machines) full capacity, would make 9 per cent on the entire stock of the company.

Ole Landro vs. Great Northern

ciated Charles Loring of Crookston and Julius Olson of Warren, conducted the case for the plaintiff. The decision was based almost entirely on expert testimony.

Landro was injured in the derailment of a passenger train in North Dakota, February 1909. The injury was to the lower part of his back and has caused him to walk with a limp ever since he has been able to be out. Landro lives here and is at present connected with the Olson and Prichard implement firm.

When the case first came up for trial in November 1909, the jury granted $6,500. On appeal to the supreme court the decision was reversed and a new trial was given. Last June when the case came up again, the jury granted $12,500. On appeal to the supreme court this verdict was recognized and reduced to $8,000.

On account of failinghealth, I have been compelled to give up the tailoring business at present, that I have kept up here for the past eight years. And having rented my shop and outfit to Mr. Ernest P. Ahlborn, from Minneapolis, will hereby take liberty to present him to the public, as a fully competent tailor and cutter, who will and is perfectly able to turn out a first class job in the line of men's or ladies' suits. I have known Mr. Ahlborn for twenty years, ever since he used to be the leading man in the large tailoring-firm of Westberg Brothers & Co., of Willmar, Minn., and am taking pride in recommending him to the public and my customers.

Yours truly,
O. L. Bakken.

describing each locality will be sent out, and whenever an inquiry comes regarding a certain place, it will be referred to the local representatve, who will either give the information to the inquirer directly, or send data to the asociation, which will attend to the correspondence.

The association was capitalized at $50,000. A good amount of the stock has been subscribed by the promoters of this booster idea. It is certain that a greater interest will be taken in this move as soon as the citizens of Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Pennington counties will learn the nature and purpose of this association.

The officers elected for the first year are: G. Wahlund, president; Israel Sjoberg, vice-president; O. A. Naplin, secretary, and L. M. Olson, treasurer. The directors and their addresses are: Israel Sjoberg and O. B. Ekman, Roseau; J. A. Swenson, N. Dak., Swanson and E. A. Johnson, Hallock; O. A. Naplin and P. B. Malberg, Thief River Falls; Frank E. Dahlgren and John Dagoberg, Alvarado; C. M. Carlson, Strandquist; P. A. Risberg, Holt; G. Wahlund, L. M. Olson, John Lindberg and Aug. Lundgren, Warren. Oscar Wahlund, Warren, was elected executive secretary by the executive committee.

This association will embrace as many localities as possible in the Red River Valley and invites the co-operation of all who wish to see more actual, or permanent, settlers in our varius communities. Warren was selected as the home office of the association. Communications should be directed either to the Association at Warren or to O. A. Naplin, Thief River Falls, Minn.

IMAGINED SOMEONE WAS GOING TO KILL HIM

Sheriff LaBree was called to Mavie Sunday evening to take charge of Tom Hoglund, who, having imbibed too freely of his enemy, alcohol, imagined Swan Englund was going to kill him. LaBree brought Hogland to town and gave him an opportunity to sober up.

The report is that Hogland and some more bachelors of the town of Highlanding secured a jug of alcohol and proceeded to make merry. Hogland's portion went to his head so violently that he imagined his friend was going to kill him, and ran to Mavie, where his antics aroused so much alarm that the Sheriff was called.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. meets next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Ben Christianson.

Two million boys, the boys of this generation, must be selected to go into the saloon hopper. Sixty thousand boys are drafted every year into the army of drunkards to take the place of the sixty thousand drunkards who have been drawn forth from the streets and buried. Whose boys are in danger? The saloon can no more be run without using up boys than a flour mill without wheat or a saw mill without logs.

While many American women are looking forward to a summer of idleness and frivolity, or at least one of selfish amusement, thousands of W. C. T. U. women the country over are not only deliberately planning, but are anticipating with enthusiasm the busiest times of their lives in campaign work during the next six months. The White Ribboners propose to educate, agitate and legislate toward the uplift of humanity.

THE RATE OF TAXATION

Important Factor Is Amount Of Money To Be Raised For Public Purposes In Any District.

An entirely unwarrented importance is given in the popular discussion of taxation to the rate of levy. It is often discussed as if it were the main factor in taxation, while as a matter of fact, the important factor is the amount of money to be raised for public purposes in any taxing district. A high rate, of course, is generally regarded with disfavor by investors. One of the first questions asked by an intending investor in lands or business enterprises is: What is the rate of taxation? If it is high it discourages him and he is very liable to regard such a community as an undesirable place for investment.

Knowledge of the several steps taken in the process of raising public revenues, which prior articles have fully explained, should show how erroneous is this importance given to the rate. The rate is a mathematical convenience and may be high or low without really affecting the amount of taxes to be paid, for if assessed values are high the rate will be low, and vice versa; if assessed values are low the rate will necessarily be high.

The very first step taken is the fixing of the amount of money to be raised, and that, rather than the rate, determines whether the tax will be high or low.

When the amount of money to be raised is determined the fixing of the rate is simply a matter of mathematical calculation.' The assessed value of the property and the amount of revenue to be raised are the important features in the tax, the rate being both failed to do their duty in that they did not equalize the assessments between B and C. Equality rather than the rate is the important feature in any just system of taxation.

but $10.00 in taxes. The rate thus becomes a mere incident, and not at all a matter of first importance.

It is, however, of great importance that assessed value of the same classes of property be on a uniform basis. In the first illustration given above, if B's farm is assessed at $3,000 his taxes would amount to $30.00, while his neighbor, C, with equally as valuable a farm assessed at $2,000, gets off with a tax of $20.00. But the rate is not responsible for the discrimination in favor of C—either the assessor or the board of review, or cessary to produce the required amount of revenue. Now suppose the assessed value of the same property was increased to $2,000,000, then 5 mills or one-half of one cent on each dollar would be sufficient to produce the reequired $10,000. In the first case, A's property being assessed at $1,000, he pays $10.00 in taxes; in the second case, while his assessed value has been doubled, the rate has been cut in half, and he still pays each taxpayer should contribute.

Let us illustrate: Suppose a taxing district having an assessed value of $1,000,000 desires to raise $10,000 for public purposes by taxation. Clearly a levy of 10 mills or one cent on each dollar of assessed value would be ne- the proportion of the total tax that simply the factor used to compute

A Robbery

By EDUARD L. PARDIE

"Mr. Murdock," said the president of the Second National bank of East Berwick, "$30.000 in currency are necessary to make us good at the People's Savings bank of Attruria. I wish you to take it to them by train. My opinion is that the safest way to carry it is in an ordinary suit case. Its bulk doesn't show as in the pocket, and if you proceed as any ordinary traveler would, not appearing watchful of your baggage, though watching it every instant, you should get it through safely."

"I have a great regard for your opinions, Mr. Cleverly, and if I am not guided by them I shall at least endeavor to use them to my advantage."

Mr. Murdock took the bills, varying from $100 to $1,000 in denomination, and left the bank for his home, where he made a package of them in brown paper and, throwing some clothes in his suit case, called a carriage and left for the station. He had noticed a man standing on the street corner as he left the bank in a checkerboard suit and his beard cut gontee style. The person had not noticed him, but he had noticed the person. Murdock had little fear of any one knowing that he carried a large amount of money unless he discovered the fact of it before he left the bank. Many robberies occur from some rogue seeing a man draw money. The latter is followed and when a convenient opportunity occurs is robbed. Murdock remembered the man in the checkerboard suit, and when he saw him at the station buying a ticket became profoundly interested in him. His seeing the fellow when he left the bank lounging on a street corner and soon after as a traveler might be a coincidence, but he didn't believe it was. At any rate the gentleman would need watching.

When the bank messenger boarded the train he sat waiting for the man with the goatee. He was not disappointed. A few minutes before the train left he sauntered into the car, tossed a satchel on to a seat, sat down, pulled a newspaper out of his pocket and seemingly became deeply interested in the news. Murdock glanced up at him as he passed to his seat and made up his mind that before his journey's end he would hear from him.

At the first stop a man with a red necktie got into the same car with Murdock and, taking a seat by himself, pulled his hat down over his eyes and apparently went to sleep. Something told Murdock that this man was bent on the same errand as the other. What was that something? The same faculty that enables us to discriminate between faces, to recognize one we have not seen in thirty years with his back turned to us. Besides, Murdock's faculties were concentrated on the subject of being robbed. Convinced that one man was aboard the train with that intent, his faculties were acute in detecting others. He reasoned that the robbery would likely be committed by several rather than one, and he was ready to pick out those involved.

Murdock began to fidget in his seat. He turned and looked about him, and a suspicious glance at the last comer escaped him. He took his suit case on his knees, opened it and felt of a brown paper parcel. Then he put the satchel down again. The man with the red necktie yawned, stretched himself and caught the eye of the one with the goatee. Murdock's back was toward them at the time, and he did not see this glance between them. Presently he got up, went to the water cooler and took a drink. While doing so he left his suit case on his seat, but kept his eye on his baggage. The man in the checkerboard suit stole a glance at the man with the red necktie.

Then Murdock took up the suit case again, opened it and took out a cigar, setting the case down beside him as carefully as though it contained glass, first on the outside of the seat, then, as if that position were not safe enough to suit him, he moved it to the inside. The man with the goatee and the one with the red necktie looked at each other with two pairs of cunning eyes, and a look of satisfaction appeared in the faces of both.

When the trainman called "Waterford!" the two observant men sat up in their seats. The next station was West Waterford, half a mile distant. There was a look of intensity in both the men, as if they were about to do something. When West Waterford was called they fidgeted in their seats. As the train moved off after the stop the man with the goatee dashed by Murdock, snatched his suit case and, followed by the red necktie man, jumped off the train, and both men, climbing into an automobile, were whisked away more rapidly than the railway cars!

"Stop thief!" yelled Murdock.

Too late! The fugitives were gone and the suit case with them. Great excitement prevailed among the passengers, but Murdock, coolly drawing a cigar from his vest pocket, proceeded to light it. Then the others, thinking no great loss had been sustained, relapsed into the humdrum of travel.

When Murdock returned to his bank the president asked if the money had been delivered. Murdock told him that it had.

"Did you carry it in the suit case, as I told you to do?"

"No; I carried it in my pocket. I foiled two robbers with the suit case."

Holland's Flowers.

The Dutch are a nation of flower lovers, skilled gardeners and inventive farmers. On canal boats, on floating river houses, around farmhouses, in humble village and great city one finds flowers, flowers, flowers. Some one has said that Holland's illustrious conquerors have been her engineers and her florists. Through this flower culture has come her wealth, for this has been one of her chief industries.—Magazine Flowers.

SAYS EVERY ONE GOES TO HELL

Well Known Bible Student Has Original Ideas On Final Destination. Declares Hell Is Grave.

Asserts That Nowhere in the Bible Is There Anything That Connects Hell With Fire.

Alfred I. Ritchie, a Bible Student of wide reputation in the United States and Canada, declares that everyone goes to Hell. Mr. Ritchie has some interpretations on the Bible that appear sensational and along a new line. In a recent interview he gave out some interesting information regarding various prominent Bible subjects that require more than ordinary consideration to obtain their full meaning.

"I have a new cure for infidelity," declared Mr. Ritchie. "To prescribe the remedy we must find the cause, which I believe is the inability of people to understand how a God of all Love and Wisdom and Justice, and having all Power, could permit present conditions and conduct human affairs as proclaimed by the dominant creeds of Christendom. Unbelievers choke at the idea of the great Creator providing an eternity of any kind of torture for His own creatures, especially if He was gifted with the fore-knowledge that most of the human family go there, and that He had all wisdom to plan otherwise, and all Power to do as He pleased. Truly the general religious teaching on this line is a foe to reason and the mother of doubt.

The Bible Glorifies God.

"The Bible, taken as a whole, presents no such idea of our blessed Heavenly Father, but praises, glorifies His holy character. And so, when understood, it will be as natural for average human beings to emulate, love and praise God as it has been in all human history for them to worship as leaders and heroes those who have shown greatness of character, either in power or wisdom or benevolence. When rightly shown the character of our God will compel the admiration and loyalty of the masses infinitely more than the character of a Caesar, or a Napoleon, or an Edison, or a Bryan, or a Roosevelt. What is the reason that the character of God is so little reverenced, that the Holy Name of Himself and of the Saviour are made the commonest "cuss" words? We answer that it is because His character is blasphemed by the erroneous "Hell" teaching of deceived Christianity.

"Well did Pastor Russel, of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Tabernacle say, 'if the Bible does teach that eternal torture is the fate of all except the saints, it should be preached yea, thundered, weekly, daily, hourly! If it does not so teach, the fact should be made known, and the foul stain dishonoring God's Holy Name removed! I understand a free copy of his pamphlet, "Food for Thinking Christians," which examines every mention of Hell in the Bible, can be had by addressing him.

"Everybody goes to Hell. Why? Because Hell is the grave, or death condition, to which good and bad go to remain until the blessed time of resurrection, judgment, and restoration to perfection of all the obedient. The Hebrew word sheol is positively the only "hell" word in the Old Testament. Its Hebrew definition is the unseen state, or the place of the dead. It occurs sixty-five times, and nowhere is the word fire associated with it.

No Work in Sheol.

"Solomon said, There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge in sheol," and he adds, "Whither thou goest." Why? Because all in Hell are dead. Referring to the resurrection, the Revelator says "Death and Hell (marginal reference reads "or the grave") delivered up the dead (not the living) which were in them.

"Sheol is translated twenty-nine times as "hell," three times as "pit" and thirty-three times as "grave." In the revised version, "sheol" is translated as "hell" only about twenty times out of the sixty-five times, and its Greek equivalent, "hades," occuring eleven times in the New Testament, is not translated as "hell" at all, but is left untranslated, because the Bible revisers knew it did not mean eternal torment.

"Only sixteen out of the sixty-six Bible books use the word "hell," in the English translation. St. Paul wrote fourteen books of the New Testament, but never mentioned "hell fire." John never mentioned it in his Gospel, nor in his three Epistles; nor did Peter in his two Epistles, nor Ruth, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Jeremiah, Daniel, Hosea, Joel, Obadiah, Micah, Nahum, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah or Malachi. Strange that all these holy Apostles and Prophets did not harp upon the danger of falling into that "lake of fire" which is supposed to be the doom of billions of humanity!

"No wonder that men turn away in disgust, full of fear and doubt! No wonder that church pews are empty and no one seems to care! No wonder that hundreds of thousands are infidels, or are fast becoming such! The sure cure, the only cure, is to get a knowledge of God's true character, for to know Him is to love Him. With present-day Bibles, Bible Helps, Concordances, Bible Dictionaries, and Studies in the Scripure no one need be in the dark."

DAVIS VOCATIONAL EDUCATIONAL BILL

scientific farming is practically an unknown quantity. It proposed to send farm experts over the country to instruct farmers. All very well in itself, but the friends of the Davis bill said that it did not go far enough. But it called for only a comparatively small appropriation, so the bill was favorably reported to the House, where it is now on the House calendar.

In its first form the Davis bill provided for an appropriation of ten cents per capita on the entire population for the purpose of maintaining district agricultural high schools and branch experiment stations. This was in 1907. By degrees the measure was modified and perfected and in its last form it appropriates $4,000,000 annually for maintenance of instruction in agriculture and home economics in State district agricultural schools; $1,000,000 forthe maintenance of branch agricultural experiment stations and $5,000,000 for the maintenance of instruction in trades and industries and home economics and agriculture in public schools. An additional annual appropriation of $1,000,000 is made to State normal schools for the preparation of teachers in vocational subjects.

In 1910 the late Senator Dolliver, who was a staunch friend of industrial education, introduced the Davis bill in the Senate and conducted a campaign in its interests. The Dolliver bill was placed on the Senate calendar before the recess in the sixty-first Congress. After the death of Senator Dolliver this measure has found a champion on the Senate side in the person of Senator Page of Vermont. He modified the bill still further, retaining, however, the fundamentals of the Davis bill and has succeeded in having it reported to the Senate. One of the amendments to the bill as introduced by Senator Page was the addition of an appropriation of about half a million dollars with which the State colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts should prepare teachers for lower vocational schools. Another feature added was that providing for field test and breeding stations, which covers the ground included in the Lever bill. Senator Page declares that he can muster at least 60 votes in support of the measure. In fact, there is active opposition to the bill in the Senate. He will press this legislation to a vote this session.

One of the most significant developments of the campaign in the interest of this legislation has been the bringing together of organized labor, employers of labor and the farming interests. All stand on common ground. By many it has been held that this is the most important piece of social and economic legislation for half a country, the Morrill Act of 1862 establishing the Land Grant colleges taking first rank. Discussing this legislation Mr. Davis, the author of the original bill said: "The fact that this measure has the support of organized labor and the manufacturing organizations indicates a union of heretofore conflicting interests.

Leaders on both sides realize the importance of placing education for trades in our public school system, rather than in private or non-public trade schools. Those who are to be our expert laborers and those who are to be the foremen, managers and owners of our manufacturing, transportation, and other industrial work should be educated in the same schools side by side with the same ideals, so that they may better co-operate in building up our industries. The large agricultural high schools, of the Minnesota type at St. Anthony Park and Crookston, provided for in this bill, will educate the farmers to so cooperate as to preserve, the family farm. If we can educate every farm boy to manage a farm and every country girl to manage a home, there will be less inducement to leave the farm, because farm life will be more attractive, as well as more profitable. This is legislation of far-reaching importance, because it vitally affects the farm, and shop, and the home."

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney backache, and other kidney ills.

Thief River Falls citizens endorse them.

Mrs. Charles Krause, 707 N. Arnold Ave., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in the family and have given excellent relief. Last fall a member of the family had a very lame back. This person could hardly get around on account of the pains in the back. The kidney secretions were unnatural and there was sediment in them. Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained from J. P. Curtis' Drug Store and two boxes stopped the trouble. There has been no return."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Krause had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Flax Fibre Facts, Figures

It would require 4000 machines to work the average flax crop of the United States—one twelfth of it being worked should bring an annual profit of 100 per cent or $5,000,000, or the ten plants which the Canada Company are calculating to put going on this year's crop should pay into the American Company sufficient to make 10 per cent dividend—but would work less than one tenth of the Canada flax crop.

These estimates are based on a price of only 6c per pound for fibre, and no account taken of the by products.

In view of this showing, it would seem conservative to believe that the Company will be earning 100 per cent on its capital stock within three or four years and that the fortunate owner of any part of the stock allottment offered here will have something more valuable than any bank stock.

WILL ERECT MODEL THEATER

Roy Morgan, manager of the Lyceum theater, has purchased lot 21 in block 35, the now vacant lot between Rolland's bazar and Effinger's pool room on LaBree Ave., and will proceed at once in the construction of a model and up-to-date theater

Morgan will construct a fire-proof building 25x140. There will be a balcony and the seating capacity of the theater will be 500. The cost of the building will be about $6,000.

CHARLES ANDERSON GIVEN JOB OF CLEANING AUDITORIUM

Charles Anderson, who was brought into Municipal court Wednesday on a charge of being disorderly, in lieu of the fact that he did not have any money to pay a fine was sentenced to five days hard labor and was given the job of cleaning up the Auditorium.

When Charles gets thru with this work, he will be brought to trial on a complaint entered by his room-mate Enbebret Iverson, to the effect that Charles stole from him a coat, a pair of shoes and ten dollars in money out of their room at the Home Hotel. Anderson claims that he dropped in here to get work on the new hotel.

The Man He Licked

By OSCAR COX

Johnny Atherton was intellectual rather than muscular. He led his class in college, while his elder brother, Tom Atherton, led the football team. Johnny was a demure little chap. Everybody liked him, and nobody ever thought of calling him anything but Johnny, while his brother was spoken of as Tom Atherton, with a resonance denoting respect for his bulldog strength.

Mildred Twining met Johnny away from his home and conceived a great liking for him. Johnny fell deeply in love with her and proposed to her. But there was one thing wanting in him that Mildred wished in a husband, and on this account his case hung fire. She wanted a man with Johnny's intellect and delectable gentleness, but with a latent strength that might be aroused on occasion. Johnny begged hard for a favorable answer to his suit, but could not induce the girl to give it to him. However, she had a friend in the town where he lived whom she had promised to visit and told Johnny that when she arrived he might come to see her. This gave him a faint hope that she might relent.

But when Mildred appeared and Johnny renewed his pleadings he received the same reply, and she told him frankly that he was everything she required save that courage and strength that a woman craves in her protector. Johnny went home and poured his disappointment into his brother's sympathetic ear. Tom, who did not at all value his vigor and would have gladly exchanged it for his brother's intellectual and winning qualifications, sympathized with him deeply. The two talked the matter over, and Tom wished he could transfer enough of his blacksmithian traits to Johnny to enable him to win the prize he coveted. However, he said something to the latter that put an idea into his head.

One morning Johnny and Mildred were strolling idly together through the suburban town in which the former lived, Johnny pleading, Mildred putting him off for the same reason as before. Approaching a house where a man sat smoking and looking out through an open window, he glanced at the coming couple, arose from his chair and emerged from the front door in time to meet them. As he passed he looked impudently at Mildred and said:

"You're a beaut, but you've got a measly chap for a feller."

The blood rushed into Mildred's cheeks. But before she could show any further resentment Johnny jumped for the insulter and landed a blow on his chin. The man who received it was large and strong, but he cowered before Johnny.

"A man who will insult a lady," said Johnny with a ring of courage in his voice that had never been heard there before, "is a coward, and if I am a measly chap I can whip even as big a coward as you."

With that Johnny went at the fellow like a fury. His enemy seemed to lose all sense of advantage of his steel muscles and was so slow in his movements that Johnny got in three blows to his one. And whenever he aimed one that would have finished Johnny the latter sprang nimbly aside.

Mildred looked on this singular encounter astonished. As she gazed Johnny planted a blow on her insulter's jaw that sent him sprawling Johnny jumped on him and held him down glaring at him like a demon.

"Hand me that stone, please," Johnny said to Mildred, "and I'll mash his head to a jelly."

"I'll do no such thing," was the reply. "Do you want to be hanged for murder?"

"Murder! Is it murder to kill a dog? I'm going to gouge his eyes out!" And Johnny put his thumbs to the sides of his enemy's eyes. The man seemed to have lost all power to save himself and looked up at his little enemy in terror. Mildred, dreading to see his eyes gouged out and to save her lover from such a horrid crime, took him by the collar and dragged him off his enemy. The craven slunk away, Johnny calling after him:

"You keep out of my way after this if you don't want to get killed. The next time I run across you I'm going to finish the job. I'd do it now if it weren't for the intercession of the young lady you insulted."

The man said nothing, apparently desirous of putting distance between him and his fierce little enemy as quickly as possible.

The episode made Johnny Atherton a perfect man in the eyes of Mildred Twining, and within two hours after it occurred the two were engaged, but only after Johnny's solemn promise that if he again met the fellow who had given the insult he would let him alone.

When preparations were being made for the wedding, Johnny made an appointment to bring his best man to call upon his fiancee. The friend was a big, burly man, strong as an ox, and Mildred was astonished to recognize in him her insulter.

"My brother!" Johnny announced.

That the fight had been a putup job was evident, but the bride had gone too far to withdraw.

Johnny hurried up the wedding, for now that Mildred knew which was the strong man he feared his brother would cut him out, such is woman's admiration for manly strength

NELSON'S COOLNESS.

A Dangerous Fire Aboard His Ship Didn't Excite the Admiral.

Two or three days before the battle of Trafalgar a boy on the Victory carelessly set fire to a bottle of ether. The result was that the flames extended to some sails and also to a part of the ship. There was a general confusion—running with buckets and what not—and, to make matters worse, the fire was becoming dangerous, as it was rapidly extending to the powder magazine.

During the hubbub Lord Nelson was in the chief cabin writing dispatches. His lordship heard the noise—he could not do otherwise—and so in a loud voice he called out:

"What's all that noise about?"

The boatswain answered:

"My lord, the loblolly boy's set fire to an empty bottle and it's set fire to the ship."

"Oh!" said Nelson. "That's all, is it? I thought the enemy had boarded us and taken us all prisoners. You and loblolly must put it out and take care we're not blown up. But pray make as little noise about it as you can or I can't go on with my dispatches." And with these words Nelson went to his desk and continued his writing with the greatest coolness.

Meridians Run Due North and South.

A man "following the absolute line of the tenth meridian east from the north to the south pole" would travel due south and never southeast or southwest so long as he remained on the meridian upon which he started. If on the tenth meridian east, for instance, his angular distance from the meridian of Greenwich does not change. He is always 10 degrees east of that meridian from one pole to the other. He could only travel southeast or southwest by departing from that meridian on one side or the other.—New York American Perturbation.

"Don't you want to leave any footprints in the sands of time?"

"I don't know," replied Senator Sorghum. "There's so much sleuthing going on that a man gets shy of a thumb print, a footprint and even of leave to print."—Washington Star.

First Game of Season

City "Indians" Meet White Earth Indains Here Sunday. Fast Game Assured.

By "Flip."

Sunday afternoon the local followers of base ball will be treated to a whirlwind diamond battle, when the local team opens the season in this city against the Indians from the White Earth Reservation.

The local boys are putting up a mighty fast article of ball for so early in the season. In the game last Sunday against the Tigers the spectators were treated to some of the fastest infield work ever seen on the local diamond. During the entire contest not a single ball got away from the inner circle. Christy and Aasland at 3rd base and Cole at short played stellar ball. Lambert who has been brought in from the outfield is putting up a strong game at second. Jordan, one of the new men, looks like a find at first base and is holding down the place like a veteran. The outfield is as yet a little uncertain but with such an aggregation as Johnson, Jaranson, Herrick, Hess, Erickson and "Ty" Cobb II to pick from it is certain that the outer garden will be well cared for. The battery proposition has been solved with the acquisition of Kennedy and Kallock, two ligeable young fellows and dandy ball players.

It is hoped that a large crowd will take in the opening game and help the boys along in their efforts to give Thief River a winning ball club. A little encouragement and boosting at this time will give the club a good start. A good start you know is half the race.

The game will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock at the Fair Grounds. Admission will be only 25c to men, women and children. Remember the bigger the crowd the better the team can play.

WHY TAXES ARE NECESSARY

"Everyone Should Contribute To The General Expense In Proportion To His Ability To Pay."

Organized society, usually called government, has many objects besides securing to people the "right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." To attain these ends it frames policies promotive of the general welfare and it devises ways and means to defray the cost of carrying out its policies. The latter is the age-long problem of taxation.

It is a general policy of government to do these things for all which no one could do as well or at as low cost for oneself. For instance it establishes public schools under that policy. To secure to all the "right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" it must preserve order, insure enjoyment of those rights, protect individuals and property. To do this it has to establish and maintain courts and their staffs of officials. To give effect to these and the many other functions of government public buildings must be erected and maintained, land and material bought and a large number of persons employed, all of which must be paid for.

Organized society has no other way to obtain the money with which to defray these costs than by compelling those who get the benefits to contribute the money. It cannot "make money." It can borrow it, but that merely defers to a future time the call upon the citizen. Without money to carry on its activities government could not exist and society would relapse into the barbarism from which its organizing redeemed it. This is the inescapable condition that makes taxation necessary.

Out of the experiements of governments in the past, modern governments have come to derive revenue

Early Adjourment Not Likely

Legislative Program Far From Completed. Vice Pres. Sherman Likes Baseball.

Washington, D. C., May 18.—With the Democratic legislative programe far from completed, the prophesies of those who predicted an adjournment of Congress not later than June 15 are likely to go amiss. Those who are studying the political skies and the congressional situation here in Washington are not as optimistic of an early adjournment as they were three or four months ago. In the early part of the session the talk was that Congress would get down to business so as to be ready to return home before the national conventions In support of this prospect of adjournment about June 15th, ancient history was cited, and the "oldest member" vouchshafed that as long as he remembered Congress had never known to run beyond the time of the party conventions. But unusual things are happening in this year of 1912, and just to keep pace with the "unusual" Congress has evidently taken it into its head to disregard all precedents, as well as the "oldest member," and, just stay in session as long as it pleases.

There are several reasons, in addition to the discomforts of hot weather, that prompted members of Congress to indulge the hope that they might take their departure (along with the cedar boxes) about the middle of June. In the first place, they are all as intensely interested in the two big conventions as, Vice President Sherman, the genial presiding officer of the Senate is in a base ball game, or a small boy in a circus. It was just the other day that Sherman accosted an unsuspecting Senator, requesting that he occupy the chair of the presiding officer that afternoon. It was absolutely necessary that he attend the funeral of his grandmother. The accomodating Senator complied with the request and not a long time afterwards the smiling face of the Vice President was seen at a base ball game.

Aside from their deep interest in presidential conventions, Congressmen want to get home to look after their political fences. They want to see the "folks." Many of them have fights on their hands this coming fall, and, if the session is prolonged into the summer months, they fear they will not be able to get away in time to repair their political bulwarks. But despite political conventions and the desire to return home, Congress persists in dragging along. The flag which floats over the Senate end of the Capitol, when that august body is in session, is scarcely ever displayed until the hour of two o'clock arrives. Recently the Senate has been convening earlier. The House meets at noon.

This does not mean that Congress has been idle. Far from it. It must be remembered that most of the legislative grind is done in the committee rooms. The Senate and House chambers are merely the clearing houses. Of recent years the channels of legislative procedure have been greatly clogged by reason of the big appropriation bills. The business side of the nation is assuming such great proportions that the House finds itself busy most of the time taking care of the big appropriation bills necessary to run the various branches of the government. At this writing there are still four appropriations measures to be acted upon by the lower House.

While it is true that the house has a big job on its hands in tackling the thirteen or fourteen big appropriation bills, besides delvink into other legislative matters, still there is always the temptation to play politics, especially in a presidential year. That is what the House members and Senators, as well, have been doing this session. If you read the Daily Congressional Record, which at times makes lively and spicy reading, you cannot fail to observe that many of its pages enlivened with animated and sparkling debate of a political nature. This despite the charge of some that the Record is about as interesting as a last year's almanac. The bound volumes of the present session will contain their full quota of animated discussion, heated debate, wit and repartee. Both Republicans and Democrats have been playing politics for many a day and playing it strong. While the political game as presented in the House and Senate makes an interesting and fascinating spectacle for the galleries, and red-hot political literature for the country at large, yet it seriously interferes with the progress of legitimate legislation. The legislative wheels grind slowly, and laboriously when political parties are doing their utmost to capture the presidency.

It was announced the other day that the House and Senate had reached a tentative agreement whereby a recess would be taken June 15, for three days at a time, until after the Chicago and Baltimore conventions had been held. Under this plan Congress would resume its work July 1st and be in session until August 15. It is pointed out by the advocates of an early adjournment that Congress has been known to transact an immense amount of work in a short space of time. When necessary the mills can grind very rapidly. Both House and Senate may put on steam at any time.

Roosevelt Carries Minnesota

Pennington, Kittson, Norman and Clearwater Stand Solid for LaFollette.

Conventions are marked with a degree of perfect Harmony

This has been Republican convention week and despite the local sentiment being strongly La Follette the state is practically unamious for Roosevelt, only one delegate at large representing the cause of the Wisconsin man.

Monday had considerable local interest and will be long remembered by the La Follette forces and after the convention was over, Pennington county held the distinction of being one out of four counties who stood by the father of progressiveism to the end.

Nevertheless a psudeo progressive carried the ninth congressional district convention held in this city on Wednesday and also the state convention yesterday.

The delegates to the National Convention at Chicago from the 9th congressional district, comprising the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Beltrami, Clearwater, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Mahnomen, Norman, Becker, Ottertail, Clay and Wilkin, will be Senator A. L. Hanson of Ada, delegate-at-large and Lyken of Bemidji and Stevens of Warren representing the district direct.

The county convention of Pennington county was called to order by the Hon. Daniel Shaw at 11:30 on Monday. The progressives immediately took charge by electing G. Halvorson chairman and Louis Lonson secretary. With the exception of a few remarks everything was harmonious and absolutely controlled by the progressive wing.

The district convention was harmonious in a sense being however, dominated by the Roosevelt forces. After the usual amount of wire pulling a slate was formed and A. G. Anderson of Ottertail was elected chairman and R. J. Bell of Roseau, secretary. The committees for various purposes were appointed and reported after the customary noon recess.

The note worthy features of this convention was the fact that after they had instructed their delegation for Roosevelt they named Hobert M. La Follette as their second choice. Every body went home feeling that this was possibly the most harmonious convention that one could possibly imagine.

The state convention held yesterday was carried out from A to Z as slated. Five delegates at large were elected who were Roosevelt men with our Senator Hanson as the lone guard of true progressiveism.

The one remarkable feature of Minnesota Republicanism as mirrored by the conventions just described is the fact that Pres. Taft, tho a candidate for reelection, passed practically unnoticed. While the state machine, as well as a number of smaller county machines, that have always been looked upon as the ex-officio dictators of the Republican party, were placed in the background and for once people will not be able to say that he who votes the Republican ticket votes for a boss made ticket.

A BOOST FOR PENNINGTON COUNTY

Our Commercial Club has made a move in the right direction by accepting the splendid adversiting offer, made by Mr. E. A. Schilling the St. Paul Dispatch representative.

Pennington County will get a full page agricultural writeup in the Farmers Weekly Dispatch.

This is the ideal paper for this kind of advertising, as it reaches the very class of people from which we derive most of our settlers.

The Farmers Weekly Dispatch has a circulation of 110,000 its readers are nearly all farmers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

The cash value of such a write up would be $520.

It is certainly no more than fair that every business man or taxpayer in Pennington County show his appreciation of this excellent offer, by giving Mr. Schilling the support and co-operation he asks in consideration for this valuable writeup.

May Have Been Salesman

Skeleton Tallies With Missing Salesman Sent Out By Crookston Marble Works Four Years Ago.

It would appear from information gathered this week that the skeleton found west of the city is that of a salesman sent out by the Crookston MarbleWorks four years ago last November. Chief of police, Erickson, endeavored to find out the man's name and whether he had interested relatives, but has not succeeded thus far.

Four years ago last November a raw-boned man, with sandy-grey hair, age about forty years, weight 160 pounds, and dressed in clothes identical with those found on the skeleton, was hired as a salesman by A. T. Nesne, manager of the Crookston Marble Works, and started out with a horse and buggy furnished by the company. The man stopped at Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls, putting up his horse in Sundahl's barn and ordering that good care be taken of it, and himself stopping at the Northern Hotel.

It is said that the last seen of the man he was walking out towards the "red light" district. He has never been seen since that day. I. G. Sands then connected with the marble works at Crookston and now manager of the local marble works, was sent here to look up the man, but could not find any trace of him whatsoever.

When asked what were the impressions he had received of the man, Mr. Sands said: "He appeared to be perfectly rational and a man that would conscientiously work for the best interests of the company, otherwise he woud not have been hired. He looked like a saving man and may have had considerable money on him. Your description tallies exactly with that of the man we hired."

Look Here Norwegians

Meeting will be held at the Auditorium May 22d at 8 p. m., in behalf of "Mindegaven" to Norway's one-hundred anniversary.

Adelsten Berge, well known for his lectures, singing, and harp playing, in company with his daughter, Ruth Berge, an accomplished musician vocal and instrumental, will entertain on occasion.

It is self evident, that every Norwegian will take pride in honoring Mother Norway on her one-hundred Anniversary, and consequently every Norwegian of city and vicinity are expected to be present at this meeting.

Great Demand For Farmers

If the state agricultural school had three times as many students as it has, they could all get places to work, at $1,200 a year or more. Dean Woods has been beseiged with requests for suggestions of students who know how to farm. Usually a graduate of a law school thinks he is doing well to earn $1,200 at the end of several years out of college.

Saint Paul Adopts Commission Form

Saint Paul adopted the commission form of government at the election last week. It is the largest city in the country to be ruled by commissioners. The new form does not go into effect until June 1914, the officers just elected serving their full time.

Mr. Olaus Jacobson left Thursday evening for Indianapolis to attend the National Socialist Convention.

Commercial Club Talks "Tranfer"

Judge Mills of State Railway Commission Gives Assurance of Transfer Between Soo and Great Northern.

The Commercial club meeting last Friday evening was one of the largest in point of attendance that has been held since the organization of the club. A spirit of harmony and good fellowship pervaded the meeting and as evidence of this it was decided to hold two meetings a month instead of one as heretofore.

Many things of interest and importance were discussed. After many and diverse communications had been read and disposed of, Mr. Herrick of the Thief River Grocery Co. brot up the question of a transfer between the Soo line and the Great Northern Railway. Several of the large shippers of the city have made repeated efforts to get the competing roads to put in a Y, but always without any result. It was therefore decided to take the matter up with the State Raiway commission. Mr. Shaw reported that this was a very opportune time as Judge Ira B. Mills, one of the members, was at the Hotel Evelyn A committee, consisting of Math Baren, C. L. Hansen, F. E. Herrick, and J. H. McKinney, was appointed by Pres. Fuller to wait upon the Judge and to lay the matter before him. While this committee was out, the question of petitioning the Western Union Telegraph Company for an uptown office was discussed, and a committee of two, G. T. Almen and Robt. McGinn, was appointed to frame and circulate such a petition. The telephone situation was discussed and while all agreed that Thief River Falls should have a real telephone exchange at once, there was some difference of opinion as to how it should be had. Two of our banker members expressed themselves in favor of selling the franchise to the highest bidder, and using the money thus received for other needed improvements. Others were strong in their support of a municipal plant. At this juncture the committee sent to interview Judge Mills returned and reported that he had promised to see to it that Thief River Falls gets a transfer track. After deciding that the secretary should write and remind President Pennington of the long promised new railway station, the meeting adjourned.

MINNESOTA'S GOLD MINE

This State Produced Butter Worth $33,610,000 In 1909. Dairymen and Farmers Co-operate.

The North Star state produced more butter in 1909 than all the New England states together according to compilation of figures just issued by the department of commerce and labor at Washington. The amount made was 125,180,000 pounds valued at $33,610,000. In spite of the fact that Iowa and Wisconsin each is credited with producing more butter, the amount received was largest for Minnesota, showing the high quality of the product of this state.

Dairymen are co-operating with farmers in all parts of the state to maintain the high standard which this state has set for butter making. Farmers are keeping their cream at a uniform temperature from the time it is milked until delivery at the creamery and are protecting it against dirt. Every pure bred herd in the state is free from tuberculosis and the state authorities are bending every effort to keep the stock clean.

Minnesota leads in Movement.

It will be of interest to every citizen of the state to know that twenty states have followed the lead of Minnesota in interesting bankers in the cause of agricultural education. The State bankers association has done much to extend agricultural high schools here.

RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

* * * * * * * * * *

Attentionof our farm boys is called to the following announcement of the State Fair Association:

The Minnesota State Agricultural Society will be host to one farm boy from each county during the 1912 state fair. The board of managers has decided that in no other way can it do a greater work for the upbuilding of the agricultural districts of the state than by assisting to educate deserving boys.

With this end in view, funds have been appropriated which will be used in paying the railroad fare and caring for one boy from each county of the state, who, united, will form what will be known as the Farm Boys' State Fair Encampment.

This educational plan was tried last year by a few state fair managements, notably by New York and Illinois. It proved immensely successful. It aroused unusual interest and was pronounced by all to be a move in the right direction. The experience of these fairs has been considered by theMinnesota management and with it as a basis they have worked out their own ideas and a new plan. While the rules for the Farm Boys' State Fair Encampment have not been completed the main features have been decided upon and the details will be worked out in the near future.

The committee in charge of the encampment is made up of Director F. W. Murphy, President C. W. Glotfelter, Secretary J. C. Simpson, and Director Thos. H. Canfield. Working with them is E. C. Higbie, Superintendent of the agricultural school at Morris, Minn. Mr. Higbie has been selected to have personal management of the encampment for the fair board and will supervise the selection of the lucky lads and their care and entertainment while on the fair grounds.

The first step in carrying out the plan will be the selecting of a committee in each county who will pass on the tests submitted and select the boy who is to represent that county at the state fair encampment. This committee will consist, in each county of the county superintendent of schools, the chairman of the board of county commissioners and a third member, to be appointed by the state fair board. The competition for membership in the encampment will be limited to:

1st. Boys of good character of from sixteen to nineteen years of age.

2nd. Boys living on farms and who have a desire to make farming a life work.

3rd. Boys who have not been regularly enrolled in any special school of agriculture (this does not exclude boys who have received agricultural instruction in regualr graded or high schools).

4th. Boys who will be willing to cooperate with the fair management to make their visit of value to all concerned and to that end will be willing to put themselves under the supervision and direction of the camp management.

Any boy who complies with these qualifications can etner the competition to represent his county at the encampment. In order to do this he must file an application with his county committee not later than June 15th.

In each county all applicants will be asked to write an essay of from four to six hundred words on the subject "Our Farm Home." Subdivisions under this title will be as follows:

1st. Describe the home.

2nd. Why I desire to remain there

3rd. What changes may be made in the present system of carrying on this farm to insure better financial results.

4th. What may be done to make our farm life more enjoyable.

These papers will be judged by each county committee and the writer of the one awarded first prize will be selected as the boy who will visit the state fair at the expense of the fair management. It is proposed to provide the eighty-six visiting boys with uniforms and to furnish them with comfortable sleeping quarters and all they want to eat. In addition to this they will be allowed to see the fair and to thoroughly study all of its features. They will visit the different educational departments under the charge of well informed tutors and be taught valuable lessons in up-to-date farming. It is also proposed to divide the boys into squads and to use them in details as ushers in the grandstand and livestock pavilion.

After the boys have returned home, each one will be asked to write an essay on what he has learned at the state fair. These will be turned over to the state fair management and passed upon by unbiased judges. There will be several prizes offered for the best essays and each of the winners will be presented with something of practical value in the way of farm implements or high grade livestock.

Read this article over several times and then make up your mind to enter the competition at once. Begin now, write legibly and do not forget to report your name at once to the County Supt. He will inform you further as to date of examination, etc.

Attention of our schools is also called to the Second State High school examination, which will be held Friday, Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 24, to 29th. Let every school, wanting to take the examination report number of pupils and subjects in which to write, report to this office at your earliest convenience

Respectively submitted,
E. A. Mostue.

ALABASTINE
The Sanitary Wall Coating

Alabastine is the only wall covering that is absolutely sanitary. It is not stuck on the wall with animal glue as are the various kalsomines sold under fanciful names, but goes thru a process of SETTING and CEMENTS to, instead of being STUCK on the wall; hence it does not harbor disease germs or breed insects, as do kalsomines held to the wall with glue, or wall-paper, tapestries, or oilcloth coverings, usually fastened to the wall with vegetable paste.

Alabastine permits the free passage of air thru the walls which keeps them constantly in a healthful condition. Alabastine is not a kalsomine.

THE ORDINARY MAN.

Some of the Snags He Struck In His Journey Through Life.

The ordinary man walked into a florist's shop and, pointing to a beautiful flowering plant, asked its price.

"That Duodecimum floriatum?" asked the florist as nearly as the ordinary man understood him. "It is worth a dollar."

He dropped in at his physician's office and requested that gentleman to tell what was the matter with him.

"Oh, you've just got a slight manifestation of Nasopharyngeal combiemmerus," the doctor said, or words to that apparent effect.

The ordinary man stopped to look at an automobile, and the agent said:

"You see, the differential is set at a tangent to the assimilator, and that brings the obloid paralleling clute in diametric connection with the swiveling trunnion," as nearly as the ordinary man caught the remark.

The ordinary man consulted his lawyer.

"We will appeal to have the decision reversed," declared the attorney, "on the grounds of lex judicatum non contendre posse comitatus." At least that is what the ordinary man gathered.

So he became so bewildered over the way things are told to ordinary people that he was careless when he crossed the street and was run down by an automobile being demonstrated by the agent and was picked up and carried into the doctor's office and called the lawyer to make his will, and later the florist got an order.

And, to pursue him still further, they carved on his monument, "Requiescat In Pace."—Chicago Post.

Standard of Persian Beauty.

"Great care is taken that the Persian girl shall conform to the recognized standard of beauty, which requires her to have a cypress waist, a full moon face, gazelle eyes and eyebrows that meet," says a traveler. "Her eyes, brows and hair must be black as night, her lips, cheeks and gums as red as blood, her skin and teeth as white as almonds and her back, limbs and fingers long. If these conditions are naturally absent they are supplied as far as possible by art. Persian women are always painted, their eyes darkened with khol and their fingers stained with henna."—Chicago News.

Cannon Ball Trees.

One of the most remarkable plants in the world is the cannon ball tree, to be found in British Guiana. The natural height of the tree reaches to eighty or a hundred feet or even taller. The fruit is a hard globular capsule, seven inches or more in diameter, containing numbers of flat, circular seeds rather larger than a dime. It resembles a thirty-two pound shot, is brown in color and very rough

That Loaded Revolver.

"And you didn't know it was loaded?"

"No, judge, I swear I didn't."

"But before pointing it at the deceased, why did you not look into the barrel to see whether or not it was loaded?"

"Why, judge, that would have been a fool thing to do! It might have exploded and killed me."—Houston Post.

Drew a Crowd.

"I once woke up, if not to find myself famous, at least to find myself attracting considerable attention."

"How was that?"

"I had fallen asleep on a hotel veranda with my mouth wide open."—Washington Herald.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

The flood situation generally in the lower Mississippi valley is much improved. Another day of sunshine gave the workers on the levees some advantage and reports are favorable. Pitiful tales of refugees continue to come in, however, from many sections. There are now 4,000 refugees at Baton Rouge, La. About 500 were taken there from Newroads, to which place they had been sent from the surrounding territory.

The Big Sioux river at Sioux Falls, S. D., was the scene of the drowning of four young men—Matt Yost, William Dahl, John Needham and Guy Beck. In a spirit of fun and daring the four young men, who were in two boats, two in each, attempted to shoot over a small dam in the heart of the business district and all four perished.

Two children were killed when a can of gasoline was overturned and exploded in the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Wardlow at White Earth, N. D. Their five-months-old and two-year-old daughters were the victims.

Three men were killed and twenty seriously injured by an explosion at the central furnace of the American Steel and Wire company at Cleveland. Some of the injured may die.

Seventeen lives are known to have been lost in the Torras (La.) crevasse in the Mississippi levee. Fourteen negroes lost their lives in the Lettsworth neighborhood.

Four little girls living on a farm about four miles north of Black Creek, Wis., met death in a gravel pit.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

President Taft took a decided step toward revision of the patent laws which have remained practically unchanged since 1870. He sent a special message to congress asking for legislation to authorize him to appoint a commission to investigate the patent laws and report what changes were necessary to make them fit modern conditions.

The supreme court of the United States affirmed without argument the judgment obtained in Nebraska by Osro Castle for injuries received while working for the Missouri Pacific Railway company. By so doing the court upheld the constitutionality of the Nebraska employers' liability law.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

Peter Walker, a wealthy contractor who recently completed a large part of the government work at the Yuma irrigation dam, was shot and killed at Los Angeles, Cal., by Mrs. Anna Dewey of Haskell, O., said to be a daughter of a former congressman. Mrs. Dewey then committed suicide. The tragedy occurred in the apartments of the woman.

CIPHER MESSAGES.

Rules That Will Help an Amateur to Read the Riddles.

Writing in cipher, where letters or figures or characters, grotesque or otherwise, are used to form the words, while it may look formidable to the uninitiated is really not difficult to solve if one will tackle it with care and patience.

The proper way to set about reading an unknown cipher is to find the letter or figure that occurs oftenest. This is sure to be "e," as "e" is by far the commonest letter in the language. The second commonest is "t," and if you find a three letter or three figure batch often of which the last is "e" and the first "t" the middle letter or figure is sure to stand for "h." Any letter or figure standing alone must, on clear reasoning, be "I" or "o" or "a."

The second commonest three letter word in a message of any length is sure to be "and," which gives you three more letters for addition to the alphabet.

Remembering that the commonest doubles are "ee," "oo" and "ff" (in the order given) and the commonest two letter words are "he," "by," "or," "as," "at" and "an" (in the order given), a person should be able to solve almost any cipher message.

News About Two Great Men.

Even Franklin himself would be surprised at the following information gathered from a freshman's essay:

"Franklin's education was got by himself. He worked himself up to be a great literal man. He was also able to invent electricity. Franklin's father was a tallow chandelier."

This followed:

"Sir Walter Raleigh was put out once when his servant found him with fire in his head. And one day after there had been a lot of rain, he threw his cloak in a puddle and the queen stepped dryly over."—Everybody's.

A Kingdom For a Horse.

The king of England owes his crown to a horse's shoe. The act of settlement by which in 1701 parliament elected the house of Hanover to the British throne, passed the commons by only one majority. This deciding vote was given by Sir Arthur Owen, M. P. for Pembrokeshire, third of his title, who rode post haste from Wales for the purpose. He had relays of fresh horses all along the route, but arrived, dusty and travel worn, at Westminster barely in time to the very minute. Had one of his horses gone lame or cast a shoe he would have been too late.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy more than now. This is shown by the increase in sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by all Dealers.

Trapped.

"John, did you post that letter I gave you this morning?"

"Yes, dear," said John without looking up from his paper.

"Well, what is your answer?"

"Wh-what?"

"What is your answer? That letter was directed to you."

"Wh-what, do you say? Directed to me? I didn't notice it."

And as John in amazement took it out of his pocket to verify his wife's assertion he saw that he had been caught again. It was not addressed to him.—Buffalo Express.

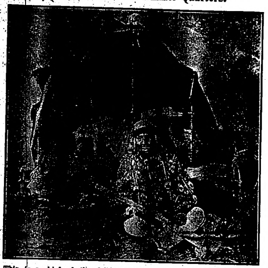
Why He Had to Have an Office.

An inherited fortune and the disposal of an organized business enabled a well known Chicagoan to retire. He had the inclination for leisure, but could not surrender the idea of having a definite business abiding spot. He rented an office in a lofty building and went to Europe. After a six months' absence he returned, looked the building over and went to South America. Then after again verifying the report that the building was not crumbling, he took a jaunt to Japan. Not long ago one of his old cronies said:

"Frank, why don't you give up your office? You don't need it."

"That's true," said Frank. "I would give it up, but I don't know what to do with the rug."—Chicago Post.

Chief Wa-de-na in Summer Quarters.



This is a chief of the full-blood White Earth Indians. They constitute less than one-fourth of the tribe, a majority of the White Earth Chippewas being more white than Indian. Gus Beaulieu, whom Congressman Graham said it was a joke to call an Indian, is very near an average mixed-blood. The full-blood Indians are the ones who are reported diseased and destitute. That they are diseased has been known for years, and Congressman Steenerson and others have tried to get the Indian Bureau to help them. If they are destitute it is the fault of the authorities on the reservation, for they have power to and are expected to issue rations to those in need.

They were not affected by the Clapp act, which provides that only mixed-bloods could sell their lands. The effort to connect their disease with the land legislation is ridiculous. They have been diseased for a generation, and they could not possibly be destitute if the Indian agent issues the rations that are paid for from the tribal fund.

DEMOCRATIC STATE AND COUNTY CONVENTION CALL

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Democratic State Central Committee at a metting regularly held in the City of St. Paul, on March 19, 1912, a Democratic delegate State Convention is hereby called to meet in the city of Duluth, Minnesota, on Thursday, June 6th, 1912 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, for the purpose of naming eighteen district delegates and six delegates at large, and eighteen district alternate delegates and six alternate delegates at large to attend the National Democratic Convention to be held in Baltimore, Maryland, June 25th, 1912.

All voters of Minnesota without regard to past political affiliations, who now believe in the policies, are cordially invited to assist in the selection of delegates to this convention.

Each county is entitled to two delegates at large in the said state convention, and an additional delegate for each 125 votes or major fraction thereof cast within that county for Hon. William J. Bryan as the Democratic presidential candidate in 1908.

In accordance with above apportionment, Pennington County will be entitled to two delegates at large, and six additional delegates to the said Democratic State Convention.

These delegates, with alternates, shall be selected at the Democratic County Convention for Pennington County to be held in the Odd Fellows building in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, Wednesday, May 29, 1912 at 2:00 P. M.

The several voting precincts of Pennington County are entitled to the following representation at the State Democratic County Convention.

These delegates shall be selected at Primaries held at the regular polling place in each voting precinct in Pennington County, on Saturday, May 25th, 1912, between the hours of 6:00 and 8:00 o'clock P. M.

By order of the County Central Committee of Pennington County, Minnesota.

W. B. Fuller,
Chairman.

N. W. Tarrant,
Secretary.

It is requested that an earnest effort be made in the several precincts of Pennington County, to send a full delegation to this Democratic County Convention, as matters of importance relative to the coming fall elections are to be discussed.

It is also further requested that each and every voter in Pennington County, who favors democratic principles, and hopes for the election of democratic candidates on City, State and National tickets at the coming elections, should communicate as soon as possible with either the Secretary or chairman.

W. B. FULLER,
Chairman.

N. W. TARRANT,
Secretary.

HOG CHOLERA SERUM

There appears to be a strong probability of general and heavy losses from hog-cholera during the coming season. Our hog-cholera season in Minnesota usually begins about June and is at its worst during September and October.

There is now available to owners a practical method of protecting hogs against cholera by the use of hog-cholera serum.

Hog raisers interested in the nature and method of using the treatment may secure full particulars by addressing:

LECTURE ON SOCIALISM

Leon Durcher, Candidate for Congress from the 1st Congressional District of N. Dak., will be in the city next Wednesday and will give a lecture on Socialism in the evening. The local socialists expect that a large assembly will greet him at that time as all the socialists locals in this county will have their delegates here that day to attend the County Organization Convention of their party. He is a live wire and his explanations of "How Laws are Made" bear a great deal of conviction with them as he has had the requisite experience as Assistant Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives and as Journal Clerk in the Senate in North Dakota.

The W. C. T. U. meets next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Walter Quist.

Personal Liberty.

The liquor men have much to say about personal liberty of an American citizen, but how about the personal liberty of the future citizens—the hundredsand thousands of children who are deprived of their rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, through the liquor evil, and who receive their education on the street, to be promoted later to the reform schools and state's prisons.

Even if the saloon paid every cent of the cost these institutions bring upon the tax-payers, it could not transformthese mentally marked and morally perverted children who were reared in homes that are held in the remorseless clutches of the whiskey trust.

PUNISHED THE SHREW.

Story of the Vixen's Head That Decorates a House in Berlin.

In Berlin, as a tourist turns into the Heiligengeist, not far from the kaiser's palace, he will see, fixed in a niche in the second story of the house No. 38, a bust carved in stone. This is called the "Neidkopf." It represents a hideous, happy faced woman, with snakelike curls of hair and tongue sticking out in mocking derision. This is the story of its origin and purpose:

One day almost 200 years ago Frederick William of Prussia, "Old Fritz," was walking about the streets of his city in the shabby, free and easy way he loved, looking about for some grievance to redress or some load to lighten, which was an agreeable habit of this plain living king. Looking in at a window, he was struck by the intent industry of a humpbacked goldsmith, and so the king entered the little shop for a chat. The result of this interview was an order for a gold table service for the royal household, which made the fortune of the hunchback. Later the king made other visits to see ho wthe work was progressing and on one of these occasions noticed a woman in the window of the opposite house, making the most hideous grimaces and pointing a derisive finger at the little cripple.

"What is the matter with the shrew over there?" asked Frederick William.

"It is envy, your majesty," exclaimed the goldsmith. "She is the wife of a rival goldsmith, and ever since your majesty gave me this order she and her daughter have not ceased to mock and deride me.

Frederick William, paternal in punishment as well as in reward, at once made inquiries as to the ownership of the house wherein this shrew lived. He found that it belonged to her husband, and therefore reasoned that there was little likelihood of the family moving. This seemed to please him. He next enlisted the services of a sculptor and ordered him to make the bust of a woman with the most shrewish, Xantippe like face he could imagine. The king then bought and renovated the house in which the hunchback had his workshop, presented it to him and caused the bust to be placed conspicuously above the workroom window. Thus whenever the envious woman across the street looked forth from her casement the first thing on which her eyes fell was this intended portrait of her amiable self.

For more than 100 years the "Neidkopf," "spiteful vixen head," as one would say in English, stood in proud prominence, a reproach to the envious Frau Goldschmied and her descendants. It afterward mysteriusly disappeared, but in 1840 or thereabouts it was found again in a forgotten collection of bric-a-brac. Frederick William IV. bought the bust for a very large price and had it replaced in its original niche, where it stands today. —New York Press.

Chateaubriand's Tragedy.

Writing on M. Chateaubriand in the Paris Temps, Jules Claretie recalls the story of the first performance of the great author's tragedy "Moise." Unable to secure its production in Paris, he had it staged at Versailles. Too nervous to be present in the house on the occasion, he sent his valet with orders to return and report as to the reception of the piece. The servant duly arrived.

"Well?" asked Chateaubriand.

"Ah, M. le Vicomte, I amused myself! I spent a most delightful evening."

"It was a success, then?"

"A success, M. le Vicomte? Of course it was a success. It was an immense success. The audience never stopped laughing from the beginning to the end of it."

Enigma of Gravitation.

Gravitation is one of nature's enigmas. The great Newton himself did not pretend to know what gravitation is. He only knew that it existed, and he was able to prove how it acted, but what it was in and of itself he never knew. Gravitation is a law of nature or a force acting in accordance with a law of nature, and that is all that the wisest man is able to say about it—unless he is prepared to talk nonsense. It is like electricity. We know perfectly well what electricity does, but what electricity itself is baffles the profoundest of scientists and philosophers.—New York American.

Merely a Suggestion.

The second hand dealer looked the car over carefully and then made his offer.

"I'll take the machinery of the motor," he said, "but I don't want the rest of it."

"But," said Wiggins, "what'll I do with my body?"

"Your body?" said the dealer, "why, I don't know. You ought to consult an undertaker about that."—Harper's Weekly.

Why Taxes are Necessary

mainly by two methods, one the direct, the other the indirect method of taxing. The direct tax is based upon Adam Smith's third principle that "everyone should contribute to the general expense in proportion to his ability to pay." In theory, although not always true in practice, ability to pay is measured by the amount and value of property owned by an individual and is known with us as the general property tax. The indirect method levies a tax on a commodity or service. Except where limit is put upuon what price be charged for commodity or service, those owning the one or rendering the other may add the tax to cost and, merged in price, pass it on to be paid by the consumer or the served. Of this form of taxation our gross earnings tax and the license paid by liquor dealers are illustrations.

The direct tax is intended to rest where paid and not be shifted on to others and, largely, this is true. It cannot be shifted where the person paying it cannot make the price of what he sells. It can be where that power exists, as with landlords, for instance, who may merge taxes in rentals, or money lenders who may make borrowers pay tax levied on credt instruments. But whichever method is adopted payment of the tax is essential to maintenance of government.

U. C. T. GAME

The Thief River Falls Commercial Travelers journeyed to Crookston Sunday with high hopes of trimming their brother travelers in a game of baseball, but fate was against the local men and they went down to defeat, 18 to 8. However, the local U. C. T's expect to get back at the Crookstonites to-morrow afternoon at 1:30 when a return game will be played at the fair grounds. If you want to see a fine exhibition of baseball and more fun than an Orpheum vaudeville act, be at the fair grounds tomorrow afternoon.

SCHOOL NOTES

Several commencement programs have recently been received from the rural schools. The Newfolden school, which has sent so many clever pupils to the local high school, graduates ten from its eighth grade. Any pupil presenting three state high school board certificates out of the four leading common school subjects will be enrolled in the high school, or a county diploma will also make the holder eligible to enter a high school.

Principal Smith of the Crookston high school visited local school people last week. He states that Crookston recently voted bonds to the amount of $150,000 for the erection of a new high school building. They enroll about twenty more high school pupils than does Thief River Falls and their rate of taxation for school purposes is greater than in the local district. Thief River, with 243 enrolled in high school employs ten high school teachers; while Crookston with about 266 high school students, has fourteen teachers.

About one-third of the year's enrollment in the first primary rooms has not made sufficient advancement to warrant promotion. These little children will, however, be advanced to the next grade about the middle of the next school year, if they show more maturity. The other two-thirds are stronger and completed the work of the first primary and the first grade by the end of this year and will enter second grade next September.

School Notes recently stated that either a first class commencement speaker, or none at all, would be secured. When Dr. Vincent stated he could not come, inquiry was made of the various lyceum bureaus, with the result that one of the strongest professional lecture has been obtained to deliver the address. He is Charles Howard Plattenburg and is under the exclusive control of the Chicago Lyceum Bureau. He is costing the graduating class quite a sum of money, but as the public patronized the class play generausly, the class is not charging anything to hear this high class man.

The closing exercises of the schools are governed somewhat by the fact the Mr. Plattenburg must speak here on the evening of Thursday, May 30. Class day exercises will take place at the Auduitorium on Wednesday, May 29th; graduation, on Thursday, May 30th; eighth grade graduation, in the Lincoln assembly at 8:30 p. m., on Tuesday, May 28th; and school closes on Friday, May 31st. State examinations for the high school and grammar grades will take place all the last week. There will be no school on Thursday, May 30th, that being Memorial day and a legal holiday.

The Lincoln campus is being decorated with shrubbery and hedges, and when the walks and fountain are completed, will present a most attractive appearance.

Several members of the high school sewing classes have recently completed neat dresses for themselves. School Notes believes that a high school course in English, literature, history and some science, plus a knowledge of sewing and cooking and household economy, with music and drawing, come as nearly providing a well balanced secondary education for girls as it is possible to secure in this United States.

Superintendent A. E. Freeman of Grand Rapids, Minn., spent last Friday visiting local teachers and schools

F. H. KRATKA,

TRUE IRISH BULLS.

They Have a Pungent Flavor Peculiar to the Green Isle.

BLUNDERS LINKED WITH WIT.

All Nations Mix Metaphors and Perpetrate Self Contradictory Figures of Speech, but the Emerald Brand Holds the Prize For Point and Vigor.

In "Bulls, Ancient and Modern," J. C. Percy, the author, contrasts the English and Irish variety to the advantage of the latter. Although the most diverting bulls are usually fathered upon Irishmen, they have not by any means a monopoly. All nations mix metaphors and fall into self contradictory blunders. Englishmen make bulls probably just as often as Irishmen, but there is a difference. The English ones are seldom amusing. The Irish ones almost always are.

Mr. Gladstone never hinted at Irish blood in his veins, yet he once warned an M. P. that it was no use for him "to shake his head in the teeth of his own words." Mr. Balfour has spoken of "an empty theater of unsympathetic auditors." Lord Randolph Churchill referred to an item of national credit as "a mere flea bite in the ocean of our expenditure." If further proof be called for it was a Yorkshireman who told a meeting of shareholders in some place of entertainment at Leeds that "they had been catering for a class which does not exist and which now goes to Bradford." It was an English chairman of a railway company who said "it would pay better to carry third class passengers for nothing rather than let the drawways go them."

"Why is it, then, that bulls are supposed to be native to Ireland? It can hardly be for the reason that they are supposed to take their name from a certain Obadiah Bull, an Irish barrister, who practiced in London during the eighteenth century. Mr. Percy accepts this derivation, though there is another which relates the name with the traditional remark of the timid woman who was "afraid to cross a field full of cows in case one of them might be a bull." That has the flavor of the true Irish bull. It is pungent, sharp to the point. The meaning flashes out quick and clear. Other bulls result from a lack of oil in the headworks. Irish bulls are really due to mental quickness, which takes a short cut rather than the high road and relies upon the hearers to show equal agility. That is why they leave an impression, while the bulls of other nations pass unnoticed or fade directly from the mind.

Here, for example, is a delightful ellipse. One woman, describing another, said: "She would talk the head off you. I am hoarse listening to her." Most of us have felt that, but it needed real wit to phrase it so aptly. Quite as funny, though less witty, was the advice given to cyclists in an Irish paper, "The best way to pass a cow on the road when cycling is to keep behind it." One is reminded of the man who said there was only one way to make a donkey follow you—that was to go behind and push. The same writer on cycling once selected "a shady nook and basked there in the sunshine." It was he, too, who described some one as having received "a grand reception when he went away."

In Irish political speeches bulls abound. The speakers are carried away by their subjects and their eloquence. Images leap to their lips and are uttered before their incongruity has been noticed. "Why," asked Sir Thomas Myles in Dublin during the Boer war—"why should Irishmen stand with their arms folded and their hands in their pockets when England calls for aid?" Lord Russell of Killowen was denouncing a coercion bill in 1880 and its interference with free speech. "If this measure is passed," he declared, "no man in Ireland will be able to speak on politics unless he is born deaf and dumb." Mr. O'Shea, M. P., drew a piteous picture of the desolation of a farm in Ireland. "Is it not a fact," he asked, "that the only living animals on this farm are the seagulls which fly over it?"

In every one of these cases the bull, far from being a source of confusion, adds immensely to the effect of the argument. There are bulls, however, even in Ireland, which are born of sheer muddleheadedness. Such was the remark of the Dublin university freshman who was dared to "lepp" a broad and muddy ditch in College park. "Sure," he said, "if I jumped across that I would fall in the middle before I got halfway." That was verbal carelessness. It was something more than this—it was inability to think clearly—which made an old lady say one Sunday when the porch was inconveniently crowded after church, "If everybody else would do as I do and stay quietly in their seats till every one had gone out there would be no crush at the door."

In between these comes a class of bull which is neither illuminating nor confusing, but which arises from a constitutional bluntness of intellect. To this class belongs the reply of a servant to her mistress' question, "Who was that at the front door?" "A gentleman looking for the wrong house, ma'am," the servant said. "I did not know the man was alive until I saw his death in the paper," is another instance of the same kind.

A fool always wants to shorten space and time. A wise man wants to lengthen both.—Ruskin.

NEWS OF WORLD

Important Events of the Week in Condensed Form.

POLITICAL NEWS.

President Taft's first day of his campaign to urge the people of Ohio to support him in the primaries to be held May 21, which came to an end with a speech at Steubenville, was marked by the most pronounced verbal assaults on Colonel Theodore Roosevelt to which Mr. Taft so far has given public utterance. In speeches that were filled with indignant attack, that bubbled over with uncomplimentary adjectives, he discharged his oratory at his predecessor in the White House.

The Republican national committee will meet in Chicago on June 6 to decide contests among delegates to the Republican national convention. The call for the meeting was issued by William Hayward, secretary of the committee. This will be the earliest meeting held for many years by the committee and will give it twelve days to consider contests before the convention opens on June 18.

Ohio, President Taft's home state, bids fair to become the battleground where the president and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will fight one of the most decisive "actions" of the present campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. Friends of President Taft declared the result of the Maryland primaries made it certain the struggle for Ohio would be hard and fierce.

Adopting strong resolutions favoring the entire progressive movement and leaving out the time honored custom of laudatory planks in praise of state and government officials the Republican state convention of Kansas named four delegates at large to the national convention with ironclad instructions for Roosevelt for president.

Charges from William Jennings Bryan that friends of Governor Harmon had sought to purchase Bryan pledged delegates to the 1908 convention stirred the Ohio executive to a telegraphic denial and brought from Mr. Bryan the publication of a letter on which he says the charges were based.

The Republican delegation from Wyoming to the Chicago convention is instructed for President Taft, whose administration is endorsed, as also was the work of Wyoming's senators and representatives in congress.

County conventions held throughout Minnesota showed beyond a doubt that Colonel Roosevelt will have the entire twenty-four delegates from the state to the national convention at Chicago.

Taft adherents controlled the Nevada Republican state convention and named six delegates instructed to vote for the renomination of the president. The Taft administration was endorsed.

In the closest election St. Paul has seen in years Herbert P. Keller (Rep.) was re-elected mayor over Otto Bremer (Dem.) by 423 majority.

The Wyoming Democratic state convention instructed its delegates to the Baltimore convention to vote for Champ Clark for president.

LABOR NEWS.

Representatives of the International Paper company, which controls thirty-six paper mills, and the International Brotherhood of Papermakers, reached a tentative agreement, it was announced, as to the wage scale and working conditions of paper mill employes, subject to ratification by the directors of the International Paper company.

In a battle between the state police and a crowd estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000 men at Minersville, Pa., four men are known to have been shot and three probably fatally wounded. It is believed that a dozen or more others were also struck by bullets.

Fourteen hundred brewery workers, constituting the union employes of all the breweries and brewery agencies in Kansas City, went on strike following the failure of the brewery companies to grant demands for increased wages and a revised working schedule.

Strike ballots have been sent to 300,000 members of the Federation of Federations to determine whether the shopmen employed on forty-seven railroads west and south of Chicago shall strike in sympathy with the men now out on the Harriman lines.

A riotous demonstration made by foreigners at Olyphant Colliery No. 1, Delaware and Hudson company, at Scranton, Pa., resulted in the killing of George Robaresky, a fourteen-year-old boy, by the state troopers.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

The petition in the United States district court at Trenton, N. J., for an injunction to restrain the United States Steel corporation and a number of its subsidiary concerns from destroying books and papers which might be used in evidence in the suit of the government for the dissolution of the steel corporation was dismissed except as to the American Steel and Wire company, one of the steel corporation's subsidiary concerns. The court held that no evidence had been offered that such destruction is threatened.

NEWS OF NOTED PERSONS

President Taft and Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court were the principal guests of honor at the inauguration of John Grier Hibben as president of Princeton university. Many university and college heads were in attendance and hundreds of alumni from all over the United States witnessed the ceremonies.

Ambassador James Bryce will return to Washington in September and again take up his duties as England's representative. This was the answer given to Henry Pagecrofe and his followers by Sir Edward Grey when they renewed their attempt to connect the ambassador with the Taft-Roosevelt reciprocity correspondence.

Rear Admiral William P. Potter, senior rear admiral on the navy list, who established a reputation as an executive officer in the Spanish war for which he was advanced five numbers by congress, has been placed on the retired list on account of age.

General Bennett H. Young of Louisville, Ky., commander of the Army of Tennessee, was elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

He Evidently Was Not a Player of Any Great Power.

It was probably in 1598 that Shakespeare first appeared as Adam and as the elder Knowell, and it was probably in 1602 that he first personated the ghost, being then thirty-eight years old, says Brander Matthews in the North American Review. He was to remain on the stage ten or twelve years longer, but there is no reason to suppose that the parts he played in later life were any more important.

We do not know what characters he undertook in the plays which he wrote after "Hamlet," nor do we know what parts he assumed in the many pieces by other authors which made up the repertory of the company. That he continued to act we need not doubt. For instance, he was one of the performers in Ben Jonson's "Sejanus," probably produced in 1602 or 1603.

But the absence of specific information on this point is evidence that he did not impress himself upon his contemporaries as an actor of power. As Lewes declared, "The mere fact that we hear nothing of his qualities as an actor implies that there was nothing above the line, nothing memorable to be spoken of." The parts which we believe him to have played did not "demand or admit various excellencies."

Shakespeare may have had lofty histrionic ambitions, but probably he was not allowed to gratify his longings, and certainly we have no tradition or hint that he ever failed in what he attempted in the theater. Perhaps we are justified in believing that he had gone on the stage merely as the easiest means of immediately earning his living, that he did not greatly care for acting and that he was satisfied to assume the responsible but subordinate parts for which he was best fitted.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. Look at this OilPull Power Plant

Here's the heart of the OilPull Tractor—its power plant. Note the simple design—the rugged construction—the compact arrangement of the carburetor, magneto and oiling mechanism. That we do not over-rate its power, has been proven repeatedly in public Contests and in the field. It has always delivered more than its rated horse power both at the drawbar and in the belt, with less variations in revolutions per minute than any public tractor.

The OilPull [illegible] under all conditions. By combining the Secor-Higgins Carburetor with a direct gear-driven governor, we have secured a system of oil combustion and power control without an equal.

THE GREAT NEW NORTHWEST

Produces 35% of Wheat, 38% of Barley, 28% of Wool 92% of Flax Seed Raised Each Year.

If a section of our country which contains but 20 per cent of the area of the United States and but 6 per cent of its population, produces 35 per cent of the wheat; 38 per cent of the barley; 28 per cent of the wool and 92 per cent of the flaxseed each year, it ought to be as good a section as there is in the world for a home.

That is just what the AMERICAN Northwest has been doing each year and figures just compiled by the Northwest Development League show that there are still 82,000,000 acres of free government land in the section while there are more than 73,000,000 acres of state and privately owned land in the seven states for sale at $20 per acre and under.

Last year one of these states produced the best bushel of wheat in the world and attracted widespread attention; another gave the world the best twenty five boxes of apples and still another grew the best bushel of potatoes. All these prizes coming into the American Northwest are attracting the attention of human millions.

This year it has been left for an organization of the seven northwest states to offer the world's greatest prize for wheat—$5,000. The Northwest Development League will award such a prize for the best five bushels of wheat produced in the seven states at its Northwestern products exposition to be held in Minneapolis Nov. 12 to 23. The prize consists of BIG Four "30" farm tractor, set of breaking plows, etc., delivered free to the winner.

"How and Where to Secure a New Home in the American Northwest" is the title of a fifty page book which has just been issued by the Northwest Development League, giving complete information about vacant lands in the seven northwest states together with values and crop reports. Probably the most valuable feature of the book is that it gives the name of one or more commercial secretaries in every county of seven states where information may be obtained about land, industrial or investment opportunities.

The book is sent free by addressing Will A. Campbell, St. Paul, Minn.

Of Interest To Farmers

BALANCED FARMING

The Kind of Farming that Makes the Most of the Markets.

We all know what is meant by "Diversified Farming." Such farming, so conducted with reference to the requirements of the markets that each line of endeavor shall bring the best results, is called by a progressive agriculturist "Balanced Farming." The principal line of division would seem to be that between animal and vegetable production. The proportion which these should bear to one another is naturally governed by the extent to and the prices for which the several products can be marketed. At the School of Agriculture, with a throng of consumers frequenting the dining halls, Principal Mayne has found that the expenditure for animal foods considerably exceeds that for vegetable products. As the dining halls are in full operation, however, only during the colder half of the year, the preponderance of the demand for animal foods was probably greater than it would be for a term covering the entire year.

It will be safe to consider, however, that the American people demand of the farmer a daily ration approximately consisting of half animal and half vegtable food. That is the "Balanced ration" which the balanced farm must supply. Too great a weight on one side or the other may result in a fall of prices on the redunlant side, with a corresponding reduction in the farmer's profits.

A careful study, then, may well be made to ascertain the number of cows hogs, sheep and fowls which should be kept, in order to balance the production of marketable grains, fruits and vegetables. In a majority of cases, in Minnesota, it will be found that not enough live stock is kept; and that money could be made by working toward a balance. It is true that in some years the condition of the markets is such that it would seem a part of wisdom to bend all one's resources of land and energy toward a single line of production; but on an average covering a period of years the man who supplies to humanity its "Balanced ration" is the one who is to come out ahead.—C. R. Barns, Extension Div. Minn. Col. of Agriculture

THE COST OF KEEPING HORSES.

It is Greatly Reduced by Diversified Farming and by Keeping Brood-Mares.

The cost of keeping the average farm horse in the State of Minnesota is approximately $85 per year. This includes such items as feed, shelter, labor in caring for the horses, depreciation in value, shoeing and all other expenses. It is also estimated that the length of time which each horse works during the day is less than four hours for a yearly average, excluding Sundays and holidays. The double problem now confronting the farmers in Minnesota is: How can horse labor be made more efficient? and how may one reduce the cost of keeping a farm horse?

A diversified system of farming will have a tendency to make horse labor more efficient. It distributes the labor throughout the entire year, and thus furnishes a more uniform amount of work. Instead of working the horses to the limit during the rush seasons of seeding and harvesting times, the farm will furnish an even amount of labor each day, and increase the average number of hours worked each day, thus reducing the cost per hour of horse labor.

Another means of reducing the cost of keeping a horse per year is to keep brood mares on the place. Brood mares may be bred each year, so as to have a crop of colts, and in that way the cost of keeping the horses on the farm will be distributed, part to work horses and part to breeding stock. Mares will perform the farm work as well as the geldings, and at the same time rear a colt that may be sold as a draft horse when matured, for more money than it cost to produce him. It is also a good plan to dispose of horses that are growing old and restock the farm from the crop of colts as they mature.—W. H. Tomhave, University Farm.

A Dairy Record Contest.

The Minnesota State Dairymen's Association is offering prizes this this year to the boys and girls under 18 years of age, who can keep the best records of the dairy herds at home. Records must show the amount of milk and butter-fat, the cost of feed and the net returns from each cow. Each contestant must keep records on at least six cows for six months. Fifty dollars in cash prizes will be awarded for the best records.

The purpose of the dairymen's Association in offering these prizes is to interest the boys and girls in the dairy industry and to bring about improvement in our dairy herds. Such a profit will help to eliminate the unprofitable cow. Boys and girls should be encouraged to enter. All records should be sent to F. D. Currier, Nicollet, Minn., before January 7, 1913. All inquiries in regard to the contest should be sent to the Extention Division, University Farm, St. Paul.

FORCED HIM TO SING.

An Occasion When Abell Made Up His Mind In a Hurry.

It is probable that on no occasion has any other musician had to practice his art under more disagreeable circumstances than that in which Abell, a singer of the seventeenth century, once found himself.

It appears that while Abell was rambling through Poland he was sent for to go to court, and after evading the request by excuses for a short time he was commanded to attend. At the palace Abell was placed in a chair in the center of a spacious hall and suddenly drawn up to a great height. The king, with his attendants, appeared in a gallery opposite him as he sat thunderstruck in his suspended chair. At the same instant several bears entered the hall with their keepers.

As the singer gazed in horror at these ferocious creatures the king calmly inquired whether he preferred to sing or be let down among the bears. The singer's choice, of course, was quickly made, and he afterward declared that in spite of his terror he never sang better in his life, although he admitted he might have introduced a few more "shakes" than usual in his songs.—New York Press.

Fata Morgana.

The kind of mirage known as fata morgana is seen across straits or lakes in southern Europe and shows in calm weather such images in the air as those of towns, castles and palaces. On the Lake of Geneva it is sometimes seen on fine afternoons of spring or summer. F. A. Forel, the well known Swiss investigator, has been giving some attention to the curious apparitions and concludes that they are due to a peculiar distribution of temperature in the air over the water. In the morning, the air being cooler than the lake, the opposite bank seems to be depressed, exaggerating the earth's rotundity, and late in the afternoon, the air having become hotter than the water's surface, the opposite bank apparently rises above the true horizon and the earth's circumference is enlarged. For a few moments only, at the change from one condition to the other, the fata morgana may be seen.

Brother Jonathan.

The origin of the term "Brother Jonathan" was as follows: When General Washington went to Massachusetts to organize the army he found a great lack of ammunition and of other necessary means for the conduct of the war, and at one time it seemed quite impossible to arrange things properly. Jonathan Trumbull was then governor of the state of Connecticut, and the general, who placed complete reliance on his excellency's judgment, said, "We must consult Brother Jonathan." He did so, with the satisfactory result that the governor was successful in supplying many of the pressing wants of the army, and thenceforth, whenever difficulties arose and the army spread over the country, "We must consult Brother Jonathan" became a common saying until it passed into a nickname for the whole country.

JOHN THOMAS DECIDES TO LEAVE TOWN

John Thomas, a negro who has been here for several weeks cleaning windows and working at odd jobs, was hailed into Municipal court Monday on a charge of drunkeness and disorderly conduct. Judge Tarrant gave John his choice between thirty days in jail and the privilege of leaving town at the earliest moment. John left town the same evening.

Thomas had been making his headquarters at the Northern hotel, but owing to his frequent jollifications was ordered by the proprietor, Mr. Juneau, to stay away. Not heeding the advice, he came into the hotel Saturday evening pretty well loaded and when ordered to leave showed fight. Mr. Juneau used a chair and Mrs. Juneau a stove poker very effectively, and John staggeringly made his exit, shouting when he reached the walk: "You people are misabusing me." Jim Farr took charge of him after that, showing such courtsey as the occasion demanded.

SCHOOL NOTES

He said the Lincoln building was quite as handsome and much more convenient than some of the $150,000 school palaces on the Iron Range.

History teacher—"Remember, boys that any little American may some day become President of the United States."

Eighth grade boy—"Not if Teddy is going to keep on running."

An editorial in a recent issue of a Duluth daily, in discussing the tendency of the high scoohls to educate almost exclusively for college entrance, says: "If the public school will work more for the ninety-and-nine who cannot hope to go to college, and will shape their course so as to produce skilled farmers, mechanics and housewives as well as lawyers, doctors and failures, it will be better for the pupils, better for the professions, better for the clients and patients, and better for society." This concise view of the educational proposition of today is exactly the plan which the local schools are endeavoring to carry out. They are not neglecting the few who desire to enter college or the learned professions, but they are striving to give the "ninety-and-nine who cannot hope to go to college" something which will fit them immediately for the serious task of making their own way in the world as soon as they leave the grades or high school.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Alice B. Kratka and Frank H. Kratka, her husband, and Daisy L. Kratka, as mortgagors, to Isabella Hinkel, as mortgagee, dated on the 23rd day of June, 1904, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of June, 1904, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in Book 29 of Mortgages Page 431, on which there is claimed to be due, and is actually due at the date of this notice, the amount of $1500.00, as principal, and $127.20 as interest, amounting in the aggregate to a total indebtedness of $1627.20, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt, or any part thereof, secured by the said mortgage;

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of certain of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the main front door of the court house in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington (formerly part of said Red Lake County) and State of Minnesota, on Tuesday, the twenty-eight (28th) day of May A. D. 1912 at ten (10) o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale and fifty ($50.) Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of Foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage are all those tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, (said Pennington County being formerly a portion of the County of Red Lake) and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

Lot Numbered Five (5) in Block Numbered Five (5); Lot Numbered Six (6) in Block Numbered Eighteen (18); Lots numbered five and six (5&6) in block Numbered Twenty-six (26); Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) Block Thirty-four (34); Lots Numbered Thirteen and Fourteen (13&14) in Block Numbered Thirty (30); Lots Numbered Eleven and Twelve (11&12) in Block Numbered Twenty-nine (29); Lots Numbered One (1), Two (2), Three (3), Nine (9), and Ten (10) in Block Numbered Fifty-eight (58); and Lots Numbered Four and Five (4&5) in Block Numbered Sixty-three (63); all in the Original Townsite of Thief River Falls, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in said State of Minensota and subsequently transcribed and a copy filed and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the said County of Red Lake, in said State of Minnesota.

That all of said premises will be sold under and by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage except the following described racts or parcels, to-wit: Lots Numbered Three and Four (3&4) in Block Numbered Thirty-four (34), which said lots have heretofore (and subsequent to the making and delivery of said mortgage) been formally released from the lien of said mortgage.

HER GIFT TO HER FATHER

And How It Was Received

By MARTHA A. HART

Mr. Waukenfelt, father of a family—his oldest daughter, Eunice, was twenty—started one fine day on a long trip. He had worked hard for many years and, having secured a competence, proposed to take a vacation and see something of the world. Some one afterward asked him what was the happiest moment in his life. He replied, "When I was on that ocean liner sailing out through New York bay."

Whether the leaving of his family and family cares behind contributed especially to his happiness or detracted therefrom is a puzzling question to maids and bachelors. Certain husbands and fathers who do not take kindly to family restraints may see it all very clearly.

But this story has nothing to do with Mr. Waukenfelt's trip; it has all to do with his return after seven months' absence. It was midnight when, having paid his cabman, he mounted the steps of his domicile and, opening the vestibule door, a man attempted to brush past him. Mr. Waukenfelt seized him, there was a scuffle, the man soon relaxing his efforts till he was pinioned by his opponent.

"If you'll give me time to explain"—the prisoner began when his captor interrupted.

"You can do that at the police station." And, dragging the man out on to the stoop by his coat collar, he hustled him down the steps. He was astonished to see that the man was quite young and looked strong enough to "wipe the floor" with his antagonist. Nevertheless he permitted himself to be led like a lamb to the slaughter. Indeed, he never made a move to resist or uttered a word till he was landed in the police station.

"What's your name?" asked the sergeant at the desk.

"I'll leave him with you, sergeant," said Mr. Waukenfelt. "I've just returned from a long journey and wish to go home."

"Sure you'll appear against him in the morning?"

"Yes; I'll be here; don't worry."

Mr. Wankenfelt went home and, going to his own room, went to bed without disturbing his family. In the morning there was a great hubbub at learning that the father had returned. All gathered round him as soon as he came out of his room, and there were hugging and kissing till breakfast was announced.

"What did you bring me, pop?" asked his youngest son. And the question was repeated by all the family in an ascending scale of age till it reached those old enough to refrain from expressing what was on their minds. When all were satisfied in this respect, Eunice, throwing her arms about her father's neck, said:

"And I've got something for you, papa, dear. Guess what it is?"

Mr. Wankenfelt guessed everything from a pair of suspenders to a clock, then gave it up.

"A son-in-law," said the girl, hiding her blushes on her father's chest.

"A son-in-law! Why, sweetheart; that's something for you, isn't it? You've not given me anything, but have taken away yourself."

"He's perfectly splendid, papa. I want you to meet him right off. I know you'll like him. He knows you are here; at least I told him you were coming last night. We sat together till nearly 12 o'clock. I did so wish you could have arrived before he went away."

"What time did he go?" asked the father.

"About a quarter to 12."

"Oh!"

"Why do you say 'Oh?' "

"I had an adventure when I came in. I opened the vestibule door, and a burglar who was trying to get into the house or trying to get out, I don't know which, tried to escape."

"Good gracious!"

"But I got him."

"Got him! Didn't he kill you?"

"I wouldn't be here if he had. I took him to the police station and left him there."

"What kind of a looking man was he?" asked Mrs. Waukenfelt.

"One of those fellows who go about committing burglaries with crysanthemums in their buttonholes and leave gentleman-like notes for the persons they rob. You'd better look over the silver. But he couldn't have got away with anything, for I took him right from the house to the station."

"Did he look very wicked?" asked Eunice.

"Very."

"What did he say when you turned him in?"

"Oh, the sergeant began to question him, asking him first his name. I came away about that time."

"What name did he give?"

"Menhayden or Mendenhorn or some such queer name."

"Oh, heavens!" exclaimed Eunice. "Are you sure it wasn't Mendenhall?"

"That's it—Mendenhall."

"Oh, father! He's my Tom!"

"Your Tom! How did your Tom"—

"It's that abominable outside door. He got caught in the vestibule that way once before."

As soon as Eunice could get on her wraps she hurried away with her father for the station. Tom Mendenhall was led out looking very crestfallen and very mortified. Eunice introduced him to her father, who remarked:

"We have met before, I believe."

WARM SALT WATER BATH.

First Aid For a Child That Has Been Badly Burned.

All children will play with fire unless they have been taught, either by precept or experience, not to do so, and accidents will happen even when every precaution has been taken. It is therefore most desirable in the case of burns that parents should know what—and above all what not—to do while waiting for the doctor to come.

The first thing is to fight shock with all the resources at command, because shock is usually the immediate cause of death. Too often shock is aggravated rather than helped by the treatment it receives.

Valuable time is wasted and unnecessary agony caused in trying to remove the clothing; then various applications of oil or of whatever else the distracted bystanders may have heard was good for burns are made until by the time the doctor arrives irremediable mischief is done.

Do not waste time in any such way, but immediately prepare a warm sa water bath and gently place the child in it, clothes and all. If the clothes are much burned the warm water will make them easier to remove, and the child can be kept in the bath until the pulse and the temperature show that a reaction from the shock has taken place. It will often be necessary for some strong and careful person to kneel and hold the patient in the best position.

Even after the child has been placed in bed with the proper dressings the bath should be given again if there are indications that shock is returning. Always remember that speed is essential. Even the slightest delay is dangerous.

Almost every one believes that in the case of burns water is always harmful and oil always helpful. You will be wise to reverse the rule and learn it by heart. In case of burns fill the bath with warm water, adding salt in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a pint of water, and hold the child in it, clothes and all, until the doctor arrives.—Youth's Companion.

PRICE OF A PICTURE.

Terms Corot Is Said to Have Exacted From His Friend Perier.

A French paper gives the following anecdote of Corot: M. Perier, brother of the former French president, M. Casimir Perier, was a close friend of the great Barbizon painter. One day—it was a Sunday—when he was visiting the artist's studio he grew enthusiastic over a figure painting that Corot was at work on, for on Sundays Corot devoted himself to figure subjects.

"That is my distraction," he used to say.

M. Perier determined to acquire this picture and Corot was equally determined not to let him, as his modesty would only allow him to rank as a landscape painter.

"All right," said Corot at last, "you may have the canvas, but on one condition—you must pay in exchange for it the butcher's and baker's bills of my friend Millet." M. Perier agreed to this unusual price and with the painter went to find the two shopkeepers. The baker's bill came to $4,400 and the other to $4,800, for the bills had been running for twelve years. So M. Perier's Corot cost him $9,200.

"What a stroke of business," commented the artist. "My picture was hardly worth $300!"

Good stories should not be dissected, but analysis of this one seems to show that the Millet household spent at least $1 a day at the baker's and over $1 a day at the butcher's, which seems excessive at the French prices of those days.—New York Sun.

Blind Workers First.

It was the recruit's first fire. A piano factory was burning. Said the battalion chief to the recruit:

"Find out where the tuning room is and make for that."

The recruit obeyed. Afterward, he asked why.

"Because during working hours you are likely to find several blind men there," said the chief. "Many piano tuners are blind, and in case of fire they need first help in getting out. When fighting fire in a piano factory always bear that in mind."—New York Press.

Giving Man Credit.

"I don't believe any man is really good," she said. "When you find one who doesn't go wrong it is because he is afraid."

"Oh, it isn't always because they are afraid," replied her friend, who was married. "Very often it is because they haven't the price."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Difficult Task.

Some men were discussing the sudden death of a neighbor who had left a rather helpless family.

"And the worst of it is," said Uncle Jared, "that there isn't one of those boys that has the head to fill his father's shoes."—Youth's Companion.

Smith Farm at Ogema.

The above farm near Ogema is owned by Mrs. Lizzie Smith, who is three-fourths Indian, but whose husband is a white man. There is a large number of such cases on the reservation, where white men have married mixed-blood maidens, gotten a quarter section of land with them, and are prospering as farmers. The mixed-blood families are usually more numerous and much healthier than the regular Indian families, and the children are usually well educated.

When the degree of Indian blood is reduced to one-fourth or less most of the Indian characteristics and features are lost. There are perhaps more than 1,200 members of the White Earth tribe whose Indian blood does not show—who are really whites.

U. C. T. Ball Game.

The ball game between the Crookston and Thief River U. C. Ts. played Saturday afternoon ended disastrously for the locals. There was lots of fun, but the Crookston boys had a much better team and it was impossible to keep the score evenly divided.

New Pension Act Approved

For Veterans of Civil and Mexican Wars; Will Increase Penison Budjet $23,000,000.

75 years	90 days	$21.00
75 years	6 mos.	$22.50
75 years	1 year	$24.00
75 years	1 year, 6 mos.	$27.00
75 years	2 yrs. or more	$30.00

The law further provides that any person who served in the Civil or the war with Mexico, and received injuries or disabilities in line of duty which now unfit him for manual labor shall receive the maxium rate of thirty dollars per month, without regard to the length of service or the age of the claimant.

Pension attorneys, claim agents or other persons are barred from receiving compensation for services rendered in presenting claims to the Pension Bureau under this Act, except in applications for original pensions by persons who have not heretofore received a pesion.

Under the terms of the Act it is the duty of the Commissioner of Pensions to keep a record showing the name and length of service of each claimant, the monthly rate of pesion received by him, and the place of his residence. At the end of the fiscal year 1914 the Commissioner is required to tabulate the record so obtained by States and counties, certified copies of which may be obtained upon the payment of a fee. The publicity feature of the new pension

Supt. Anderson is staying with his brother, Ludwick, who is very ill.

Mrs. Sigurd Myrom and son, Chester, are visiting with her folks and friends.

Victor Johnson is well satisfied with his new clover leaf spreader.

Herman Ortloff has purchased the E½ of the NW¼ Sec. 29, and is now fencing it all in to pasture.

Mrs. Ole Fossom took a little walk out to see her grand daughter, Mrs. G. A. Lundquist Tuesday.

Dan Johnson bought a cow for $40 recently from Ben Anderson.

All wise men buy John Deere gang plows.

Mr. and Mrs. Sjur Hansen and Mrs Skie visited with N. K. Anderson's last Sunday.

BRAY

Gust Scholin is putting in flax after Mr. Peterson's gasoline plow out-fit and Ed. Finn is hauling gasoline from Thief River Falls, only 500 gallons at the time.

L. M. Alsen has finished painting H. Hansen's Barn and house and is now with John Moseback of Sanders painting his three story residence.

What is the matter with the Numedahl reporter? Can it be he is now dead to the world or has he left that country for an indefinite time. Please revive and come back.

ROCKSBURY

There is no need of telling people we are having excellent growing weather. Everybody can see it, and town of Rocksbury is showing off just grand at present.

Mrs. Al. Week, of Grand Forks is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Borgen and her sister, Mrs. H. G. Haraldson.

And so the wedding bells will soon ring in our neighborhood again. Good for you, old boy. We'll all come and shake hands with you on the happy day.

Potatoes Fodder Corn and Roots

From May 20th to June 1st is the best time to plant potatoes, root crops and fodder corn in Northeastern Minnesota. Planting may be continued well into June but the results are not so satisfatcory. When necessary, fodder corn may be planted as late as July 1st and a fair crop secured if the season is favorable.

A clover sod is the best for the potatoes, root and corn crop. It should be plowed from six to eight inches deep and disked thoroly. Land that has been in tame hay for a number of years should be broken up and planted to some of these crops this spring. Old hay land produced less than a ton of hay to the acre in 1911. The same kind of land broken up and put into fodder corn yielded as high

Corn Worth More Now

They tell a story in Kansas which is not without its application in Minnesota. Twenty years ago or so corn was so plentiful that it was used for fuel in many places in the middle west. It could not be sold for ten cents a bushel. In those days a Kansas farmer bought a wagon for $60 and paid for it in corn. He came back after another the other day and was asked $75 for as good a wagon as he got before. When the farmer demured to the price, the dealer offered to give it to him for 600 bushels of corn as he did in 1894.

In addition to the wagon he also offered a carriage, a self binder, a range and all the kitchen utensils his wife could use. Corn was then worth 65c cents a bushel, and the farmer was offered $390 worth of machinery for the same amount of corn which in 1894 bought a wagon. He paid cash for the wagon.

Wall-Eyed Pike

H. A. Gibbs state game and fish commissioner, of Detroit, brought here last Friday 17 milk cans full of wall-eyed pike, and, assisted by Paul Midderigh, placed them in Red Lake river above the dam. Deputy state game warden and state timber marshall, E. C. Cooke of this city, was away on business in the Lake of the Woods district that day.

Midderigh says that the fish were only three days old and less than a quarter of an inch long. However, pike grow very rapidly and it is expected that within two years the fish planted Friday will furnish many a good meal to people in these parts. These fish are called "wall-eyed" on account of their large and prominent gray eyes.

Sara Aga Showered

Miss Margaret Ekron, Miss Leonora Dosland and Miss Thora Hofto gave a parcel shower at the Dosland home Wedneday evening in honor of Miss Sara Aga who is soon to marry Mr. S. Sorenson of Pasadena, Cal., a graduate of St. Olaf College, Minnesota. Miss Aga was the happy recipient of many useful and pretty gifts. The rooms were decorated with hearts and arrows, and the whole made attractive with a plentiful supply of plum blossoms. The guests were entertained with music and fortune telling, and a light lunch added further enjoyment to the evening. The young ladies report a most enjoyable evening.

The Socialist Convention

Mr. O. Jacobson, delegate to the Socialist National Convention held in Indianapolis may 12 to 19, returned this week. He returns with much enthusiasm and many new ideas in the way things should be done from a socialist's view point.

The following is part of an editorial from the Indianapolis Sun:

Four hundred socialists living in other states and territories have sojourned in Indianapolis for a week. The national convention performed its work in an orderly manner and with painful seriousness. In fact, the convention was serious throughout. There was little laughter at any time and practically no tendency to engage in horse-play. The delegates obviously did not come to Indianapolis as a junketing party, but were sent by workingmen and working women to promote a program religiously believed in and faithfully followed.

To the non-socialist there were times when the convention appeared in a ridiculous light, particularly instanced by tedious and laborious debate about parliamentary procedure. The delegates, however, were as keenly alert to their parliamentary rights as they were to shaping the fundamental principles of socialism in the constitution and platform. There were times when the convention might have bored the non-socialist; times when men held the floor to no obvious purpose; times when the longest way to reach a given end appeared to be the choice of the convention. Yet, there was no filibustering, and if delegates claimed the time of the convention uselessly it was because they were mistaken in the importance of the proposition proposed. The non-socialist would have stamped the assurance which marked the debate, in some cases, as a gross display of egotism. Whether egotism or a semi-religious self-confidence, the delegates bore kindly with each other at all times. Each was extremely considerate of the rights of his comrades. There was no log-rolling and there were no steam rollers.

The Indianapolis convention, however, has given what appears to be an unassailable answer to the critics of socialism in the adoption of the constitutional provision against violence. The clause is an answer to the anti-socialist press and to the extreme radicals of anarchistic tendencies. The convention provided for the expulsion of any member of the party who indorses violence as a means of promoting the socialistic propaganda.

M. E. CHURCH
J. B. Smith, pastor.

Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. Divine service at 11:30 a. m. Subject of morning discourse, "The Impotent Christ". Epworth League at 7:15 p. m. The evening service will be withdrawn to permit the congregation to attend the baccalaureate sermon at the auditorium.

Messrs. Haskins, Ray Pope and Claud Poston presented the M. E. church with a finely made and polished pulpit on Sunday last. The work was done in the manuel training Department of the public schools and is an excellent specimen of the kind of work our boys are tught to do.

SCHOOL NOTES

Thursday of next week is Memorial Day and a legal holiday. Appropriate exercises will be held in the various rooms on Wednesday afternoon.

The manual training exhibit was removed from the Oen Mercantile Co. windows last Friday. It attracted no little attention, and many doubted that the pupils had really made some of the articles. If the doubters would but visit the manual training building and the other industrial rooms, they would learn that the children are fast acquiring skill with their hands as well as receiving mental training. The schools are grateful to Mr. Oen for the use of the show windows.

The Washington school garden, which had been cleared and plowed and partly seeded, was sold by the owners last Saturday and a house will be erected thereon. The purchaser will reinburse the school for the expense of the work done, but the school is now without any school garden. It is almost impossible to secure suitable tracts in a convenient location, and but one garden now remains to the children and that on the east side. The gardens are not to be confused with the farm tracts, of which the school has two.

The public is requested to refrain from using that portion of the Lincoln campus within the new hedge as a public highway. It is sown to grass and must be properly cared for, if a lawn is to be developed from it. The prevalent village habit of "cutting across" neighbors' lawns, yards, lots and boulevards, regardless of ownership or the damage done to the tender grass, ought to cease in a town the size of Thief River Falls.

The freshmen domestic science girls entertained the board of education and the members' wives at a six o'clock diner at the Lincoln last Thursday afternoon. Every article was prepared by the young ladies and the guests were easily convinced of the skill of the youthful cooks. Aside from the knowledge necessary in the preparation of the dishes for such an event, the training gained in serving the same is of no small value to any housekeeper.

The state examinations for the seventh, eighth and high school begin on Friday of this week and close on Wednesday of next. Some of the examinations begin at 8 a. m. All will be written on and the results will effect the yearly standing of all the students. The official program is posted on the Lincoln bulletin board and is too lengthy for publication.

Rev. F. J. Seltz, of the German Lutheran church will preach the baccalaureate sermon at the Auditorium next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend and all the churches of the city are respectfully requested to be present on this occasion. This annual sermon is rotated among the churches which desire to care for it.

Several visitors to the republican convention last week visited the city schools. They expressed surprise at the size of the enrollment and completeness of the equipment.

The gradnating class in the high school has appropriated $90 to purchase a class memorial and secure a commencement speaker. The memorial will be some suitable figure for the Lincoln fountain.

T. P. Hornseth has placed a mud turtle in the fountain. It is constantly surrounded by a crowd of interested spectators.

COBHAM—WILSON

Mr. E. E. CobHam, of Thief River Falls, and Miss May Wilson, of Staples, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, May 15 at 8 a. m., Rev. Dodds of the Methodist church officiating. It was a quiet wedding, only intimate friends being present. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served at noon, and were supposed to follow this by departure on the 1:40 train for Thief River Falls. Instead of doing this Mr. and Mrs. CobHam disappointed their friends, who were waiting patriotically at the depot to give them a proper send off, by taking an auto to Verndale and catching the train there.

Mr. Cobham has been here but a short time, but has made many friends while hustling business for the C. O. D. Clothing House, where he is employed as salesman and advertising manager. Mrs. Cobham, while not very well known here now, will soon have a host of friends, owing to her very pleasing personality. She was one of Staples most popular young ladies and has many friends there who wish her married life full to overflowing with happiness.

LYCEUM NEWS

Bisbee and Connelly, in Western Musical Novelty and Fancy and Trick Lariat acts, will appear at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, with a matinee Saturday afternoon at 2:30. These are expensive acts and are known to be among the best novelties on the road today.

ROY M. BISBEE.

At The Lyceum.
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

The Wright sisters, who have been playing and singing at the Lyceum have resigned and will go to Bovee. Miss May Moreau of Brooks is at the piano now and Miss Elsa Robecke does the singing. Miss Moreau and Miss Robecke are the most popular artists Manager Morgan has ever engaged.

The film service at the Lyceum has been changed, the Association furnishing the pictures that have been presented the past week. There are new faces and new scenes, and the service thus far has proved to be better than that previously used.

CONNOLLEY.

At The Lyceum.
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

The best mechanical improvement made at the Lyceum for some time is the recent installation of a new Powers No. 6 moving picture machine. This machine is fire-proof and positively the best made not only because it is the best make of machine, but also because it is the most expensive.

NEW SOLUM

New Solum is about as beautiful a spot this time of the year as you can find anywhere.

Miss Gyda Hanson of Roseau, our last years' school ma'am is spending a few days at the Stengelson home.

Mr. Ole Sewalson is now working for Nels Halvorson.

Miss Minnie Znerholz finished a very successful term of school in Dist. No. 28 last Friday, and a very nice and well prepared program was given by the school, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Erick Johnson visited with Emil Blomberg's Sunday.

Quite a few of our young folks took in the debate and ice cream social in Viking Saturday night.

It looks and sounds like prosperity everywhere up here just now with more grain seeded in than ever before and the gas tractors turning the sod; while the dredges are puffing their way thru the swamps. This country will look altogether different in the near future.

Mrs. T. Holton and children spent Sunday at Krogstad's.

Baseball scores North New Solum (cubs) 15; Viking speed boys 23; New Folden seconds 5; speed boys 4, 4-inning, (game called), darkness; N. S. White Sox, 2; Viking C. dredge 10. The White Sox have strengthened their team greatly by getting the crack Sorenson battery of the former Anita team, together with a few good youngsters and will soon be in line for games with the best teams of this or in the vicinity.

SILVERTON

Here we are again.

The farmers have been taking advantage of the fine weather that we are having and about all of them are done seeding wheat and oats and now comes the barley, flax and corn.

Kotlan Bros., will soon start to break with their engine.

Oscar Evenson, Ole Forthun and J. A. Monger were out fishing last week.

Miss Edith Pederson finished her term of school last week.

Mavie baseball boys were out for preliminary practice last Sunday. The boys made a good showing and we expect to have a good team this season. T. J. Staska has been appointed manager and he expects to have the team lined up by next Sunday.

Charley Ptacek is breaking for Joe Oski now days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ptacek were visited by his brother last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Breznay received a baby girl last week.

Fred Ptacek is breaking for Pete Schindler now days.

Hans Skogstad is on his farm near Germantown now days. He is breaking and seeding on it.

GERMANTOWN

The eight months term of school in Dist. No. 120 closed last week. H. O. Breve was the successful teacher.

The basket social a week ago netted our ball team a little over $30.

Two games of ball were played Sunday, Grygla Vs. Germantown, and Moylan Vs. Germantown.

The score:

Grygla	13,	Germantown	3
Moylan	7,	Germantown	21

Geneva Payne came home last Friday from attending school in Thief River Falls.

John Ristau sold his farm to M. Luebeke from Blue Earth county, consideration, $4,000. Now John is looking for another place.

Manager E. Johnson has resigned to accept a position in a hardware store at Lancaster. His brother Oscar from Middle River has been engaged to take his place.

Everyone is busy breaking. A number of power rigs are turning the sod in great shape. The acreage of flax will at least be doubled over that of last year.

R. F. D. NO. 2.

Mrs. Geo. Froisnes from Town of Smiley visited at the home of John Skomedal over Sunday.

S. O. Bergland has been busy planting trees on his place the past week. He has planted between five hundred and six hundred trees.

Targe Froisnes the hustling farmer from Town of Smiley, was seen up in this country last Monday.

Olaf Sorenson, and Andrew Twieten are doing mason work for G. J. Skomedal.

Ole K. Ose left Monday morning for Town of Smiley, where he has been employed to work for Tarje Froisnes.

PASSING OF BILLIONS.

The Yardstick For Measuring Space Is One Light Year.

If you were asked the distance from San Francisco to London you would not say so many inches, but would give it in miles. If asked the distance from the earth to the sun the answer would be in millions of miles. If asked the distance to the nearest star the answer would not be in millions or billions, but trillions of miles. Even this reply would be too long. Twenty-five million million miles (twenty-five trillion) are too many words, so it is shortened to light years. The yardstick for space is not billions or trillions, but one light year.

This is the difference traversed in one sidereal year, 31,558,140 seconds, by light moving with its sets and fixed specific speed of 186,383 miles per second. Distances traversed by space energy, given by time as in minutes, hours or days, would soon run into cumbersome trillions, so that the time interval used in physics, mathematics, electricity, etc., is always one second.

Say one second. Then while you are speaking radiant energy has traversed a distance nearly equal to a line long enough to reach around the equator of the earth eight times.

Twenty-five thousand billions, the distance of the nearest known star, is condensed in 4.26 light years. This is the passing of miles, for the mile in space is about equal to the one-millionth part of the thickness of a spider's thread in comparison with the length of the room you are in.

Draw a scale with the distance in between the earth and sun equal to three inches, then the distance of the nearest star would be thirteen miles. Space traversed by miles per minute would be almost without meaning, for to go out to the nearest star sun at one mile per minute would require 47,528,000 years, not days.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Art of Dressing.

Elegance in dress is too often confounded with extravagance in dress. That is one of the great big errors. What is really needed to make the art of dressing bless him that looks and her that wears is intelligent dressing, and that is a subject worth any woman's study not to the exclusion of all else—any one subject alone will unbalance the mind—but enough to make her a mistress in it. If she cannot be that let her do as we do in all other lines where we wish the best results—apply to a specialist—for dressing, after all, is only another human problem.—Dress.

Commendable Caution.

"I wish," said the dashing bride, "that we could arrange to take our wedding trip in an airship."

"I don't know," replied the cautious youth, "whether it would be well to take chances on being obliged to take our first falling out so seriously."—Washington Star.

The Woman Who Talked to Herself

By MARTIN B. ERLICH

It was a bright moonlight night—the 19th of April, 1871. I was walking along the street of the city in which I lived and heard a town clock strike with its deep tones the hour of 10.

"This is a double anniversary for me," I said to myself.

What I meant was this: Ten years before, on the 19th of April, 1861, I had been with the troops cutting their way through Baltimore to the relief of the national capital, threatened by the secessionists, and on the present 19th of April, 1871, I had only an hour before I heard the clock strike been accepted as the future husband of the woman who has for forty years been my wife.

There is a third reason why I have remembered that 19th of April, 1871. While passing before a dwelling a woman came out, muttering imprecations on some one. She was so wrought up by what she was thinking about that she did not appear to see me. I walked on behind her and heard her talking to herself. I don't remember her words, but she was heaping maledictions upon the head of her husband, who had deserted her, leaving her to support and care for two little children. These words I remember hearing her say:

"Poor dear little Bob, sick and hungry and nothing to give him to eat but dry bread when he needs dainties! I'd like to kill"—

She turned into a baker shop and asked for a loaf of bread, offering 4 cents instead of the full price, which was 5. The baker had evidently granted similar requests.

When she came out I spoke to her, told her that I had overheard her talking to herself and what she had said. She burst into tears and wrung her hands. I told her that it would give me pleasure to supply her immediate wants and handed her a bill quite sufficient for that purpose. Not only were my sympathies enlisted for her, but I was myself at the moment the happiest man in the world.

As she thanked me the moon shone down full on her face, showing it to me distinctly. It was a face not soon to be forgotten—not beautiful, but sad. We would like to forget the sad sights of life, but we can't. It is much easier to forget the happy ones.

A few months later the public became interested in the trial of a woman accused of having murdered her husband. I read some accounts of the trial, and certain features of it seemed familiar to me. Witnesses swore that they had heard her say that she was going to kill him if she hanged for it. Where and when had I heard some one say "I should like to kill"— Then it came to me that it was the woman whom I had seen come out of a house talking to herself, who had been deserted by her husband, whose sick boy needed dainty food and for whose immediate wants I had provided.

A thrill of horror ran through me at the thought that she had been influenced by her wrongs to do what she had said she would like to do. I resolved not to speak to any one of my having met such a woman lest I be called to testify against her. For awhile I kept away from the courtrooms, but something uncanny—a strange curiosity—drew me there, and on the day of the summing up I yielded and went to the courtroom.

I had not been mistaken. The prisoner's face was the same that I had last seen on the street in the moonlight, though the sadness of it had given place to a sort of stupor.

The prosecutor was summing up as I entered the courtroom. I heard him say that he had proved that the woman had threatened to kill her husband; that at the hour of 9 at night he had left a friend to go to his home, saying that he had received some money and was going to return with it to his wife. At ten minutes past 10 one in the adjoining house had heard a cry, had gone in and found the man murdered, the money gone. Later his wife had been found at a confectioner's with a ten dollar bill buying delicacies. What could be plainer than that she had in a mad desire for revenge killed him, taken the money and gone out on an ordinary errand to avert suspicion?

I sprang from my seat among the spectators and cried out: "That woman is innocent. I know it. I can prove it. Put me on the stand."

There was a hubbub in the courtroom, but when I took the witness stand and had been sworn all was silence to hear what I would say. I told how I had followed her to the bakeshop and had given her a ten dollar bill. When asked how I remembered the date and the hour, even almost the minute, I gave the reasons I have given in the beginning of this story.

The woman was acquitted. What I did for her after that is for me and my family and for no one else.

I was curious to know how the husband had met his death. It was very singular that he should have been in his wife's room just long enough to get murdered. It was a long while before an explanation came. Then a man who had known him in a distant state appeared and said that the deceased had told him of his desertion and said he was too unhappy to live and was going home to die. He probably committed suicide. Why he did so still remains a secret, though I fancy the man's mind was unhinged by desperation.

HALTED THE FIGHT.

Humor Proved the Victor In the Duel at the Spout.

A TALE OF OLD TIME POLITICS

Colonel Fitzhugh's Chivalry In Scoring Both Whigs and Democrats Won Him a Challenge, and the Weapons He Selected Averted the Meeting.

In a book long out of print a contributor to the New York Sun has found a tale of old Maryland politics which shows that, the knight of La Mancha to the contrary notwithstanding, an almost extravagant ideal of chivalrous conduct is not incompatible with a keen sense of humor.

Colonel Fitzhugh of Calvert county was a pattern of generosity and nobility of character. He was once a candidate for office. In those days it was the custom for rival candidates to stump the county together and speak from the same platform.

On a certain occasion Colonel Fitzhugh and his opponent were to speak in joint debate. When the day came his rival did not appear. The people assembled and grew impatient. Finally Colonel Fitzhugh, taking out his big watch and glancing at it, got up and delivered his speech. In it he took all the liberties that a gentleman of the Democratic party might take with Whig principles and closed amid prolonged cheers.

As he was concluding he received a message that the rival candidate was critically ill. Colonel Fitzhugh looked round for a representative of the Whig party who might take the place of the sick man, but could not discover one.

Finally the colonel rose again with the announcement that he believed in fair play. He said that as his opponent could not be there to reply to the arguments that he himself had advanced and as there was nobody of his political faith to take his place he would himself deliver a speech for the sick man. He added that he would keep his watch open before him to see that he gave just as much time to his opponent's cause as he had given to his own.

He then began. If he had scored the Whigs he now scarified the Democrats. If the Whigs had been men of broken promises, of smirched reputations, tricksters and rogues, the Democrats were now liars, thieves and murderers.

From the Whig point of view the address was masterly. But among his own partisans there were some who refused to see that the colonel was doing anything chivalrous and who were unable to appreciate the real humor of the situation.

One Democrat in particular, whose name tradition has not handed down, was much offended. The next morning he sent his seconds to the colonel with a challenge. As no explanation would satisfy him, the colonel reluctantly named his seconds, who accepted the challenge. The Spout—a stream of water that gushed from the side of a hill on St. Leonard's creek—was selected as the place of the duel. The time appointed was the following morning at 8 o'clock.

When the challenger and his seconds rode up to the Spout a little before 8 o'clock they found the colonel and his seconds, but could see nothing that looked like weapons of any kind. On the beach near the Spout, however, there was a big iron kettle steaming away over a fire that was being industriously fed with cordwood by two of the colonel's darkies.

"Where are the weapons?" demanded one of the challenger's seconds.

"Colonel Fitzhugh, as the challenged party, has the right to select the weapons," was the reply. "They will be produced at the proper time."

When the seconds agreed that the time for the duel had come Colonel Fitzhugh approached the pot, holding his hands behind him. The challenger, advancing in turn, demanded to know what the weapons were to be.

"Mr. Blank," said the colonel, "the ammunition is in the pot. The weapons are behind my back. This pot contains boiling pea soup. Here are two ladles. I propose to give you one of them, and I will keep the other. I propose that you take your stand on the other side of the pot and that we fling hot pea soup at each other until one or the other has had enough."

"But this is ridiculous, sir, ridiculous!" exclaimed the other.

"Not more ridiculous, sir," gently remonstrated Colonel Fitzhugh, "than your quarrel with me!"

The other saw the point, and they shook hands.

Father Was Neglected.

At first David did not like to have his teeth brushed. His father said to him one evening when the three-year-old struggled more than usual against the sanitary performance of his mother: "David, I wish my mamma had brushed my teeth when I was a little boy. I would not have lost any then."

"Don't you wish your mamma had brushed your hair?" was David's revengeful reply, with a look toward papa's bald head.—Exchange.

A Delicate Compliment.

"My new gown received a very sincere compliment the other day."

"How was that?"

"The proprietor of a restaurant I went into asked me to sit near the window; said it would lend tone to his place."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

EYE STRAIN.

First Felt Not In the Eyes, but In the Organ That Is Weakest.

No human organ, except possibly the heart, is called on for such hard and continuous activity. Even the most musical ear is never taxed beyond the three or four hours of a Wagnerian opera and at the worst is rested by frequent intermissions. The brain, even in the case of professional men, is called on for only six to eight hours of work a day. But we use our eyes in business all day and then all evening in our amusements. In point of fact, the heart itself is less severely taxed.

The eye has, to be sure, a most marvelous strength. As long as its mechanism remains measurably correct it seldom or never gives out, and its vitality is supreme. But when to the strain of near work in artificial light are added defects in its own mechanism even this wonderfully adaptable and hardy servant gives symptoms of strain.

The brain is generally our first informer. It automatically supplies the energy that flogs the lens muscle to its ceaseless task, and it is in the closest possible sympathy with the retina, the sensitive plate on which all vision is recorded. The brain declares its exhaustion in headache and vertigo. The masterful eye, so to speak, shunts off its suering upon the nearest neighbor. Yet in many cases even the brain gives no direct symptom. It is the central organ, the highly vital and complex master, of the entire system, and it also has a superior way of passing on the kick. Just how it does this oculists do not profess to know. The rule seems to be that eye strain declares itself first in the organ which is nearest and weakest. The stomach, the liver, the intestines, the kidney, the heart or the membranes of nose and throat may develop symptoms while the eye and the brain seem normal.—Metropolitan Magazine.

TOOK HIM LITERALLY.

And the Great Sculptor Houdon Found His Name Changed.

Houdon, the famous French sculptor, rendered great service to the fine arts not only through the masterpieces he left behind him, but also by perfecting the casting of statues in bronze. This art, fallen into disuse since the renaissance, he revived. When he reached his seventy-third year, writes Mr. C. H. Hart and Mr. Edward Biddle in their life of the artist, Houdon withdrew from active work. As a means of agreeable relaxation he began also to frequent the performances at the Comedie Francais.

It so happened that in consequence of certain alterations the building had to be closed for a considerable period. On the day of its reopening Houdon came as usual, but a new ticket taker had been engaged since his last visit.

"Monsieur, your ticket, please!" this official cried.

"I don't need any," and the venerable figure continued to advance.

"But, monsieur, no one enters without a ticket."

"I have my entree, sir," replied Houdon, growing warm.

"But how do you call yourself?"

"How do I call myself? How do I call myself?" Then pointing to the statue in the peristyle, which he himself had made, "I'm the father of Voltaire!" he cried, and he passed in triumphantly. The amusing part of it is that the next evening as Houdon passed in the ticket taker turned to his assistant and instructed him to inscribe on the register of entries for the evening, "M. Voltaire, le pere." It is easy to imagine the hilarious reception of this at the Comedie, and for some time after the old sculptor was referred to by this name exclusively.

The Healing Laugh.

Merriopathy is the science of the healing laugh. Merriopathy is better than homeopathy or allopathy for curing all the gloom diseases and grouch complaints that make life miserable. The wise physician well understands the therapeutic value of fun and a cheerful spirit. Medicine may be a necessary and powerful agent in the treatment of illness, but it may fail where fear and melancholy join hands with the disease. Laughter is one of the best medicines in the world and lengthens life as well as brightens it.—Christian Herald.

Pointing the Path of Duty.

"Don't you think women ought to vote?"

"Of course I do," replied Mr. Growcher. "Man is oppressed by economic conditions which only women can understand. What women want to do is to get together and legislate to prevent hat shops from collecting $40 for a handful of straw and a bunch of feathers."—Washington Star.

So Funny.

"I wonder," said the head of the family, surveying a contemplated purchase of a family steed, "if he will kick."

"Oh, pa," giggled his daughter, "it's funny, but that's exactly what George asked about you."—Baltimore American.

Cordial.

BOOST FOR PENNINGTON CO.

When We Have Something Good For Sale That People Don't Know About, it's Time to Advertise.

There is no question in the minds of the citizens of Thief River Falls and Pennington county as a whole that we have one of the best counties in the United States for agricultural purposes, that large sections of fertile farm lands lie undeveloped for want of progressive farmers and that these lands would be developed and farmed intensively if the people in the less favored or more crowded sections of the United States knew about the golden opportunities awaiting them here. Now the thing for us to do, when we have something good for sale that the people do not know about is to advertise.

Mr. E. A. Schilling, representing the St. Paul Dispatch, is here with an excellent advertising offer for Pennington county. He proposes to give us an opportunity to tell 110,000 farmers in southern Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska; and the Dakotas about the agricultural opening awaiting them in Pennington county. This will be done thru a full-page advertisement in the Farmers' Weekly Dispatch one of the most progressive and most read farm papers published to-day. Mr. Schilling himself is an expert in telling the truth in an interesting manner and will give whatever assistance is necessary to advertise properly Pennington county. There will be pictures of real farm scenes, interviews with representative farmers, creamery reports—everything that can be used legitimately for advetising purposes.

When Mr. Schilling calls on you for your co-operation, give him the glad hand, help to make Pennington county what it should be—the most productive county in Minnesota. Boost for Pennington not merely for sentimental reasons, but because the county truly deserves it.

Governor Calls Extra Session

Decides To Have State wide Primary Law Enacted at Present Time.

Altho Governor Eberhart had been beseeched, coaxed and goaded into calling an extra session of the State Legislature it was not until he was given the emphatic jolt by the state convention last week that he realized that a state wide primary law would be a benefit to his candidacy. Now, however, he claims to have seen the light of day and to have learned to know that the people can better be trusted than the bosses, for the people may still make more mistakes while anotherone like that could hardly be expected from the bosses.

The extra session is called for Tuesday June 4th, 1912 at 11:00 a. m.

The proclamation reads as follows:

Text Of Proclamation Convening Legislature

"State of Minnesota, Executive Department—Proclamation.

"Whereas, There exists throughout the state a clearly expressed demand for the immediate enactment of a state wide primary law, applicable to all state officials, an effective corrupt practices act and a reapportionment law.

"Now, therefore, I, Adolph O. Eberhart, as governor of the state of Minnesota, firmly believing that the best interests of the state so require, do hereby issue this proclamation summoning the members of the two houses of the legislature of this state to convene in extra session at the capitol in St. Paul, on Tuesday, the 4th day of June, 1912, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. for the purpose of enacting a state-wide primary law, applicable to all state officers, together

INDIANS WIN INTERESTING GAME

Teams Evenly Matched; Score a Tie In Ninth; Kallak Star Batter and Base Runner.

(By Flip)

Handicapped by a crippled line up the Thief River Team met defeat at the hands of the Indians from White Earth last Sunday. With Christy, Jaranson, Aasland and Cole out of the game the local team was sadly weakened. Dolan and Hess, who played third and short respectively in the absence of the regulars must be given great credit for attempting to fill in such important positions without having had any practice. The outfield too, was not as strong as it will be when Jaranson and Aaslund get back into the game.

The locals started off in whirlwind fashion and drove four runs across the pan in the first inning. For four innings the team played air tight ball, but in the fifth they took an ascension and handed the Red-skins five runs on a brace of errors, two passes on balls, and a pair of hits.

The seventh inning proved to be the lucky round for the locals, for they pushed 3 men across the plate and evened up the score. The tie lasted only two innings, however, for the Indians sneaked one across in the ninth which proved to be the winning run.

Kallak, the little catcher, was the individual star of the game. He led the hitting with two doubles and a single. His catching and base running were also features.

Kennedy pitched splendid ball until the team blew up behind him. He struck out twelve men and allowed only 5 hits during the pastime.

For the Indians, Hallet, Huff and P. Belcourt showed up best.

The score is as follows:

LIGHT POWER NOW A SURETY

Auxiliary Plant Has Proved Success, Both Economically And In Service Rendered.

Thief River Falls now has a cinch on the light, power and water problems. The Diesel crude oil engines recently installed have proved to be thoroly reliable, thoroly satisfactory in service and more economical even than the guarantee of the company, which was that the engines would use 12½ gallons per 100 kilowatt-hours. In practice Supt. Peterson finds that it takes 8 gallons of 32 degree gravity oil per 100 kilowatt-hours. Figuring the cost of oil laid down here at 5.7 cents per gallon, this means that, so far as oil is concerned, current can be furnished at the switchboard at .65 of a cent per kilowatt-hours. The cost of unloading the oil is practically nothing, as the oil runs by gravity from the tank cars to the 20,000 gallon storage tank located along side the power house. When the engines are not in use, there is no maintenance expense because they require no attention and can be started on a moments notice.

For some time now both the engines have lain idle all day, one generator at the water plant furnishing day power and one geneator at the water plant run in parallel with one generator at the auxiliary plant, furnishing power at night. With a 12-foot head of water the two Sampson upright water wheels will develop 200 horse power, enough to drive both 100 kilowatt generators at the water plant, thus supplying enough night power for the city without using the engines.

Aside from containing the engines and electrical apparatus the power house contains pumping equipment sufficient to furnish a city of 20,000 people with water. A Smith-Vale Triplex power pump is belted to a 65 horse power Triumph motor, the pump being direct connected to the river thru an 18-inch culvert which leads into a bricked curb well on the river bank. At a pressure of 100 pounds per square inch this pump supplies 750 gallons per minute. Another pump connected with a deep well, and driven by a 25 horse power General Electric motor, supplies 125 gallons per minute at 100 pounds pressure.

A trip to the new power plant will show you that Supt. Peterson has all space utilized to best possible advantage, and that the apparatus is arranged and cared for in a most pleasing manner. Among the features are lockers for clothing and tools, a neat toilet room, a handsomely equipped blue Vermont marble switchboard, and a most attractive lighting system for the building itself.

U. C. T. Council Now Organized

Grand District Deputy, Gravell, Had Charge of Work, Many Visitors Present.

Under the direction of Grand District Deputy, Frank Gravell, a U. C. T. Council, to be known as Minnesota Council No. 521, was organized here Friday evening. Counting new and transferred councelors, the baby council starts out with over thirty members, and when all the eligible men have joined, the number will be considerably increased.

There were visitors from Fargo, Grand Forks, Bemidji, St. Paul, Duluth and Crookston, the latter leading in point of attendance, having twenty-five U. C. T's present. After the work was finished, the travelers repaired to the Evelyn Hotel where a most enjoyable feast awaited them. Mr. Provencher received many compliments during the courses. LaLundas and Y-B's were passed, after which Grand Past Councelor, C. A. Hitchcock of Crookston, very ably

FIRST STATE RURAL HIGHWAY

State Highway Commission Approves Petition. Road To Run 18½ Miles East on Telephone Line.

Out of nineteen petitions for State Rural Highways presented for approval to the State Highway Commission, that of Pennington county petitioners asking for such a road to run eighteen and one-half miles east on the telephone line was the first, and only one, gotten up in such form that it could be approved, all others being sent back for revision. The credit for this petition being handled so efficiently belongs mostly to Dan Shaw and Attorney Stanton.

The petition will be conisdered by the Board of County Commissioners in the County Auditor's office here June 12th at one o'clock p. m., at which time, if they so see fit, the Board will appoint viewers to assess the benefits. Another meeting will be held later, and if the estimated benefits are greater than the estimated costs, the contract will be let, probably not later than August 1st.

The estimated cost is $18,000, of which the state pays one-half, the county one-fourth and the lands benefited one-fourth.

This State Rural Highway will intersect numerous graded highways along county and judicial ditches, and connects with graded highways in eastern Marshall and northwestern Beltrami counties, over which there is heavy traffic to Thief River Falls, the nearest railroad market for northwestern Pennington, and the above mentioned portions of Marshall and Beltrami counties.

Hospital Meeting

At the meeting held last Tuesday evening at the Auditorium relative to the proposed Peoples Hospital, it was decided that each subscriber, after making his or her donation towards the erection of the hospital, should bear no liability whatsoever in the running expense of same. It was estimated that $13,000 or $15,000 could be subscribed for in the city, and if this proves to be so, there should be no difficulty in getting the remainder thru the surrounding country.

It is without a doubt a great benefit to the people for many miles around Thief River Falls, to have a hospital at this point.

A resolution, moved by Prof. J. H. Hay, was adopted which reads as follows:

> The sense of this meeting is that a sum of $25,000 or more should be subscribed before the contract is let, and that expenses for construction must not exceed subscribed sum.

Everyone present seemed well pleased with the outcome of the meeting. Mr. Barzen and Mr. G. Halvorson gave some very appropriate suggestions.

The next meeting will be held one week from today, on Friday evening, May 31st, when the committee will give a more definite report, and it is expected that everyone attend this meeting and boost for the Peoples Hospital, financially as well as mentally.

Makes Good

Nault and Simmons, who are staging Orpheum Vandeville here every Monday night, are making good with local theater goers. The show is good, the crowds are large, and the acts are received with hearty applause.

Titanic Survivor.

The managers sprang a surprise on those present Monday night by presenting Olaus Abelseth, a survivor of the Titanic, whom they got in touch with during his visit with relatives in Crookston. While Mr. Abelseth did not have a great deal that was new, his realistic description of how he was saved held the audience spellbound from start to finish. Securing such an attraction as this for the entertainment of their patrons shows that Messrs. Nault and Simmons are on the job every second. If you don't want to miss something good you had better be there next Monday night.

CROOKSTON AUTO CLUB GAME

Despite Rain, Mud and Threatening Clouds Trip was Carried out as Scheduled.

Automobilists in this section of the country are not particularly afraid of threatening clouds, rainy weather or muddy roads if one should judge from the number of the cars which participated in the Automobile club Tour Wednesday and the slight rainfall did not seem to have damaged the ardor of the enthusiastic Crokstonites.

Thirty one cars left Crokston between 9:30 and 10:30 a. m. It had been planned to start the tour at seven o'clock but threatening clouds and a drizzly rain postponed the start.

Red Lake Falls was reached about 11:30 and seven cars from that city joined the procession. These were the cars of Messrs. Helm, Healy, Bourdon, Gibeau, Garceau, Gaass and Hennings.

Upon their arrival in this city they adjourned to the Auditorium where dinner was served by the Ladies of the Maccabbees.

But a few of those who had planned to accompany the party to Warren joined the force here namely, Dr. Mellby, Perl W. Mabey, F. J. Stebbins, C. L. Dobner, J. McKenney and Ed. Korstad.

From Warren the Crookston club and Red Lake Falls participants returned home direct after enjoying a supper served by the Ladies of the M. E. Church. As to members from this city they have all arrived home safely tho it is said various methods were used in returning.

The plan of these automobile tours is not only that they may bring pleasure for the single day of the trip but they afford the best of opportunities for closer friendly relations among the various cities and towns and a fine chance to obtain a better knowledge of local conditions.

New Pension Act Approved

For Veterans of Civil and Mexican Wars; Will Increase Pension Budget $23,000,000.

Washington, D. C., May 24.—The new pension act approved May 11, based upon the age and length of service of the veteran of the Civil and Mexican wars, will increase the pension budget about $23,000,000 annually, according to estimates. The sentiment in Congress was practically unanimous in favor of the increased rate of pension covered in the new law and there were very few dissenting votes in either the House or Senate. The law is based upon the age of the claimant and the length of his service.

The following table, prepared from the new pension law, indicates the operation of this legislation, together with the various rates of pension which will be granted to war veterans on the basis of their age and length of service:

Age. Years.	Length service.	Rate Pension Per month.
62 years	90 days	$13.00
62 years	6 months	$13.50
62 years	1 year	$14.00
62 years	1 year, 6 mos.	$14.50
62 years	2 years	$15.00
62 years	2 years, 6 mos.	$15.50
62 years	3 years or over	$16.00
66 years	90 days	$15.00
66 years	6 months	$15.50
66 years	1 year	$16.00
66 years	1 year, 6 mos.	$16.50
66 years	2 years	$17.00

NORTHERN MINN. DEVELOPMENT ASS'N.

Meets At International Falls June 20 and 21. Much Enthusiasm and Large Delegation Assured.

The next meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development Association will be held at International Falls June 20 and 21. The citizens of International Falls are preparing to do their share of the work by the entertaining of the delegates and their ladies, and nothing will be left undone

Thirty-one cars left Crookston beto make the stay of visitors both pleasurable and profitable. Many local business men are planning on attending the meeting.

The Northern Minnesota Development Association more than anything else has been the means of drawing the attention of wide-awake people to this section, actually directing immigration here and stopping the flow of settlers to the less favorable lands of Canada. Being a new and worthy organization, its meetings have been followed with much newspaper publicity and its methods copied extensively. Let all good boosters for Northern Minnesota be at International Falls June 20 and 21. CO-OPERATION means big business.

Hawkins Bros. Engine Goes Thru Bridge

When Hawkins Bros. pulled their new steam engine out of town last Thursday, the 16th, they had the misfortune of breaking thru the small wooden bridge between the Soo railway track and the large bridge at Squaw Point.

It is claimed that the cave-in was due to the bridge being quite old and heavily traversed this spring, and being rotten in several places.

The instant the engine was squarely on the bridge, both bridge and engine dropped about 6 feet, breaking various parts on the back end of the engine. Harry Hawkin's leg was caught, fastening him firmly, so he went down with the "ship", but was not seriously injured.

After the necessary adjustments had been made in raising the engine, and tracking laid, it was pulled out by Olson & Jacobsons' gasoline tractor, and started on its long journey to Carmel, Minn., where Phillip and Harry Hawkins expect to do considerable breaking this summer.

An Eight-Hour Day and Two Dollars Pay

Hereafter ordinary laborers, who work for the city, will have an eight-hour day with two dollars pay, pursuant to a resolution passed over the mayor's veto at the council meeting Tuesday evening. Mayor Backe did not think there was any call for such a move, that it would conflict with conditions under which other unskilled laborers work and that it would be discriminating in favor of the few over the many. Aker was alone in voting against the passage of the resolution. Such magnanimity on the part of our council is to be commended, for, they, poor fellows, work for nothing.

JONAS R. LARSON ELECTED TO TAKE HEDEEN'S PLACE.

The chairmen of the town boards of the 5th Commissioner-District, which includes Kratka, Smiley, Wyandotte, Mayfield, Deer Park and Hickory, met in the County Auditor's office last Saturday and elected Jonas R. Larson of Wyandotte to fill the unexpired term of Peter Hedeen who recently resigned.

The candidates for the office were Geo. Leimer of Deer Park, Oscar J. Peterson of Smiley and Stephen Singer of Kratka. The vote finally resulted in a deadlock between Leimer and Peterson, and after two hours of discussion both men withdrew in favor of a new candidate upon whom a deciding vote could be taken.

An Article of Special Interest To Farm Boys.

The attention of our farm boys is called to the following special announcement of the State Fair Association. Pennington county boys have here a rare opportunity to distinguish themselves—some one will see the sights of the fair free of charge.

For application blanks write to or call personally on E. A. Mostue, county Supt. of Schools.

Special Announcement.

The Minnesota State Fair management has completed plans for a FARM BOYS' ENCAMPMENT, that will give an opportunity for one boy from each of the eighty-six counties of the State to visit the State Fair for a whole week, without expense. The purpose of this encampment is to extend the educational advantages of the Fair to the farms of the State, and to stimulate a greater interest in the State Fair by spreading thruout the eighty-six counties, its real worth, through these farm boys.

Selection Of The Boys.

The selection of the boys will be made by a local committee consisting of the County Superintendent of Schools, the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, and one other selected by the members of the State Fair Board. This committee will receive all applications, as set forth above, and mark all essays submitted. The applicants must be of good moral character; willing to cooperate in making the encampment a success; be between the ages of sixteen and nineteen years, and be actual residents and workers upon a farm. No boy who has even been regularly enrolled in any special school or College of Agriculture, in this or any other state, will be eligible to compete. (This does not exclude boys who have attended Agricultural departments in High Schools.)

Each boy will be required to write an essay of not less than 400 or more than 600 words upon the subject:

"Our Home Farm."

according to the following outline:

(a) Describe the Farm.
(b) Why I desire to remain there.
(c) What changes may be made in the present system of carrying on this farm to insure better financial returns.
(d) What can be done to make farm life more enjoyable.

All essays must be in the hands of the local committee before the 18th day of July. The committee will read and mark them at once and notify the Secretary of the State Fair on or before July 1st, of the name and address of the boy standing highest, which boy will be the one entitled to the free trip to the State Fair, as a member the Farm Boys' Encampment from his county. The local committee will keep a record of the markings, of all the contestants, and the boys standing second and third in their markings, will be designated as first and second alternates; the first alternate to be selected in case the winner cannot come to the Fair, and the second alternate to be selected in case both the winner and first alternate cannot come.

State Board Examinations.

The State High Board examinations will take place Friday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 24, 27, 28 and 29. Pupils wanting to write, but living in districts where schools are closed, should write the Supt. of Schools for particulars. Do not fail to do this in time. Examination is given in all subjects. Papers must be sent to the Supt. Friday May 31.

Closes Successful Term.

Miss Katie Dahl's school, Dist. 25, closed Friday with a very interesting graduation program. Students were graduated as follows: Gerdie Evelyne Soderberg, Thea Erickson, Edna Christiansen, Myrtle Lillian Smith and Hilda Sophie Soderberg. That the program was well rendered goes without saying. The undersigned acknowledges an invitation ,but was unable to be present. The following was the program rendered:.

STONE POKES FUN AT RIVALS

Missouri Senator Discusses Taft-Roosevelt Fight.

WORLD LOOKS ON AGHAST

Declares Language Used by Former Cronies Resembles the Vernacular of a Fish Market—Quotes Some of the "Polite" Exchanges.

Washington, May 22.—Senator W. J. Stone of Missouri carried out his purpose of addressing the senate on "The Modern Damon and Pythias and Correlated Subjects Pertaining to Current Politics."

"Mr. president," he said, "any man having even meager knowledge of ancient lore will recall the story of Damon and Pythias and the story of David and Jonathan.

"A few years ago the American people and the civilized world were given to understand that here in our own dear country we had a reproduction of these glorious traditions of the far distant past.

"We were led to believe that the combined and consolidated spirits of Damon and Jonathan had come out of their haven of rest and taken refuge in the corpus of Theodore Roosevelt and that the combined spirits of David and Pythias had in like manner come to rest on the ample bosom of William Howard Taft.

"Thus in happy conjunction, both of these old stories of ancient lore and love were reproduced here in this new world of ours for the edification and uplifting of the human race."

Enter the Serpent of Ambition.

Senator Stone, amid laughter, said it had been a case of "two souls with but a single thought; two heart that beat as one," until "the slimy and poisonous serpent of ambition crawled across the path they were walking and divided them. Both had tasted the bittersweet of power and liked it overmuch. Both were tempted and both fell."

"So instead of peace we have had war," the senator continued; "war with knives and knives to the hilt. As a consequence of this ferocious contest the country and the world have been treated to a series of spectacular vaudeville stunts in politics without a parallel in the history of our country and which I devoutly hope will not be repeated."

"These world famed Republican leaders have been for months circling the country abusing each other like pickpockets in language akin to the vernacular of a fish market, or even something worse. The world outside looks on aghast and the press and the reading public of Europe and of all enlightened nations everywhere cartoon and laugh at them."

To the amusement of the senate, Senator Stone read at some length samples "of the polite exchanges of compliments" among the three Republican candidates. He said he must grant that President Taft, "innately a gentleman," evidently was reluctant to enter upon "this ruffian fight." He asserted, however, that the last word in "this black chapter of American history" would be written at Chicago.

CUBAN NEGROES IN REVOLT

Uprising Declared to Be Becoming Serious.

Havana, May 22.—The Cuban government disclaims any further knowledge regarding the uprising of the negroes, but the opinion is spreading that conditions are becoming more serious. It is creditably reported that two armed parties are operating in the province of Malansa, which hitherto has been reported tranquil. A strong band of negroes assaulted the barracks of the rural guards at Maguito, near Guantanamo, but the rural guards were able to offer a successful defense, although they lost two killed. Apparently the trouble is confined to the provinces of Santa Clara and Oriente.

AMATEUR AVIATOR KILLED

Minneapolis Man Meets Death Near Osborn, O.

Xenia, O., May 22.—Fred J. Southard of Minneapolis, an aviator, fell 100 feet at the Wright aviation field near Osborn and was killed instantly.

Southard, who was forty years old had just bought the aeroplane from the Wright brothers. He obtained the keys to the hangar, after he had been refused permission to take the aeroplane out without further experience.

He fell just six minutes after he had begun the first flight alone. His body was badly crushed.

BATTLE APPEARS IMMINENT

Mexican Federals Nearing the Rebel Position.

Rellano, Mex., May 22.—Federal campfires are visible at Asunceia, six miles away, while the main body of the government troops is now at Escalos, five miles behind. The rebels retired to Rellano to await the attack of the federals.

MANY CHURCHES NEED MINISTERS

Two Thousand Presbyterian Pulpits Vacant.

ASSEMBLY IS SURPRISED

Statement Brings Out Criticism of Policy of Dismissing "Clergymen of Brains and Education" for No Other Reason Than Their Age.

Louisville, Ky., May 22.—After the surprising declaration that there are 2,000 churches in the United States "pastorless and shepherdless" had been made in the general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church resolutions were adopted urging all Presbyterian commissioners (laymen) to keep in close touch with young men who might be candidates for the ministry.

Rev. Joseph W. Cochrane of Philadelphia, discussing a minister's living chances, said:

"We hear advices that a man to be a minister must starve. I never knew that to be true. I will admit that the salaries are not princely, but it can't be remedied except by this very assembly."

Immediately Rev. Dr. Henry J. Becker of Dayton, Ohio, interrupted:

"Hundreds of gray haired men of the ministry annually are dismissed or cast aside," he said. "Men of brains, education and good records are eliminated for no other reason than that they are 'too old.'"

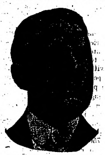
To this Dr. Becker attributed the gradual diminution of successful candidates for the ministry. The young men need the advice and counsel of their elders, but now there are too few elders.

The assembly proceeded with consideration of a report on a new intermediate catechism and a mass of other technical subjects.

WILL NOMINATE ROOSEVELT

William A. Prendergast Selected by the Colonel.

Washington, May 22.—William A. Prendergast, comptroller of the city of New York, has been selected by Colonel Roosevelt to make the speech placing him in nomination for the presidency before the Chicago convention.



W. A. PRENDERGAST.

This fact was made public here by Lucius N. Littauer, former congressman, and one of the Roosevelt national delegates from New York. Mr. Prendergast has been an active figure in Colonel Roosevelt's campaign.

COLLAPSE BURIES NEGROES

One Killed and Several Hurt When St. Louis Building Falls.

St. Louis, May 22.—One negro was killed, six others were injured, some of them seriously, when a three-story brick building collapsed. It is reported that another person, a woman, is still in the wreckage, pinned down by a heavy beam.

About twenty-five persons were in the building, which had been condemned a week ago, when it collapsed.

TWO CONGRESSMEN GO HIGHER

Ransdell and Broussard of Louisiana Elected Senators.

Baton Rouge, La., May 22.—Congressmen Joseph E. Ransdell and Robert F. Broussard were elected by the Louisiana legislature to the United States senate.

Mr. Ransdell succeeds Senator Foster, whose term expires in 1913, and Mr. Broussard will succeed Senator Thornton in 1915.

Root Temporary Chairman.

Chicago, May 22.—Colonel Harry S. New announced United States Senator Elihu Root as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention. It was rumored after the meeting of the subcommittee on arrangements Saturday that the temporary chairmanship had been offered him.

Canadian Novelist Killed.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 22.—Arthur Stringer, the well known Canadian novelist, was killed and his wife and two-months-old baby injured when an oil stove exploded in their home here.

LEGAL SEALS IN JAPAN.

Every Person Must Have One Which the Government Registers.

Japanese seals (han) are of wood, stone or metal. with signs engraved on the face. They are used in addition to a signature to represent an individual, a legal person or a corporation. The seals of the emperor are distinguished as privy and state seals. They are each three inches square.

The state seal is used mostly upon documents relating to foreign countries. The privy seals are stamped on imperial rescripts, issued for proclamations at home.

Japanese law requires that each individual should send in an impression of his seal as a specimen (called jitsuin) to have it registered and kept in a government office (district office of a city, town or village) that it may represent himself in a deed.

The material employed to make these seals consists of various kinds of precious stones, gold, silver, etc. Those mostly in use at the present day are of agate, rock crystal, ivory, rhinoceros or buffalo horn, shell, marbles or of cherry wood or boxwood, and recently india rubber has come in use.

The ink used for stamping is called niku. It is generally of vermilion red. The cheapest kind of seals are made of boxwood and sold at 5 cents apiece. Most seals are oval in shape, but some are round, and others square. They rarely exceed one-half inch in diameter.—Oriental Review.

PLOW QUICKER WITH LESS LABOR AND LESS EXPENSE!

When plowing, one man, one plow and three horses can turn only about two and one-half acres per day.

At that rate you know how long it will take you to do your plowing and how many one-man, one-plow, three-horse outfits it will take to just put your ground in condition for seeding.

And horses can be worked just a certain number of hours per day—must be housed and fed whether or not they are working—and for every three or four horses you must have a driver.

Now, consider the advantages of an OilPull ownership. You can work it both day and night. It consumes no fuel when not actually producing results, and when working burns cheap kerosene, at all loads, under all conditions.

It will do the work of 15 to 20 horses and from 5 to 10 men, according to the size used. You can depend upon it to turn from 12 to 25 acres per day of ten or twelve hours. If necessary, you can equip it with a headlight and work the engine at night.

So you see with an OilPull tractor, the power of from five to ten one-man, one-plow, and three-horse outfits are centered in the hands of one man—the labor of three to seven men is saved—the expense of feeding during the winter months is eliminated.

There is no question but that the OilPull is for you. The complete specifications, pictured descriptions, and full information on the OilPull are ready for you. Ask for them TODAY.

Where Tax Money Goes

How Each Dollar Is divided between the State and its Subdivisions.

As explained in a previous article, there are five independent taxing powers under our system of government—the state, the county, the town and the village or city, and the school districts. Under certain limitations each of these units of government has the power to determine how much money it needs for the proper discharge of its functions. These amounts are certified to the county auditor. The auditor computes the rate of levy necessary to produce the required revenue for each district and extends the tax accordingly. The county treasurer collects the entire tax and pays each respective unit the proportion due it.

While the average taxpayer knows just how much money he paid for taxes last year, comparatively few know how much of such amount went to each unit of government, and for what purposes it was used. It is the purpose of this article to explain briefly how each dollar paid in taxes is divided between the state and its various subdivisions.

The total tax levy for 1911 for all purposes—state, county and local, exclusive of special assessments for local improvements in cities and villages, amounted to $34,034,658. The levy for the different units of government was as follows:

State, exclusive of schools and university	$3,953,057
Counties	$6,232,860
Towns	$2,966,010
Cities and villages	$9,178,998
Schools and university	$11,703,733
Total	$34,034,658

What portion of one dollar paid in taxes went to each of the different units of government, taking the state as a whole, is readily ascertained by applying the old "rule of three," or simple proportion. We thus find that of each dollar of taxes paid into country treasuries, the state received 11½ cents, the county 18¼ cents, the town 8¾ cents, the cities and villages 27 cents, and the schools and university 34½ cents.

It is interesting to note that of each dollar paid in taxes practically 88½ cents are collected for local purposes, while only 11½ cents go into the state treasury, and nearly all of this amount finds its way back into the local districts in state appropriations for roads and bridges and other purposes.

In 1910, of the 85 coutnies of the state, 77 received more money from the state treasury than they contributed to the state in taxes.

A subsequent article will show the particular purposes for which each dollar of taxes is spent, and who spends it; also the amount of revenue derived by the state from gross earnings and other special taxes, and what is done with it.

Pastor Russel Replies With Facts

Mr. Editor:—In my sermon of May 5th I charged that the Christian ministry is hiding the Key of Divine knowledge from the people, as did the Doctors of Divinity of Jesus' day. This has aroused much comment. I am asked in substance: Why, Pastor Russel, did you not specify the particular subjects on which the Pulpit is seeking to keep the Pew in ignorance—hiding the key of knowledge? If what you say is true the laity must awake to this unsusupected danger! But prove to us that it is true!

Sad I am that it is true that the ministers of all denominations (with some noble exceptions) are the chief foes to real Bible study. Christians of all denominations love and reverence the Bible as the Word of God. Under the light now shining from one page of it to another, they would soon discard the creeds of the darker past and become united Church—with "one Lord, one Faith, one Baptism," were it not for the ministers. The preachers having lost faith in the inspiration of the Bible are "higher critics." They do not wish to show their unbelief, hence avoid Bible discussion. They await the ripening of unbelief when they can publicly say, We educated ministers have not believed the Bible inspired for many long years. We kept quiet until you would be shocked by the statement. But ot the proofs:

(1) The preachers know that the only Hebrew word translated hell in our Bibles has no reference whatever to a great torture-chamber such as their people believe contains nearly all humanity. Privately they will admit that "sheol" means the tomb, and that its equivalent in the New Testament Greek is "hades." They will admit, too, that "Gehenna" is the name of a valley outside Jerusalem where rubbish was consumed and explained Biblically to symbolize the Second Death.—Rev. 20:14.

(2) I charge Rev. Haldeman, N. D., with attempting to throw dust into the mental eyes of Baptists by horribly misrepresenting my teachings, to hinder his people from studying Bible teachings to which I call attention, by cracking over their heads the whip of fear. When he declared my teachings to be "the blasphemous religoin which teaches the annihilation of Jesus Christ" he intended his untruthful words should scare timid "sheep" and hinder Bible study. He not only helped to hide the "key of knowledge," but in this unscrupulous way he tries to keep the Lord's people from finding it. I am positive he would not think for a moment of defending his own Church Creed in public. The misrepresentation of my teachings is to rally the old spirit of the "dark ages," the spirit of hatred and sectarianism. His followers will not so closely examine their own creed if they are busy fighting a supposed enemy, and Dr. Haldeman misrepresents me to be that enemy. Alas! what a heavy penalty we may fear at the hands of the Lord upon those who, posing as light-bearers, are serving the cause of darkness—hating the light and misrepresenting it.

I might multiply facts, but these may suffice for the present. If Christian people once realized the extent to which they are being hoodwinked by the clergy they would soon find abundance of proof. If they ask for Bible instruction along simple lines (bread) they will be given a stone of evasion. If they ask for stronger meat (fish) they will get a serpent—a stinging rebuke, for meddling in matters theological, as though they doubted that the preacher knew everything, and as though they supposed that the laity were capable of understanding anything! Abraham Lincoln well said, "You can fool all the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."

New Pension Act Approved

For Veterans of Civil and Mexican Wars; Will Increase Penison Budjet $23,000,000.

Act was incorporated as the result in part of the criticism directed against the abuse of the special pension act privilege.

Senate leaders are not banking a great deal on the prospects of an early adjournment. The House Democrats held a conference recently and agreed to a program, which, if carried out will bring the session to a close about June 15. But some of the Senate leaders assert that there are too many important legislative matters still pending to make adjournment by that time possible. It is declared that the Senate insurgents will press the tariff bills, and in this will be aided by Democratic progressives. It is believed that the House Democrats are anxious that the Senate does not take action at this time on the tariff bills which have thus far this session passed the House. They would be perfectly willing that the tariff measures be permitted to rest in committee. They argue that if the Senate does not take action, thus preventing tariff legislation, the Democrats will be the better equipped with campaign material to go before the country. They then can say: We passed tariff bills, but the Republican Senate blocked further action.

The investigation of the meat inspection service before one of the House committees brought to Washington Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane, well known in Minnesota, where she made an inspection of seventeen towns and cities. Mrs. Crane is considered one of the leading sanitary experts of the country. She was called to Washington to testify before the Moss committee as to what she knew of the federal meat inspection service. In the opinion of Mrs. Crane the present service is not what it should be and the present meat inspection law needs strengthening in order to fully safe-guard the public.

The States are at last to be given the opportunity to pass on the proposition for the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people. The proposition went through Congress by a large majority in both parties, and the prediction is made that it will be approved by the States.

TAKE IT IN TIME

Juts as Scores of Thief River Falls People Have.

Waiting doesn't pay.
If you neglect kidney backache,
Urinary troubles often follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney backache, and other kidney ills.

Thief River Falls citizens endorse them.

Mrs. Charles Krause, 707 N. Arnold Ave., Thief River Falls, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in the family and have given excellent relief. Last fall a member of the family had a very lame back. This person could hardly get around on account of the pains in the back. The kidney secretions were unnatural and there was sediment in them. Doan's Kidney Pills were obtained from J. P. Curtis' Drug Store and two boxes stopped the trouble. There has been no return."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Krause had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Potatoes Fodder Corn and Roots

as five tons of crued fodder per acre. Fodder corn is splendid feed for dairy cows and by growing it on the old land, it not only produces more feed but it puts the ground in good condition for a grain crop next year.

Roots produces from twelve to eighteen tons per acre and roots can be made to take the place of expensive mill feed for dairy cows in this section of the State. The old hay land can be made to produce five times the feed in fodder corn and roots that it will produce in hay.

Potatoes planted on sod land are less subject to scab and produce a larger yield. If the potato seed is scabby the scab can be killed by soaking the seed before cutting for three hours in a barrel of water in which is mixed one quart of Formaldhyde. This can be bought at any Drug Store.

All manure about the barn yard should be gotten out on the potato, corn and root ground. If time will not permit getting it out before plowing it may be applied as a top dressing after the crop is in. In this case it should be applied evenly and thin. Manure for the above named crops is worth over $1.50 a ton when applied on the fields in good condition. Left in piles around the buildings thru the summer it looses most of its values.

Potatoes, fodder corn and roots are more important to the farmer of a few acres than the grain crops.

BLACK RIVER JOTTINGS

Last Tuesday morning about 1 a. m., the Wylie cheese factory burned to the ground. Theo. Fousnier, the owner, has been fixing it up the last week, and was to commence buying milk on Tuesday. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The building was partly covered by insurance.

The local baseball team is scheduled to play their opening game with Bray next Sunday the 26th. Everybody should turn out and root.

Albert Anderson is around assessing this week.

A bunch of young people gathered at Felix Anderson's last Sunday and spent a most pleasant evening.

Miss Josie Eckstrom came home from Crokston last Friday, returning on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kron from near Thief River visited at Lorentson's Saturday and Sunday.

Emil Eckstrom and Richard Lorentson, town supervisors, drove to Red Lake Falls last Saturday to attend to some business matters.

SPEED OF SHIPS.

Influence of the Depth of Water and the Dragging From Below.

On first thought the sea's depth seems of small importance if the ship finds depth enough to give her an easy draught. If she can run free apparently it makes little difference whether she has six feet or 600 feet between her keel and the bottom. Such an inference is erroneous, however, for the depth exercises an important influence. The British cruisers Blake and Blenheim were expected to run twenty-one knots, but actually ran two knots less in shallow water. They ran again under the same power, but the depth was between 135 and 165 feet and their speed was twenty-two knots—one knot over the maximum calculation.

The difference in speed is attributed to the influence of the "wave of translation" displaced by the ship as she moves forward, which acts as a brake. The nearer the ship's keel to the bottom the stronger the friction. A ship drawing twenty-seven feet of water (say a ship of 12,000 tonnage) feels that friction over a depth of 250 feet. According to some calculations, the dragging influence ceases to be felt at a depth equal to ten and one-half times the draft if the ship stands high out of the water.

A curious feature of the matter is that the speed of the ship is as important an element as the depth of the water—that is to say, the influence of the depth on the ship's speed is more or less powerful in proportion as the speed is great. A ship increases her speed more easily over deep water; but, on the other hand, the faster a ship runs the more depth of water she needs to prevent the hindrance caused by the dragging influence of the friction which is always felt when the ship's keel senses bottom. Running ten knots an hour, a ship must have between twenty-six and twenty-seven feet of depth or she is dragged from below. If running twenty knots she needs a depth of 104 to 105 feet, and when running thirty knots she feels the drag over a depth of nearly 824 feet.—Harper's Weekly.

Up to Date.

"They re very up to date."

"That so?"

"Yes. Her daughter is to be married soon, and she has sent out invitations that read this way: 'Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wattersby Brown request your presence at the first wedding of their daughter Jane.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Good Advice.

Never suffer your courage to expend itself in fierceness, your resolution in obstinacy, your wisdom in cunning nor your patience in sullenness and despair.

School Notes

The program for graduation is as follows: Rev. F. J. Seltz will preach the annual sermon at the Auditorium next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock; on Tuesday evening at the Lincoln assembly, the eighth grade graduation exercises will take place; on Wednesday evening at the Auditorium, the senior class day exercises will be presented; on Thursday evening at the same place, Charles Howard Plattenburg will deliver the commencement address and the 1912 class graduation exercises proper will occur, the alumni banquet is adversited for the evening of Monday, June 3rd, at the Evelyn.

All exercises connected with graduation are free to the public. The only reservations made consist of holding a sufficient number of seats near the front for the relatives of the 8th grade and high school graduates at the Lincoln and the Auditorium.

Charles Howard Plattenburg, the commencement speaker, will deliver an address entitled "Pygmies Today, Giants Tomorrow." He has been secured by the senior class at much expense, and the press reports are rather extravagant in their enthusiastic praise of his eloquence, wit and effectiveness as a platform orator and entertainer. If these reports are trustworthy, and they probably are, the commencement audience will be treated to an experience which rarely occurs in Thief River Falls.
